ENGAGEMENT OF WINCHESTER INTEREST

At a tea last Saturday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Rolliston Woodbury Linscott of Melrose, announced the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Stetson Linscott, to Dr. Edward Reed Hubbard of Taunton.

Miss Linscott was graduated at Choate School in Brookline and is a member of the senior class of Sarah Lawrence College at Bronxville, N. Y., where she is president of Dudley Lawrence Hall.

Her mother is the former Marie Stetson Barrell, daughter of the late Mr. William Lincoln Barrell and Mrs. Barrell of Boston and Winchester.

Dr. Hubbard is the son of the late Dr. Frank Allen Hubbard and Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler Hubbard of Taunton, and was graduated with the class of 1926 from Harvard, where he was a member of the Kex Club and holds charter membership in the Harvard Flying Club. He received the degrees of Doctor of Medicine and Master of Surgery from the faculty of medicine of McGill University in 1931 and is a member of Nu Sigma Nu fraternity and of the Osler Society. He is now engaged in the practice of medicine in Taunton.

EPIPHANY CHOIR TO PRESENT OLIVET TO CALVARY

The vested choir of the Church of the Epiphany, under the direction of Organist and Choirmaster Enos J. Held, is to present Maunder's Olivet to Calvary, a Lenten Cantata, telling of the final great episodes in Christ's life, from his triumphal entry into Jerusalem through his capture and trial before Pilate to his passion and death upon the cross.

It was first done at the Epiphany about 1907 when Arthur R. Rabethge was organist and choirmaster, the soloists being Thomas Clark, tenor; and Samuel Gay, baritone. It was repeated shortly after the war by J. Albert Wilson, then organist and choirmaster, with George Boynton, tenor, and Kenneth McLeod, baritone.

The story is simply and reverently told and the music, of appealing beauty. Especially lovely are the solo passages, "Not of This World," for tenor; "Come Unto Him," for baritone; and the soprano aria, "Droop Sacred Head." The passages for chorus are very descriptive, notably those telling of the Saviour's walk alone on Olivet, His capture and Trial, and the March to Calvary.

A cordial invitation to attend the Cantata is extended to the public.

PUBLIC SERVICE ON SUNDAY EVENING

The 7 o'clock service at the First Baptist Church on Sunday evening will be open to the public. The minister, Rev. R. Mitchell Rushton, will preach, taking for a topic: "The Crucifixion," a study of the famous painting by Munckacys. The young people's chorus, under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Clark, will sing. Everyone interested in Sunday evening service is cordially invited.

ROCK HURLED THROUGH WINDOW

A large window in the living room of the home of Mrs. Anna Heaton at 201 Mystic Valley Parkway was broken by a good sized rock which was hurled through the glass shortly after 10 o'clock last Saturday morning. The missle narrowly missed a cabinet in which was some valuable antique china. The police were notified and Patrolman Henry P. Dempsey was sent to investigate.

Sunday afternoon Sergeant Breen of the Metropolitan District Police discovered the basement door open and some glass broken in a vacant house at 225 Mystic Valley Parkway not far from the Heaton home. The police believe that the window in the Heaton home may have been broken by the same party who broke into the nearby vacant house.

WINCHESTER CLUB WON PRIZE

The Winchester Garden Club took a third prize at the Flower Show last Friday, winning in the "Exotics" contest. This contest was for table flowers, including the arrangement of flowers and the decorative effect. The arrangement was made by two members of the club, Mrs. Herbert T. West and Mrs. John B. Wills. The flowers were given by Mr. Jere A. Downs, a beautiful spray of orchids.

WELFARE ORGANIZATIONS MET

Upon the invitation of the District Nursing Association, representatives of the various charitable agencies and social service organizations of Winchester met Tuesday evening at the residence of the District Nursing President, Mrs. Howard Morrison on Glen road. Matters of general interest pertaining to town welfare were discussed with problems encountered by the various organizations engaged in assisting the town's needy.

Mr. Malcolm S. Nichols of the Board of Public Welfare was requested to preside at the meeting and as a result of the discussion, asked to appoint a committee of seven to consider the advisability of a permanent organization representing the various town charitable and social service organizations.

The meeting was held in the "Morrison Barn," and was preceded by the serving of supper.

OSMAN C. WEBSTER

Osman C. Webster, formerly a widely known and respected citizen of Winchester, died Friday, March 29, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. F. Curry, 399 Hanover street, Fall River.

Mr. Webster was born Oct. 7, 1844, in Freedom, N. H. He came to Winchester from Boston about 1890, building the home in which he lived for more than 40 years at the corner of Central and Norwood streets. He became affiliated with William Parkman Lodge of Masons in 1892 and during his long residence in town won the esteem of a large group of friends.

Mr. Webster was widely known in business circles, especially to the furniture trade, having been for many years a member of the Boston furniture firm of Sawyer, Walbridge & Briggs. Besides his connection with William Parkman, he was a member of St. Mathews Chapter, Boston Council, Boston Commandery, Knights Templar; and the Massachusetts Consistory.

Mr. Webster was a widower. Besides his daughter, he is survived by a grandson, Langdon W. Curray.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon in the chapel at Mt. Hope Cemetery, Boston, where the interment was made.

SNOW FLAKE GARDENS AMONG FLOWER SHOW WINNERS

Winchester people will be proud to learn that two of the coveted prizes awarded at the annual Flower Show were won by the Snowflake Gardens. Alexander Irving Heimlich designed these prize-winning exhibits. His Rock Garden, which took first prize in its class, showed a stratified ledge above a still pool, over which towered luxuriant cone-bearing hemlock and cedar trees. Colorful Alpine plants, hardy in New England, and flowering shrubs, grew among the rocks and overlooked the pool, creating a very gay and beautiful effect. A grass border fronted the exhibit leading to the pool.

Mr. Heimlich's other prize-winning exhibit, a naturalistic garden a thousand square feet in size, featured an old, weathered grist mill, with mossy shingles and dripping wheel. An overhead sluiceway feeds the wheel, and crowds gathered entranced by its lazy, creaking as it turned, the water running down the little rock-bedded mill stream, bordered with grasses and blue flags, and losing itself in a vista of birches and hemlocks. A profusion of ferns, ladies slippers both pink and yellow, trilium, and other wild plants grow all about the edge of the stream and among the tall trees. This was considered to be the most interesting exhibit in the entire show.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Women's Republican Club was held on Wednesday, April 3, at 2:30 p. m. in Waterfield Hall with the president, Mrs. C. Harold Smith in the chair. Following the salute to the flag, the president gave notice of a Republican Rally in the Town Hall in Arlington on April 11, at 7:45 p. m. and urged as many as possible to attend. She also read a letter from the State Committee regarding the Pre-Primary Convention.

Mrs. Louis K. Snyder, member of the State Committee, gave notice of the meeting on April 30 in Boston of Republicans from the New England States.

An exceedingly interesting and comprehensive resume of the year's work in the club was given by Mrs. Stanley Howe in the annual report of the secretary. This was followed by the treasurer's report given by Mrs. Nathaniel Nichols.

Mrs. Smith spoke a few gracious words regarding the pleasure she had derived in serving the club as president and sincerely thanked the executive board, who had worked with her and all club members for their loyal support and interest in the club. She urged the members to keep well informed on pending legislation and to continue to take an active interest in local, state and national affairs.

Mary K. Sargent, one of Winchester's talented artists, rendered with an exquisite skill and finished technique, two groups of piano selections. The first group included "Fantaisie Impromptu" by Chopin and a Waltz by Brahms. The second group included "Nachtstucke" by Schumann and a Concert-Etude by MacDowell. The hearty applause told how very much the audience appreciated and enjoyed the lovely selections of this skilled artist.

Hortense Creede Railsback gave a series of delightful monologues, which were enthusiastically received. "Nothing in Common," her first selection, dealt in satirical manner with the foibles of the rich and the resentment felt by the very poor in their patronage, with sentiment in the person of a Mrs. O'Brien entering in and finally pointing out a happier way of life for those richly endowed with worldly goods. A Small Boy at Breakfast was most humorous and true to nature, reminding many a mother, no doubt, of scenes with her own obstreperous offspring in public dining rooms. "The Giant's Garden" by Oscar Wilde was so charmingly presented that one seemed lost in the fairy-like enchantment of a by-gone age, while the last selection, dealing with the two small boys making mud pies was so realistic that it might have taken place in back of almost any garage in Winchester.

Following the entertainment, the following ballot was announced, elected for the coming year:

President—Inez K. Blaisdell (Mrs. J. Harper)

1st Vice President—Irene D. Clarke (Mrs. Vincent P.)

2nd Vice President—Marguerite B. Baker (Mrs. William R.)

Recording Secretary—Orinda D. Smith (Mrs. Arthur T.)

Corresponding Secretary—May W. Friend (Mrs. Alfred W.)

Treasurer—Mabel G. Nichols (Mrs. Nathaniel M.)

Education Committee—Lilla J. Ryan (Mrs. Joseph F.)

Finance Committee—Marion S. Hayden (Mrs. George W.) 3 years; Olive E. Moulton (Mrs. Paul) 2 years.

Hospitality Committee—Helen I. Fessenden (Mrs. Joseph)

Membership Committee—Marian Waugh (Mrs. Donald)

Nominating Committee—Anna W. Lochman (Mrs. George), chairman; Sarah J. Apsey (Mrs. George), Isabelle W. Goddu (Mrs. George), Emma G. Rice (Mrs. Walter), Jane Robinson (Mrs. Reginald).

Press—Mary S. Smith (Mrs. Lucius)

Social Committee—Ruth E. Priest (Mrs. William)

Registration Committee—Mary F. Cass (Mrs. Kingman)

Transportation—Louise G. Bradlee (Mrs. Reginald)

Auditor—Clara I. Palmer (Mrs. William)

Mrs. J. Harper Blaisdell, the incoming president, was escorted to the platform to receive the gavel from Mrs. Smith, along with congratulations and good wishes. Mrs. Blaisdell responded graciously and made a few well chosen remarks regarding the course that must be taken by the Republican Party and the work before the club.

Mrs. William Adriance then presented a gorgeous bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Smith in behalf of the club, with a few words of loving tribute. Flowers were also presented to Mrs. Blaisdell. A pleasant social hour was enjoyed with dainty refreshments served by the Social Committee, Mrs. F. W. Aseltine, chairman.

MRS. NEWMAN PLAY JUDGED BEST IN STATE

A play written by Mrs. James A. Newman, a member of the Leominster Fortnightly Club, entitled "Mary Smith's Job," has been selected as the best Massachusetts play in a nation-wide contest for an educational drama, according to an announcement made by Mrs. Edgar Tregoning of Attleboro, state chairman of education of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs.

The play will be presented in the junior high school auditorium at Leominster Friday evening under the auspices of the Fortnightly Club.

It will be produced in Washington in the near future along with plays selected in other states throughout the country. It was given April 4 in Boston at a meeting of state club women at the Club Institute, Y. W. C. A. building.

Winchester friends of Mrs. Newman will be much interested in this announcement through her long residence here. She was the daughter of the late Frederick L. Waldmyer and is still well remembered as Bertha Waldmyer. Her husband is also a well known Winchester boy, for many years prominent in the Winchester Boat Club.

DR. CADMAN SPEAKER AT CONGREGATIONAL SUPPER

Rev. S. Parkes Cadman of the Central Congregational Church in Brooklyn, N. Y., whose radio addresses have made him one of the country's most widely known clergymen, was guest speaker at the Lenten church supper in the parish house of the First Congregational Church Wednesday evening.

There was a large attendance. Supper was prepared and served by a caterer, the tables being decorated with tall candles and spring flowers. Rev. S. Winchester Adriance asked the blessing.

Seated at the head table with the speaker were Dr. and Mrs. Howard J. Chidley, Rev. Mr. Adriance, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bates, Mr. Ernest Dudley Chase and Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Norris. The pastor, Dr. Chidley, who formerly was associated with Dr. Cadman at his church in New York, introduced the speaker who held the closest attention of every one present throughout his address.

Dr. Cadman stressed the fact that more emphasis must be placed upon the church as opposed to the State, especially in these days when the State is so definitely in the saddle and in view of the possibility of future conflict between the Church and State.

He closed his address with the reply of an American to an Englishman who had asked when America waked up. The reply was "in 1776," and Dr. Cadman's final word was that America will soon awake again!

Among those in charge of arrangements for the supper were Mrs. C. E. Ordway, Mrs. Maurice F. Brown, Mrs. F. Ronald Brown, Mrs. Charles Mason, Mrs. Paul Crabtree, Mrs. J. Andrew Millican, Mrs. J. Henry Miley, Mrs. George T. Davidson, Mrs. Robert M. Stone, Mrs. Harris S. Richardson and Mrs. Franklin J. Lane.

BARN ON FIRE

Thursday's alarm from Box 41 at 3:10 p. m. was for a fire in a barn on Middlesex street owned by Jonas A. Laraway. The fire had gotten nicely started before the arrival of the apparatus and the water and tar paper on the building combined to make a heavy smoke. The roof and one ell of the building where the fire started were damaged with the contents of the building. It is thought that the fire may have started from a grass fire which had been burning near the building and which private individuals thought they had extinguished.

At 4:20 yesterday afternoon the Fire Department was called to put out a fire in a truck at the town dump. The machine was owned by Alfred D. Elliott of Linden street.

An interesting display of lovely hats for Easter. Miss Ekman, 17 Church street.

CHANCEL CHOIR TO PRESENT LENTEN ORATORIO

The Chancel Choir of the First Congregational Church, under the direction of J. Albert Wilson, the church organist and choirmaster, will present "The Darkest Hour" a Lenten oratorio by Moore, in the church auditorium Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Moore's beautiful work tells the story of Christ's trial and passion in music that is richly sombre and full of appeal. Especially lovely are the passages for men's voices, of which there are several in the score, and the choir has been augmented with members of the Winchester Choral Society for better balance in these sections.

"The Darkest Hour" has been twice previously presented by the Chancel Choir and each time gave the greatest pleasure.

Mr. Wilson will play the organ score and the guest soloist will be Ralph Tailby, baritone, who has appeared in Winchester as soloist for the Fortnightly Women's Club and with the Winchester Choral Society. Others having solo roles are Idabelle B. Winship, soprano; Josephine L. Taylor, contralto; T. Parker Clarke, tenor; and Walker L. Chamberlin, bass. The pastor of the church, Rev. Howard J. Chidley, will preside and the public is cordially invited to attend.

POST BAND IN RADIO BROADCAST

Many of Winchester's music lovers listened with much pleasure to the broadcast by the splendid military band, representing Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, on last Sunday afternoon over Station WNAC.

The band, under the direction of Bandmaster Charles Young and managed by E. J. LaRue, is one of several veterans' organizations participating in the band contest sponsored by Ce-lect Bread.

Several stirring marches were included in the program, such as Parker's American Legion, Huffine's "Them Basses," starring the trombone and bass sections of the band; and that old favorite, "Lights Out" by McCoy. Serradel's beautiful waltz, La Golondrina, and Horlick's novelty number, "Two Guitars," lent a pleasing variety to the program and displayed to advantage the band's versatility. The last named selection proved very familiar to radio enthusiasts as the popular theme song of the famous A. & P. Gypsies, and was well played by the bandsmen, despite the handicap of doing such music without strings.

COLLEGE CLUB

Morning Study Group

One of the most interesting meetings of the Morning Study Group of the College Club was held at the library, last Thursday, March 28. The members had the unusual opportunity of hearing Miss Nina Strandberg of Finland. Miss Strandberg is spending this winter in the United States as an unofficial representative of the Finnish Government, having been directly sent by the Minister of Foreign Affairs in Finland. She is lecturing here and making contacts with the American people, solely for the purpose of establishing friendly relations between the two countries.

It is easy to understand why Miss Strandberg was selected to serve in this capacity, for her friendliness and personal charm, as well as her intelligent presentation of the subject, completely won her audience. She began by saying, "To know about each other will bring us closer to world peace, for which we all long." Then she discussed Finland, and brought out many new and interesting facts.

From May 22 to July 24, the sun does not set in Finland. Due to this long light and the warmth of the Gulf Stream, vegetation grows very fast and profusely during the short summer. Forests cover 73 per cent of the country, and are owned by the government, for the most part. One can picture the beauty of the land with 60,000 lakes nestled among the forests and hills. In the northern part there are exceedingly high mountains which are always covered with ice and snow.

In November and December there is no sun at all, and the long night makes the people rejoice in the lovely spring and wonderful summer.

Historically, Finland has had her troubles. The country is a wedge between Russia and Sweden, and during the many years that these two countries have been enemies, Finland has been the battleground. Three hundred and seventy-six wars were fought in Finland during 800 years. The men have been away from home fighting so much of the time, that the women have long cared for the farms. But all through these years of struggle between Russia and Sweden, with the Finnish people sometimes under the rule of one, and sometimes of the other, a deep rooted spirit of co-operation was developing among them. In 1906 a climax was reached, and Finland demanded certain liberties from the Russian government. The latter finally granted concessions to Finland, with the result of much greater freedom for the Finnish people. In 1907 Finnish women were given the right to vote, thus Finland became the first country in Europe and the second in the world to gain this privilege.

During the World War, Finland longed for her own independent sovereignty, and it so happened that this is exactly what she gained as an outcome of the war. Thus Finland is one of the few countries that actually benefited from the war. The sentiment of the people at that time was expressed thus: "We are not Swedes; we do not want to be Russians; so let us be Finns."

In the reorganization and establishment of a Finnish government, women took a prominent part. At present there are 14 women in the parliament, which consists only of one chamber. The president is elected for one term of six years. Everyone has the right to vote excepting men in the army and prisoners.

It is interesting to learn that the feminist movement in Finland was started in 1865 by men. These men said, "How shall we demand that women educate children to become good citizens unless they themselves are highly educated? How shall we expect women to understand our national problems and help in their solution unless they can vote?" So the way has been made easy for women to take prominent parts in the life of Finland. At present every profession is open to them excepting service in the army and the ministry. The former, women do not want; the latter, they very much desire. There are at present 170 women qualified to become ministers in the church as soon as the right is given them. In the industries the women have the same rights and the same pay as men. Many of them are working at jobs loading and unloading in the harbors.

It is amazing to know that Finland has less than one per cent of her population illiterate. The people love to read and shelves of books are found in every farm house.

One of the greatest influences for social betterment is the Mannerheim League—an organization corresponding to our Child Welfare Leagues. There are 10,000 members and their work concerns itself with establishing child clinics, school nurses and doctors, mental hygiene and such. Finland has consciously based her methods of social work upon that done in the United States.

The kindergartens of Finland are unique. They combine what we have as nursery schools with kindergartens and include children between the ages of 2 and 6. These little children are taught to do all kinds of home work. They learn to set the table, to wait on the table, to clean a house, to collect and put away food, to wash dishes and they even do laundry work and make toys! In the spring they plant gardens; in the summer they care for them; and in the fall they can what they have raised. So, at the ripe old age of 6, these Finnish children are ready for elementary school and equipped to help with the work at home! The school system on the whole, is modeled after the German system.

As we heard all of these and many more, interesting facts about this fine and enterprising little country, and especially about the significant accomplishments of its outstanding women, we truly felt that we college women in the United States have much to learn from our European sisters. The very presence and personality of Miss Strandberg was an inspiration.

The next meeting of this group will be held, as usual, at 10 o'clock, on Thursday morning, April 11, at the library. Mrs. Kuang T'Mey, of China, will speak. Mrs. Mey's husband is at present an exchange professor from China teaching at Harvard University.

MRS. LOBINGIER TO EXHIBIT

During the next two weeks (beginning April 8) the exhibit in the Art Gallery of the Boston City Club will be the paintings of Elizabeth M. Lobingier of Winchester. In addition to a number of Gloucester scenes the collection will include pictures painted in many different parts of the country—Glacier Park, the Michigan sand-dunes, Maine, New Hampshire, the Puget Sound, Chicago, etc.

It has long been the custom of the City Club to have exhibits for periods of two weeks each, and the Art Committee of the Club has invited Mrs. Lobingier for the next period beginning next Monday afternoon. The Club is located at the corner of Somerset street and Ashburton place and Winchester people who may have no membership connection with the club may use the Ashburton place entrance, asking to be directed to the Art Gallery.

GIRLS HOME FROM BRADFORD

Miss Ruth Stone, a student at Bradford Junior College, has returned to school after spending the spring vacation at home. She entertained a classmate, Helen Harris, from Missouri during vacation. Miss Stone is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Stone of 35 Foxcroft road.

Miss Barbara Downs, also a student at Bradford Junior College, has returned to school after spending the spring vacation at home. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Downs of 4 Dartmouth street.

Another student who has returned to Bradford is Miss Brenda Skene, daughter of Mrs. Norman L. Skene of 5 Glengarry.

Mr. Albert Gaum and family moved Monday from Mystic Valley Parkway into their new home, the former General Corse house on Washington street opposite the Library.

EMERY ON JUNIOR PROM COMMITTEE AT BROWN

Donald M. Emery of Marshfield Hills, formerly of this town and ex-captain of the Winchester High School football team, is one of eight Brown students, recently elected to the Junior Prom Committee at the Providence College. The dance will be held this year on May 10 in the Providence Biltmore Hotel ballroom.

"Don," as he is known locally, is prominent on the Brown campus, being captain-elect of the varsity football team, which he has played regular center for the past two seasons. He was a member of the Vigilance Committee in his sophomore year and is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

WINCHESTER BOY OUT FOR BRIGHTON NINE

William A. Scott, Jr., a former well known Winchester boy who now spends many of his vacations in town with his grandmother, Mrs. G. W. Dearborn of Herrick street, is one of the most promising candidates for a place on Coach "Tom" Scanlon's Brighton High School baseball team, according to recent reports in the Boston press.

"Bill" is athletically versatile, having been a member of the school's football squad last fall as well as being an accomplished swimmer and hockey player.

In addition to sports, "Bill" plays first violin in the school orchestra and has shown a marked talent for drawing, having many of his sketches on exhibition. He is a member of the Order of DeMolay.

WINCHESTER CURLERS CLOSED SEASON

Last Sunday evening as a windup for the local curling season the District Medal Championship Curling team of the Winchester Country Club, comprising S. B. Neiley, R. F. Guild, E. Y. Neill and G. C. Neiley, skip; journeyed over to the Country Club, in Brookline for an invitation match on the Country Club rink with a team of picked curlers, among whom was C. P. LeRoyer of the local club.

The Winchester team won the match which turned out to be something of a thriller, the local curlers being on the short end of a 13—11 score at the finish of the 13th end, only to get in four stones in the 14th end, winning 17—13.

The local team was well skipped by "Geof" Neiley, and every one had a great time, both groups being guests of the Country Club president after the match, enjoying bountiful refreshments and a general get-together with an interesting discussion of plans for curling next season.

At the conclusion of the match the ice was turned off the rink and the season was officially closed. The local curlers especially appreciated being the last team invited to play at Brookline in 1935.

WINCHESTER BOYS ON TECH DEAN'S LIST

William Irvin Thompson, Utley Wilson Smith, William Edward Abbott, Eugene Perry Cooper, Leonard Blanchard Chandler and Albert Olof Wilson are Winchester boys whose names appear upon the Dean's list of 659 students at Massachusetts Institute of Technology who attained high scholastic standing during the past semester.

Thompson and Smith are seniors, Abbott and Chandler, juniors; Cooper, a sophomore; and Wilson, a freshman. Abbott and Cooper have the distinction of standing among the students of very first rank in their respective classes with ratings of 4.50 to 5.00. All were prepared for Tech at Winchester High School.

Mrs. Almira B. Ladd, who died Sunday at her home in Somerville, was the mother of Mr. Edward B. Ladd of Yale street. Mrs. Ladd was a direct descendent from Paul Revere and was prominently identified with many patriotic societies in Greater Boston.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS PROMISING GYMNASTS

The excellence of the gymnastic and tumbling exhibition put on by a group of Winchester High School boys in connection with the recent school vaudeville show prompted the Star to inquire about the instruction the local youngsters are getting in this little exploited field of Physical Education under Director Wendell D. Mansfield and his unpaid assistant Robert Friery.

Upon the invitation of Mr. Mansfield, the Star reporter visited the high school gymnasium Monday afternoon and saw a group of enthusiastic boys thoroughly enjoying themselves in all sorts of gymnastic stunts, from the most simple swinging on rings to the difficult exercises on the high bar, under the watchful eye of Mr. Friery who directs the extra curricular gymnastic activities of the boys. All sizes and classes were in the group, from freshmen to post graduate students, ranging from featherweights to burly football players, all busy and interested while building sturdy physiques and improving their powers of co-ordination.

The afternoon group under Mr. Friery is composed of boys especially interested in gymnastics who prefer to further this interest and acquire added skill in this field instead of participating in the usual forms of schoolboy athletics like football, baseball, basketball, etc. Its activities are comparable to the work done by a college gym team which generally rates a minor sport in the college athletic world.

The extra-curricular group is not of course the only way in which local high school students receive instruction in gymnastics. The regular gym classes, which are compulsory, provide instruction in fundamentals along with body building, conditioning, corrective work and games. Of necessity, however, the time which can be spent upon apparatus and in tumbling is insufficient to permit boys especially interested to perfect their technique in this field, and so those who wish to do so are welcomed by Mr. Friery two or three afternoons each week for about six weeks as the gymnasium is available.

Naturally the instructor is unable to give each boy individual instruction. As a matter of fact the boys teach each other, which in itself is of great value and worthy of note. Beginners can always find an older, more experienced boy to explain and instruct, with Mr. Friery ready to point out why the youngster doesn't "get" his "flip," "cut-off" or what-have-you when he tackles it on his own!

Mr. Friery, an Arlington man and graduate of Stroudsburg Teachers' College where he played football and was a member of the gym team, can jump onto the apparatus himself and illustrate his teachings. His boys all admit he "knows his stuff," and a little involuntary ripple of applause from the youngsters followed his spectacular giant swing, done for the benefit of the Star reporter and two more advanced pupils who were pegging away at this difficult stunt.

Calling together his most versatile boys, Kenneth Gurney, John and Richard Sexton, Alfred Mathews, Douglas Edwards, Max LeRoyer and Ernest Thompson, the instructor had them stage an impromptu exhibition of their activities which included high bar, parallel bars, springboard and Swedish box, rings, tumbling and rope climbing. On the bars the boys showed kips, heel circles, free body circles, uprises and back dismounts. All sorts of flips, with and without hands, were performed on the springboard and box. Dislocations, back and front uprises, kips and double cut-offs were shown on the rings, and a couple of the better boys showed the difficult double cut-off and catch, a feat which the average college gym team man doesn't do! Mr. Friery, for all his skill and experience, freely admits that he can not do it.

The young instructor, whose services at the local high school are entirely voluntary, but none-the-less valuable, is enthusiastic about the interest the boys show in their work, though he prefers to call it sport. It is the second year he has served the town without compensation, getting valuable experience in his profession under Mr. Mansfield, of whose interest and assistance he is most appreciative.

In few high schools throughout Metropolitan Boston is opportunity provided for boys who enjoy and are interested in gymnastics to foster this interest and acquire skill such as the more advanced Winchester youngters show. Only eight teams could be secured to compete in a recently conducted state-wide high school gymnastic meet at Lynn. So it would seem that Winchester is pioneering a bit in this field, for there is no doubt that from among the group of some 30 or 35 boys working out at the local gym Monday, a strong gym team could be assembled.

It may come in time and if it does, Mr. Friery must be given much credit for stimulating the early interest among the boys, though the Faculty Director, Mr. Mansfield, is in hearty sympathy and assists whenever his busy schedule will permit. In the mean time, a likeable group of youngsters are going right ahead enjoying themselves, building sturdier bodies and more alert minds, while also reaping the value which comes in sharing one's knowledge and experience with a friend less skilled and knowing. As we left the gym the last thing we heard was a stripling freshman asking a well set-up upper classman to show him "how to do that back flip of yours!"

Frequenters of the square had a chance to see what Common street from the Center to the railroad station looks like without cars parked, at least on one side, Tuesday morning while engineers were taking grades in connection with surface drainage work to be done in connection with rebuilding Church street.

PERKINS INSTITUTE BOYS IN ANNUAL PLAY

Blind boys at Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind at Watertown are making their annual offering in the dramatic field this year on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, April 5 and 6. The play to be presented this year is, "Boys Will Be Boys," a comedy of the soul of man under prosperity, by Charles O'Brien Kennedy founded on a story by Irvin S. Cobb. This play in three acts calls for a cast of 16 boys, all pupils at the school. They will be assisted by three young ladies, members of the faculty. Between the acts and on occasion during the play, Edward Jenkins, a graduate of Perkins, the New England Conservatory, and the school of music at Fontainebleau, France, will play selections on the organ. Performances of the play will be given in Dwight Hall in the main building on the school grounds.

Since 1895 a play has been given by the Boys' School at Perkins. In that year a group of boys formed an idea of having a self-help club which would offer aid to boys upon leaving school. A play was put on to raise the initial funds for the club, and every year since the fund has been supplemented by the income from the sale of tickets. From this fund there have been over 130 loans totaling more than $83,000 all loaned to Perkins pupils to start them on their life work. Small interest, two per cent, has been charged, but the main emphasis has been placed upon the repayment of the loans. At present there are 13 loans out and a good support of the coming show will enable the fund to enlarge its benefits.

REGULAR GREENS OPEN TOMORROW

Announcement is made that the regular greens at the Woburn Country Club will be open for play this Saturday, April 6. This is one of the popular courses in this neighborhood, and this year the committee announces a particularly attractive playing fee to non-members. On Saturdays, Sundays and holidays the fee will be $1.50. On other days it will be $1. John Thoren, the club professional, will give instruction to those desiring at $1 a lesson.

Cadet Ransom E. Smith, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ransom E. Smith, 20 Cabot street, a student at the Manlius School, is spending the spring vacation with his parents. Manlius closed Thursday morning, March 28 and will reopen Wednesday, April 10, for the spring term. Unlike most schools, Manlius has three terms in its school year—the fall term, ending with the Christmas vacation; the winter term, ending with the spring vacation; and the spring term, ending with commencement in June.

WINCHESTER ART ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Winchester Art Association took place Tuesday evening, April 2, in the Public Library. President Chapman reported the Association in a flourishing condition, with nearly 200 members. Eleven exhibitions in the Library gallery were sponsored during the year. They included an exhibition of etchings by W. H. W. Bicknell, collections of paintings from the Guild of Boston Artists and the Boston Society of Watercolor Artists, exhibits of paintings by Aiden L. Ripley, Lee Court, Stanley Woodward, Herman Dudley Murphy and Nellie Littlehale Murphy, Edith McCartney and Daniel West, and Margaret Patterson, and exhibits of sculpture by Bashka Paeff and Cyrus Dallin. Whenever possible a pre-view with tea and a reception for the visiting artist was arranged for Association members. The shows were well attended and favorably received by the public and the press.

The Art Association also sponsored a lecture in the high school hall by William Gracie Perry upon the restoration of Williamsburg. This was noteworthy, not only because Mr. Perry is one of the architects in charge of the project, but also because it was the occasion of the first showing of Dr. Tozier's color photographs of the gardens and buildings of the old town.

An art class under the direction of Robert Bruce, head of the Cambridge Art School, has flourished since last November, meeting weekly in a basement room of the library. The privileges of this class are open to every member.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President—Charles H. Watkins.
Vice-President—Henry S. Fitts.
Treasurer—Miss Edna Hatch.
Secretary—Mrs. R. N. Hallowell.
Members-at-Large of Executive Committee—Miss Elizabeth Jacobs, Mrs. Carlisle Burton, Henry S. Chapman.

Mr. Watkins, the new president, has long been known in Winchester for his ability as an organizer. While his interest in art is from the side of appreciation rather than creation, he is well equipped to carry on enthusiastically for the society. Mr. Watkins has also recently been elected president of the National Early American Glass Club.

WEEK-END FIRES

Last Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock Mr. William Guy, janitor of the First Congregational Church, notified the Central Station of a grass fire in the rear of the church. Saturday afternoon at 1:48, Box 142 came in for a brush fire on the estate of Mr. Robert G. Abbott at 75 Arlington road.

Sunday at 10:01 there was a grass fire near the Bryer farm on Washington street and three minutes later apparatus was sent to put out a grass fire on Chisholm road. At 2:27 in the afternoon there was a brush fire at the Brown residence, 22 Everell road.

Monday afternoon at 1:07 the department was called to put out a brush fire near the home of Mr. John Kealy at 26 Farrow street.

PINAFORE NOT TO BE REPEATED

It was with the deepest regret that the Winchester Mothers' Association learned that the Dramatic Society of the high school could not repeat Pinafore on Saturday night, as announced. German Measles broke out among the cast and as long as there were no understudies, it was impossible to go ahead with definite plans. The performance was so good that many people are very much disappointed not to see it. Aside from making some money for the Scholarship Fund, which was the main object, the Mothers' Association felt they were doing a genuine service to the town in sponsoring such good entertainment for children as well as adults.

LOSSIEMOUTH, PRIME MINISTER MACDONALD'S "HOME TOWN"

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was referred to by many American newspapers, during his last visit to Washington, as the "son of Lossiemouth." A bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society tells of this little Scottish town and the country round about it.

Lossiemouth, where the Prime Minister was born, and where he still spends his infrequent holidays, is a tiny fishing village in northeastern Scotland, says the bulletin. It lies on the southern shore of Moray Firth, a long arm of the North Sea which reaches westward to Inverness. On clear days one can see across the Firth the blue hills of Cromarty and Dornoch, while beyond them rise the faint, jagged lines of remote highlands in Sutherlandshire.

White Sands and Blue Water

The small industries of the town are boatbuilding and rope-making. It also serves as the port for Elgin, a clean and prosperous little town, five miles inland on the Lossie River. The ruins of Elgin Cathedral are the most picturesque north of the Border abbeys. It is called the "Lanthorn of the North," and dates from 1224.

Morrayshire, the country around Lossiemouth, is low and rolling, bordered by the white sands and blue waters of the Firth. Strong winds from the North Sea sweep across the wild heaths, covered with sturdy heather, coarse grass, and prickly whin. It was on such a heath that Macbeth met the three witches of Forres.

"How far is't called to Forres?" The answer today is that it is only a few miles west from Lossiemouth, where the Findhorn rushes through wild, rocky glens to pour into the Firth. Here Duncan held his court, and here Shakespeare made Banquo's ghost appear before Macbeth.

Stone Where Witches Were Burned

Forres is one of the most ancient towns in northern Scotland. Sweno's stone, carved with runic knots and figures of warriors, is supposed to commemorate a Norse victory of the eleventh century. Nearby is the old witches' stone, where Forres witches were burned.

Continuing south and west along the shore of Moray Firth, past Nairn and Cawdor Castle, one reaches romantic Inverness, capital of northern Scotland and watchtower of the Highlands. The city's history reaches far back into primitive times when it served as a stronghold for Pictish kings. Columba paid a visit to Inverness in 565, hoping to convert Bride, then king of the Picts.

Built on a steep hill in the center of the town, Inverness Castle commands a magnificent view from the shining waters of the North Sea in the east to the mysterious, blue peaks of the Highlands in the west. Below the Castle, and dividing the city, flows the quiet River Ness, spanned by four bridges and crowded with green islets.

Inverness Castle Rebuilt Many Times

Inverness Castle, traditional scene of the murder of Duncan, has been destroyed and rebuilt countless times. It was burned by Donald of the Isles, captured by Bruce, occupied by Mary Queen of Scots, seized by the Jacobites in 1715, and blown up by Prince Charlie in the Rebellion of '45. Rebuilt once more, it serves today as courthouse and government seat for Invernesshire. In the plaza before its gates stands a statue of Flora MacDonald, maid of the Isles, who so gallantly aided the fugitive Prince Charlie, escaping to the Hebrides with a price of 30,000 pounds upon his head.

Not far distant, a cairn of stones marks Culloden Moor, near Inverness, where the Prince and 5000 hungry, ill-clad clansmen met lasting defeat at the hands of 9000 British regulars, under the Duke of Cumberland. Rough stones, carved with the names of the clans, MacLean, Maclachlan, McGillivray, mark the graves of the 1200 Highlanders who fell. In an adjoining cornfield stands a tablet to the 50 Englishmen who were slain.

Inverness today is the distributing center for the Highlands. It is here that the annual sheep and wool markets are held. Industries include the manufacture of tweed, brewing and distilling, lumber manufacture, granite cutting, and some ship-building. Climate and location have made it extremely popular for summer holidays. Shakespeare discovered that in Inverness, the air nimbly and sweetly recommends itself unto our gentle senses.

A further attraction for tourists is the Northern Meeting or Highland Gathering held in September. Athletes from all Scotland gather for the games and contests. Men in kilts and tartan plaids crowd the narrow streets, and the ringing notes of the "pibroch" echo from the Castle walls.

ZAMBEZI BRIDGE LINKS NYASALAND AND THE SEA BY DIRECT RAIL LINE

The new, $10,000,000 bridge across the Zambezi River completes the final link in a chain of railways connecting Lake Nyasa with Beira, seaport of Mozambique (Portuguese East Africa). The 33-span structure, one of the longest railway bridges in the world, is built on Portuguese territory, but the British Protectorate of Nyasaland will be one of its chief beneficiaries commercially.

Nyasaland is a narrow strip of Central East Africa, sandwiched between Lake Nyasa and Northern Rhodesia, with a southern tip extending into Mozambique, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. It is a mountainous region of high plateaus, and peaks that reach 10,000 feet.

Poor communications have been Nyasaland's most serious handicap. Lake Nyasa, whose name means "broad waters," is Africa's third largest lake and easily navigable, but it has only one outlet—the shallow Shire River. This river flows south into Mozambique, where it empties into the Zambezi. Save for a few months during the rainy season, the upper Shire is a mere trickle in some places nearly lost in wide marshes.

When Livingstone first pushed his way up the Zambezi, he had to abandon his launch on the banks of the lower Shire and proceed by rowboat. In September 1859, he reached Lake Nyasa. Missionaries and traders followed the trail he blazed. Sixteen years later the first steamer was launched on the lake. It was built at the mouth of the Zambezi, sailed up that river and part way up the Shire, and then carried overland in sections.

Ferries Long in Use Over Zambezi

In 1908 a railway was completed between Blantyre (chief town of the southern province) and Port Herald on the Shire. In the early years of the World War the Central African Railway was completed connecting Port Herald, Nyasaland, with Chindio, a Portuguese town on the north bank of the Zambezi.

The trans-Zambezi line was thrust from Beira to Murraca on the opposite side of the river from Chindio in 1922. Between the latter two stations all traffic was handled by slow flat-bottomed ferries. The new bridge crosses the river a few miles above Chindio at Sena, replacing the ferries.

With lower rates and speedier transportation, Nyasaland bids fair to increase her foreign trade. The country is essentially agricultural. At present the chief exports are tea and tobacco, although coffee and cotton also are grown. The climate and soil are favorable for all these crops, and the cool climate of high altitudes makes living conditions pleasant and healthful for white settlers. In the lowlands the heat and humidity are enervating to Europeans.

The early development of Nyasaland was hindered by a series of conflicts. For years unfriendly relations existed between English settlers, Arab slave traders, and natives. The region became a British Protectorate in 1891, following treaties with Portugal and Germany. It now is ruled by a governor whose headquarters are at Zomba, in the southern province.

The population of Nyasaland today numbers 2000 Europeans, 1500 Asiatics, and over 1,000,000 natives. The Protectorate is very proud of its 1500 miles of good roads, its many automobiles, and its regular air service, which was established in 1931. Then there is the new railway from Blantyre north to the shore of Lake Nyasa. Through trains now can carry shipments of tobacco from lake steamer to ocean freighter.

WINCHESTER ORGANIST IN STONEHAM RECITAL

A large audience was present last Sunday afternoon when J. Albert Wilson, organist and choirmaster of the First Congregational Church, played an organ recital at the First Congregational Church in Stoneham where he has recently been appointed director of music.

His program included the Allegretto and Andante from Handel's Concerto in C Minor, a Bach Aria, Andante Cantabile from Tschaikowsky's Sonata Pathetique, Largo by Handel and two of his own compositions, Pastorale and Festival March. For the most part his selections were played from memory and all were done with the technical proficiency and interpretive skill Winchester music lovers know so well.

Assisting Mr. Wilson was a small group of members of the Winchester Choral Society, who sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd" by Schubert, "O Lord Most Holy" by Abt and ach's chorale, "Grant Me True Courage Lord," with fine tone and a nice appreciation of the spirit of the selections.

After the recital a reception was held, at which members of the congregation were presented to Mr. Wilson, many speaking in terms of highest praise of his performance.

In Winchester, as in many other towns and cities throughout the nation and even in other lands, the teachers in both church schools and public schools will use the opportunity which this special week affords, for crystalizing those "Be Kind to Animals" sentiments which they have sought to inculcate in the minds of their pupils through every week in the year.

JAPANESE TEA

The April meeting of the Women's League at the First Baptist Church was of unusual interest. The program, under the leadership of Mrs. Brooks Jakeman, was a continuation of the study of Japan. After a brief address, Mrs. Jakeman invited the members of the League into the junior room, which had been transformed to resemble a Japanese tea house. There, amid cherry blossoms, and Japanese lanterns, tea was served by four young Japanese girls, who are known in ordinary life as active members of the World Wide Guild. The luncheon, with Mrs. Leonard O. Waters as hostess, was served by members of Mrs. Water's group and was well attended, although the price has been advanced to 40 cents. This advance in price was made necessary by the high cost of food stuffs at the present time. White Cross work, under the direction of Mrs. Harry Mitton, was carried on, as usual, during the morning hours.

It is reported that Winchester has ten per cent of its residents on the public welfare rolls.

Many signatures, so it is said, appear on both petitions for a ballot referendum for movies and the widening of Main street. If it is true, as was stated, that a group of citizens had the right to protest and stop the movie referendum, the Main street referendum, which was not in this classification, appears to be a lever to force the movie ballot. Various citizens interested in our town government have a growing conviction that some minimum requirements should be made in the calling of a referendum ballot. As matters stand now, anyone who desires, can apparently secure the necessary signatures and force a referendum on any town vote which he desires.

MOVIES—A TESTAMENT OF YOUTH

No modern parent needs any scientist to tell him that children imitate in their play the stories they see upon the screen or that adolescents imitate the dress, the mannerisms and the love techniques of their favorite movie stars. Of the 458 high school movie autobiographies, 55 per cent spoke of having been thrilled or stirred by love pictures, and 30 per cent showed that the writer had been made more receptive to petting or other forms of so-called love-demonstration. Some of the young men say they "deliberately employ passionate motion pictures as a means of inducing a greater attitude of receptiveness on the part of their girl companions." Witness the following:

Girl, 16, high school. "After I see a love picture, it just leaves me rather dopey . . . I always try to imagine myself in a like situation.

Of 252 delinquent girls, most of them 14 to 18 years of age, 25 per cent acknowledged, "engaging in sexual relations after becoming sexually aroused at a movie."

Put yourself in your child's place. Look at the thing through his eyes. At home and in school and church he sees one set of values upheld as the secret of a desirable life. At the movies he sees another set presented with all the power and glamour of strong emotional stimulus.

Testimony of Police Officials

Of 122 heads of penal and correctional institutions 48 per cent were of the opinion that the movies contributed to delinquency and crime. Twenty-five per cent doubted this, and the remainder expressed no opinion. Among the 48 per cent some of the most typical descriptions of the ways in which movies contributed to delinquency were these, "False conceptions of life in the movies, crime and delinquency glorified, disrespect for law created, unlawful acts suggested to boys."

Howard J. Chidley

FROM THE WINCHESTER COLLEGE CLUB

To the Editor of the Star:

Personally I wish we might have a moving picture theatre in Winchester—a well ventilated one. It would be so much simpler to see some of the splendid pictures no one cares to miss.

How any parent or citizen interested in the welfare of the children of the town can bring themselves to vote "Yes" on the referendum on April 16, I fail to see.

Having brought up two children in a city, where "movie" theatres were almost as numerous as drug stores, and one child in Winchester the advantages in the later case are very clear in my mind.

With a movie theatre in town it is a most difficult undertaking to keep one's children from spending half of Saturday and at least one afternoon a week at the movies if many of their friends are allowed to attend.

We are all anxious to have our children spend as much time as possible out of doors and develope an interest in out-of-door activities.

Perhaps one of the reasons the boys and girls of this town have excelled in tennis is because there have been no movies to compete for their time.

Such worth while activities as the Scout troops, play ground and swimming classes are bound to be less well attended. Children too, have but 24 hours in their day!

Having served three years on a city censorship committee backed by the mayor and chief of police I've seen how little actual control can be exercised by that method.

The detrimental effect on a child's character of a constant diet of "murder and sand" has been too often pointed out to need repeating but it is of course the greatest of our present moving pictures.

A PLEA FOR AN UNDERSTANDING VOTE

A petition for a referendum for a sense of the Town vote on the Selectmen granting a license for a motion picture theatre in Winchester has been accepted and the date set of voting for Tuesday, April 16.

Let us understand the real issue upon which we vote. The way the referendum will read is, "That the voters recommend to the Board of Selectmen that they issue a permit for a motion picture theatre in Winchester to be operated week days only." Many know that a vote "YES" or "NO" is not a final vote on this question, but there are voters who do not. Though the privilege of granting the license is the Selectmens, they realize it is a town issue and that no selected few should voice the opinion of 13,431 citizens. That a referendum has been advised—not demanded—to secure the citizens' wishes is a fact and that the vote cast will influence greatly the final decision is to be expected.

To dwell on the recreation problem of Winchester, one observes there is none of a community nature. A talk with those citizens not of the selected church or club groups it is realized that a few bowling alleys, pool rooms and organized basket ball clubs does not satisfy the desire for recreation and relaxation. These are the citizens who can not afford the splendid private dramatics, legion plays and club affairs that are so frequently offered here.

The census this week gives the count as 13,431 persons in Winchester. Can not this thought be in mind when considering your vote—that 13,431 persons have the right to such an accepted institution as the motion picture here in their own town.

Winchester has at this time a different and more serious obligation to its citizens than even a year ago and decidedly more than three years ago when the last picture house license referendum was held to supply economic and industrial relief and no less important wholesome recreation for its citizens.

There are many to be sure in Winchester who have their cars, domestic help and freedom to go out of town for their picture entertainment and many who can pay the bus fare, but what a small percentage of the 13,431 persons.

Our children know their movies as well as children of other towns but do they belong on Massachusetts avenue, walking from Arlington center to the theatre? NO. Or walking along traffic crowded Forest street from Winchester to Stoneham? NO. Or do our young people belong in Woburn or Medford returning late from the theatre? NO.

We pride ourselves that we, as a community are not licensed for liquor sales and that we are this and are that, but have we proper recreation for 13,431 citizens? NO. If we continue to keep this form of entertainment out of Winchester, forcing us to go elsewhere for needed diversion—the greater the depression more important are these hours of relaxation—to go where we can not govern what we see or what may happen en route.

A first class theatre can be had if an interested citizens' committee will co-operate with the management by encouraging attendance and sincerely demanding and obtaining only the best in pictures. There is, in our opinion, no danger of the theatre not paying if we will make it a community institution, in spite of many contrary statements.

Go to the polls and vote—vote with a community point of view—sense what a town of 13,431 citizens need and what it would mean to the many, many persons, who are able to pay a small sum for entertainment, to say nothing of the many prospective newcomers in Winchester. Among these are single women, widows, our maids, our school teachers and older couples as well as the family group, that privilege and the pleasure of an evening in the make-believe world of the pictures.

And in accord with the request of the Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, let us have confidence in our chosen selectmen. Let us vote "YES" or "NO" on this question, expressing our opinion of the facts and we have confidence that they will decide the best solution, best location and best management if the vote is in favor of this answer to our serious recreation problem.

ARE WE HELPLESS IN THE HANDS OF HOLLYWOOD?

Dr. Lowell's reply to General Johnson's defense of the code pierced straight to the heart of the issue. This is a part of his letter, which we wish could be printed in full:

That the practice of block-booking is a monopoly illegal at law, I do not mean to assert, but that the whole object of it is monopolistic I think one would hardly deny; and I am very much interested in your statement that you had no legal power to prohibit it in the code, because it would seem to follow that, no matter how much the representatives of the government on the code authority should condemn it, there would be no legal power to stop it by any further amendment of the code.

The right of exhibitors to cancel 10 per cent of the product is, they tell me, futile; because it is perfectly easy for the producers to put in 10 per cent of films which the exhibitors are certain to reject before reaching the objectionable ones. Nor does this avoid the abuse of compelling them to take 90 per cent of an unknown block of films, including objectionable ones.

I am very much struck by your explanation of why the representatives of the government on the code authority are not given a vote. You say, "What is the use of a vote against a certain majority?" This assumes that a member of the code authority whose only interest in the matter is clean films, will find himself necessarily in opposition to the producers. I fear this is only too true, judging by the history of the great producing companies; but it is certainly impressive that such an attitude on their part should be taken for granted by the government, and that they are given absolute authority in carrying out the code.

Dr. Lowell's analysis of the code situation should make it plain to the nation that, without specific congressional action, American communities cannot protect themselves against the intolerable social evils fostered by block-booking. The NRA, on the strength of a single decision in a lower federal court, has thrown up its hands. It agrees that it can do nothing about this practice; so long as the movies are controlled by the NRA code alone, local exhibitors will retain their impregnable alibi for showing bad pictures. The NRA code leaves the local exhibitor—and through him the local community—helpless in the hands of the Hollywood producer.

EN KA STREET FAIR DEFINITELY PLANNED FOR MAY 11

For many weeks the Ways and Means Committee of the En Ka Society have been outlining plans for a Street Fair to be held this Spring; and now it is possible to announce definite plans.

The date is Saturday, May 11, and, weather permitting, Winchester will have one of the most unusual entertainments ever given here. The new parking space in the rear of the Town Hall will be transformed into an attractive street where small shops of different types will open their doors for interested customers at 11 o'clock in the morning and do business until 11 o'clock in the evening.

Over 100 members and friends are working hard for this worthwhile effort to raise money for the Nurses' Home at our Hospital.

En Ka has for the past year had the responsibility of assisting in maintaining the home. There is much to be done to renovate and freshen the building and the members are whole hearted in their effort to assist the Hospital Association in this work.

A home-cooked bean supper will be served in the Town Hall and later in the evening, "Beano" games will be played there. The Children's Midway will be an all day attraction where there will be plenty of fun for all—and a feature of the afternoon that will attract many will be tea served on the Island in the Japanese way.

The announcement that Washington street between the beacon and the Library corner is to be closed and partly roped off for street dancing has met with enthusiasm. A well known orchestra to play and dancing will continue from 8 p. m. to 12 midnight.

Co-operating with the Society is the Winchester Hospital Nurses' Alumni Association. They have taken a booth and their plans are well underway.

Without the endorsement of the Selectmen and the generous offer to assist by the Park Board, the Street Fair would not be possible. A group of well known and socially prominent citizens are helping and the many offers to do carpentry, painting, and "clerking" have been greatfully accepted.

That the Street Fair is an ambitious undertaking is realized by the committee if the co-operation so far is indicative of what may be expected when the citizens learn of it, the success of this charity affair is assured.

A KITTENS STORY

Dedicated to Susan Goldthorpe

I'm just a little kitten
But if you do not mind,
I'd like to tell a story
Of a lady that is kind.

You see they did not love me
At the house where I was born,
They took my mother from me
And I was so forlorn.

And often cold and hungry,
And wet with rain and snow,
They put me out of doors at night
And I had no place to go.

One night they put me in a box
And shut the cover down,
And threw me in a big black pond.
They wanted me to drown.

I don't know how I learned to swim,
But swim I surely did,
And when I reached the shore
I crept away and hid.

And in the morning, when 'twas light
I walked along the shore,
And then I just sat down and cried
Beside an open door.

And soon a lovely lady came,
I think I felt a tear
As she held me to her soft warm cheek
And called me, "Baby dear."

I heard her say, "God sent you
And you shall always stay,
My baby girl would love you so
If she were here today."

Then she took me in and fed me
And warmed me in the sun,
Oh Boy! I felt a happy life
For me had just begun.

I wish that every kitten
A home like this could find,
With a beautiful, beautiful lady
A lady that is kind.

Minnie Kendall Wiswall

MOVIE LOCATIONS TALKED

Although Winchester does not vote on movies until April 16, already various locations are talked of by supporters of Mr. Locatelli in case he is unable—provided movies are voted—to secure a permit for his Main street property adjoining the river, Unitarian Church, Post Office and Manchester Field.

Among the locations which are said to be considered, and which steps are reported to have been taken to secure are the following:

Church street. Just west of the Winchester Trust Company and occupying the block between that building and the old Prince School lot.

Church street. Just west of the block of stores beyond Waterfield Building; running from these stores to Rangeley.

Main street. The old Whitney Mill property north of the center.

Main street. The large brick building north of the crossing known as the "Cannon Ball Hotel."

Winchester place. Land north of the Kelley & Hawes' stable.

In addition to this, report yesterday stated that the Blanchard Lumber Yard of Main street was under consideration.

The Star gives these rumors for what they are worth.

Aside from these mentioned locations, the town has a number of other sites along this line. One desirable location would be just west of the Wyman School, taking the stretch between the school and Fletcher street. Another would be just south of the Junior High School. This location was formerly the site of two Unitarian Churches and would be adjacent to the present church. The Skillings property opposite the Town Hall would also make a good site.

If Winchester is "going to have" movies, it might be a good idea to get in early and pick your site.

Mr. and Mrs. Cutler B. Downer and their daughters, Mrs. Thomas M. Righter, Jr. and Miss Helen Downer have returned from Sea Island, Georgia.

"Unreality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 7.

The Golden Text is: "Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment" (John 7:24).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, The kingdom is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his field: But while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way. But when the blade was sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also. . . . The servants said unto him, Wilt thou then that we go and gather them up? But he said, Nay: . . . let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn" (Matthew 13:24-26, 28-30).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The temporal and unreal never touch the eternal and real. . . . These opposite qualities are the tares and wheat, which never really mingle, though (to mortal sight) they grow side by side until the harvest; then, Science separates the wheat from the tares, through the realization of God as ever present and of man as reflecting the divine likeness" (p. 300).

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Four absentees from the meeting of April 1, 1935 are recorded, one of whom has already made up for his absence.

Reports on the club project mentioned in the previous letter indicate that action on the matter should be deferred. Accordingly it has been voted to postpone further consideration until May 2.

A telegram brings greetings from President Harry Winn who is absent on a business trip. It is indeed a pleasure to realize that home associates are never far removed from Harry's thoughts.

The Rotary Club of Medford extends an invitation to our club to be present at a joint meeting in their city on April 26. The Rotary Clubs of Arlington, Malden, Melrose and Somerville have received similar invitations. This will be an outstanding event and ordinarily this club would have no hesitation in accepting forthwith, but unfortunately the date conflicts with that of the annual dinner of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce, which, as is its custom the club has voted to attend. Better luck next time!

While the matter of the Chamber of Commerce dinner is in mind we take pleasure in repeating the announcement that Past President Charles C. Dasey of the Rotary Club of Boston, will be the guest speaker on that occasion. "Charlie" is Boston manager of the Cunard-White Star Steamship Lines, and his excellent reputation as a post-prandial orator will assure the best of entertainment for his audience.

Mr. Lewis E. MacBrayne of Belmont, general manager of the Massachusetts Safety Council addressed the club at the current meeting. That citizens of this Commonwealth are deeply interested in learning practical methods of reducing to a minimum accidents which occur in traffic on our highways is evidenced by the fact that Mr. MacBrayne's services as a speaker on this subject are in constant demand. At this time he reiterated and emphasized the statement that both drivers and pedestrians are accountable for the prodigious number of fatalities and serious accidents which have become so tragic an accompaniment of modern highway transport. Users of our roadways, afoot or awheel, must give constant attention to the possibilities of mishap as they travel. The public streets are decidedly not the place to indulge in absent-mindedness or to take foolish chances. Can we not bear in mind that carelessness, pure and simple, is chiefly responsible for needless loss of life and property?

Percentage of attendance March 28—86.21 per cent.

PARENT-TEACHER CONFERENCE IN HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

On Tuesday evening, April 2, a conference was held for the parents of students not taking the college course. The audience was a small and appreciative one, which made it more comfortable for the students participating. After Mr. Grindle opened the program by requesting the audience to come nearer the stage, and then explaining the purpose of the conference, Miss Bronson was announced. She gave a fine and extremely informational talk on the Commercial Course, dealing with the subjects how, when, and why they were taken, the aims of the course, and the results. Miss Bronson in turn introduced Ruth Rennert, who acted as the Mistress of Ceremonies.

Miss Bennett then explained effectively to the audience touch typing, using as examples of first year typing: Lois Barnard and Benjamin Tedesco. Lois showed what not to do, while Benjamin was the perfect student. The second year typists then had their turn; Amy Lawson being perfect here, and Thomas Gigliotti showing what not to do, in tests stressing the use of the mechanical devices. Of course, Amy, who did what was right, came away with all the honors.

Ruth Rennert came into the picture again, conducting a two minute typing speed test on unfamiliar material to five seniors: Ann Colucci, Barbara Marchant, June Eaton, Mary Gaffney, and Virginia Carlson. Needless to say, the favorite, Barbara Marchant won, typing 87 words a minute with one error. The curtain closed here, and a demonstration by students of the fifth and sixth period geography classes was given. The demonstration was in the form of a matching contest. Ernest Thompson conducted this, naming a city while the contestants: R. Dotten, H. Eaton, D. Coss and Elizabeth Sharon (Group A) from the sixth period class; and B. Emery, D. Bragdon, N. Clarke, and D. Carlson (Group B) from the fifth period class, had to answer with the state it was in and its leading product. The result was a tie. Each group answered correctly for 34 cities.

This was followed by another demonstration, one of the "Application of Business Training" and was in two scenes. The first was "How Not to Get a Job" by the "Girls from the Personality Class"; Martha Hill, Philippa Kelley, Ruth Henerberger, Elizabeth Sharon, and Priscilla Danforth. The second scene and last on the program was "A Busy Morning in a Busy Office" which showed a typical business office and the use of the various machines in them. The cast was:

Office Manager John Doherty
Office Boy John Vespucci
Secretary Mary Donovan
Telephone Operator Suzan McGonigle
Typist—Dorothy Goodhue
Stenographer Priscilla Danforth
File Clerk Andrew Millyan
Personnel Director Martha Hill

Consideration is due to Geraldine Taylor who handled properties, June Eaton, the prompter, and Frank Harkins, William Costello, Robert Higgins who were stage managers.

After the program followed half an hour of informal exchange of information between parents and teachers.

Malaspina Glacier

The Malaspina glacier as well as Malaspina Island was named for Capt. Don Alessandro Malaspina, the distinguished Italian navigator, who, in the service of Spain, explored and surveyed the northwestern coast of America in 1791.

The Musk Ox

The scientific name of the musk ox—ovibos—means sheep-cow, and the musk ox combines many traits of both species of animal.

BUILDING MOVED TO MANCHESTER FIELD

Those who happened to be in the center shortly after 12:30 Wednesday afternoon saw a small yellow building, quite dilapidated in appearance, being driven along Main street southerly on one of Contractor Thomas Quigley's big trucks.

The little house was finally rolled down skids from the truck onto Manchester Field opposite the postoffice, and when the Star reporter arrived, a crew of Mr. Quigley's "bully boys" was busily engaged turning it about so as to have it rest upon heavy wooden piles driven into the ground.

Among those in the crowd watching proceedings where Selectmen W. Allan Wilde and James J. Fitzgerald, Jr. and in response to a question the former, who incidentally is also the administrator for the Federal Housing Campaign in Winchester, explained that the building had been moved from its original location on Blind Bridge street to the playground as an impetus to the Better Homes campaign in town.

Mr. Wilde further explained that during the next few weeks the building is to be remodeled, repaired and improved as an example of what can be done in the way of home improvement under the Federal Housing Administration. Architect Jerome Foster of this town, who drew the plans for the improved building, was at the playground to supervise the placing of the house. As sketched by Mr. Foster, the finished house is most attractive and such an improvement over the original shed as to be almost unbelievable.

EMBLEM CLUB AFFAIRS

The next regular meeting of the Club will be held Wednesday evening, April 10 at 9 o'clock. Election of officers for the ensuing year is scheduled for this session.

CASO ISLAND: REFUGE OF EX-PREMIER VENIZELOS

Caso Island, recent refuge of the former Greek Premier, Venizelos, is only 25 miles northeast of Crete, but in that short flight, the fleeing leader of revolutionists moved from Greek to Italian territory, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Caso (also known as Cassos, Kaso and Caxo) is a miniature of Crete, says the bulletin. It is only slightly more than half the size of the District of Columbia and is largely composed of mountains, some of whose peaks are more than 1700 feet high. Sheer cliffs, rising high out of the sea, form the island's rim except on the north coast where several small villages of flat roofed buildings sprawl over narrow plains. One of these villages is Phry, the capital, which is the chief gateway to the island.

Aided Greece in Fight for Independence

While the hulk of Caso's population is to be found in the coastal villages, a few fertile valleys back among the mountain ridges are peopled by a sturdy, industrious rural population. The Argos Valley in the south central part of the island is particularly productive. One of the show spots of Caso is a group of caverns at Selay where visitors find a spectacular display of stalactites.

About three miles off the northern coast are several islets. The largest of these is Armathia, well known in the gypsum industry for its quarries. Makra, the next island in importance has been for centuries a haven for Casian boats during storms that lash the lower Aegean.

Despite its size and limited population (7500) Caso has figured prominently in the shaping of affairs in the eastern Mediterranean as well as the Aegean. It joined with Greece against Turkey in the fight for Greek independence during the early part of the last century. Casians were almost always outnumbered in their conflicts with the Moslems, but their knowledge of boats, which they built themselves, and of the near-by sea, made them equal to larger forces in navel strategy. Casian ships harassed Turkish shipping between Crete, then a Turkish possession and the mainland, and even attached Turkish craft in the Cretan harbors..

Finally an Egyptian fleet surrounded Caso, but the Casians withstood a long siege. The Egyptians withdrew. The Casians began celebrating their victory, but while they were off their guard, the Egyptians returned and landed a large force which massacred many of the islanders and took thousands of women and children for sale in the slave markets of Syria and Egypt. Caso was a long time recover'ng from that tragedy. Except for Italian officials and a sprinkling of residents the presen. population is mostly Greek. Caso is one of the Dodecanese group.

USE OF EMERGENCY RELIEF ADMINISTRATION FUNDS FOR SUPPLEMENTAL GEODETIC CONTROL SURVEYS

The practical aspects of the system of local control surveys being carried out in Massachusetts are becoming more apparent with each extension of the traverse and base lines throughout the state.

Begun in December 1933, these surveys are being conducted by the Emergency Relief Administration in co-operation with the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. Headquarters have been established at 100 Nashua street, Boston, with Mr. E. C. Houdlette, Senior Civil Engineer of the Massachusetts Department of Public Works, in charge.

Because of its nature the project is not very well known to the general public. Nevertheless, the importance of the work ranks high in the list of governmental functions. Besides the practical benefits derived locally from these surveys, the government gains valuable geodetic data for the new map of the United States that is being prepared in conjunction with surveys being conducted in Mexico and Canada. The geodetic work in these neighboring countries is being co-ordinated with that of the United States.

The primary purpose of the Massachusetts surveys is to extend the usefulness of what is known as the first-order triangulation and the system of precise levels already established in the state. The results will make available for public use the accurate horizontal and vertical control points which have hitherto been difficult to use, as they are situated only at remote and widely separated locations.

The engineers are placing pairs of monuments or markers in the ground at two-mile intervals and are connecting these by accurate surveys to the existing triangulation points and level benches. The plane co-ordinates of these points are being computed, together with their elevations and descriptions.

The advantages of a system of monuments of this kind are many. They will provide accurate bases for highway, oil, gas, water, railroads and power development surveys. Surveys run from these monuments can be used to clarify praperty descriptions and permanently locate property boundaries.

It is noteworthy that many phases of these surveys, particularly if extended to every state, can easily increase the military efficiency of the country in the event of war. Engineers point out that despite the millions of dollars being spent to bring our army and navy up to parity with other nations, geodesy has been so neglected that it would be impossible at present to prepare an accurate geodetic map of the country for the purposes of defence.

At present 230 graduate engineers are being employed on the Massachusetts local control surveys. Started in Boston, the surveys have been broadened and are now being conducted in Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk, Suffolk, Worcester, Bristol and Plymouth Counties.

Two crews of men have been busy in Winchester, doing work which should prove of real value to the town. M. A. Brown is chief of the party in charge of triangulation, and W. B. Wallace is in charge of the traverse. Their data and tindings will be available for the use of the town after they have completed their job.

NEW STRATOSPHERE FLIGHT FIRST TO USE HELIUM GAS

Helium gas will be used for the first time in a balloon flight into the stratosphere next June when the National Geographic Society and the U. S. Army Air Corps send their second expedition into the upper atmosphere in search of additional scientific facts about that little-known region. Heretofore hydrogen gas has been used in all flights into the stratosphere.

The flight will be made again from the vicinity of Rapid City, South Dakota, in the largest balloon ever constructed—a bag which exceeds by 23 per cent the capacity of the three million cubic foot Explorer, which was sent up under the same auspices last summer and which crashed in southern Nebraska as a result of ripped fabric in the bag's bottom. The Explorer itself was more than three times larger than any balloon previously built. The new bag will have a diameter when full of 192 feet, and a gas capacity of 3,700,000 cubic feet.

All Possibility of Explosion Eliminated

Announcement of the forthcoming flight was made in Washington from headquarters of the National Geographic Society, following a meeting there of the Scientific Advisory Committee for the flight. The group of scientists who are working out plans for the stratosphere expedition is headed by Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, Director of the U. S. Bureau of Standards.

The use of helium, the committee points out, will make it possible to follow procedure in handling the balloon that will eliminate all danger of torn fabric and explosion such as that suffered by the hydrogen-filled Explorer. Helium is non-explosive either alone or mixed with air. It will not be necessary, therefore, that the fabric of the bag be folded to exclude air when the balloon leaves the ground; the bag, instead, will have helium in its top and air in its lower portion, and will be loosely extended. When the balloon reaches high altitudes, the expansion of the helium in the top will force the air out through an opening in the bottom, and the bag will then be completely full of helium. This procedure has been followed successfully even with hydrogen in the three flights made by the Piccards, but there is always danger of explosion from a mixture of hydrogen and air. With helium an explosion is impossible.

Bag Built of Stronger Fabric

The new balloon bag, on which work is now under way by the Goodyear-Zeppelin Company at Akron, Ohio, will have a top of 33 per cent stronger fabric, and a bottom of 50 per cent stronger fabric than that used in last year's balloon. It is because of the increased weight of the stronger fabrics, and the fact that helium has only about nine-tenths the lifting power of hydrogen, that the new balloon is being made larger. The increase of about 23 per cent in gas capacity will give the helium-filled bag approximately the same theoretical "ceiling" as the hydrogen bag used last July—about 75,000 feet above sea level or between 14 and 15 miles.

Capt. Albert W. Stevens will be in command of the flight next June and in charge of the scientific work. He is one of the world's foremost aerial photographers. He was responsible for the scientific work of the National Geographic—Army Air Corps stratosphere expedition of 1934, and through the photographic recording devices which he designed, the expedition saved much valuable scientific data in spite of the crash of the balloon and gondola. The new balloon will be piloted by Capt. Orvil A. Anderson who was co-pilot on last summer's flight. Major William E. Kepner, pilot last year, will be unable to participate in the forthcoming flight because of assignment to other duties. Capt. Randolph P. Williams will be in charge of the ground work. All three men are officers of the U. S. Army Air Corps.

The Scientific Advisory Committee for the flight and the flight personnel have checked with balloon experts on the design of the new balloon, and are working out detailed plans for instruments and the scientific projects to be carried out during the flight. In addition to the chairman, Dr. Briggs, members of the committee are:

Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, President, National Geographic Society; Brigadier General Oscar Westover, Assistant Chief, U. S. Army Air Corps; Dr. Frederick V. Coville, Chairman, Research Committee, National Geographic Society; Dr. W. F. G. Swann, Director, Bartol Research Foundation; Capt. R. S. Patton, Director, U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey; Mr. Willis R. Gregg, Chief, U. S. Weather Bureau; Dr. Floyd K. Richtmyer, Cornell University, and Research Council, National Academy of Sciences; Dr. L. B. Tuckerman, National Bureau of Standards; Dr. Charles E. K. Mees, Director Research Laboratory, Eastman Kodak Company; Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, Vice-President, National Geographic Society; and Mr. Thomas W. McKnew, National Geographic Society, Secretary to the Committee.

GEORGE WASHINGTON-HIGHLAND DAD'S NIGHT

On Tuesday evening, April 9, the Mothers' Association of the George Washington-Highland Schools are sponsoring a Dads' Night. Coffee will be served in the kindergarten room from 7:30 to 8. Afterwards Mrs. Helena Studzinska Sibley, violinist, accompanied by Mrs. Leon Sargent will play. The speaker of the evening will be Mr. Clinton E. Farnham. He will talk on the "Privilege of eing a Parent." Mr. Farnham has had wide experience in educational work. He will be a most interesting speaker.

After the program the teachers will be at home in their respective rooms, and some work of each child will be on display. It is hoped that the parents will avail themselves of this opportunity to meet the teachers. A cordial welcome is extended to anyone who is interested.

HARRY BOWLER BUYS GOLF COURSE

C. Harry Bowler, for 21 years pro and club manager of the Winchester Country Club, has purchased the Black and White Company property, which includes what is considered the best nine-hole golf course in the state at Marlboro, from the Marlboro Savings Bank at an estimated cost of $30,000.

Jack Harvey has been engaged as professional for the Marlboro Country Club, which will open under its new owner tomorrow. It is understood that the course will be increased later to 18 holes.

Mr. Bowler is one of the best known golfing men in the state and the new course is one of the most difficult. The combination is expected to make the club a success. The new owner resigned his post at Winchester last month and before he left was tendered a testimnoial dinner which was a tribute to his popularity. It is safe to predict that many of his local friends will visit him at his new club in the not too distant future.

KEMPTON—LINDEN

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clark of Belmont have announced the marriage of their daughter, Helen Linden, to Mr. Francis G. Kempton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Kempton of Forest street.

The ceremony was performed on March 23 by the Rev. William H. Dyas, pastor of the Grace Street Baptist Church in Somerville. The bride was attended by Miss Ethel Christie of Arlington and Mr. Lawson Doane of Stoneham was Mr. Kempton's best man. A wedding supper was served the bridal party at the Hotel Somerset in Boston.

The bride is a graduate of the Somerville High School and was associated with the Winter Hill Co-operative Bank.

Mr. Kempton attended the Winchester schools, Burdett's Business College in Boston and for the past five year has been associated with John Morrell Company of Cambridge. He and his bride are to make their home on College Hill road, West Somerville.

Mrs. Emma C. Barrie is reported as seriously ill at her home on Calumet road.

Literature

Final meeting Monday, April 1.

The Literature Group closed its season on April 1 with two reviews of the year's "good hunting" for good talk preserved as literature. Those who have enjoyed the study felt that some of their pleasure was shared even by those too busy to do much reading. Mrs. Freeman spoke on the topic, "Conversation Mirrors Its Age" and confined her observations to the 16th and 18th centuries, finding the familiar topics: sports, marriage, government, city life, class distinctions and so on, and showing by example and comment that the treatment was generally artificial or sentimental or smart according to the manners of the time.

Mrs. Dissell condensed her very happy summary of impressions, personalities and even dates into a short half hour which left the impression of many delightful hours of careful reading.

The conversation contest has been a game played for enjoyment and for sharpening the critical faculties and not for exhibition purposes. According to announcement, only the winning paper was to be read at the open meeting. Perhaps some day, after more experience, the group may be ready to offer an author's reading! The judges found it almost impossible to agree on the merits of the entries, considering the nature of good talk and the uncertain standards of literary value, but the award was made to Mrs. Paul Howard for her imaginary conversation between Maude Adams and James Lane Allen. Mrs. Howard read her story in a way to bring out its merry and artistic quality. Another very clever poem giving a conversation between a sharp-eyed needle and some much overworked shears, who gave a Fashion Forecast was read to the company, who indicated a desire for more but there was barely time left for the felicitations and exchanges of compliments which belong to the end of a happy year.

D. T. G. W.

These mysterious letters have been the password among members of the Fortnightly for the last three or four weeks,—a signal to retire into corners and exchange exciting news. At last we may reveal what they stand for: "Don't Tell Gladys Wilson." And incredible as it may seem, with nearly 500 people in the plot, nobody did tell her! A luncheon at Cedar Hill was planned in her honor, as a surprise and it was a complete and unqualified success. Most of the credit belongs to Jane Robinson, Elizabeth Speedie and Anna Grosvenor, who engineered it, but congratulations are also due to the many, many club members who helped it along in one way or another, and whose hearts were wholly in the undertaking.

On Thursday, March 25, at about half past one, two cars drove into the grounds at Cedar Hill. In one were Gladys Wilson, president of the Fortnightly, Jane Robinson, secretary; Mrs. James Remick, Mrs. Wilson's mother, and Mrs. Russell Hall, past President of the Melrose Women's Club. In the second car were Mrs. Sarah I. MacNish, Eighth District Director and Mrs. John Montgomery, President of the Eighth District President's Club.

"What a popular place this is," remarked Mrs. Wilson," just see all the cars. I had no idea so many people came here."

"Oh yes," replied Mrs. Robinson, "it's a very popular place. But I believe this is an unusually big day over here."

"Where is the bird house," asked Gladys. "You said you were taking us to a big bird house, didn't you?"

"Yes," replied Jane (who has promised she will never tell any more lies after this) "It's that big building over there—the one that looks like a barn."

They left the cars and entered the building. All was silence until they opened the door, when suddenly there came a burst of song—a violin, cello, piano and nearly 200 voices singing—

'For it's always fair weather
When Fortnightly gets together
With a cheer for our leader:
Gladys Wilson, here's to you!"

The hall was filled with a happy crowd, flower decked tables, gay colors, green boughs around the walls, and a great shout of welcome. It was almost too much for Gladys Wilson, and nobody doubted the genuineness of her surprise or the depth of her joy in it. It was a beautiful tribute, richly deserved. For she has not only done her work faithfully and well; she has given of her sincerely loving spirit, so that every member has felt the warmth of it, and many have become more friendly with each other because of her. She has won her hosts of friends by deserving them, and they will remain her friends for a long time to come.

The luncheon was a very delightful affair. Mrs. Speedie introduced the guests of honor who had come with Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Robinson, and there were several short speeches. Miss Hinckley, who is in charge at Cedar Hill, welcomed the Fortnightly most graciously, in spite of the fact that she had just superintended "serving three times as many people as we have accommodations for." However, a number of club members helped with the serving, so everything went smoothly.

Mrs. MacNish, speaking warmly of Mrs. Wilson's work in the Fortnightly, said that she was going to tell a secret:—Gladys Wilson is to be the next Eighth District Director. This announcement was greeted with great applause. Then Mrs. Grosvenor said that if people were telling secrets, she was going to tell one on Mrs. MacNish, namely that the real reason why she is no longer to be Eighth District Director herself is fecause she wants to retire into a nice warm chimney-corner and get ready to be a grandmother!

Following the luncheon, a short program had been arranged by Beatrice Budd, chairman of Dramatics. There were several lovely selections by the Trio, Helen Sibley, Vida Rohde, and Mary Witham; some beautiful songs by Idabelle Winship; and a most amusing skit written, planned and acted by Claire Reynolds and Theresa Mann.

The skit was entitled—"Gladys Wilson's Quiet Day at Home" and it was a gem. Claire Reynolds was the tired Fortnightly president trying to take a day off, and Theresa Mann was the maid. Between the doorbell and the telephone, they hadn't a moment's rest. Helen Fessenden, supposed to be at the door, wanted the keys to Fortnightly Hall, and the maid found them—a string of keys that must have weighed ten pounds, which somebody had "accidentally carried away." Helen Sibley in an imaginary telephone conversation wanted the president to play ping-pong. Dorothy Howard wanted to abolish the year book and have the president personally notify everybody of meetings. The president persuaded her to leave that for the next administration to decide. Idabelle Winship wanted cupboards for the Glee Club music, but the president had a suggestion ready:—why not have the Glee Club do without music in future; it would solve so many difficulties. Then Beatrice Budd had a problem. She had bought a new hat which blended beautifully with the curtains in Fortnightly Hall. Did the president know what the weather was going to be at the next Fortnightly meeting, or would she please consult the Farmer's Almanac and find out, because Beatrice was afraid the leaks in the roof would spoil her hat! The president couldn't find her almanac, but she had a better idea. She suggested that Mr. Budd might mend the roof before the next meeting! Finally Jane Robinson called up, to invite the president to a luncheon at Cedar Hill.

Gladys Wilson was escorted to the front of the hall where she was at last permitted to say something herself, and made a very beautiful little speech of appreciation and thanks. She was presented with a gift from the club—a lovely necklace and ear rings.

And then Jane Robinson who thought she had helped plan all the surprises was the most thoroughly surprised person of all, for a handsome bracelet was presented to her! Finally came Helen Fessenden with a pink flowery wreath to crown Mrs. Wilson, Queen of the May—a merry bit of nonsense that served to break the tension and finish the program with laughter.

It was a wholly successful occasion. Jane Robinson's many hours at the telephone, and her white (and light grey) lies to Gladys were rewarded with a smooth running, beautiful party. Claire Reynold's portrayal of the tired president in her moment's of relaxation was a positive gem, as her dramatic work always is. And Theresa Mann made a very clever maid. The skit was so bright and funny, we only wish it could be published in full. Elizabeth Speedie did a beautiful job of organizing and managing. Somebody wrote some good songs. And the people who helped are too numerous to mention. But they all loved doing it for Gladys Wilson and her happiness was a rich reward.

Evening Musicale Wednesday, March 24

One of the outstandingly lovely events of this year's Fortnightly program was the evening musicale of March 24. The club room looked gracious and homelike with rugs, palms, flowers, lamps, draperies, the result of the efforts of Mrs. Adele Williams, Mrs. Ghirardini and Mrs. Speedie. The colors and soft lights in the room, the lovely evening gowns of the ladies, and a rather festive spirit among the audience provided a perfect setting for as fine a concert as anyone could wish to hear anywhere.

Mrs. Idabelle Winship, chairman of the music committee, welcomed the guests and introduced Mrs. Mary Ranton Witham who had charge of the program, and who directed and accompanied all the numbers.

First came two songs, "Torch Dance" by Edw. German and "Every Time I Feel the Spirit," a Negro spiritual, by the mixed double quartet. The singers were Idabelle Winship and Sophia Gardner, sopranos; Jane Hill and Marian Wright, altos; David Downer and T. Parker Clarke, tenors; and Clifford Cunningham and John McPherson, bass. These are all artists of great individual merit and the blending of their voices is particularly happy. Their precision of attack and delicate shading of tone showed fine training and practice together. And the audience was wholly delighted with their performance.

Next on the program came two numbers by the Trio, Helena Studzinska Sibley, violin; Vida Rohde, cello, and Mary Ranton Witham, piano. They played the Rachmaninoff Prelude in C sharp minor and by special request the lovely trio that Mrs. Sibley has recently written herself. It is a beautiful thing, and has been played once before at a Fortnightly meeting. Those who heard it will remember it with great pleasure.

The four women's voices next sang, "Pirate Dreams," a lullaby by Huerter and "To the Sun" by Lang. Then came the double quartet again in a really exquisite thing, "My Love Dwelt in a Northern Land" by Elgar, written in six parts instead of four, and sung with a delicate charm which made it one of the gems of a fine program. They followed it with "Ciribiribim" by Pestalozza, whose rollicking grace was truly delightful.

Mrs. Sibley now played three violin solos, "Adoration" by Borowski, "Gypsy Airs" by Sarasote and "Valse Bluette" by Drigo. Her perfect technique was beautifully shown in the "Gypsy Airs" with its difficult passages; and the deep appeal of her singing violin was especially strong in the "Adoration." It is always a joy to hear her.

The men's quartet now sang "By the Sea" by Schubert, and a popular number, "When I Am Too Old to Dream," a very fine performance.

The next number was one of the best things of the whole proyram, a group of songs by Jane Hill. Her lovely voice is so sweet and natural and easy, it is music that seems to flow into the air almost of itself. She sang "Indian Dawn" by Zamencik and "By the Waters of Minnetonka" by Lieurance and as an encore "Mamselle Marie" by Guion.

The double quartet now sang "On Wings of Song" by Mendelssohn, a beautiful arrangement with interwoven parts of great beauty and the "Dance of Cachucha" from the "Gondoliers" by Sullivan. They were followed by the trio who played "The Old Refrain" by Kreisler, and a tango called "Jealousy." Following that, was "Passing By," by Purcell, sung by four men, and the "Italian Street Song" from Naughty Marietta by Victor Herbert. In this song, Idabelle Winship was the soloist, and was accompanied by the men's chorus as well as the piano. It was a glorious thing, magnificently done.

The concluding number was, "The Long Day Closes" by Sullivan, sung by the double quartet, and probably one of the finest things they did. It made a beautiful ending to a beautiful program and everywhere through the audience one heard the remark, "Oh I wish there was more. This has been so lovely, it's too bad it has to come to an end."

Especial praise should go to Mrs. Witham for her arrangement as well as her conducting of the program. There was variety of mood and of performance and nobody could fail to enjoy every moment of the concert. It is hoped that these artists may be heard often together as well as separately, for they make a very satisfying combination.

The Fortnightly Garden Group met Tuesday afternoon in Fortnightly Headquarters. Mrs. Judson Cross spoke most interestingly on "Blossoms Twelve Months of the Year." Her blossoms are for indoors as well as our of doors. An interesting feature of the afternoon was the setting of breakfast tables for two. Mrs. Bratt, Mrs. Peppard, Mrs. Rice, Louise and Eleanor Bancroft, and Mrs. Wills competing for the vote for the most attractive. The table set up by Mrs. Rice won. She used Dresden china with crystal glass and the centerpiece of flowers followed the coloring of the china. It was very dainty and exquisite. Another clever arrangement was by Mrs. Peppard. She used everything from the 5 and 10 cent store. Mrs. Bratt's table was very lovely and so was the table by the Bancroft's. Mrs. Wills had the morning paper ready for reading on her table.

The Garden Group is going on next year under the able leadership of Mrs. Adelaide Bratt. Any Fortnightly member interested in gardens is welcome. The dues for the year are 50 cents, which may be paid at the annual meeting of the regular club April 8 or whenever convenient.

Please watch the Star for further activities, as there are to be trips during May, June and July.

PORTUGAL TRADES DICTATOR FOR PRESIDENT

The government trend toward dictatorships that has marked world politics during the the past decade has received its first important jolt. After seven years, Portugal's dictator and his ministry recently resigned when a new constitution was adopted at the polls.

Because Portugal is a nick out of the Spanish or Iberian Peninsula, there is a temptation to think of Spain and Portugal as very much alike, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. It is pointed out, however, that the differences between the two countries are marked.

Roman Customs Still Prevail

Geographically, there is little in common between Spain and Portugal, continues the bulletin. Much of Spain is a dry, barren tableland; but Portugal, sloping westward to the Atlantic from the mountains which bound it on the east, is well-watered, and many of its hills are covered with luxuriant forests of oak, pine, chestnut, and cork trees. Many fruits thrive in vast orchards and vineyards, and about one-third of the Republic's area is in farms.

Portugal emerged as an independent country in the 12th century. Although about 2000 miles of railroads have been built, and although automobiles now speed over good roads that have been thrust through some of the country's beauty spots and tractors rumble over some farms, the traveler still sees remnants of the days when the Romans dominated this part of Europe. Not infrequently automobiles must swerve to pass solid-wheeled carts drawn by oxen and donkeys while farmers tilling the soil with iron-shod, crooked-stick plows look on.

Famous for Wine

The Tagus River, at the mouth of which lies the beautiful capital and metropolis of the country, Lisbon (Lisboa), forms both an ethnic and economic dividing line. North of the river, inhabiting about three-fifths of the country, are the Celtic, Gothic and Latin racial mixtures with little or none of the Moorish or African strain so often met with in the south. It is a region of small farms largely cultivated by the proprietors and their families. The people are intensely patriotic and have been ever ready to defend their country against foreign domination.

The famous wine country of Portugal is in the Valley of the Duero River and its tributaries near the northern border. It is estimated that in a favorable year more than 20 gallons of Portuguese wine are produced annually for each man, woman and child in the country, and a considerable portion of it comes from the Duero region.

From northern Portugal also comes a large part of the olive oil that the country produces. Nearly two gallons of olive oil per inhabitant are produced annually. The Republic's cork forests, however, are one of the chief sources of wealth. From them come nearly half of the cork produced in the world.

South of the Tagus the long occupation by the Moors has left its marks on architecture and the people. Almost pure Berber types are met. Huge estates and plantations are maintained in this part of the country and are worked largely by peasants and day-laborers.

Portugal covers the greater part of the ancient province of Lusitania. The Lusitanians are supposed to have been Celtic "Iberians" with strains of Phoenician and Greek blood. The conquering Romans did not contribute much to the blood of the Portuguese but gave them their language, which some scholars aver is closer to the pure Latin than that of any other Romance people. When the Roman Empire fell, Portugal was overrun by the Visigoths from the north and by the Moors from the south. The result of the mingling of these two peoples with the inhabitants whom they found is evident in Portugal today.

In the 15th century, the Portuguese began an ordered search for hidden places of the earth. Although many regions of the world claimed by them a few centuries ago now are under the flags of other countries, the Portuguese colonial dominion today is still 26 times the area of the homeland. The Azores and the Madeira Islands are politically an integral part of Portugal.

Portugal was a kingdom until 1910 when King Manuel II was dethroned.

CRETE: GREECE'S POLITICAL CAULDRON

Greek warships, manned by rebels, dodging among the islands of the Aegean, have focused interest on Greece and its island-studded seas. The seized ships, pelted with bombs from loyal airplanes overhead, were bound for Crete, one of the major centers of the uprising.

That Crete is a disturbing element in the affairs of the Mediterranean, is not new to historians, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Nor is this the first revolt in which the island has taken a leading role.

Crete's History Replete with Revolts

Crete was annexed to modern Greece in 1912. Four years under Greek rule had not passed when the islanders staged a revolution. Up to that time the Cretans had been in almost constant state of revolt against Turkish and Egyptian rule for the greater part of the 19th and the early part of the 20th centuries.

Lying in the Mediterranean about equidistant from Europe, Asia, and Africa, Crete is a roughly oval-shaped mass of mountains and plains with fewer inhabitants than Indianapolis, Ind. For more than 3000 years it has played an important part in Mediterranean affairs, yet it lacks the modern development of the West. A traveler could traverse its 160 mile length in a few hours by railroad or paved highway—if there were railroads and good highways. There is only one railroad, however, and that is but three miles long. Good roads are being slowly extended, and automobiles are becoming more numerous. But throughout most of the island mules and donkeys are the chief means of transport as they were centuries ago.

Towns Built Inland to Escape Pirates

Stumbling and slipping on the trails of Crete, travelers often come suddenly upon small commercial towns many miles from the Mediterranean shores. They were built in these inland locations when the sea was infested with pirates. Crete has two important towns, both on the north coast—Canea, the capital, with 26,000 inhabitants, and Candia, with a population of nearly 35,000. Candia's white suburbs extend far beyond the old fortifications that once surrounded its flat-topped, white buildings.

The southern coast of the island has few safe anchorages. Most of the trade is handled by sailing craft and motor boats. Large ships cannot approach the wharves of the small harbors, but are obliged to remain some distance from shore. By means of cranes, merchandise is unloaded into small boats which approach the beach as closely as possible. There almost naked men, standing in water up to their shoulders and with pads on their heads, seize parcels of cargo and carry them ashore.

Olives, olive oil, citron, raisins, and tobacco are important products of Crete. Clumps of olive trees appear on the lowlands as well as on the mountainsides. One of the most famous products of the island is the dictam or dittany, a plant growing on Mount Dicte. In the Middle Ages almost miraculous curative powers were ascribed to it.

Crete came under the domination of Rome in 66 B. C. When the Roman Empire was divided it was apportioned to the eastern rulers. It remained under the Byzantine emporers until 823 when it was captured by piratical Saracens from Andalusia who held sway over the island for 140 years. The Byzantines later redeemed it. The Venetians bought it in 1204 and ruled there for more than 400 years.

Crete was probably the seed bed for the culture which later flowered into the Hellenic civilization of Greece and Asia Minor. Archeologists have uncovered in the island evidences that civilization flourished in Crete as early as the First Dynasty of Egypt.

Greece has had few periods of quiet prosperity since the classic days of its city states, and the period of Roman dominance. In the 15th century the Turks captured the country from Byzantium, and for nearly three and a half centuries it slumbered under Turkish dominion while its great temples and monuments fell into ruin.

From 1821 to 1830 Greece fought its war of independence against the Turks, gaining, in the end, the assistance of Great Britain, France, and Russia, and winning its freedom. Otho of Bavaria was made king of the new nation in 1832. In 1862 he abdicated and Prince William George of Denmark was given the throne. The rulers of the Danish line were expelled in 1924, and a Republic was proclaimed.

WYMAN SCHOOL NEWS

We are now working on the spring issue of the Wyman Messenger.

Miss Woodbury's First Grade Assembly, given the last week in March, was appropriately springlike. Children recited poems about the wind and the pussywillows. Then they dramatized the story of "The Sun and the Wind," who tried to see which was the stronger by making a person take off his coat. The little one who was the "Sun" won by "shining" with vigorous effort.

The two plays by the sixth grades were given in connection with their studies of Mediaeval History. Both brought into their plays the fine elements of knighthood which are still in the world today as practised in the Red Cross and in the Scouts.

On the last Tuesday in March Miss Rix's sixth grade gave the four-act play, "Percival, the Boy Knight." King Arthur, Guinevere, and the court were cleverly costumed; and all the jousting Knights were in elaborate armor. The hearty acting showed a code of honor and helpfulness excellent today. Sheila Carr played the piano.

Miss Wallace's sixth grade had a Red Cross Assembly preceded by a business meeting, carried on by the school officers from various rooms. Then the series of tableaux, with descriptive lines written by the children, showed the training of a knight; this was followed by the reciting of the Scout creed by the class. As minstrels, Bennett Wightman played the piano; Richard Merrow, the cornet, and George McQueen, the clarinet.

EARNING ITS KEEP

Two sisters live together. One is a secretary. The other, a semi-invalid, is housekeeper. The secretary decided to put in a telephone to help her sister in ordering supplies.

"Curiously I have found it of unexpected help to me, too," she reported. "I can communicate with my office if unable to report in person. When walking to the train would mean getting drenched — I now can call a taxi. I can be reached at any time by those who may need to get word to me. So, besides being an invaluable help to my sister, it does enough for me to earn its keep."

If you think a telephone would earn its keep for you, get in touch with your local business office. New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

You said something, Mr. Moffett— . . . something every woman knows

"When a man sits down to dinner, he never thinks of what it means to prepare three meals, day in and day out, in a poorly arranged kitchen."*

But a woman knows! She knows too well what it means to cook in a poorly arranged or poorly equipped kitchen. Certainly, modernizing the home should include plans for modernizing the kitchen. The modern woman is entitled to modern cooking equipment.

WINCHESTER MAN FATALLY STABBED

Francis A. Veinot Died of Knife Wound Received in Woburn Tavern

Francis A. Veinot, 32, of 21 Shepard court, died in the Winchester Hospital last Saturday night of a knife wound sustained during an altercation which the police say took place in the Cross Street Inn, a tavern at 3 Cross street in Woburn, owned by Pasquale Molinaro.

Police Headquarters was first notified of the trouble when an operator at the telephone exchange stated that an ambulance was wanted to remove a man who was bleeding to death in the road on Cross street.

Patrolmen Clarence Dunbury and Winthrop Palmer responded with the ambulance, and found Veinot lying in a pool of blood not far from the tavern. He had sustained an eight inch wound starting on the upper and inner side of the left thigh and extending to the groin.

The wounded man was placed in the ambulance and taken to the Winchester Hospital, accompanied by Rev. Fr. James Fitzsimons, pastor of the Immaculate Conception Parish, who administered the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church. Upon arrival at the hospital, Dr. Milton J. Quinn pronounced Veinot dead from loss of blood, several large arteries having been severed by the knife thrust. Medical Examiner William H. Kelleher of Woburn viewed the body.

Meanwhile Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell and Patrolman John E. Hanlon had investigated the affair at the tavern and from information received there, went in search of the alleged assailant, "John Angelo" who lived "somewhere on the Plains."

A local man who witnessed the affair went with the officers and as they rode through Cross street they came upon John Evangilista, 43, of 28 Harvard street, whom they arrested upon the charge of murder. According to the police, Evangilista's hand was stained with blood, there was a blood-stained jack-knife in his trousers' pocket and a large blood stain on his shoulder. He had come from the rear of a house at 196 Cross street and was walking west when taken by the police.

At Headquarters in Winchester, Evangilista was booked on the charge of murder, and turned over to the Woburn Police. He was later questioned at Woburn Headquarters by State Detectives Edward J. Sherlock and Edward P. O'Neil and District Attorney Warren L. Bishop. According to the police the accused would admit nothing beyond the possibility of having been in a fist fight in the tavern.

He was arraigned in court Monday morning, at which time his case was continued for one week to permit the authorities to make further investigations.

Francis A. Veinot, the victim of the affair, was born in Winchester and was well known in town, having attended the local schools and been employed for a time with the James J. Fitzgerald Contracting Company. Latterly he had been employed by the ERA and for the past few weeks had been working at the McLatchey Leather Company.

He served in the United States Army during the World War and flags upon the Common and public buildings were placed at half-staff in his honor. Besides his wife, Mrs. Grace Curtin Veinot, and three young children, he leaves his mother, Mrs. Louise (Chamberland) Veinot of Woburn; four sisters, Miss Eva Veinot, Mrs. Thomas Foley, Mrs. Thomas Bovaird, all of Woburn and Mrs. Charles Harrold of Winchester; also one brother, Harry Veinot of Woburn.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning from the home of Mrs. Veinot at 8 Church street in Woburn, High Mass of Requiem was celebrated in the Immaculate Conception Church. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

BOSTON MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

35th Annual Statement Shows Increase of Premium Income and Insurance in Force

The annual report which the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company makes at this time is its 35th. So although this is one of the younger life insurance organizations, comparatively speaking, it has now had all the tests that one-third of a century can provide, including that of a most profound business depression. This report for the year 1934 and the years preceding it show that it has met all of these tests most successfully.

The Company's premium income for 1934 substantially exceeded its premium income for 1933. At the close of the year, it had 4% per cent more of insurance in force than when the year began. In 1933 this was one of the few insurance companies to show an increase of insurance of more than three per cent. That it has scored an even larger increase in 1934, this time 4⅞ per cent, shows that its agency department is alert in carrying the Company's story to the public and that their Company itself enjoys a standing that wins public confidence.

The Company has a good record for treatment of policyholders. It has been prompt in meeting settlements of death claims and also in paying cash surrender values and policy loans.

LIBRARY NOTES

Brief Sketch of the Library

The Winchester Public Library, although not opening as a public institution under that name until 1859, had its origin in 1848 when, after several preliminary meetings, some of the influential citizens of South Woburn organized the "South Woburn Library Association." This association was under the guidance of B. F. Thompson, Loring Emerson, Charles W. Wilder, Samuel Stevens, Samuel B. White, Sr., Charles Kimball, Oliver R. Clark, and Dr. Youngman, its first officers, and in 1850, with the incorporation of the Town of Winchester, it became the "Winchester Library Association."

It was operated on the principle of a stock company the par value of the stock being three dollars. Any person purchasing a share became a member of the association with the privileges of using the library and taking out one book at a time upon payment of $1 a year. Non-shareholders had access to books by paying six cents per week.

The first home of the Library Association was in the drug store of Dr. Youngman (the librarian) in what was then called Richardson's Building, on the present site of Knight's Drug Store. In 1852, Dr. Youngman moved his business to Lyceum Building and the back room was used for the library. It stayed but a short time moving back to the original place which had been changed into a milliner's store; the milliner, Miss Hannah Lane, taking charge of the books. It later returned to the rear of the drug store which had been taken over by Josiah Hovey.

In 1859 the library of the Winchester Association was presented to the Town of Winchester and became the Winchester Public Library. It was to be governed by three (the number increasing in 1932 to six) trustees serving three years each, and the town was to appropriate not less than $100 per year for its maintenance!

In this year the library was to be found in the Selectmen's Room in the Lyceum Building; in 1867 in the Lunt Building; in 1873 in the Tyler Block; 1880 in the Brown and Stanton Block where it grew into a two-room affair, a reading room having been opened. Finally in 1880 it was moved to the library wing of the Town Hall where it stayed until the new building was erected in 1932.

This new building, equipped as it is with modern facilities, is one of the best of its size in the country. It has an attractive Young People's Room, lecture hall, art gallery, historical room, trustees room, and offices, besides the large reading room, delivery room, periodical room, open shelves and three floors of stacks.

The Trustees at the present time are George H. Eustis, chairman and member of the board for 31 years, Edgar J. Rich, Francis E. Smith, Jennie C. Gates, M. Walker Jones and Ralph T. Hale.

The staff consists of Cora A. Quimby, librarian; Doris Lloyd, children's librarian; Janet Dewar, Doris Maxwell, Elizabeth Livingstone and Cynthia Laraway.

EDISON RATES AND LAMP PRICES REDUCED

The new schedule of electric rates recently filed with the Department of Public Utilities by the Edison Company of Boston and estimated to save customers of the company $780,000 annually, became effective April 1. The lower rates mark the second reduction by the company within a year and are identified as the Edison Company's part of the program in which electric companies of the state are co-operating with public authorities to reduce the cost of electricity to the consumer.

More welcome news to thousands of householders at this time, when food and commodity prices are rising, is the announcement that the prices of American-made mazda lamps merchandised by the Edison Company are reduced 25 per cent in the five standard sizes up to and including the popular 60-watt bulb. Other types and sizes of the mazda lamp are also drastically reduced in price.

Thus, in combination with the new Edison rates which make electric service cheaper than ever before, reduced lamp prices mean additional savings to the consumer.

WESTERN SAMOA, WARD OF NEW ZEALAND

When, asks Western Samoa, are we going to receive our independence?

The possibility of another new nation in the Pacific is of importance to tion in the Pacifi is of importance to this country because the nearest neighbor to Western Samoa, a former German colony now under New Zealand mandate, is American Samoa, Uncle Sam's only possession south of the Equator.

Of the little cluster of land that lies some 4200 miles southwest of San Francisco, Western Samoa includes the two largest islands, Savaii and Upolu, and six tiny islands. The other portion of the archipelago, which is also known as the Navigator Islands, is in the possession of the United States, says a communication from the National Geographic Society in Washington, D. C.

Built By Volcanic Upheavals

Volcanic upheavals in past ages built the islands; the old burned-out and eroded cones form ridged backbones across the islands, an in Upolu and Savaii the crests rise to the height of from 2000 to 4000 feet above the warm Pacific waters that lave their palm-fringed shores.

Nature has dealt bountifully with Samoa. A plentiful supply of moisture spills over the rich volcanic soil during the rainy months from October to April and produces an abundance of lush tropical growth. Luxuriant foliage covers the mountain sides. On the slopes of Savaii, especially, are forests of hardwood trees used in boat building. In the valleys lie plantations of coconut, rubber and fruit trees.

Unfortunately, however, these islands, which are often called "the Pearls of the South Seas," lie in the track of typhoons and frequent storms do much damage to homes and crops. Old rusted hulks of ships lying in the harbors are reminders of severe "blows" that have left much wreckage strewn in their wake. Earthquake tremors, too, are not infrequent, although no major volcanic action has been recorded since the 17th or 18th centuries.

Headdress of Shells and Feathers

Native life is unusually picturesque in the islands. Nearly all of the 44,458 inhabitants of the islands are pure Polynesian. These islands, it is contended, formed the center from which Polynesian peoples spread over all the islands of the south Pacific. The Samoans have maintained many of their native ceremonies and dances. It is colorful festival, indeed, when the villagers garland themselves with flowers and are led in their formal dances by the "taupo," or chosen village virgin, who wears a towering headdress of human hair adorned with a fillet of nautilus shells, precious red feathers from Fiji, and shells of pearl to indicate her high rank.

The people are quiet and have charming manners, but are also brave fighters. Not given to overexertion in their tropical land, they gather their coconuts, grind taro roots for their "poi," and fish along the barrier reefs to satisfy their immediate needs.

While the men are out in outrigger canoes or are netting and doing under-water spearing, the women are often seen hunting cuttle fish among the cracks in the reefs. Armed only with a long sharp stick they poke in the holes along the reef until they strike a soft object and the water turns a dark blue black. Then they jab and twist until the tentacles emerge and wind about the pole. Finally, when the fish has appeared, the woman seizes it with both hands and, after one quick bite with her teeth into the head of the fish, the tentacles relax and the catch is dumped into a basket.

Flying Foxes a Pest

Copra, cacao, rubber, and bananas are the chief products of the islands; rubber, however, is not being exported just at present time. Flying foxes and rhinoceros beetles are the greatest pests in the islands. The flying foxes do considerable damage to the fruit farms because they eat the fruit before it can be picked. The Government has even considered the use of mustard gas in its attempt to exterminate them.

Apia, on the island of Upolu, is the largest town as well as the best harbor in Western Samoa. In 1930, 113 vessels cleared this port carrying copra and other island products. At Apia is a large wireless station capable of communicating with New Zealand.

Near Apia, too, is Vailima, the old home of Robert Louis Stevenson, since become the Governor's residence. Here Stevenson did his last work, and on the 1500-foot crest of near-by Mount Vaea, overlooking Vailima, Apia, the harbor and coast line, is the tomb where he was buried. Two hundred men worked with intense industry and reverence to cut a path through the dense jungle to the top of the mountain on the morning following Stevenson's death in order that his wish to be buried there might be fulfilled.

In addition to Shirley Temple in the "Little Colonel" this special Saturday morning show will present Mickey Mouse, a Silly Symphony, an "Our Gang" comedy and one of the "Pop-Eye" cartoons.

"Living On Velvet" with three popular favorites, Kay Francis, Warren William and George Brent as the stars, will be the second attraction on the program starting Saturday. This picture presents an unusual triangle with George Brent and Warren William both in love with Kay Francis. But in this case each tries to make things easy for the other fellow. But Miss Francis finally decides to settle the question for herself.

MALDEN STRAND THEATRE

One of the best pictures of the year, "The Whole Town's Talking" with Edward G. Robinson as the star opens a seven day run at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. Crammed full of suspense, action, comedy and startling surprises, the film presents Robinson in his first screen comedy role.

"Lottery Lover" with Lew Ayers, Pat Paterson and Peggy Fears, Broadway's most talked about woman, will be the second attraction on the bill, starting Saturday. The film opens with the cadets of the training ship "Alaska," about to have shore leave in Paris. They are warned by the Captain to keep away from "wine and women." Not having enough money to take out the toast of Paris, Miss Fears, the boys hold a lottery, each putting up their cash and the winner to take the total and invite Miss Fears out to supper. "Lottery Lover" is an amusing piece, with several musical sequences adding to the gay Parisian scenes.

"THE WHOLE TOWN'S TALKING" AT THE UNIVERSITY

"The Whole Town's Talking," the exciting comedy drama, the cinema sages say, affords Edward G. Robinson his greatest screen character role to date, opens Sunday for three days at the University. It is based on a story by W. R. Burnett, who also wrote the famed Robinson film, "Little Caesar." Robinson is cast in the thrill-inspiring role of an inoffensive little clerk who carouses through a series of laugh-laden adventures when his startling resemblance to an escaped desperado is discovered. This new characterization marks Robinson's first attempt at screen comedy.

"Living On Velvet," the companion feature with Kay Francis, Warren William and George Brent in the cast, is a smashing drama with an unique twist on the eternal triangle.

Wednesday, Review Day, the program will include "The Private Life of Henry VIII" starring Charles Laughton; and "The Thin Man," co-starring Myrna Loy and William Powell.

If you like sparkling dialogue, rapid-fire action, some of the most gorgeous mountain scenery ever to be flashed on the screen, and players admirably cast, do not miss, "Biography of a Bachelor Girl," which starts Thursday. Ann Harding and Robert Montgomery are co-starred in the new photoplay. Miss Harding has never been better than in her new role as a portrait painter who has had quite a lot of boy friends in the past and who scares them all to death when she decides to write the story of her life.

"Charlie Chan in Paris," featuring the inimitable Warner Oland, is the companion picture.

The vegetable situation is somewhat improved this week. Green beans are again a good buy. Asparagus is moderately priced, carrots are cheap, and beets are cheaper than in many weeks. Boston type lettuce is good, plentiful and cheap, Iceberg is excellent quality but comparatively high in price. It is the season for many types of greens and they are cheap.

Lemons and eggs are cheap—which suggests lemon meringue pie, Hollandaise sauce, and lemon butter. Pineapples are coming into season. Bananas, oranges, grapefruit and apples are all plentiful and inexpensive.

Meats are all higher than they were a week ago. Fish and seafood are more plentiful and lower in price.

Here are three menus made up of seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels:

We Dare . . .

to Deliver Milk in Cream Top Bottles

YOU have probably seen the Cream Top magazine advertisements . . . with the statement

"Cream Top Bottle and Separator Guaranteed as advertised in Good Housekeeping."

But have you thought what that means to you?

It means that this foremost household authority has tested the Cream Top Bottle . . . and found that, when filled with rich milk, its thick cream whips stiff.

It means that if we did not know that our milk is so good it would pass this crucial test, day after day, we would not dare use these modern bottles.

And we do use them! Do you dare try this service? If so, phone us a trial order.

Coaches Award Letters at A. A. Assembly

On Wednesday, April 3, the high school auditorium was the scene of an enthusiastic sports review assembly at which letters, numerals and other prizes earned during the winter season were awarded by the coaches of the various teams.

The assembly was opened by President Gerry Gaffney, who explained the object of the morning and who then announced the winners of the five cash prizes for selling tickets for the recent vaudeville show. The winners were Barbara Moulton, George Manning, Arthur Smith, Dexter Derby and Harry McGrath. Gerry added that these five students had actually sold 50 per cent of all the tickets sold. Kenneth Munroe, treasurer of the A. A. made the presentation of awards.

Miss Adele Loysen, girls' physical directress and coach, was then introduced. She prefaced her remarks with a few interesting final comments on the vaudeville show, emphasizing the fact that any project which attracts the earnest co-operation of 115 students is sure to be a success.

In making the awards for basketball competition, Miss Loysen first awarded numerals to the freshman class team, winners of the inter-class competition. Then 16 girls representing the winners of varsity and second team letters were called to the stage to receive their awards after a brief review of the season by the coach. The following girls received these awards: varsity letters, Janet Spencer, capt.; Katherine Gilbert, Dorothy Glidden, Dorothy Kleeb, Gladys Moulton, Barbara Berry, Betty Blake, Priscilla Danforth and Rose Russo. Second team, Ann Colucci, capt.; Barbara Hickey, Mara McDonald, Ruth Cutter, Marjorie Stevenson, Lydia Rogers and Rebecca Jackson.

"Gerry" Gaffney experienced some difficulty in introducing Mr. Bartlett, coach of the boys' second team. The crowd was in a playful mood and insisted upon expressing their approval of "Gerry" for several minutes.

Mr. Bartlett, in one of his characteristically pleasing speeches accompanied by his cherubic smile explained to the school that the second team was mythical champ of their class, having won eight out of 10 games with league opponents. He stressed the real improvement shown by this group of boys as he awarded letters to the following: Harris Richardson, capt.; Arthur Smith, Charles Kendrick, James Harris, John Eshbach, William Gray, Labonio Gaudioso, John Farley, Robert Donaghy, Norman Clarke and George Abbott, mgr., who surprised the coach by presenting him with a gift from the second team squad.

Mr. Mansfield was introduced next. He presented to last year's football team gold footballs representing a championship season.

He commented upon the intra-mural program of the winter to the effect that 114 boys competed in three leagues, selected according to weight. Sixty-two games were played with special play-offs at the close of the regular games. The teams winning were Princeton, captained by Lucius Smith; Ohio, captained by John Vespucci, and Santa Clara, captained by Gaum.

In the inter-class contests the sophs won under the guidance of Coach Dave Grosvenor. These winners were "Billy" McDonald, capt.; "Billy" Smith, "Joe" Cimina, Raymond Bancroft, David Emmons and "Joe" Phelan.

This year an all inter-class team was selected by vote.

The final awards were made to the varsity basketball team: Frank Provinzano, "Dan" Coss, "Dave" Grosvenor, Walter Josephson, John Hanlon and Mgr. John Doherty.

Promising Season Ahead for Tennis

Girl tennis enthusiasts about school are eagerly awaiting the annual invitation tourney, scheduled, as usual, for vacation week. This will bring to light the nucleus about which the teams are to be built.

The girls' tennis manager, Ruth Rennert, has already arranged seven interesting matches, although the schedule is not completed to date. Such schools as Newton, Brookline, Arlington, Melrose and Malden ought to keep the girls' team, rated among the best of greater Boston, on their toes.

Ruth Aseltine, who will probably play No. 1 on the team, was rated No. 4 by the New England Lawn Tennis Association (Sylvia Hatch, now at Chamberlain was No. 1).

Ruth Bernnard was rated No. 2 among the younger girls, and Shirley White at No. 3. Katherine Gilbert was No. 4, and Dorothy Kleeb No. 5. Dorothy Bruno is No. 10. Suzanne Reed, a freshman, plays a very promising game.

Even though the loss of Sylvia Hatch will be felt keenly, there certainly is a good supply of brilliant players ready to step in to any open berths. Both Ruth and Miss Loysen are exceedingly confident that the team will again establish an enviable record.

Announcement!

The annual Invitation Tennis Tournament for the students of the Winchester High School will be held during the spring vacation.

There will be no entrance fees and no prizes except that the winner of the boys' singles will be honored by the Bernard cup.

Girls' singles will begin at 8:30 a. m. Monday, April 15. Boys' singles will begin Tuesday, April 16, at 8:30 a. m. and mixed doubles on Wednesday at 8:30 a. m. Contestants must expect to play in the mornings during the week.

Give entries to the tennis managers—Ruth Rennert, who can be reached by calling Win. 0535-W, or John Scully at Win. 2335 before April 12.

Red Sox Winners of Girls' Marching

The preparatory marching which has been going on in the girls' gym classes came to a climax last Thursday afternoon when the final contest was held between the classes.

The participants of this consisted of the winning group of four in each class.

The afternoon started off with combined marching in figures around the gym: Loops, parallels, diagonals, and lines were the geometric figures cut by the 50-odd marchers.

Then came the important rivalry. Three groups of several quartets were put on the floor to go through their routine. Wheels, evasion, lines to the right, and left formed the greater part of this routine. We'd like to see any group of boys do better than these girls did! No wonder the judges had a hard time selecting the winners!

Each group was identified by some individual color or costume. Such points as posture, routine and guiding were what the judges had to go by in selecting the winners.

And by now you would like to know who these winners were. They were the same group who won first honors last year, the Red Sox, captained by Sybil Spencer, and consisting of Katherine Gilbert, Rebecca Jackson and Gertrude Harwood.

A close second was the senior group, captained by Nancy Jackson, which was attractively costumed in the maroon hockey tunics.

The winners of the lower classmen were: Marion Davis, Jean McKenzie, Dorothy Lybeck and Geneva Manning.

Hingham Girls Tied and Tea'd

The girls' basketball team from Hingham finally arrived to play their overdue game. The Hingham team is one of the few which doesn't play a series of inter-school games and their game with Winchester was played by the first and second teams as a sort of reward at the end of the year.

The second teams were both full of fight and played fast, passing games. Barbara Hickey, Ann Colucci and Sybil Spencer were especially outstanding for Winchester. The final score in the second team game was 20—7 for Winchester.

The game between the two first teams was even more exciting. At the end of the first half, the Hingham team was leading by a small margin. In the second half, the scoring was fairly evenly divided and at the final whistle, the score stood 11 to 11.

We had seen "Becky" Jackson and Priscilla Danforth walking around out by the door toward the kitchen and as soon as the gym was cleared, we found out why. With the aid of a few of the players they dragged out a gayly decorated table covered with dishes and cakes and cookies. Next someone found victrola and some record and soon the girls were dancing, that is when they weren't eating.

We feel sure that the Hingham girls were glad that they came finally.

More Scholarships

There have been offered to students of Winchester High School many scholarships. Recently the Chandler School of Boston has organized a Regional Competitive Scholarship. These Scholarships have been established as an aid to worthy girls who wish to attend the Chandler School. Selected high schools have been grouped according to regions. In each region three scholarships will be awarded strictly on a competitive basis, the first for $140, the second and third for $70 each. If a two year course at the school is chosen, the scholarship will be automatically duplicated, provided the recipient reasonably fulfills the promise shown by records on which the scholarship was awarded.

Selection of the candidates will be based upon:

1. Need and merit as adjudged by the principal of the high school.
2. Student's record, academic and non-academic.
3. Examination to be administered by the Chandler School in May.

The Cummington School of Cummington, Mass., for young men and women, is a school for the study of Music, Painting, Sculpture and Writing. This school offers a limited number of fellowships and scholarships, some full, some in part, in the creative fields mentioned.

Each applicant must submit:

1. A statement of his own, concerning previous training in his special field.
2. A report of his work from an accredited teacher.
3. Two letters of recommendation relating to his personality and fitness for group living
4. Two letters from authentic sources stating his need for financial aid.

BOWEN TUFTS

Bowen Tufts, widely known in Boston financial circles as vice president and manager of Tufts-Lyon Co., Inc., Boston banking house, died early Sunday morning, April 7, of monoxide gas poisoning, in the garage of his home at 7 Stratford road. A note left in the house for his brother-in-law, Robert H. Williams, stated that he was going to drive to North Conway to make arrangements for the return to Winchester of his son, Bowen C. Tufts, Yale student who was injured while skiing and confined to an North Conway hospital. Mrs. Tufts, in Washington attending a Red Cross convention as representative of the Winchester Chapter, was notified of her husband's death and flew to Boston in a chartered airplane. News of his death came as a blow to the entire community and to the many friends of Mr. Tufts in Boston and Hull where he maintained a beautiful summer home. He had lived in Winchester for the past 18 years.

Mr. Tufts was born June 17, 1884, in Lexington. He was the son of Albert Nelson and Mary Tufts (Locke) Tufts, and on his father's side was related to Charles Tufts who by the endowment of his farm made possible the establishment of Tufts College. He was also descended from and related to a number of patriots who fought in the Revolutionary War and for the Union in the Civil War.

When Mr. Tufts was 14, his father died and he immediately entered business, securing his first "job" in a hardware store, owned by Frank White and situated in Central Square Cambridge. Within a year, through the introduction of Morris de Soles, then associated with the Boston American, he entered the employ of Jose Parker & Co. on Devonshire street, in Boston.

Commencing as a messenger boy, through close application, hard work and natural ability, he rose rapidly to the position of manager of the company and eventually became vice president and manager of C. D. Parker Co., Inc., successor to Jose Parker & Co.

An indefatigable worker, with remarkable vision and organizing powers, he attained a place of prominence in the financial world, far beyond the confines of his own particular business. As industry generally came to recognize his ability his counsel became more and more widely sought until the Registry of Directors named him as director of some 69 companies, all connected with diversified industries in New England.

In his busy life with the cares of his multitudinous business enterprises, Mr. Tufts found time to take an active interest in out-of-door sports. He was fond of golf and boating and introduced to Winchester the game of curling which in the past few years has become so popular.

BETTER HOMES GARDEN CLUB

The second of a series of three lectures on, "The Outdoor Living Room" by Prof. Arnold M. Davis, will be given at the Public Library, Wednesday evening, April 17, at 7:45 o'clock.

For his first appearance, on March 20, at the home of Mrs. Harmer, Mr. Davis considered the subject of, "Garden Design." He announced that at his second lecture March 17, he would discuss, "Construction" and for the third, May 15, "Planting."

The following notes taken at the first lecture by the acting secretary, Miss M. Goodhue, are so complete and helpful as a background for the talks which are to follow, that the Star is kindly including them in this announcement.

I.—Design

The garden in addition to being a plot of ground set aside for cultivation of flowers, fruit or vegetable, may be considered as an extra room of the house. The design of the garden is to be considered first because we can't make a garden until we have a place in which to put our plants.

A.—Historical Background of Gardens

Gardening goes back as far as we have history i.e., Garden of Eden, Hanging Gardens of Babylon. The Greek gardens were for two purposes, first, satisfaction of growing plants and second, medicinal value of plants. The Greeks gave as the names of many plants. Then Rome conquered Greece and took over Greek culture, among those horticulture. During Christianity the Monks kept the culture alive. The Crusaders brought back the first rose —the Rose of Damascus, which was the beginning of our long line of roses. Louis XIV of France in 1635 sailles gave the first illustration of a formal garden; whatever was done on one side was repeated on the other. The British, following the Crusades laid out gardens making the most of the space available—open lawns, trees. This was the first inning of the informal garden,—making the most of things as they exist and making them as attractive as possible. Virginia used its tobacco slave labor to make the English informal country estates, and gardens at Arlington and Mount Vernon. Massachusetts Bay, Marblehead, Barnstable and Duxbury were settled by city dwellers from England. They brought plants, primroses, double daffodils and developed small door yard gardens on the formal plan, associated with home and medicinal value.

A national calamity such as war changes interest from flowers to vegetables. Gardening is a legitimate form of expression for leisure time and an inexpensive form of recreation.

FRANK WHITTEMORE WINN

Frank Whittemore Winn, widely known Winchester business man and member of the firm of J. H. Winn's Sons, manufacturers of watch bands, died Monday at noon in his home, 41 Euclid avenue, after a brief illness. He was stricken about an hour previous at the factory, collapsing in the office on almost the exact spot where his father had been fatally stricken 22 years ago.

His death came as a severe shock to his family and friends for he had been about the center earlier in the day and had called for the company mail at the postoffice as usual. One of his brothers, with whom he had been associated in the business, Rev. Arthur L. Winn, was in the office; the other, Assessor, Harry T. Winn, being in the West in the interests of the firm.

Mr. Winn was born in Woburn 63 years ago, the son of James Henry, and Julia A. (Cummings) Winn. He spent most of his life in this town, and after receiving his preliminary schooling at the old Washington School in the Highlands, graduated from the former Grammar School, later replaced by the Wadleigh building.

At the age of 16 he entered the watch hand factory, established in 1868 by his father and B. A. Goodell of Waltham, to learn the manufacturing end of the business, and in 1896 bought Mr. Goodell's interest in the firm.

With his father he continued the business under the name of J. H. Winn & Son until Jan. 1, 1913, when his brothers, Arthur and Harry, entered the firm which then became J. H. Winn & Sons. After the death of his father, in November of that year, the firm was again reorganized and Jan. 1, 1914, became J. H. Winn's Sons, by which name it is still known.

Mr. Winn was especially concerned with the production end of the plant, acting in the capacity of shop manager. He was vitally interested in the business and was held in high esteem, not only by his immediate associates and employees but generally by the trade.

In the town he took an active interest in civic affairs, serving as Selectman for three terms, commencing in 1907, and also as a member of Arc Watercraft Committee. Flags on the Common and Town Hall were at half-staff in his honor.

He was prominently identified with the Masonic fraternity, having been a member of William Parkman Lodge of Winchester; Woburn Royal Arch Chapter, Medford Council, Royal and Select Masters; and Hugh de Payens Commandery, Knights Templar of Melrose. He had been a member of Aleppo Temple of the Mystic Shrine since 1907. Besides his Masonic affiliations he was a member of Wakefield Lodge of Elks and the First Congregational Church.

Mr. Winn is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ursula M. Winn; by two daughters, Mrs. Lester Snow and Miss Winnifred Winn; two sons, James and Frank W. Winn, Jr., all of Winchester; two sisters, Mrs. George H. Lochman of this town and Mrs. Frances Smith of Wakefield; and the two brothers, with whom he was in business.

The Elks' funeral ritual was exemplified Tuesday evening at the late residence by the officers of Wakefield Lodge. Largely attended services were held in the residence Wednesday afternoon with Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, officiating. Helena Studzinska Sibley, violinist, played "Abide With Me," "Elegy" by Massenet and "Nearer My God to Thee." Representatives of William Parkman Lodge, Woburn Royal Arch Chapter, Hugh de Payens Commandery and Wakefield Lodge of Elks acted as honorary bearers, and delegations from many town departments attended the services with business associates and friends. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

"AL" SOMERBY FETED

Winchester Theatrical Man Made Kentucky Colonel

Winchester friends of Rufus Alfred Somerby of Everell road were well represented among the 500 who gathered Monday evening at the Copley Plaza Hotel for the testimonial dinner given the popular manager of the L. E. Lathrop Theatrical Interests upon the 25th anniversary of his entrance into the theatrical business.

Governor Curley and Governor Brann of Maine headed the list of invited guests, among those present being Massachusetts' first lady, Miss Mary Curley; Lieutenant Governor Hurley, former Lieutenant Governor Barry, District Attorney Dever, State Treasurer Hurley, State Auditor Buckley, Lieutenant Colonel Kirk, head of the State Police, former City Censor Casey, present City Censor McNary and many others.

Governor Curley provided the big surprise of the evening when he announced that he had been delegated by Governor Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky to notify "Al" Somerby of his appointment as Colonel on the Blue Grass Governor's staff. Governor Curley presented the surprised theatrical man with a framed commission and fastened his Colonel's gorget around his neck. As he did so, the veil was drawn from a large portrait of Mr. Somerby, painted by Louis Chiaramone of the Loew's Theatre Art Department and hung behind the head table. The applause was deafening as those present read the caption, "Colonel 'Al' Somerby."

In addition to Governor Curley, a long and distinguished list of speakers paid tribute to Mr. Somerby, praising not only his influence upon the theatrical profession, but also his influence as a man upon his friends. The toastmaster presented the gift of the banquet guests and other friends to Mr. Somerby, a handsome silver service; and Mrs. Somerby was remembered with a huge bouquet of beautiful roses. Miss Shirley Somerby received a handsome corsage of orchids.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON NOTES

The annual meeting of the Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League was held in Waterfield Hall, Thursday, April 11 at 2:30 p. m. The president, Mrs. Nathaniel Nichols presided. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President Mrs. Bowen C. Tufts
1st Vice President Mrs. Arthur B. Specht
2nd Vice President Mrs. Harris LeBoutillier

Mrs. Nichols introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Rev. Ralph H. Rogers, member of the Auburndale Congregational Church, whose subject was a review of Thornton Wilder's Book, "Heaven My Destination."

Mr. Rogers was a classmate of Thornton Wilders at Yale University and gave some interesting sidelight on his personality. His version of "Heaven's My Destination" was both entertaining and enlightening.

Tea was served by Mrs. Harris Richardson and the following committee: Mrs. E. Oliver Pride, Mrs. Ronald Boothby, Mrs. Paul Bodzell, Mrs. Percy Bugbee, Mrs. Kingman Cass, Mrs. Florence Pitman, Mrs. C. Harold Smith, Mrs. John Wallace, Mrs. Chandler Symmes, Mrs. William C. Cusick, Mrs. Raymond Dexter, Mrs. Clyde Jones, Mrs. Merton Ober.

REFERENDUM VOTE TUESDAY

Tuesday, April 16, is the date; the Town Hall is the place; and the occasion is the referendum vote on motion pictures and the widening of Main street at Everell road. Polls will open at 7 a. m. and close at 6:30 p. m.

It is to be hoped that every voter of the town who can do so will express his preference upon the questions on the ballot. The referendum is costing the taxpayers several hundred dollars and as a consequence a real expression of opinion is especially desirable.

The motion picture question has had sufficient publicity to make any explanation in connection with it unnecessary, though it should be remembered that the vote is merely a recommendation and that the matter of granting a motion picture license rests solely with the Board of Selectmen.

In connection with the proposal to widen Main street at Everell road it should be remembered that the $500 called for in the motion does not provide for any construction, but simply for land taking. It is proposed to widen Main street for a distance of 400 feet, 200 feet each way from the center line of Everell road, starting at nothing at either end of the 400 feet and going in to a depth of 22 feet at the point where Everell road joins Main street.

TO SING OLIVET TO CALVARY AT CRAWFORD CHURCH

At the regular Palm Sunday morning service at 10:30 in the Crawford Memorial M. E. Church the senior choir under the direction of Mary Banton Witham and with Mary H. French as organist will present Maunder's Lenten Cantata, Olivet to Calvary. The choir and regular soloists, Lillian Whitman, soprano; David Downer, tenor; and John McPherson, baritone; will be augmented for the service by Carolyn Gilpatric and Sophia Gardner, sopranos; Jane Hill and Marion Wright, contraltos; Arthur Downer, tenor; Achibald Cheney, baritone; and Leroy Downer and Edward Berry, Jr., basses.

Maunder's setting of the closing chapters of the Saviour's life, from His entrance into Jerusalem, through His capture and trial to His agony and death on the cross, is an especially beautiful one, the music having at the same time a melodic appeal and a simplicity that is easily understood and appreciated. The simple reverence of the story makes it especially adaptable to the Lenten season and few can hear it without being moved by the message of its words and music.

GERTRUDE EHRHART TO BE SOLOIST WITH CHORAL SOCIETY

Miss Gertrude Ehrhart, soprano, of Boston, is to be guest soloist with the Winchester Choral Society at the closing concert of its sixth season, to be held Tuesday evening, April 30, at 8 o'clock in the Town Hall.

There have been many requests by Choral Society patrons for Miss Ehrhart's return to Winchester since she appeared with the Society at its closing concert in 1933. At that time she gained many friends through her beautiful voice, musicianship and pleasing personality.

She has appeared as soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Handel and Hayden Society, and is undoubtedly in the forefront of sopranos in New England. Besides her appearance with the Choral Society, Miss Ehrhart has appeared as soloist at the Unitarian Church and in recital at the Country Club, winning many admirers among local music lovers who will welcome the opportunity to hear her on April 30.

Track Continuing Under "Bob" Friery

With the announcement that track would continue as a varsity sport here at Winchester High, practice was begun last week under the supervision of "Bob" Friery.

There was a large turnout led by Capt. Lyman Matthews, consisting of regulars, veterans, and many newcomers. The regulars consist of Captain "Lymie" Matthews, "Larry" Bairstow, J. Gerard Gaffney, all sprint men, and the nucleus of a fine relay team. "Pat" Gardner is a last year's second team man who should do well.

In the quarter mile, we have "Ewey" Bairstow and "Bob" Graham. Those two men did well last year and should be fine performers next year.

The half-mile and mile runs lost a valuable performer in the graduation of "Jud" Cross, last year's captain. However, John Downs, Fred Croto, "Al" Mathews, and "Les" Gustin are out seeking to exemplify him.

There seems to be better material for the field events this season than there have been for several years. "Gerry" Gaffney, "Ken" Monroe, "Les" Gustin, and Ivor Olson are the prospective shotputters. "Bill" Cott and Roger Downs are veteran high-jumpers, while "Dave" Grosvenor is a likely hooker in this event. Dexter Derby, "Pat" Gardner and "Bill" Cott are out for the broadjump, being last year reserves and probably first team men this year.

At this early date, Coach Friery makes no statements, but we're sure that he'll produce a fine track team.

At the invitation of the Newton High School, Miss Loysen was one of the judges at a gymnastic meet over there last Saturday afternoon.

The announcement of the awards for the annual Poster Contest of the Massachusetts S. P. C. A. finds two Winchester High School students receiving honors. Ernest Thompson was awarded the bronze medal for second prize, while Jean Wilson received honorable mention and a year's subscription to "Our Dumb Animals."

Girls' Sport Schedule

An extensive and interesting sport schedule is planned for the girls' consisting of both class and varsity competition in baseball and tennis, with perhaps archery, as a new feature.

Monday afternoons, the freshmen and sophomores will practice for class baseball; Tuesdays will be reserved for the juniors and seniors. Tennis practice will continue throughout the week, more playing for pleasure, rather than from a sense of obligation.

Varsity tennis matches will be played on Wednesdays, mostly, and the outlook for Winchester is very promising. Varsity baseball games are planned for Thursdays; and when there is no game, all the classes will practice together.

On Fridays, the varsity baseball squad will practice and more tennis matches will be held.

To determine the class tennis teams, a series of elimination tournaments are drawn up. In this way, the best players will be discovered. The best six players will form the team to represent their class; and these play the other classes, to decide who wins the much-sought-after numerals. This schedule is planned in such a way that every girl who wishes a chance to be athletic has more than that, since there is the same opportunity for all.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

On March 29, Troop 8, gave two one act plays at the Mystic School. Fourteen girls took part in the first play, "Three Wiser Women," and the entire troop took part in the second, "An International Pageant." During the intermission, Betty Jean England played a piano selection and Barbara Hughes with Lieutenant Doddy accompanying, played a violin selection. The proceeds will be used for two campships to Camp Four Winds. By vote of the troop members, the two fortunate scouts are Bernice Taber and Meredith Wagner.

The Bugle and Drum Corps will meet Monday, April 15 at 1 p. m. at the Unitarian Church. Come in uniform, with black shoes and stockings.

The Training and Personnel Committee held two meetings at the home of Mrs. Davis, Central green, on April 2 and 9, to interest possible new leaders. Mrs. Jan Friis explained the history of Girl Scouting, Troop organization and tenderfoot training. Those present were: Mmes. Collins, Godfrey, Pride, Kenneth Caldwell, Lowell Smith, Booth, Wheeler, Doub, Friis, Murray and Farnsworth.

The annual meeting of the Metropolitan Committee will be held at Cedar Hill on Tuesday, April 16 from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. Edith T. Cabot, chairman of the New England Regional Committee will be the speaker. Mrs. Phelps and Mrs. Speedie will be our delegates. Luncheon will be served for 65c. Reservations should be made before April 15, through Mrs. Phelps. The meeting is open to anyone interested in Scouting.

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Girl Scouts will be held at Cedar Hill on May 1. Mrs. Farnsworth and Mrs. Davis are our delegates.

RECENT BRIDE SHOWERED

Mrs. John F. Dempsey, whose husband, a widely known Winchester young man, is a lieutenant-detective in the State Police, was given a miscellaneous shower last week Thursday evening at the home of Lieutenant Dempsey's father, Mr. Patrick J. Dempsey, 907 Main street.

Mrs. Dempsey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Dunn of Roslindale, a graduate of Regis College in the class of 1933 and prominent socially. She was the recipient of many attractive gifts, for which she graciously expressed her thanks. Talented guests offered an excellent entertainment, and a buffet luncheon was served by a caterer.

The marriage of Lieutenant and Mrs. Dempsey was recently announced. They are making their home in Brookline.

A VARIETY OF FLOWERS AT ALL TIMES

It will be quickly recognized that Cummings The Florist greenhouses have a leading floral shop in this section. They fully understand the floriculture business from every angle. If one is entertaining and wants something artful and unusually clever to surprise the guests, one has but to make the request. For funerals, their designs assure that this final tribute has been most fitting and proper. They have at all times a variety of flowers of unusual size and beauty grown in their own greenhouses from the best stock available. Their prices are always reasonable, due to their large and extensive business.

Few shops anywhere are better able to display the beautiful and varied assortment that is to be found there.

The success of this concern of J. W. Cummings and S. R. Cummings comes from the sum total of satisfaction on the part of the customer.

Police Chief William H. Rogers and Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy, in a shining new Chevrolet, provided by the Winchester Square Chevrolet, led the parade of the General Motors cars through Winchester Monday from the Medford to the Woburn line.

MISS HELEN STINSON NEW ASSISTANT TOWN CLERK

Miss Helen E. Stinson has been appointed assistant Town Clerk in the office of her sister, Town Clerk Mabel W. Stinson, her appointment dating from April 5.

Miss Stinson's appointment was a logical one, she having had considerable experience with the work of the Town Clerk's office in which she has served as an extra clerk during rush periods for the past two years.

Until this year funds were not available for a regular assistant in the Town Clerk's office and Miss Mabel Stinson has been without such assistance since Miss Mary H. French was moved upstairs to the Selectmen's office. Aside from the amount of work handled by the Town Clerk this created a bad situation since in the event of her enforced absence, it is necessary to have some one in her office acquainted with the duties of her position.

Funds for regular clerical assistance were provided at the annual town meeting this year. The appointment of Miss Helen Stinson will prove generally popular, especially with those who have occasion to transact business at the Town Clerk's office.

GEORGE WASHINGTON-HIGHLAND MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

Tuesday evening, April 9, the Mothers' Association of the George Washington-Highland Schools held Dads' Night in the George Washington School. It was a dreadful night of wind, rain and sleet, but the school, brilliantly lighted, made a warm welcome to the goodly number of fathers and mothers who ventured out and it was well worth the venture. From 7:30 to 8 o'clock, coffee was served in the kindergarten room, where parents and teachers mingled with good cheer.

Then adjournment to the assembly hall, where Mrs. Kenneth T. Caldwell, president of the Association, cordially welcomed the guests and introduced Miss Edna Hatch, who in turn extended her greeting and appreciation at seeing so many parents.

Mrs. Helena Studzinska Sibley, accompanied by Mrs. Leon Sargent, played in her usual gracious manner, a group of three pieces: Bolero, Burleigh; Rondina, Beethoven; Kreisler; from the Canebrake, Gardner. Mr. Quinn was to have said a few words but on account of illness was unable to be present.

Mrs. Caldwell then introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Clinton E. Farnham. He took for his subject "The Privilege of Being a Parent." He made us feel that it is indeed a privilege to be a parent. He stressed the idea that we owe our children everything we have to give them. That before the child goes to school the pattern of his mind is set. It is the duty of parents to become affiliated with a church so that the child may have a religious training. It is a stabilizing of emotions and a very present help in time of need. Mr. Farnham ended with a beautiful quotation from Angelo Patri.

At the close of the meeting the parents were invited to visit the class rooms. Each teacher was in her respective room. The work of every child was on display. Parents showed great enthusiasm, well backed by the teachers. Much credit is due Mrs. Caldwell.

The hostesses: Mrs. Leon Sargent, Mrs. Glen Browning, Mrs. George Elwell, Mrs. Wanska, Mrs. Arnold Whittaker, Mrs. Harry Goodwin, Mrs. Albert Huckins, Mrs. William Harris, Mrs. Leo Blaisdell, Mrs. Albert Thompson, Mrs. Floyd Clement, Mrs. Harold Bostwick, Mrs. Newton, Mrs. Esther Hall, Mrs. John Wills, Mrs. Earl Doub, Mrs. Ruth Hilton and Mrs. Homer Davidson had charge of the coffee. The pourers were Mrs. Francis Thomas and Mrs. Harold Rath. Those serving were Mrs. Carl Zimmerman, Mrs. Roland Carter, Mrs. Stanley Barnes, Mrs. Brooks Jakeman, Mrs. Robert Beyer, Mrs. Arthur Wheeler, Ms. Joseph Paradis, Mrs. Ralph Mitchlig, Mrs. Irving Dingwell, Mrs. Clarence Newton.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Dunbar Carpenter, Jr., of this town was a member of the Harvard Ski team participating in the recent Olympic try-outs at Tuckerman's Ravine in the White Mountains. The Winchester boy was one of those who went over the sheer head-wall of the Ravine and was good enough to place 11th among all the competitors.

Winchester experienced a real touch of winter Wednesday when a driving snowstorm made the out-of-doors extremely unpleasant during most of the day. The snow followed a driving rainstorm which continued from early Tuesday morning into the late evening when the rain turned to snow.

WINCHESTER MAN ADVANCED AT M. I. T.

Among the faculty promotions announced last week-end by Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was that of Prof. Frederick H. Norton of this town to the post of associate professor in the field of ceramics.

Prof. Leonard M. Passano who formerly lived on Bacon street in this town and who has been associated with the faculty at M. I. T. since 1892, was advanced to a full professor, from associate professor, a rank he had held since 1913.

VOTE "NO" ON MOVIES

Keep Winchester the Best Town in the State

Winchester is a clean town. It has thrived and grown through the years--BECAUSE its citizens have kept it clean, and have planned ahead; have given time and money to keep it so; have erected fine schools, playgrounds and recreational places.

AND NO MOVIES HAS BEEN NO HARDSHIP

Shall we now alter this plan? Shall we wreck our civic center, with its fine buildings --Schools, Church, War Memorial, Manchester Field--and turn it into a movie park? Will it be of any benefit to us? Will it help our schools, churches and recreational endeavors?

MOVIES ARE A BACKWARD STEP

Reasons Why We Should Not Have Movies in Winchester--

ADDITIONAL EXPENSE TO TOWN. At this time with everyone facing increased taxation, it is unwise to add additional expense necessary for policing, etc. This is an important and expensive item.

CHILDREN AND MOVIES. We are well aware that children now go out of town to movies, but parents are not subjected to the constant pressure on the part of their children to be allowed to attend every movie that comes along, as they would be if there were a movie theater in town.

BLOCK BOOKING. Under block booking as it stands today, Winchester will not be able to select its own movies. It will get what the producer gives it, statement to the contrary notwithstanding.

SUNDAY MOVIES. Sunday movies will come. Sunday movies are necessary to the financial success of the theater. Do not be deceived about this. Ask your Arlington friends.

THE TRADE FALLACY. Movies will not bring trade. The movie house will have its own spa for the sale of candy, drinks and ice cream. Other trade will not be affected.

FINANCIAL SUCCESS. The financial success of movies in Winchester has been questioned. It is reported that large houses in surrounding places have been obliged to drop from second to third run pictures. No matter what the future holds for a Winchester movie house, the Town will always have it—good, bad or worse.

CIVIC CENTER. Winchester has spent thousands of dollars developing a beautiful civic center. An unsightly movie house in its midst will undo all that has been accomplished through years of effort.

MOVIES ATTRACT UNDESIRABLES. Winchester holds an enviable reputation for freedom from crime. Movies will not help to maintain this record.

GRADE CROSSING A FEATURE. Winchester's grade crossing will undoubtedly be removed. It is a mistake to add a large building like a movie house without knowledge of what will be done with the crossing. Damages will be a large factor in the crossing elimination.

WILL UNDO OUT-DOOR RECREATIONAL FEATURES. Winchester has spent large sums on playgrounds, tennis courts, swimming pools, baseball diamonds. Do you want your children sitting at a movie—or out in the open enjoying healthy sport? Movies will undo all of this affecting planning for our young people.

EVENING ENTERTAINMENT WILL STOP. Winchester churches and societies provide abundant evening entertainment. Theatricals, socials and entertainments of a healthful nature are more abundant here than in any surrounding place. A movie theater will stop this.

WINCHESTER SUFFERS NO HARDSHIP. With movie theaters on every side, some showing pictures much better than Winchester could possibly expect; all within the same average distance of a center movie house, Winchester people can see all the movies they want. The town suffers no hardship without movies in its center.

MOVIES IN WINCHESTER ARE A FINANCIAL "FLYER" FOR SPECULATION. Do not be deceived. The promoter of movies in Winchester is out to make some money for himself. Whether he turns the theater over to someone else a year after it is built or not, he expects to make his profit. "After that, What?"

ALWAYS DENIED BY TOWN. Winchester has always voted against moving pictures. Never has a favorable, or near-favorable vote been recorded during the 14 years (since 1921) when the first ballot vote was held. The last vote in March was 130 against to 48 for movies. Notwithstanding these repeated expressions of rejection by the Town, movie promoters have constantly forced the project upon Winchester.

The following citizens, interested in the welfare of Winchester, who have given of their time and ability in making it the town it is, oppose the erection of a moving picture house here:

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL

Winchester High School's baseball aspirants will be busy during vacation next week in preparation for their regular scheduled games which commence after the recess.

Saturday morning the first squad will meet Wakefield High in a practice game on Manchester Field and Monday morning the same teams will play a return engagement at Wakefield. Some time during next week the high school will play a practice game with "Joe" McKee's All Stars and this latter contest should test the youngsters' batting eyes, since "Joe" and "Robbie" Robinson will toe the mound for the Stars.

Coach Mansfield is working on a plan for intra-mural baseball at high school this spring in an effort to keep all the boys in his huge squad busy with the game. If things work out as he hopes, the intra-mural group will play about three games a week, leaving him with more time to devote to the development of the varsity group.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

The regular meeting of the Guild was held on Tuesday afternoon at Lyceum Hall at 2:30. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Margaret T. McGoldrick, Mrs. Charles J. Harrold, Mrs. O. J. Logue and Mrs. Peter Norton.

Lecture

The fourth lecture sponsored by the Guild will be held on April 26 at the home of Mrs. Thos. Riley, 51 Eaton avenue, Woburn. The speaker will be Mrs. Claire Dawes of Winchester whose subject will be, "Mexico." This will be an afternoon lecture and tea will be served. Mrs. James Haley, chairman of transportation, will see that all members desiring to attend will be given transportation.

Glee Club

Miss Lucia McKenzie of 65 Hemingway street was hostess to the Glee Club on Thursday evening.

Communion Breakfast

The annual communion breakfast will be held on Sunday, May 5. Mrs. Mary E. Sexton is chairman in charge of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Claire E. Dawes, Mrs. Helen J. Logue and Mrs. Rose M. Mulcahy.

VACATION TENNIS TOURNAMENT AT PALMER STREET

The annual vacation tennis tournament for high school pupils gets underway on the Palmer street courts next Tuesday morning at 8:30 when the opening rounds in girls' and boys' singles will be played. As usual, Rev. William S. Packer of the Park Board will supervise the tourney.

With several strong players of former years out of competition, particularly on the girls' side, the tournament should prove especially interesting this spring in providing the first real line on the likely makeup of the high school clubs for 1935.

WEEK-END FIRES

Another busy week-end for the firemen commenced at 12:30 last Friday afternoon, when burning grass set fire to a barn on the LaFleur property at 278 Washington street. At 4:55 that afternoon there was a grass fire in the rear of the store house at Beggs & Cobbs tannery. A chimney fire called the department to the residence of Mr. Samuel Symmes on Sanborn street at 5:29.

Saturday's first fire was reported by Mr. John B. Wills of Wolcott terrace, who discovered a blaze in the fells behind his home. At 10:19 Saturday morning, Box 571 came in for a grass fire on Westland avenue.

At 11:25 the Central Station received a call from a Woburn woman who reported that the section in the vicinity of Pine street in that city was "burning up" and that the Woburn apparatus was all out answering alarms. Chief DeCourcy sent Winchester's Engine 3 to Woburn and also notified Stoneham which sent in a piece of apparatus. Upon arrival the men found that a pile of lumber was burning near a barn.

There was a grass fire near the Bradford residence on Cambridge street at 12:58, and at 1:30, a brush fire near the residence of Mr. W. J. Roop on Dartmouth street. At the same hour a brush fire was also reported at the Robinson estate on Cambridge street.

At 3:02 Saturday afternoon there was a brush fire in Fellsdale close and at 4:09 a brush fire was reported by Patrolman Henry P. Dempsey of the Police Department on Highland view avenue. At 6:23 the Department was called to put out a fire in the woods near Irwin's on Hutchinson road.

Sunday passed quietly but at 7:03 in the evening there was a call from the Edison Light plant on Pond street, reporting an automobile on fire. The machine was the property of a Woburn man, and the fire was found to be out when the apparatus arrived. A piece from the Woburn Department answered the alarm with Winchester.

Two alarms came in simultaneously on Monday about 11 o'clock in the forenoon, a fire being reported in the woods at the rear of the Cox farm on Ridge street and another blaze being discovered on the town dump. The rain of Tuesday and Wednesday's snow put an end to the department's activities for a time.

MR. KELLEY HONORED

Mr. Daniel Kelley of Dix street, president of the local undertaking and expressing firm of Kelley & Hawes, was honored by Hugh de Payens Commandery of Melrose Wednesday evening when he was awarded the Grand Commandery's Thomas Smith Webb medal for long service.

This award, established last year, is given Knights who have been Comandery members in good standing for 40 years or more, and it is considered in Masonic circles a distinct honor to be eligible for the medal. Mr. Kelley's membership is well beyond the 40 year mark and in all his years in Hugh de Payens he has never missed an inspection, a truly remarkable record.

The medal was presented to the Winchester man in open conclave. It is of bronze, of simple yet handsome design, showing the head of Thomas Webb Smith, first Grand Commander of the order, in bas-relief superimposed on a cross. On a bronze bar above a black and white silk ribbon are the words, "Long Service."

Until the question of the legality of a movie referendum was brought up, that unopposed vote against the widening of Main street appeared about the most uninteresting article in our town meeting warrant. Even now, with all these people who were dissatisfied, and who have called for a referendum, it seems dropped into the pit of oblivion. As a conveyor of a movie referendum, it seems to have served its purpose. In case you do not know anything about this article, it called for the widening of the east side of Main street at Everell road, and it was defeated without debate.

Mr. Somerby, whose 35th anniversary in the theatrical business was celebrated Monday evening at the Copley Plaza, has many friends in Winchester. Among them is a little lady, whose cup of happiness overflowed on Monday evening. She is Mrs. Julia E. Somerby, mother of the popular theatre official, who resides with her daughter, Jennie, at 270 Washington street. Mrs. Somerby has been a resident of Winchester for nearly 15 years and is the widow of the late Rufus Choate Somerby.

NO MOVIE LETTERS

The Star is publishing no movie letters this week. This paper feels that it has given the question sufficient publicity to allow Winchester voters proper ground to form their opinion in casting their vote for or against them next Tuesday. At this time of writing, two letters have been received, and as both are from previous correspondents, the Star feels that they will not consider it amiss if their communications are omitted.

COLLISION A REMOTE POSSIBILITY

To the Editor of the Star:

As a resident of Everell road and one who has driven continually through Symmes Corner for five years, I feel qualified to express an opinion in regard to the proposed change there. In common with many of the residents of this section, I feel that the present traffic circle adequately takes care of the former dangerous situation at Symmes Corner. It is now impossible to make a turn in any direction crossing traffic, without such a diminishing of speed that a collision is a very remote possibility. The proposed change would straighten the corner so that its chief result would be an invitation to increase speed with subsequent danger. Although the amount of money involved is small, it nevertheless seems unwise to add to the town expenses in any such unnecessary way. I earnestly urge voters who live out of the Symmes Corner district to inform themselves on the situation there and to vote "No" on the proposed change.

MOTHERS AND FATHERS

Dear Winchester Residents:

Would you help me in making easier the lives of a little girl and boy? Here is the story.

The family is a Winchester one, the father is working for the town three days a week and the mother has had a mental breakdown causing her removal to a hospital. Last week they were turned out of their house and their furniture put in a warehouse after being piled in the street for nine hours which, while one of the most pathetic sights I have ever seen, was perhaps according to law.

Through no fault of their own, these two children have been through three years of mental anguish, taunted by their school companions because of the actions of their sick mother and for the same reason shunned by the children in the neighborhood. This cause having been remedied, I am trying to place these two youngsters on a footing with their companions by providing them with the means of recreation our children have in the way of a baseball mitt, doll's carriage, second-hand bicycle, etc. Right now, is, perhaps, the turning point in their lives and if the boy can be provided with the things he longs for and be able to take his place alongside his companions and be one of them, he will turn out a splendid boy. I realize many boys have to go without, but not many boys have to go through what this child has.

Perhaps someone has a bicycle which could be fixed up at small expense, if so will you please get in touch with me? If you have not, will you contribute a small amount to purchase one? Dr. Chidley, with his usual generosity, at once provided a new outfit for the children and immediately, one of our sheriffs—a supposedly hard-hearted sheriff—gave me $1 and said "get something for the little girl. Mrs. Toye."

The Welfare will look after their board and room, but remembering the youngsters are now motherless, will you mothers not look around the house and see if your children can spare them something?

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Mrs. K. B. Toye,
10 Bonad road,
Winchester, Mass.

Winchester 1855-W

CONSIDERATION BY OFFICERS

To the Editor of the Star:

Last week Sergeant Cassidy and Officer Dempsey of the Winchester Police Department gave a splendid example of consideration toward the mentally ill when called upon to perform a very unpleasant duty.

A Winchester family was put out upon the street with no place to go and nothing to eat, which is enough to upset a well person, and only the tact of these two men prevented an unseemingly disturbance. With their co-operation and that of Mrs. Wilson of the Welfare Board, homes were found for the father and two children and to such an extent had these men won the mother's confidence that she went off quietly to the hospital with them.

Believing the situation was particularly well handled and having been in touch with the family all day, I think their day's work should receive recognition.

Sincerely,
Gladys N. Toye

Mrs. K. B. Toye

DRY COLORADO ACRES WILL RECEIVE WATER VIA NEW MOUNTAIN-PIERCING TUNNEL

Engineers have bored a four-mile tunnel through the Colorado Rockies to deliver water from the western slope of the mountains to the thirsty Colorado plains below the eastern slope. The bore pierces the Continental Divide near Independence Pass.

When Colorado turned her attention from mining to agriculture, she found herself severely handicapped by an inadequate water supply, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. In the eastern portion of the state were fertile plains but little water; in the west, an abundance of water but less land suitable for irrigation. Rainfall on the plains averages 12 inches a year, and even then most of it falls in a few summer cloudbursts that do more damage than good. Four great rivers rise in Colorado's mountains—the Colorado, Rio Grande, Arkansas, and Platte. At present almost all of the state's unused water escapes through the Colorado basin.

Pioneers of West Avoided Colorado Rockies

Thus the mountains are a barrier to the farmer in eastern Colorado as, three quarters of a century ago they were a barrier to the pioneers. For many years westward travel avoided Colorado. The Oregon Trail passed to the north and the Santa Fe Trail to the south. Then the lure of gold and furs brought trappers and prospectors, and the conquest of the Colorado Rockies was begun. Now railroads and highways cross the Divide in a dozen places. Independence Pass, just north of the recently completed tunnel, has an elevation of 12,095 feet, and is the site of the highest transcontinental automobile highway in North America.

Buried 2800 feet below the summit of Star Mountain, the tunnel is 10,500 feet above sea level. On the west slope of the Rockies a canal collects water from small creeks that have previously fed the Roaring Fork of the Colorado River. When early in May the gates of the new tunnel are opened, this water, originally destined for the Pacific, will start on a 225-mile journey eastward. From the tunnel it will empty into Lake Creek, and flow down through a narrow, wooded canyon to Twin Lakes reservoir. Twin Lakes fills a small valley carved out by glacial ice. Above it rises Mount Elbert, Colorado's highest peak.

Below the reservoir the water will be carried by the Arkansas River. Through Wild Horse Canyon it will flow, under the shadow of the college peaks—Harvard, Yale and Princeton—past industrial town of Salida, down into the cool depths of the Royal Gorge, and out onto the dry plains east of Pueblo. There it will turn the arid land of Crowley County into fields of alfalfa, sugar beets, corn, cantaloupes, and grain.

Geography and climate have combined to make this engineering project a difficult one. Working at an altitude of nearly two miles a man can do only 60 per cent as much work as he can at sea level. Transportation also made the construction of the tunnel very difficult. Only four miles of tunnel separate the camps at east and west portals, but when deep drifts block the mountain passes, it is a 200-mile trip by road from one camp to the other.

The region is one of the wildest in the Rockies. From the top of Independence Pass a sea of bare, jagged peaks reaches in a circle to the horizon. Stunted evergreens mark the straggling timberline across rocky slopes. Lower down are dark forests of spruce and fir, lightened with patches of aspens, whose leaves turn to clear gold under autumn frosts. Even the names on the map have a pioneer ring—Deadman Gulch, Grizzly Peak, Frying Pan Creek, Lost Man Creek, Roaring Fork, and Petroleum Lake.

The romance of gold and silver clings to mountain and stream in this region. Narrow trails zigzag up rocky slopes to old cabins and deserted shafts. Prospectors still hope to make a lucky strike. Last summer there was evidence of renewed activity about the old camp of Independence, abandoned 50 years ago. Aspen on the west slope, and Leadville on the east, were both animated camps in the eighties. Leadville, in fact, was once the second city of Colorado. Discovery of silver-bearing lead in the upper valley of the Arkansas changed Leadville from a log cabin settlement to a city of 30,000. When silver slumped the city dwindled to a town, but mining operations have never ceased. Zinc, gold, copper, lead, and silver are being produced there today.

lar among members of the Country Club.

In 1929 he purchased from The Country Club at Brookline a number of curling stones which he presented to the Winchester Club to start the sport here. During the past winter he curled as skip of one of the local club teams, was a member of the club skips' committee and was engaged with Robert F. Guild in perfecting plans which it is hoped will provide facilities for indoor curling here.

The club, in recognition of his efforts to promote curling, presented Mr. Tufts several years ago with two fine imported stones which were purchased in Scotland especially for him.

Although a member of many clubs and organizations, his active club life in recent years was confined to the Winchester Country Club, South Shore Country Club, University Club, Hingham Yacht Club, Calumet Club, Business Men's Art Club and Exchange Club. He was a Mason, a member of Mystic Valley Lodge of this town and of Winchester Royal Arch Chapter.

Besides his interest in adult sports he was especially enthusiastic over the boating and sailing activities of the children near his summer home at Hull and Point Allerton.

Bowen Tufts was a patron of the arts. During the past two years he had taken up the study of art seriously and had devoted many of his evenings, early mornings and Sundays to perfecting his work in watercolors. He was an active member of the Winchester Art Association, organizing an art class for children at his home and another for older art enthusiasts. Recently he gave a one man exhibition of some 30 of his paintings at Tufts College, critics speaking highly of the progress shown during the short time he had been studying. His instructor, Stuart Bruce of Cambridge was one of his closest friends.

Mr. Tufts was a great lover of music. He was actively interested in the Winchester Choral Society, of which he was an associate member from its inception, serving often as usher at its concerts and assisting its officers with counsel in matters of organization and finance.

On Sept. 24, 1907, he married Octavia E. Williams of Chicago, whom he met at an assembly at the old West Medford Armory. Mrs. Tufts was spending a vacation from Smith College in Boston, visiting her two brothers who were attending Harvard.

Despite his business and other activities, through all the press of financial cares and responsibilities, Mr. Tufts' one thought during his entire life was for his wife and their children. The welfare and happiness of his family was paramount. He was an especially fine type of citizen in the community, was held in high esteem by all with whom he came in contact and generally beloved by those who knew him well.

Surviving, besides his wife and mother, are two daughters, Mary Octavia; an instructor at St. Margaret's School in Waterbury, Conn.; and Jeanne Elizabeth, of Winchester; two sons, Bowen C., a senior at Yale; and David Albert, a sophomore at Harvard; also three sisters, Mrs. George Perry of Weymouth, Mrs. Paul Fiske of New York City and Miss Elsie Tufts who makes her home with her mother in West Medford.

Private funeral services were held at the late residence Wednesday afternoon with Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, rector of the Church of the Epiphany officiating, assisted by Rev. Louis C. Dethlefs of Medford.

The Church of the Epiphany was taxed to its capacity at the public services which followed those at the home and at which Rev. Mr. Hadley and Rev. Mr Dethlefs were assisted by Rev. William S. Packer of this town. Organ music was played by the church organist and choirmaster, Enos J. Held. The masses of beautiful flowers bore eloquent testimony to the esteem in which the deceased was held by his associates and friends. The commital service was private and was held at Munroe Cemetery in Lexington where the interment was made.

Active pallbearers at the funeral were Winthrop I. Nottage, Galt F. Parsons, Harold B. Lamont, Louis Whittemore, Hollis Gott, Edward L. Bennett, Merton E. Grush, Edward C. Mason, Allen T. Rogers and Ralph M. Sparks.

Honorary pallbears were Frederick N. Hammerstrom, Harold M. Parsons, Louis G. Keyes, Manning W. Morrill, Charles R. Adams, Paul Webber, Nathan Goldstein and Samuel Goldstein, Howard Davenport, Wallace Coon, Carl S. Herrmann, treasurer of the New England Power Company; Ralph Hornblower of Hornblower & Weeks; George W. Perry, Alfred Whittemore, Paul S. Fiske, Harry Norris, Chauncy D. Parker, Wilder Padlett and Robert F. Guild.

The ushers were Arthur Stone, Frank Locke, Harold Storke, Stuart Brown, Maurice Sollers, Addison R. Pike, Dr. William H. Gilmartic, Benjamin Hill, Stephen Gifford Thomas I. Freeborn, Frederick E. Ritchie, Thomas G. Ranton, Frank and Walter Noonan, Russell Hatch, Charles P. Tefford, Ralph Garner, George Dresser and Edward W. Berry.

An Appreciation

To have known Bowen Tufts as a friend and neighbor was a rare privilege. One could not fail to be richer for the experience. His charm and graciousness were but flowers of a character which had for roots the sterner virtues—honor, sincerity, love.

His family life was most ideal. His understanding sympathy, his loving affection and social companionship were qualities that endeared him to the hearts of his wife and children.

His neighborliness was an indescribably beautiful thing. He perfectly exemplified the commandment "Love thy neighbor." Always was there a genuinely kind interest in those who lived near him.

To be a friend of Bowen Tufts was an inspiration. His magnetic personality and noble character so combined all the virtues that they are innumerable.

God must have smiled and been proud of his handiwork when He looked upon him, for he was a giant among men—morally, spiritually, mentally.

Bowen Tufts is not gone—he lives in our hearts and the memory of him will blossom there eternally, fresh throughout the years.

ROTARY CLUB

Four members were absent from the meeting of April 11. Since the last meeting our President, Harry Winn has suffered the loss of his brother, Frank. Our admiration for Harry's courage as he endures this previous blow is equalled only by our sympathy which instinctively goes forth to him to bring such comfort as it may.

It also falls to our lot to chronicle the misfortune which has befallen "Jim" Quinn. On Monday, the 8th, "Jim" was rushed to the Winchester Hospital to undergo the appendicitis operation. As we write, information comes that "Jim" went through his ordeal in splendid fashion and that there is every indication of his early return to health. Congratulations, Jim!

The club is in receipt of an invitation to it members to attend the regular meeting of the Rotary Club of Boston which will be held Wednesday, April 17 at 6:30 p. m. in the ballroom of the Hotel Statler. This meeting will feature a presentation by Dr. Charles H. Tozier, resident of Winchester, of a series of colored photographs taken in Mexico City and its environs. Dr. Tozier's work in this field is celebrated internationally for its incomparable artistry. Needless to say the coming exhibition will be of particular value to those who attend the Rotary Convention next June and for those who cannot go to the Convention it will furnish one of the best possible substitutes for their attendance. We would emphasize the fact that Rotarians are welcome to bring members of their families to this Boston meeting as guests. Dress informal.

Guest speaker at our home meeting was Marshall H. Fay, passenger-transport pilot on the air line between Cleveland and Chicago. Mr. Fay makes his residence in Winchester, but naturally is actually here only on rare occasions. Wherefore we were extremely fortunate to be able to entertain him at this time. His address, describing in much detail the modern passenger air plane, scientific principles and methods employed in taking-off, landing and maintaining flight course, even when flying without visibility, together with various thrilling personal experiences, kept his audience spellbound with little realization of the passage of time. Mr. Fay is acknowledged to be one of the country's ablest air pilots and our appreciation of his courtesy in favoring us with this address is profound.

There is an insistent call to better our attendance record. Now is the time to do so. Please remember this as April 18 rolls around.

Percentage of attendance April 4—89.66 per cent.

Average attendance for March—93.10 per cent.

THE VIKINGS—MERCHANTS OF THE MIDDLE AGES

Swedish archeologists are changing usually accepted ideas of the Vikings. Evidence dug from the sandy shores of the Baltic Sea proves they were peaceful merchants, pushing their trade from London to the Bosporus. Gone is the traditional Viking of English history—a savage warrior who spent all his time dashing across the seas in an open boat, raiding peaceful communities.

The trouble, archeology now indicates, is that reliance has been placed on biased sources of information. British, Irish, and Frankish chroniclers could hardly be expected to appreciate the finer qualities of the "blond beasts" who conquered them.

Sagas Tell Viking Story

For an accurate picture of the Viking Age one must go to the sagas, that great mass of legend, history, poetry, and law collected from oral tradition and written down in the twelfth century, says a bulletin from the Washinton, D. C. headquarters of National Geographic Society. Archeologists exploring the lost civilization of Greenland, Scandinavia, Russia, and the Baltic are succeeding in verifying much of this valuable source material.

Geography made the Vikings a seafaring people, and they in turn altered the geography of their world. Early settlements in Scandinavia were built along the coast where deep, winding fjords made overland travel next to impossible. The sea was a natural highway and ships were built to ride the storms of northern latitudes. Those boats were small, less than 80 feet long, with high carved prow and stern, a square-rigged sail of brightly colored wool, and 20 to 30 sets of oars. King Canute's "long ship" boasted 120 oarsmen, but this was a royal exception.

In these slender craft, steering by sun, moon, stars, and wind, the Northmen dared unknown seas and meredible distances. Boats were as speedy as they were seaworthy, making the trip from Norway to Iceland in four days, and from Denmark to England in three.

First Arctic Explorers

The Vikings were a hardy, adventurous race, and their fatalistic religion made them fearless. Life was a dangerous game wherein one strove to win as much fame and honor as possible in the short time

"Are Sin, Disease and Death Real?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 14.

The Golden Text is: "Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved: for thou art my praise" (Jeremiah 17:14).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Be not afraid of sudden fear, neither of the desolation of the wicked, when it cometh. For the Lord shall be thy confidence, and shall keep thy foot from being taken" (Proverbs 3:25, 26).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The cause of all so-called disease is mental, a mortal fear, a mistaken belief or conviction of the necessity and power of ill-health; also a fear that Mind is helpless to defend the life of man and incompetent to control it. Without this ignorant human belief, any circumstance is of itself powerless to produce suffering. It is latent belief in disease, as well as the fear of disease, which associates sickness with certain circumstances and causes the two to appear conjoined, even as poetry and music are combined in union by human memory" (p. 377).

allotted by the Norns (the Fates). Games, contests, and feats of strength were tremendously popular. Many are the tales told of Olaf Tryggvason, the king of Norway who challenged Kjarten of Iceland to a swimming match. Olaf had a ship, "Long Serpent," the mightiest boat in the North. It is said he could walk completely around this while his men were rowing, stepping on each oar and juggling three daggers as he went.

The history of Arctic exploration begins with the Vikings, who found and lost a northern empire. Around the North Cape and into the White Sea they sailed in search of furs and ivory. Venturing westward, Rabna Flohi came to Iceland. There a group of noblemen, escaping unjust taxation under Harold Harfarger, established a colony. From Iceland Eric the Red nushed on to a land of black rock and glittering ice which he named Greenland to encourage men to settle there. The Greenland colonies prospered and grew rich through three centuries, trading in furs, ivory, walrus hide, and whale oil. Then as they had risen so they faded, and by the 14th century had vanished, forgotten save in the sagas. The sagas tell also of Leif Ericson's voyage to Vinland and how he found first a land of flat stones, then a wooded shore and last a country of vines and grapes.

The story of Viking exploration in the East is less familiar. Swedish traders ventured farther and farther along the great rivers of Russia until they reached the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea. Fortified trading posts were built in Latvia, Lithuania East Prussin, and Russia. A favorite route was up the River Neva to Lake Ladoga, along the Volkhov to Lake Ilmen, and then down the Dnieper to the Black Sea. A Viking dominion was established around Lake Ladoga and Novgorod. It was founded by Rurik and his band of Rus-laseen, or Russ—enlisted sea warriors of the Baltic coast. So Russia owes her name to Viking traders.

Thousands of foreign coins from Arabia, Germany, France, England, and the Byzantine Empire have been unearthed in Scandinavia, proving the wide reach of Viking commerce. More than half of these coins have been found in Gotland, a little island in the Baltic directly in the path of the great east-west trade route. Recently a vessel of Buddhistic design was discovered there.

Viking ships carried more romantic cargoes than the rubber, steel, and oil of modern trade. Baltic amber, Iceland wool, Swedish horses, falcons from Norway, and furs from Greenland and Lapland were exchanged for Rhenish wine, honey and linen from England, Russian hats, silks from the East, and saddles from Spain.

A Billion

The United States and France call 1,000,000,000 a billion. In most other countries that is a milliard, while they give the name billion to what we call a trillion—1,000,000,000,000.

Camomile Lawns Popular

Camomile lawns were popular in the Sixteenth, Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries because they required a mild green even in the hottest weather.

Where Tarantula Gets Name

The giant spider tarantula gets its name from Tarentum, ancient seaport of southeastern Italy, where the pests were common years ago.

Leper Island

Molokai, one of the Hawaiian Islands, has an area of 265 square miles. The leper settlement is on the North coast.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Antiques Committee

The pilgrimage to Cambridge announced for April 26, has been indefinitely postponed. There will, however, be a pilgrimage somewhere early in May. Watch the Star for further announcements.

Junior Fortnightly Cabaret

The Junior Fortnightly which is fully organized now and holding meetings regularly on the second and fourth Monday evenings of each month, plans to give a cabaret and dance some time in early May. Members of the senior club are cordially invited. Further details will appear later.

Swampscott Meetings

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs will be held at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, from Tuesday, May 21, until Thursday noon, May 23. All members of federated clubs, of which the Fortnightly is one, are welcome at these meetings, and they are well worth attending. Detailed programs will appear later in the Boston papers, in Federation Topics, and in the Star. A special program for the club presidents, out-going, present, and incoming, is being arranged by Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the General Federation, for the evening of Monday, May 20. This may possibly be open to other club members also.

Art and Music

Members are reminded again of the art and music program to be given at the Gardner Museum on Monday afternoon, April 22. Tickets are limited to 200 people and should be secured in advance from Mrs. Herbert Stephens, 317 Mystic street, Arlington.

Greetings from Mrs. Frederick Glazier Smith

Mrs. Frederick Glazier Smith, a past president of the Massachusetts State Federation was a guest at the annual meeting of the Fortnightly, and made a very gracious little speech at the urgent request of the president.

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting and luncheon of the Fortnightly was held Monday, April 8, with the largest attendance recorded. The stage was beautifully decorated with Easter lilies, hydrangeas, and ferns by Johnnie-gets-em. The many lovely bouquets of the officers added greatly to the setting. A most delicious luncheon was served by Hicks of Lynn. Mary Cass was in charge of the arrangements.

Between the luncheon and the business meeting the Glee Club gave a most delightful concert. The chorus was wonderfully trained, the parts well balanced, and the tone was sweet, well-modulated, and rich with magnificent crescendos. They certainly were a credit to the skill of the director, Mary Ranton Witham.

The program was as follows:

Dear Land of Home ..... Sibelius

There was nothing cut and dried about the report of Jane Robinson, the recording secretary. It was called a "Symposium," and all the activities of the year were recorded in the 10,000 words of clever, witty verse. It was a masterpiece. It was thoroughly enjoyed and heartily applauded.

The treasurer, Gertrude Scannon, gave her report showing that the Fortnightly was in good financial condition. Adelle Emery reported that four students from Winchester were benefiting from the Scholarship Loan Fund at the present time, and that they were ranking high at college. Christine Clarke, business manager of the Fortnightly News, reported a gratifying balance with which to start the paper in the fall.

It was voted to send the incoming president Anna C. Grosvenor, to the Triennial Convention in Detroit in June.

The president, Gladys Wilson, delivered a very inspiring and appreciative message, and was greeted with much applause. She closed with a quotation from Edgar A. Guest:

"Old years and new years, all blended into one
The best of what is to be, the best of what is gone
Let's bury all the failures in the dim and dusty past
And keep the smiles of friendship and laughter to the last."

Then, with many good wishes for a happy and successful administration, Mrs. Wilson handed the gavel to the new president, Mrs. Grosvenor.

Mrs. Grosvenor's speech was earnest and sweet, ringing with a sincere intention to do the very best she can as president of the Fortnightly. She can be sure that the whole club is back of her, heartily wishing her every success.

The Orpheus Trio, consisting of the following very talented young ladies: Misses Barbara Whitman, pianist; Edna Tuckerman cellist; and Genevieve Thompson, violinist, gave a brilliant, masterful, and interesting concert, which was greatly enjoyed.

CHANCEL CHOIR GAVE MOORE'S "DARKEST HOUR"

The Chancel Choir of the First Congregational Church, increased by members of the Winchester Choral Society to a chorus of 50 voices, presented "The Darkest Hour," a Lenten cantata by Harold Moore, in the church auditorium last Sunday afternoon under the direction of Organist and Choirmaster J. Albert Wilson. An audience of fair size, much smaller than the excellence of the presentation would warrant, was present.

Moore's score, abounding in richly somber harmonies, was effectively sung by the chorus and soloists, the many soft passages being especially well rendered, with beauty of tone and no hint of dragging. The measured March to Calvary, the dramatic passages portraying the trial before Pilate and the climaxing closing chorus, "It Is Finished," were superbly sung. Special mention should be made of the singing of the men's chorus in the beautiful "Now, Beloved Lord" with its difficult key modulation and sustained closing diminuendo.

The guest soloist, Ralph Tailby, baritone, sang the role of Christ superbly his richly virile voice being heard to advantage in the solo, "O My Father." The remaining solo roles were assumed by the regular choir soloists, Idabelle H. Winship, soprano; Josephine L. Taylor, contralto; T. Parker Clarke, tenor; and Walker L. Chamberlin, bass. All made their personal contribution to the success of the whole; the duet, "O Saviour of the World" sung by Mrs. Winship and Mr. Clarke, giving much pleasure.

Mr. Wilson gave his usual masterly performance at the organ, assisting both chorus and soloists in notable fashion. At the offertory he played "Evening Song" by Johnston with chimes, and as a prelude, the "Adagio," by Widor. The postlude was "Triumphal March" by Karg-Elert.

REV. JUDSON L. CROSS TO HEAD SOUTHERN COLLEGE

Rev. Judson L. Cross of Hillside avenue has accepted the presidency of Tougaloo College, a college for Negroes in a suburb of Jackson, Mississippi, and will become the chief executive of the institution when he delivers the commencement address at the college on May 29.

To accept his new post, Mr. Cross resigned as New England Regional Secretary for the American Missionary Association and the Commission on Missions of the Congregational-Christian denomination, a position he has filled since 1927 and which he will continue to administer until Nov. 1. He left Winchester Monday for Tougaloo where he will be joined by Mrs. Cross for the college commencement exercises. Later he will return to take charge of the New England Regional Conference which is to be held in Providence on Oct. 19, after which he will return to assume his college duties in real earnest. His family will leave Winchester for the South Nov. 1.

Tougaloo is one of the five outstanding Negro colleges of the denomination. Mr. Cross will succeed William T. Holmes who retired from the presidency in 1932, to become president-emeritus.

Before assuming his present office, Mr. Cross was for 13 years pastor of the Rollstone Congregational Church, in Fitchburg, and had held other pastorates in Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York.

As New England's representative of the American Missionary Association, he has a first hand knowledge of the work of the Congregational-Christian Denomination among the Negroes of the South. Mr. Cross was born in Colorado Springs, Col. and was graduated from Colorado College and Yale Divinity School.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

How many of the old timers remember when they walked with their best girl and while the birdies sang overhead you told her how you loved her and carved her name on one of Winchester's stately trees?

According to one Winchester man, sympathy is like blond hair—a lot of it is not the real thing.

Many men here in Winchester are afflicted with hasty consumption. They are the fellows who bolt their food.

Bees can't talk, but one Winchesterite is authority for the statement that they often get back at one with a stinging retort.

"Now that I have reached three score and ten I begin to realize that it is up to me to be my own best friends," remarked a man the other day.

The appointment of Charles J. Harrold to a Sergeancy is good news for his friends. He is a most capable policeman and will bring credit to the department, just as his father, Lieutenant Harrold, has done these many years.

Our Winchester musical students naturally require note books.

One of our Winchester baritones recently sang, "Way Down Yonder in the Cornfield," who never hoed a row of corn in his life. But people who have never done a thing are the ones who know the most about it. Editors know more than anybody else about farming, the man on the street knows how the Star should be run, the group on the corner know how to run the town government and the old maid knows exactly how the baby should be raised.

A fellow newspaper man in a nearby community says a newspaper man can boost his home town until he has used a ton of ink, but just let him make one wee, little break, all the boosting is forgotten, and he is dragged across the hot frying pan of criticism like a stuffed sausage. It is the perversity of human nature, we suppose. Napoleon, the acknowledged greatest general that ever lived, is known by most folks not by his remarkable victories, but by a single defeat.

How many Winchesterites remember the old days when lawn croquet used to be the popular sport, and when our Winchester misses wore long skirts that got caught in the wire wickets?

When a woman is driving a car and sticks out her hand she is either going to stop, back up, make a turn or go faster. Or maybe she may be waving to a friend or just knocking the ash from her cigarette.

One fellow here in fair Winchester thinks a married man knows less about women than do bachelors. That is on the theory that the more one knows the less there is to know.

Reproduction of Proposed Theatre, Stores and Office Building

Good taste would be the standard toward which the design and construction of the proposed theatre aspires. Its colonial architecture and landscaping would blend with Winchester's new post office and make an attractive approach from the Parkway. This small community play house would have a seating capacity of 1000. A spacious foyer with such features as a typical old colonial hearth, stuffed divans, beautifully furnished rest and retiring rooms for the ladies and complete furnishings in the colonial style throughout would provide an ideal meeting place for its patrons, their families and friends. The orchestra and balcony seating arrangement have been designed with an eye for the comfort of the theatre's patrons. A complete and efficient cooling and ventilation system would be installed.

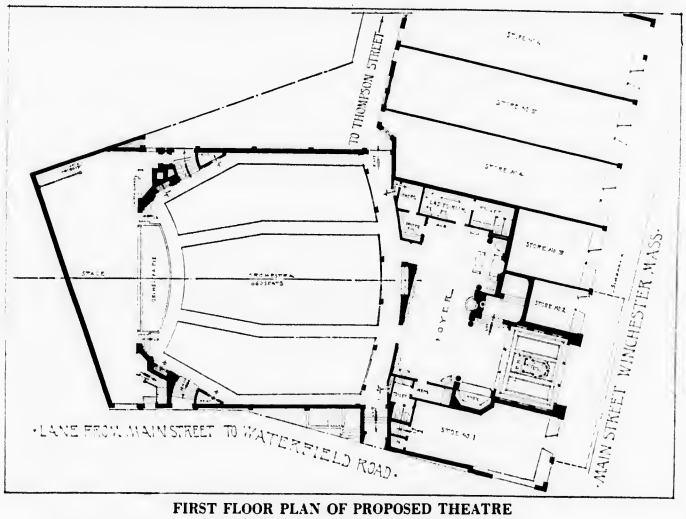
A system of reserved seating for parties of families and friends has been devised, so that regular patrons may enjoy the screen entertainment from whatever point in the house they wish. This further carries out the policy for intimacy and for the friendliness of a small and discriminating community theatre. The latest type of theatre chair, designed for comfort would be installed in the proposed theatre, with a generous allotment of seats equipped with amplifying apparatus for those patrons who are hard of hearing.

Facts and Figures About Proposed Motion Picture Theatre in Winchester

To the People of Winchester:

I respectfully submit the following facts and figures regarding my plans in the event that the voters of Winchester decide it advisable to recommend to the Selectmen the issuance of a permit for the erection and operation of a Motion Picture Theatre in Winchester. If the Board of Selectmen issue such a permit to me, I plan to erect a building which will provide for a theatre, stores and business offices at the locations numbered 522 to 546 Main Street and 10 to 16 Thompson Street, an area of 30,000 sq. ft. of land. The entrance to the theatre would be on Main Street. Such a structure would represent an outlay of at least $200,000. This project would be the best real estate development in Winchester in many years. The theatre would serve as a decided boom and stimulus to the business interests of the town; it would materially add to the town's income and lessen the taxes; it would eliminate present unsightly buildings; it would enhance the business area and it would create additional employment for townspeople.

If a motion picture theatre investment is to be profitably operated it must be centrally located. Before purchasing this property I studied all available locations and decided that this one offered the most advantages. I am not interested in any other location. The Selectmen of Winchester are under no obligation to select me or this particular location if and when they issue a permit.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN OF PROPOSED THEATRE

This theatre would be under my personal direction. As a result of fifteen years of experience in this business, I feel certain that I could operate it in a manner that would meet with the approval of the most discriminating. I am confident that this beautiful edifice could be operated at a profit and at the same time give the people of Winchester one of the finest theatres with the highest grade of entertainment.

I would be glad to co-operate with a local censorship board which would have direct supervision and control of the quality of the pictures shown, their artistic and educational values and their moral soundness. Indeed, it would be only to my personal interest to submit the ultimate control of the policy of the theatre to the best wishes of its patrons.

Arguments have been advanced by some that under the so-called system of "Block Booking" a judicious selection of motion pictures is impossible. This is not true for the following reasons:

First: Present contracts permit any exhibitor to reject 10% of the pictures without any reason for such rejections.

Second: No exhibitor is COMPELLED TO SHOW any picture. My experience has been that distributors are willing to co-operate by making adjustments with exhibitors on undesirable pictures.

Third: A local censorship board would control the type of pictures exhibited in Winchester, and it is within the jurisdiction of the Selectmen to revoke a theatre license should the management prove non-co-operative. In the final analysis the censorship board and the Board of Selectmen would control the operation of any theatre which may be built in Winchester.

Another vital feature would be the selection of pictures for the juvenile mind. In this respect I would welcome co-operation of the parents, teachers, churches and women's clubs concerned in the welfare of the children.

The matter of pedestrian and auto traffic has been given our careful consideration. Three exits have been provided from the theatre auditorium so that patrons would exit to Thompson Street, lane to Waterfeld Road and Main Street. A study of this situation by a traffic expert reveals that afternoon theatre auto traffic would be relatively light, thereby having little effect on present traffic conditions which reaches its highest peak during the day. Evening patrons would find ample parking facilities within a short distance of the theatre. Ordinary traffic in this area is at a low point after shopping hours so that auto parking for theatre patrons and traffic could be easily controlled.

From the time I became interested in building a theatre in Winchester I have tried to handle the matter in a fair, business-like manner and have co-operated with authorities of the town to the best of my ability. If the people by their vote recommend to the Selectmen that a permit be issued for the operation of a motion picture theatre and if the Selectmen grant me such a permit, I will give to the people of Winchester one of the finest theatres in the state, and will endeavor to operate it to the complete satisfaction of all.

Respectfully,

ALBERT J. LOCATELLI

B.—The Seven Types of Design

The choice of design should be made to satisfy individual demands. It should be decided who is going to do the work and what the garden is going to be used for.

1.—Formal Type. This is the most practical form of garden because it follows mathematical rules.

(a) Laid out on an area which is fairly level, a mild slope is more interesting than a perfectly flat surface.

(b) Area should be small in relation to the total property because it should be enclosed within itself.

(c) Rectangle is the best shape, it is really more pleasing than any other shape having angles.

(d) Rectangle is divided in the center by a major axis which may or may not be expressed. Anything you do on one half of the line you are going to repeat on the other side with something to balance. Gate on one side, bench on the other. However, one should not be meticalously accurate as such would be too stiff. The garden is complete in itself. Definite objects are used to terminate all axes, bird baths, sun dial, etc. There may be minor axes developed at right angles. The basis of this design is bilateral symmetry.

2.—Informal Type. There are no mathematical rules, any existing topographical feature is used. If there are not enough of these, artificial ones are added. A ledge may be covered, blown out, or planted with some interesting vine to accentuate it. Objects are not added in symmetrical fashion. Use the free flowing curve and avoid straight lines or awkward curves such as circles. Test of this design—does it look as if it actually could have happened?

3.—Composite Design. First used in 1914. They took the formal design and worked free flowing lines in. It is less stiff than the formal garden, not as carefully balanced and easier to take care of. It is a combination of the best principles of both types of design.

4.—Flower Border. This is the simplest form of garden, it may be as large or as small as you like, it may be severe or with free flowing curves. Any garden is a combination of flower borders, round beds are not now in common use—they spoil the most advantageous use of the area.

5. Garden Path. A walk leading down between two garden borders. May be either formal or informal.

7.—Old Fashioned Garden. Charming, but rather hap-hazard layout—difficult to take care of.

Choose the design you like best—the one most satisfactory to you. Design is a tool—work your garden out on paper, draw up the type you would like to have. Design may be changed from time to time if necessary. Choose a sunny well drained area, sunshine is very important. Locate the garden so it can be seen from the usually occupied portions of the house.

A question period followed.

Mr. Somerby was visibly moved as he arose to acknowledge the gifts and congratulations of his friends. He especially mentioned his pleasure at receiving the feliciations of Winchester Lodge of Elks and Hugh de Payens Commandery, Knights Templars; with both of which organizations he is affiliated.

The Elks were especially well represented at the banquet and at their table, given one of the honor places near the head table, were Past District Deputy and Mrs. Fred H. Scholl, Past Exalted Ruler Thomas F. Fallon and Mrs. Fallon, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Goodhue, Past Exalted Ruler John F. Donaghey, Past Exalted Ruler Charles A. Farrar, Past Exalted Ruler P. Everett Hambly, Miss Mollie Falvey, Miss Madge Hesketh, Nathaniel M. Nichols, Donald Heath and Norman Harrold. Messrs. Scholl and Fallon were on the hanquet committee with Esteemed Leading Knight Harry W. Stevens of Winchester Lodge.

In addition to the Elks at the party, Mr. Ernest Dudley Chase was seen at the Hugh de Payens Commandery table and others present were Mr. and Mrs. James Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Chevalier and Dr. Robert B. Blackler.

Between the reading of congratulatory telegrams, 12 acts of the best vaudeville available in Boston was put on for the edification of the guests, and orchestras from night clubs in and around the city followed each other closely in providing continuous music.

Following is the testimonial to Mr. Somerby which appeared upon the handsomely engraved souvenir menu cards:

R. "Al" Somerby: A Vignette

Battleships are measured by their tonnage displacement. But the gentle quality called friendship is much stronger. Yet we measure it by the same test. The total space displaced in our respective hearts for our honored guest of the evening, Rufus Alfred Somerby, makes him Grand Admiral of the largest SS. Friendship afloat in any waters.

Born of distinguished parents, blessed with sterling American character, he has enriched our lives by his presence, his eternal pleasantness and his friendship. No road he has ever trod, no burden he has ever carried, be it his own or that of innumerable others, but has been undertaken with serene joy, kindly cheer and fervid friendship.

To his esteemed mother who gave him to us, all honor. To his gracious self, Good Luck and Godspeed. To his family and friends, there is pleasure in sharing a common happiness in his achievements and success. His illustrious father was Rufus Choate Somerby, patriot "Showman" and gentleman, who was born on Green street, Boston, within the shadow of the present Bowdoin Square Theatre. In this environment, "Al" has won the hearts—the friendship and esteem of all for the past 35 years. Although born at Boonville, N. Y., June 18, 1883, he came to Boston as a child and his education—and practically his entire life—has been here.

With all the glory, the praise, the encomiums and adulation showered on our guest tonight, we thank God for His giving to us, RUFUS ALFRED SOMERBY, A MAN—a Real He-Man.

LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY NOTES

There was a luncheon and the annual meeting of the Ladies' Friendly Society held in the Unitarian Church on Tuesday afternoon, April 9.

The Society rejoiced that Mrs. Bernnard is to remain another year as the President as all feel that she had a difficult task to inaugurate the several new recommendations going in effect this year, and that her conduct of the Society affairs has been splendid.

Mrs. Bernnard then introduced Mrs. Susan Fitzgerald of the General Alliance who spoke interestingly on, "Program Making."

Mrs. Fitzgerald's talk was pertinent at this time when the program for the Society's next year is to be determined, and it was felt that her suggestions would prove helpful to those who will decide upon it.

Annual Report

The 1934-35 season has been an interesting and successful one for the Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church under the able leadership of the President, Mrs. Bertram Bernnard.

All the regular committees have carried on with enthusiasm and the new Budget Committee on proved itself most valuable.

In the early fall the Middlesex Conference met in our parish house and our board members served supper to a group of more than 200 guests.

Delegates from our membership have attended meetings of the Neighborhood Alliance, the New England Associate Alliance, the Social Service Conferences and the Monday Conferences at Hale Chapel.

There have been six well attended meetings, each presided by an executive board meeting, at all of which Mrs. Bernnard has presided and at which we have had as speakers, Rev. Frederick Gauld, Mr. Stephen Cabot, Mr. Edgar J. Rich and Mrs. Hope Spencer.

Our October meeting was announced as a reception to new members.

Interesting reports from Star Island delegates, Miss Giles and Mrs. Pitman, were read by Mrs. Pitman. We also had an inspiring message from Denmark sent by Mrs. Rees of the General Alliance.

At this meeting Mrs. Downer told of the work of the Budget Committee and announced that our membership had been divided into working groups for the purpose of adding to our treasury, with Mrs. Edward Kennerson as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

Considering the difficulties of inaugurating this system the results have been most satisfactory, and great credit is due the chairman and her helpers. Now that the plan is well established, we can expect an even better showing next year.

The bazaar was held on Dec. 4 with Mrs. George H. Reed and Mrs. Harold Barrows as co-chairmen. Enthusiasm and hard work made the day a success and the sum of $764.58 was realized.

Mrs. Ralph Joslin and Mrs. Theodore von Rosenvinge have served as a Hospitality Committee, making calls, extending hospitality at church services, and looking up new members. They were also responsible for providing the delicious supper served at our annual church meeting in November.

Mrs. Reginald Bradlee has been a most efficient General Chairman of the Luncheon Committee, securing chairmen for the four luncheons given, and also acting as chairman of the group which provided the annual supper. Following this supper, we had a most interesting address by Mrs. Thomas G. Rees, President of the General Alliance.

Mrs. Wade Grindle has served as Chairman of the Tea Committee and with the help of Mrs. Wayne Davis and Mrs. Richard Parhurst, has served tea at two afternoon meetings and at the bazaar.

The Sewing Committee, headed by Mrs. George Godin, sewed for the bazaar, and Mrs. H. L. Robertson, assisted by Mrs. George Reed, has been in charge of sewing meetings for the Winchester Hospital and District Nursing Association, and the Children's Mission.

The Post Office Mission work has been carried on by Mrs. Kenneth Hall, who reports that literature has been sent to correspondents, also that it is this Committee which, at the suggestion of Mrs. Stillman Williams, has been responsible for the pamphlets sent out with the monthly calendars.

The Cheerful Letter Committee, with Mrs. F. B. Cole at its head, has done fine work in bringing happiness to families in the South and West. Letters of encouragement have gone to mothers of young children, as well as to older people. Pamphlets, books, magazines, and at Christmas time boxes containing gifts for each member of the household, have been sent, and have brought heartfelt thanks expressed in the very simplest way. Time and thought put into this work bring large dividends of satisfaction to the members of this committee.

Mrs. Kenneth Moffatt has arranged flowers for all the Sunday services and has had help from Mrs. George H. Reed and Miss Dorothy Ober in seeing that the flowers were sent to homes where they would bring cheer.

Mrs. Fortis of the Fellowship Committee reports that she has greeted new families, written many friendly letters, and sent literature to shutins among our parish family.

Mrs. Frank Olmstead has been a most efficient House Committee Chairman, seeing that kitchen equipment was replenished, table linen hemmed, curtains and children's choir vestments cleaned, and in general has carried the responsibility for upkeep.

The Social Service Committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Arthur G. Robbins has followed the endorsement of the General Alliance for better movies and begs our interest in House Bill 672 to abolish compulsory "Block Booking" and "Blind Buying." The booth in Springfield for the distribution of Unitarian literature, and the work among diabetic boys, are both real adventures in Social Service.

Mrs. Hubert Arrowsmith has made combined reports for the Religious Education and Religious Intelligence Committees, and has introduced some informal discussion of the Appraisal questionnaire. She has also started a reading group based on Van Ogden Vogt's "Art and Religion" and "Modern Worship," in an effort to appreciate our own religious habits and opportunities.

Mrs. Clark Collins has reported on the work done by Unitarian groups in foreign countries, and as Chairman of the International Work Committee has found interesting material which she could present to her young people's group.

Mrs. R. N. Hallowell has reported all meetings of the Star and has also been co-chairman of the Music Committee with Mrs. Leon Bolster. This committee secured Mrs. Lawrence Sibley, who, accompanied once by Mrs. Sargent, and again by Mrs. Witham, played violin selections at two our meetings. The music was greatly enjoyed by all those who were fortunate enough to hear it. Miss Nancy Carr, daughter of one of our members, provided music at our March meeting, playing most gracefully three selections for the piano.

Mrs. Ralph Manning, Corresponding Secretary, has sent out notices for all board meetings and written many letters of courtesy.

Allen Kimball has made a most efficient Treasurer and has also been Chairman of the Budget Committee.

There have been three outstanding accomplishments this year.

Following out the suggestion of last year's Executive Board, we have established a Memorial Fund, the income of which is to be used for Ladies' Friendly needs. The names of those contributing to the fund are to be enrolled on our records.

Second, we have provided a director for our young people. Mrs. Dana Cotton has been so successful in this capacity that we hope the Society will be able to have this work continued.

Third and last, we have had our request that women be placed on the Standing Committee, granted, and in the future two of our members will serve on this church group.

Our workers have many interesting plans for next year's program, and are enthusiastic over the possibilities for future service.

Respectfully submitted,
Ella Arnold Dutch,
Recording Secretary

TAPPED MAPLES ON LAGRANGE STREET

The Star learns that residents of Lagrange street have been taking a page from Vermont's book and producing real maple syrup and sugar from sap taken from maples on their property right here in town:—huying Winchester in the highest sense of the word.

Mrs. Robert Drake started the enterprise when she casually mentioned the fact that relatives of hers in Vermont were busy "sugarin' off." Mr. Elmer D. Fletcher, who happened to be among those present at the time, opined that there was plenty of sap in three large maples on the Drake place. His opinion got him the job of tapping the trees, which he did in the most approved fashion, continuing the good work by tapping two more on his own property.

His success fired the enthusiasm of Mr. Joseph W. Butler who went to work on two trees on his property. Results in each case were very satisfactory, and everyone in the neighborhood, including the Drake puppy, got a generous sample of the product. Last week Thursday Miss Emma Hackett's first grade class at the Wyman School visited the Drake home to see the sap drip and sample the product. Clever drawings of the visit were returned to Mrs. Drake by the children.

All three householders made syrup and Mrs. Drake made sugar. The Star is informed that both syrup and sugar were delicious, but that as a financial venture the local enterprise is somewhat open to question.

Mrs. F. C. Alexander of Lakeview road and Mrs. John H. Gilbody are Winchester women invited to a tea given recently at the home of Mrs. George S. West in Brookline for wives of members of the Harvard Class of 1910 who celebrate their 25th anniversary this year.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

In this day and age when so many things are happening and things seem to not be what they used to be many are asking if everything is just for the best and sometimes many wonder if God really takes note of "Every sparrow that falleth to the ground" and if God really takes such an interest in us humans that "He knows the very number of the hairs in our head" even though the barber shops and beauty parlors are kept busy demolishing those locks. Everyone thinks that their peculiar difficulties and troubles are greater than anyone else when in fact right around every home in and out of Winchester are others with greater burdens and greater afflictions than one can bear.

A lot of people complain because they are on the welfare or the ERA. Yet is it not a fact that none of us have ever been so poor as Christ? "He had no where to lay His head." Born in a stable because there was no room anywhere else, none have been so scoffed at, so lonely and alone as Christ, none have had to suffer the physical and mental suffering that he suffered, none of us have ever been crucified for the sins of others, to bear some people talk one would think Christ's sacrifice was not much greater than their own. Our peculiar difficulties are never so bad, but what they could be much worse, whether they be financial, physical or social.

Paul says in Romans 8:28 "And we know that all things work together to them that love God." Did you ever pause to think that God does not always make the conditions in which we find our selves, but sometimes He uses those conditions for the working out of His plan; For instance, God does not bring death, sorrow, pain, suffering or other hardships upon the human race. I have heard ministers say in the commitment of a body to the grave: "In as much as it hath pleased Almighty God to call this dear sister or brother or child," as the case may be. Death came upon the human race by sin, satan is the author and instigator of sin and is therefore responsible for the curse of death upon the human race. God finds no pleasure in the death of any person but has prepared for all of us a way of escape by and through Jesus.

So it is with sorrow, pain, suffering. These come because of conditions men themselves are responsible for. God does not delight in our suffering or sorrow. The depression is not of God's making, the cause is largely of human selfishness—the greed of men for power and wealth. God is not the depression, it is entirely of man's making and there could be a job for every unemployed man in America tomorrow if men could learn the lesson that God would have things otherwise.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Fruits come to the fore this week with bananas ahead in price and quality. Fresh pineapples are plentiful and cheap, strawberries much lower than last week and rhubarb, though not really a fruit is now half its recent price, outdoor grown rhubarb supplanting the hothouse variety. Oranges, grapefruit, lemons and apples are all low in price.

Tomatoes, though a fruit, are classed as a vegetable and they are now within reach of most food budgets—and so is asparagus. Among the greens mentioned last week is broccoli rabe, a green with tight buds and an occasional yellow flower. Looked like spinach, it combines the flavors of dandelion and broccoli. It is cheap, as are the other greens—including dandelions, collards and mustard.

Butter and eggs are both somewhat higher, and meat prices are no lower and no lower prices are expected in the immediate future.

Here are three menus made up of seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner
Braised Breast of Lamb
Mashed Potatoes Buttered Carrots
Bread and Butter
Rice Pudding
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Roast Lamb Browned Potatoes
Asparagus with Lemon Butter
Bread and Butter
Spanish Cream with Bananas
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Fruit Cup
Baked Ham New Potatoes
Asparagus on Toast
Apple and Celery Salad
Rolls and Butter Chocolate Bavarian
Coffee Milk

STRAND THEATRE, MALDEN

A rib-rocking mystery thriller which dispenses laughs and thrills in equal measure, is the treat in store for screen fans when "The Great Hotel Murder," opens at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. Edmund Lowe and Victor MacLaglen, that popular team of easy-going buffoons who have appeared together in many screen hits are again co-starred in this picture. The film is adapted from the Red Book novel, "Recipe for Murder," and is a fine example of sustained mystery plot. While there are a sufficient number of thrills it is the comedy which predominates. The other players who support Lowe and MacLaglen are Mary Carlisle, William Janney, Rosemary Ames, Henry O'Neil, C. Henry Gordon and Madge Bellamy.

"School for Girls," with Sidney Fox, Paul Kelly and Lois Wilson as the featured players, will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. Sidney Fox has the role of a girl who accepts the attentions of a man. Unknown to the girl the man is a notorious jewel thief, played by Russell Hopton.

GRANADA THEATRE, MALDEN

"Ruggles of Red Gap," one of the most popular of the new pictures with a wonderful cast including Charles Laughton, Zasu Pitts, Mary Boland, Charles Ruggles, Roland Young and Leila Hyams, will head the double bill opening at the Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. In sharp contrast to the many sinister and villainous characters, Charles Laughton has portrayed so perfectly in other films, in "Ruggles of Red Gap," this star plays a comedy role which proves he is one of the screen's greatest artists. Every member of the cast is a talented comedian and the result is a picture with plenty of hearty laughs.

"Fugitive Lady," with Neil Hamilton, Florence Rice and Donald Cook as the stars, is the second attraction on the bill opening at the Granada on Saturday. Briefly, the story concerns the complications that ensue when Miss Rice is brought to the home of Neil Hamilton following a train wreck in which she is erroneously identified as Hamilton's estranged wife. The girl is really a fugitive from justice because the man she intended to marry left her to take the rap in a stolen car. She explains her predicament to Hamilton and he insists she remain at his home until the police stop looking for her. Then comes a dramatic climax when the girl discovers her former sweetheart robbing the safe of her protector. Tense drama fill the following scenes with Neil Hamilton, Miss Rice and Donald Cook doing excellent work.

WAKEFIELD THEATRE TIME SCHEDULES

Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, April 14, 15, 16, "Sweet Adaline" at 3:10, 9:10; "Among the Missing," 2:24, 7:54. Sunday matinee at 3. Evening at 7:45.

Wednesday and Thursday, April 17, 18, "Bordertown," 3:40, 9:10; "Mills of the Gods," 2:24, 7:54.

"FOLIES BERGERE" AT THE UNIVERSITY

"Folies Bergere," the lavish musical extravaganza starring Maurice Chevalier, begins a three day engagement at the University Theatre on Sunday. Taking its settings and its mood as well as its title from the internationally famous Parisian musical entertainment, "Folies Bergere" offers Chevalier his first dual role. He is seen both as his gay, straw-hatted, singing self, and also as a be-mustached, be-monocled French Baron. Ann Sothern and Merle Oberon share feminine honors.

"Death Flies East," featuring Conrad Nagel and Florence Rice, is the companion picture. As the title suggests, the action takes place almost entirely within the confines of a modern air liner eastbound from California to New York.

On Wednesday, Revlow Day, the program will include Grace Moore in "One Night of Love" and Ronald Colman in "The Masquerader."

Clark Gable and Constance Bennett are co-starred in, "After Office Hours" which opens Thursday. In this lusty comedy-drama of New York society, Gable is cast as Branch, managing editor who always gets his story though it may mean resorting to the methods of the Northwest Mounted. Constance Bennett is Sharon, the publisher's socialite niece and Brandon's society reporter. Rich, smart and independent, it is the kind of role on which the star has built her fame. Alternating between Park avenue, Park Row and a boathouse on Long Island Sound, the story deals with the attempt of the managing editor to uproot an imminent society scandal. When the scandal turns into a murder story, realistic drama enters.

"All the King's Horses," starring Carl Brisson and Mary Ellis, is the companion feature. It is a gay and tuneful romantic comedy about a king who had to take lessons in love to hold his charming wife.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

Persons attending the Guido's meet at Boston Garden now going on, should not fail to take a look in the east corridor of Winchester's newest addition.

Harold Bennett, "Bill" Locke, Clarence Russell, Stafford Rogers and other members have spent most of their spare time this winter at Harold Bennett's building a right-up-to-the-minute trailer. It's a job a master carriage builder could be well proud of. It carries six racing shells including war canoe, paddles, cushions and other equipments.

Be sure to look it over. East corridor entrance, Boston Garden.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mathews of Washington street are the parents of a son, born last week at the Winchester Hospital.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The Star's announcement last week that Assistant Assessor F. Percyval Lewis had covered the town for both the Assessors' and State census tabulations in three months got us a call from "Percy" last Saturday morning. It seems that he completed his street visitation of the entire town in six mid-winter weeks, ending Feb. 16. As we recall the going at that time it was none too good, making the job doubly difficult. Speed was necessary for the Assessors and "Percy" certainly gave it to them under adverse conditions.

The Star learns that the speeches and other festivities held in connection with the testimonial dinner to R. A. "Al" Somerby Monday evening at the Copley Plaza were transcribed on records so that they can be played and enjoyed by Mr. Somerby's mother, Mrs. Julia E. Somerby of this town, who was unable to attend.

LARGEST STRATOSPHERE GONDOLA COMPLETED FOR NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC-ARMY FLIGHT IN JUNE

The gondola for the next attack by science on the Stratosphere—the little hollow metal world in which two men will be sealed next June as they float probably 13 or 14 miles above the earth—has been completed and is ready to have its cargo of complicated instruments fitted into it. Word of the completion of this important unit of the flight equipment has been received here at the headquarters of the National Geographic Society, which, with the U. S. Army Air Corps, is sponsoring the newest stratosphere expedition.

The gondola, made in Midland, Michigan, of a magnesium alloy lighter than aluminum has been shipped to Dayton, Ohio, where, at Wright Field, its equipment will be installed under the supervision of Capt. Albert W. Stevens and Capt. Orvil A. Anderson, the commander and pilot for the flight. The gondola will then be shipped to Rapid City, South Dakota, from the neighborhood of which the ascent into the upper atmosphere will be made.

Will Be Air-Conditioned, Floating Laboratory

The hollow metal ball is nine feet in diameter, the largest gondola yet designed for stratosphere exploration. Last year's gondola was eight feet, four inches in diameter. A level floor extends across the sphere a foot and a half above its lowest point; and on this the two balloonists will have ample room in which to move about and take care of their air-conditioned, floating laboratory.

The National Geographic — Army Stratosphere Flight this year will make use of a balloon considerably larger than any heretofore built. The giant bag now under construction in Akron, Ohio, will have a capacity of 3,700,000 cubic feet of gas.

Utilizing the experience gained last year, when their 3,000,000 cubic-foot balloon developed a tear and crashed in southern Nebraska, the sponsors of the flight have incorporated many improvements. The most important difference will be the use of helium gas instead of hydrogen. Helium can neither burn nor explode. It is more expensive than hydrogen, however, and has never before been used in stratosphere exploration.

Blindness Not Compensated

The popular belief that blindness is compensated for by increased acuteness of the other senses is not upheld by tests.

CHINESE CRABS VISIT GREAT BRITAIN

One of the strangest of obstacle races recently took place in Great Britain. Millions of Chinese mitten crabs from surrounding waters invaded the country, followin streams as far as 400 miles inland. Efforts proved futile to halt the invasion of the crab army which bit its way through fishermen's nets and crawled on land around obstructing dams. Banks riddled with burrows, and damaged nets and weirs formed only part of the havoc caused by these intruders, who, it is reported, carry parasites capable of causing a lung disease among men and animals.

Such migrations of crabs are not uncommon, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Land crabs in the Tropics usually live far from the sea, but return to it every year to spawn.

Crabs Useful as Scavengers

Each May swarms of crabs inhabiting West Indian hills rattle down over the rocks to the sea, their movements making a din like that of men in armor. Letting nothing impede them, they even invade houses which block their descent. After spawning, they return to the hills, and later, thousands of young crabs are found clinging to shore rocks.

Although sea crabs often devour oysters from entire beds, and in the Tropics, land crabs cause serious damage to sugar cane plantations, rice fields and gardens, they are more useful than harmful to man. Certain omnivorous species, acting as scavengers, help to keep our shores clean. The crab family's adopted member, the Horseshoe Crab, which contains ammonia, is used as food for livestock, and is ground into fertilizer.

Crabs Practice Clever Camouflage

To escape their many enemies, crabs have developed clever methods of defense. Some go in heavily for camouflage. The mud crab smears mud on its back or changes the color of its shell to match the bottom. The small gray fiddler crabs scuttling warily over a beach pretty closely match wet sand; but for additional protection they dig themselves into burrows, piling the excavated sand into neat pellets near the entrance. Shells of some crabs are pitted to resemble the coral or gravel among which they live. The Gulf-weed Crab, which Columbus found clinging to seaweed floating in the Sargasso Sea, is olive green to blend with the plant.

Crabs change their costumes at will. A Spider Crab, wearing a coat of growing seaweed, when placed in an aquarium of sponges, will carefully nick off all the seaweed and plant in its place, pieces of sponge.

The legs of crabs are often flattened for shoveling sand, enlarged for fighting, or developed into paddles for swimming. The rear two pairs of legs of a furry, clumsy-looking crab on the Pacific coast are modified to extend over his back. This enables him to hold over him a protective umbrella of sponge, mangrove leaf, or mollusk shell.

In Naples, people are not surprised to see small red sponges running along the shore. Crabs living within them furnish the locomotion. Some crabs live inside coral, which has grown up around them, imprisoning them, while others exist surrounded by a living blanket of anemones. One resourceful crab carries an anemone like a bouquet in each of his two front claws.

This ability of the crab to resemble, not himself, but two other fellows, reaches top notch in the Devil Mask Crab, grooves in its carapace bearing uncanny resemblance to the features of a human face.

Crabs vary in size from the tiny parasite Pea Crab found in oysters to the Giant Spider Crab lurking in deep water off Japan, whose sprawling legs are nearly six feet long and whose weight sometimes reaches 30 pounds.

Crabs vary greatly in belligerence. The Blue Crab, which appears on menus during its molting season as soft-shelled crab, is one of the most powerful and pugnacious. It burrows in the sea bottom, pouncing like a cat on its prey. One species of edible crab, when molested, plays possum, drawing all its ten legs under its body, and allowing itself to be rolled about like an inert ball.

The Hermit Crab which is more closely related to crayfish and lobsters than crabs, is so pugnacious that it is nicknamed the Soldier Crab. Since its soft hind body without protective armor makes its easy prey for fish, the Hermit Crab wedges it into a deserted spiral shell which serves as a portable shelter. With just a few slender walking legs outside, and with his large claw drawn up like a shield in front of them, the Hermit Crab is well protected. Unfortunately he grows, and about twice a year has to find a new and larger covering. Tightly clutching his old shell, he will try on one shell after another until he finds one that fits. When no shells are available, large Hermit Crabs have been known to wear pieces of waterlogged bamboo, or even halves of coconut shells.

The female Hermit Crab which is only about one-sixth the size of the male, usually rides on top of his shell, firmly held by his claw to prevent another male from stealing her.

A large cousin of the Hermit Crab is the Coconut or Robber Crab, which lives on islands of the Pacific and Indian Oceans. These crabs do not wear a protecting shell, but are so powerful that specimens confined in biscuit tins have punched holes in the tin. At night they emerge from their underground burrows lined with coconut husks to feed on the pulp of coconuts. They are said to obtain the pulp by hammering a hole in one end of the nut. Some observers state that the crabs climb lofty palms to procure the nuts.

CRAWFORD MEMORIAL CHOIR GAVE CANTATA

On Palm Sunday morning, the Senior Choir of the Crawford Memorial M. E. Church, augmented by a group of Winchester's leading singers, gave an outstanding performance of the sacred Lenten Cantata, "Olivet to Calvary" by Maunder, under the direction of Mary Ranton Witham with Mary French at the organ.

This work consisting mainly of tenor and baritone recitatives and arie and choral numbers, has also two soprano solos and several quartettes in it.

Carolyn Gilpatric who graciously and excellently substituted for the regular soprano, Lillian Whitman, David Downer, tenor, and John McPherson, covered themseves with laurels in their solo performances. Jane Hill, whose rich contralto is so pleasing was the fourth member of the quartette.

Too much cannot be said for the choral work. The group sang with great musical intelligence and a fine sense of the dramatic. The blend of voices and the balance of parts was particularly good. Especially well done were the choruses, "The Mount of Olives" and "Before Pilate."

Other singers assisting the choir were Sophia Gardner, Marion Wright, Arthur Downer, LeRoy Downer, Edward W. Berry, Jr., and Archibald Cheney.

Miss Mary Crosby of the Winchester National Bank staff is sailing on the holiday from Boston to enjoy a cruise to Bermuda.

WINCHESTER'S TAX RATE $27.20

Chairman Harry T. Winn of the Board of Assessors announced on Wednesday afternoon that Winchester's tax rate for the current year is to be $27.20, a decrease of 80c from last year's figures.

The town's total valuation is given as $31,670,725, of which $1,841,725 is personal and $29,826,000 is real estate. The total valuation is $151,075 less than a year ago.

Appropriations made at this year's town meeting, inclusive of everything, totalled $947,668.44, which is $38,330.88 less than in 1934.

EPIPHANY CHOIR PRESENTED "OLIVET TO CALVARY"

On Palm Sunday afternoon in the Church of the Epiphany the vested choir of the church, under the direction of Organist and Choirmaster Enos J. Held, presented "Olivet to Calvary," a Lenten cantata by Maunder, depicting the closing episodes in the Saviour's life from His entrance into Jerusalem to His death upon the cross. The choir was augmented for the presentation, and the soloists were Dorothy Bruno, soprano; J. Raymond Graham, tenor; and Enos J. Held, baritone. Assisting the choir were members of the Sharon Concert Ensemble and players from the Concord High School Orchestra.

The church was well filled with a congregation that listened with the closest attention to the singers and instrumentalists.

Maunder's score gives much pleasure and satisfaction to the average music lover, its melodies having a simple straightforward style that is easily appreciated. The cantata develops in an atmosphere of simple reverence that makes a strong emotional appeal, and this appeal was greatly enhanced last Sunday by the beautiful setting provided for the music by the lofty chancel of the Epiphany at the hour of vespers.

The choir's performance was very praiseworthy, the more dramatic parts of the score being powerfully sung, while a nice contrast was achieved in the softer passages, such as those depicting the Saviour's walk alone on Olivet. Singers and instrumentalists combined to render this episode especially effectively, though the more dramatic passages portraying the trial and march to Calvary were also well done.

The soloists each contributed to the pleasure of the performance. Perhaps the outstanding solo effect was Mr. Graham's singing of the closing tenor aria, the lovely "Ye Who Sin and Ye Who Sorrow," the singer being especially happy in achieving a warmth and beauty of tone that lent itself admirably to the pathos of the text.

Mrs. Bruno sang the appealing, "Droop, Sacred Head" simply and entirely in the mood, with a full rich tone that was particularly pleasing.

Mr. Held faced a difficult assignment in his role of conductor-soloist, and his performance, in view of the handicap imposed by the necessity of conducting the orchestra while singing his solo passages, was very creditable. The quartet in the beautiful refrain, "O Thou Whose Sweet Compassion" included Mrs. Bruno, Marion K. Wright, Mr. Graham and Harry Benson.

It was a distinct innovation to have instrumentalists provide the accompaniment for the cantata and musical opinion is likely to differ with respect to the relative value of orchestra and organ which has been used in previous presentations.

The musicians, handicapped somewhat by lack of space, did well with a task by no means easy, and were especially helpful in some of the softer, more sustained passages. The firmer support of the organ would have enhanced the finale and the passages depicting the march to Calvary and the crucifixion.

The organ prelude and postlude were played by Mr. Held. The rector, Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, conducted the brief opening service and pronounced the benediction.

Young was then given after which Mrs. Dutting graciously thanked the executive board who had served with her the past two years and the group members who had contributed and helped at the weekly visits to the hospital on Fridays. MOVIES WIN ON REFERENDUM

Majority of 758 in Vote of Good Size

Champions of moving pictures won a convincing victory at the special referendum election at the Town Hall Tuesday when they secured a majority of 758 votes in favor of the motion, previously defeated at the limited town meeting, to recommend that the Selectmen grant a license to show motion pictures in Winchester on week days only. The second motion on the referendum, calling for the appropriation of $500 to take land preliminary to widening Main street at Everell road, also won, by a majority of 697. There was at first in this instance some doubt as to whether a two-thirds vote was necessary because of the land-taking, but the opinion of the Town Counsel was that recent Legislative enactment makes it necessary to secure only a majority vote for the proposed action.

A total vote of 4208 was cast, very good for a town election and 214 more than the figures at the past election in March. Only 3604 voted at the last referendum on movies in May, 1930, when the question was on the ballot with a school question which is always sure to attract many voters.

Total registration figures of the town are 6924 but Town Clerk Mabel W. Stinson who is also a member of the Board of Registrars of Voters, stated that revised figures will probably place the correct figures nearer 6500. About 65 per cent of the electorate expressed their preference at Tuesday's referendum.

Veteran election observers were predicting a large vote as early as 10 o'clock in the morning when the total was running 400 ahead of the March election figures. The polling was on the whole very evenly distributed through the day, and up to the time the polls closed there was some doubt as to the ultimate result.

Early in the afternoon, however, the motion picture proponents were predicting victory and by mid-afternoon were placing their majority at from four to five hundred votes. Advocates of the movies were much more active than those in opposition, a big majority of those busy at the polls being known to be in favor of granting the license.

The short ballot was easy to count and returns began to be announced within three minutes of the closing of the polls at 6:30. The first precinct, actually to be announced was 3, of which Everett Kidder is warden, though Precinct 5, of which Fred H. Scholl is warden and which has been ready for some time now, was ready to announce its results equally soon.

Precincts 3, 4, and 5 rejected the movies, though the rejection in 5 was by only 24 votes. The largest vote was cast in Precinct 1 which gave the movies a majority of 351. The majority in 2 was 178 and in Precinct 6, a veritable landslide gave the movies a majority of 534.

Sixteen persons failed to vote on the question of motion pictures while there were 491 not interested in the Main street widening.

CHORAL SOCIETY TO PRESENT FINE PROGRAM

Rubenstein's beautiful "Seraphic Song," which is a vocal arrangement of the favorite "Kamenoi Ostrow," is one of the featured numbers appearing on the program for the concert to be presented in the town hall on Tuesday evening, April 30, as the closing effort of the Winchester Choral Society's sixth season.

This beautiful selection was very popular when sung several seasons ago by the Society and there have been many requests for its repetition. The contralto solo this year will be sung by Josephine L. Taylor, a member of the society, whose brilliant voice has long been a favorite with local music lovers.

Besides this selection the chorus of 100 trained voices under the direction of J. Albert Wilson will sing a carefully chosen program of music by such eminent composers as Bach, Brahms, Sir Arthur Sullivan and Tchaikowsky, as well as two interesting Negro spirituals. The Society's superb men's chorus will offer three fine numbers.

The guest artist for the concert, Miss Gertrude Ehrhart, favorite Boston concert soprano, will sing two groups of songs which are sure to prove both interesting and enjoyable. Included are a Donizetti aria and several charming English numbers.

Miss Ehrhart is no stranger to Winchester and her previous appearances here have won her many admirers who are looking forward to her return to the local concert platform.

Attention is called to the Society's advertisement on page 3 of this issue for information concerning tickets.

FORMER WINCHESTER GIRL TO WED

There is Winchester interest in the announcement of the date for the marriage of Miss Elizabeth M. Willett of Chestnut Hill, Brookline, and John M. Musser of Muscatine, Ia., because of the fact that the bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour B. Willett who formerly made their home in this town on Copley street. The marriage ceremony is to take place on June 1 in Leslie Lindsey Memorial Chapel in Boston and will be performed by Rev. Arthur L. Kinsolving.

ANNUAL LENTEN SALE AND TEA HELD APRIL 12

The primary classes of the Epiphany Church School held their Lenten sale of food and candy last Friday afternoon in the Parish House under the direction of Mrs. Edward F. Boyd. Despite the stormy day the sale was well attended.

The tables were attractively decorated in yellow and lavender, with candles and spring flowers in the same colors. At the candy table were Mrs. W. S. Allen, Miss Anna Kimball and Miss Eleanor Boyd. The food table was in charge of Mrs. Edward Birch and Mrs. Boyd.

Mrs. Alden Sherman with her assistants, Mrs. Thomas Nevins, Mrs. John Taylor, Mrs. Stewart Newton, Mrs. Roy Carr, Mrs. Irving MacDonald, Mrs. Ray Manger and Mrs. Wallace Brimer served tea from 3 to 5 o'clock with Mrs. Harold Richmond pouring.

The small waitresses wearing becoming aprons and headdress of yellow and lavender were Louise Kelley, Barberie Hormer, Phyllis Birch, Nancy Mortenson, Janice Mortenson, Barbara Wansker, Priscilla Richmond, Patricia Taylor, Alice George Neilly, Nancy Snow and Eleanor Allen. They served dainty cakes from small baskets.

Deaconess Helen P. Lane inaugurated the children's sale for the purpose of earning money for the Easter Mite Box offering. Members of the parish through their generous contributions and co-operation have made possible these annual Lenten sales.

DIAMOND MUCH IMPROVED

The Park Department men under Supt. Thomas McGowan certainly did a fine job in a short time toward putting the diamond on Manchester Field in good condition. Loam was spread over both infield and outfield some seeding done and the whole well rolled so that it was greatly improved for this week's practice. The Park Department would have preferred no play this week, but with the season commencing with the resumption of classes next week Coach Mansfield felt that he had to put his charges through some real paces before that time.

SELECTMAN FITZGERALD FETED

Selectman James J. Fitzgerald, Jr. was pleasantly surprised last week Thursday evening when he was given a testimonial dinner by a group of 50 of his friends at Glendale Farm Inn in Woburn.

Leslie J. "Jim" Scott acted as toastmaster and those who responded were Selectman W. Allan Wilde, John J. Doherty and John D. Coakley, Jr. On behalf of the gathering, Mr. Scott presented Selectman Fitzgerald with a gold Police and Fire Commissioner's badge.

Mr. Fitzgerald was taken completely by surprise, but managed to express his thanks in a manner that left no doubt of his appreciation. An entertainment program was enjoyed, featuring Patsy Ruth Clark as mistress of ceremonies, Kay Rush, singing comedienne, Ruth Tingley, pianist and accordian; and last but by no means least, Harry McGrath in monologues and impersonations.

ACCIDENT AT WINTER POND

Last Sunday forenoon shortly after 11:30, Police Headquarters was notified that two hoys had fallen into Little Winter Pond off Woodside road.

Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy with Patrolmen Henry P. Dempsey and John J. Dolan, and Harold F. DeCourcy of Washington street went to the pond with the town's life saving boat, but found that the boys, Charles Irving, 12, of 76 Church street and Stanley Puffer, 14, of 6 Harrison street, had gotten out of the water. The police were told that the boys had been out in a small boat which had capsized at about the middle of the pond. The youngsters clung to the overturned boat and pushed it toward shore until they were able to get out of the water. They were taken into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Evans of Woodside road where they changed their clothes and were given hot drinks while their parents were notified.

Start a few minutes early on May 1 and get your breakfast at the Methodist Church between 6 and 9 o'clock. Tickets 35c, at Bancroft's.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL PLAYERS BUSY

Despite the cold, Coach Mansfield has had his big high school baseball squad hard at it on Manchester Field during vacation in an attempt to iron out early season weaknesses and choose a starting combination for his first yames of the opening interscholastic campaign coming with the resumption of school.

Monday afternoon the team played a 6 to 6 practice game with Wakefield High on Manchester Field after journeying to Wakefield for the game in the morning, only to find that Wakefield is busy with the books this week.

Coach Mansfield used pelnty of players against Wakefield and on the whole was satisfied with his club's showing. The boys took on "Joe" McKee's All Stars Tuesday morning.

Quite a problem has developed at first base where "Slicker" Coss, veteran, is getting plenty of competition from "Lefty" Smith, "Joe" Cassidy and "Polock" McCormack. "Brother" Donaghey is looking better and better behind the bat and if he can fill the backstop's role, the versatile "Frankie" Provinzano can be used in the box or infield where any weakness develops. "Ref" is taking a nice cut at the apple this spring and seems set for a good season. Capt. "Tom" Donaghey in his first appearance as a pitcher against Wakefield made a good impression. "Johnnie" Murphy, former Exeter captain, is assisting Coach Mansfield and paid especial attention to the first sackers on Tuesday.

The Traveler's Tree

The Traveler's tree is a remarkable tree of Madagascar and Reunion, with a straight stem reaching 30 feet in height and bearing at the top a number of large long-stalked leaves which spread vertically like a fan. The leaf has a large sheath at the base in which water collects in such quantity as to yield a copious supply, hence the popular name. The plant is known botanically as Ravennia madagascariensis.

WINCHESTER COUNCIL HELD COMMUNION BREAKFAST

About 200, one of the largest gatherings in recent years, attended the annual communion breakfast of Winchester Council, Knights of Columbus, last Sunday morning in the Town Hall.

Members of the council and their guests received communion at the 8 o'clock mass in St. Mary's Church, marching to the hall in a body after the services.

Grand Knight Daniel Lydon presided and introduced Francis R. Mullin, widely known Boston attorney, who acted as toastmaster, administering his exacting and important duties with an easy dignity and in an able manner that proved wholly pleasing.

An excellent list of speakers responded to toasts, among them being the Council Chaplain, Rev. Fr. Conrad J. Quirbach; District Deputy Dennis P. Hogan of Wakefield, Daniel J. Doherty of Woburn, national vice commander of the American Legion; Selectman James J. Fitzgerald, Jr., Attorney James N. Clark, Rev. Fr. Aloysius F. Malone, pastor of St. Mary's Church; and Henry Higgins, a member of the faculty at Peabody High School. Seated at the head table with the speakers, Grand Knight Lydon and Toastmaster Mullin, was John R. McLaughlin, grand knight of Woburn Council, K. of C.

During the serving of the breakfast music was played by the Columbians of Woburn and the music, tasty repast and interesting program made the breakfast an event long to be remembered.

INJURED AS CAR OVERTURNED

Mr. Carl W. Wood of High street had a narrow escape from possible serious injury about 2:30 Monday afternoon when his automobile got out of control while he was driving on the Pawtucket Boulevard near Tyngsboro.

The accident resulted from a tire blowout caused by striking a sharp stone on the side of the crowned road. The machine turned turtle and Mr. Wood sustained a broken shoulder and a severe shaking up.

He was removed to the Lowell Hospital where the shoulder was set, after which Mr. Wood insisted upon returning to his home. The Lowell police had phoned details of the accident to the local authorities who in turn notified Mrs. Wood. She with her mother, Mrs. E. H. Stone of Myopia Hill, drove to the Lowell Hospital Monday evening, returning with Mr. Wood to Winchester.

Kamakura, Japan

For three centuries, from 1180 to 1485, Kamakura was the capital of Japan and the seat of culture. The feudal system had its start in the Seventh century, when the population was divided into agriculturists and soldiers, but the shogun and samurai system received its greatest development when the class of Bushi, the warriors, rose and shaped that system of government to rule Japan until the middle of the Nineteenth century. Kamakura is a fashionable seaside resort, with pleasure seekers roaming over the ground where the bold samurai fought their battles for honor and for glory.

Life of House Fly

The average lifetime of a house fly in summer temperatures is one to three weeks; in the winter they hibernate and can live for many months during the cold weather, says the Detroit News. The average female house fly lays four batches of 150 eggs each during its lifetime. These hatch into larvae in one to four days; the larvae passes through three stages, taking about five days to become a pupa and five days more to become a full-grown fly. Flies do not grow in size after the pupa stage, and the small flies one sees around never grow into house flies.

It has been found that heredity and civilized living make people more susceptible to hay fever.

FRESH FOOD FACTS

Fishing rods gleam and flash in morning sunshine by flooded brooks and streams now the season has opened. The comfortable car parked at the roadside and the sports regalia of the pleasure-seeking reel fisherman is in striking contrast to the sea fisherman who struggles for his livelihood in the real, rigorous, often dangerous business of catching and bringing to port supplies of sea food that the homemaker's search for an economical, nutritious food may be satisfied at the fish counter. The food value of sea fish is evidenced in the ruggedness of peoples whose diet consists mainly of sea fish and in the survival of the early New England coast settlers whose diet also consisted largely of fish from the Atlantic Ocean. A great blessing bestowed upon us poor human beings by the fish of the sea lies in the iodine content. We who live near the ocean rarely suffer pain and disfigurement from goitre disorders common in some inland sections. And the effective, inexpensive way to supply the human being with the necessary iodine is the use of foods containing that element —principally sea fish.

Activity, whether fishing, gardening, or poking among the leaves for early Mayflowers, is a good barometer of health and well-being. The homemaker finds not only fish but other counters in co-operative mood to provide at low cost the energy and building foods necessary for activity. A particularly valuable food and right in the low price season is eggs. At vegetable counters, first and foremost are potatoes, a few cents higher but still a most economical food. Green beans from Florida are plentiful and low priced. Unusually low April prices put dandelions almost on a par with spinach on the market list. California and Carolina asparagus is tempting, but not until the first or second week of May is native fresh cut asaparagus due in market. Bananas are low priced and oranges still give access to a low priced, invigorating drink. Nature's spreading of poorman's manure—snow—last week may ultimately show effect, but it did not stimulate immediate growth of new fresh native stuff. However, a few warm days always bring quick response from rhubarb.

TREADWELL—WILLIAMS

There is Winchester interest in the marriage which took place in the Evangelical Congregational Church at Dover Saturday afternoon, April 66, when Miss Gladys May Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Williams of Dover, became the bride of Kilburn Bills Treadwell, also of Dover and son of David R. H. Treadwell of Highland view avenue.

The bride, wearing white satin and carrying a shower bouquet of white roses with sweet peas, had for her honor attendant her sister, Miss Natalie Williams, who wore blue net with hat of pink and carried pink roses. Two cousins of the bride, Miss Ruth Bean and Miss Marcia Williams, were bridesmaids.

David Hurd Treadwell of Natick was his brother's best man and the ushers, all classmates of the bride and bridegroom, were Laurence Williams, Charles Hurd and Paul Shaffner.

A reception was held after the ceremony, at which about 150 relatives and friends of the bride and bridegroom were present. Upon their return from a wedding journey to Philadelphia Mr. Treadwell and his bride will make their home on Dedhame street in Dover.

KITTEN ON THE TELEPHONE!

It wasn't a case of "Kitten on the Keys" last Saturday morning shortly after 1:30 when the rain was raining and it was dark as all get out! Police Headquarters was notified at that time by the telephone exchange that the receiver was off the hook at Hutchinson's Market, and knowing that the New Deal prohibits business at such an hour, Sergt. Charles J. Harrold went around to investigate.

The manager of the store, Lee Ralph, was notified and also made a hurried trip to his establishment. Letting themselves into the market, a thorough search was made. The receiver was knocked off the hook alright, and while Sergeant Harrold and Mr. Ralph were there the store cat demonstrated his (or her) culpability and also just how the thing was done. There were no arrests and relief probably outweighed any irritation occasioned by the unnecessary trip to the store.

COLLEGE CLUB NEWS

The morning study group of the College Women's Club met as usual on Thursday morning in the Winchester Public Library. They listened to an interesting talk on the women of Germany by Mrs. Maria Beck. Mrs. Beck, who is the wife of Professor Beck of Boston University, is a native of Germany and is in close touch with current conditions there, having been in this country only 11 months.

One gathered that Mrs. Beck feels the accounts which reach us currently through the newspapers and periodicals regarding the status of women in Germany's "New Deal," do them something less than justice, and this misapprehension she set herself carefully to correct. She would have us understand first the vastly greater effect of the war upon two generations of German women than our more fortunate experience here gives us any basis to understand. Secondly, she pointed out that Germany has a continuous and highly integrated national history going back over a thousand years, and that certain vital points affecting the attitude of masculine Germany toward women, and the outlook of German women upon the nation, are distinctive and deeply rooted. Reference to such view points in recent goverment publicity, coming for the first time to strangers, may appear in the nature of new regulations whereas it is really a mere emphasis upon long accepted belief.

For instance, emphasis upon the primary duty of German woman toward the home and rearing of children is not new, because motherhood and home-making have always had a higher dignity in Germany than in many other lands. Discrimination against married women in employment is not new, because it has always been felt that a woman with a husband to support her, should not in a densely populated country occupy a position which might otherwise go to a man and through him support a family. The German phase of the depression merely strengthens this argument. Practically the only new prohibition limiting the sphere of women is the one which forbids them political office.

Many fields of activity are open to women and in fact 37 per cent of the women are gainfully employed, which is more than twice as high as the proportion in the United States. School teachers, however, which is one of the most popular vocations for women in America is not extensively followed by German women. Custom as well as regulation is responsible for this.

Many German girls become social workers. This in Germany is a highly trained personnel. Sales girls are given special training as are those connected with business administration, such as stenographers, typists, bookkeepers, etc. Gardening, dressmaking and beauty culture are popular vocations as are professions in arts and crafts, music, and literature.

The system of education is quite different in Germany. The Universities are not closed to women although the number of women who may matriculate in any year is limited to 4000. This is not particularly significant, however, because the total number of matriculates, male and female, is limited to 15,000 as part of a movement to restrict the academic field to the most able and divert the energies of others into channels for which they are better fitted. It is important for us here, however, to understand that in Germany the word "University" has a narrower meaning than we in America associate with the term. Trade schools abound in Germany wherein many courses are offered which American students seek in our universities. Girls are encouraged to attend these schools.

The next meeting of the morning study group will be held on Thursday morning, April 25 in the Library. The subject for the discussion will be "China."

TWO ACCIDENTS LAST SATURDAY

Slippery driving conditions and poor visibility are blamed for two motor accidents that occurred in Winchester last Saturday.

The first took place shortly after 10 o'clock in the forenoon when a Plymouth sedan, driven by Carol D. Iannacci of 160 Swanton street, while headed west on Grove street, skidded at the corner of Fenwick road and collided with a Ford truck, owned by the Metropolitan Ice Company of 321 Washington street, and being driven east by William A. Boos of 34 Lake street, Somerville. No one was injured, but both machines were damaged, the Plymouth being towed to Haggerty's Garage.

Shortly after 2:30 in the afternoon, Allison Lawrence Lowe, Jr. of 13 Charles street place, Charlestown, sustained injuries to his head when the Chevrolet coach in which he was riding with his brother, Alton W. Lowe, was in collision at the junction of Main street and the Mystic Valley Parkway with a Dodge truck, owned by Eric Norden of 12 Winter street, Burlington, and driven by his brother, Carl.

Lowe was headed west on the Parkway and Norden, south on Main street. Both machines were damaged. The injured man was taken by Alphonse Lambiase of 13 Tremont street to the Winchester Hospital where he was treated by Dr. Philip J. McManus.

ENTERTAINED AT TEA

Mrs. Arthur W. Rutter of Wildwood street entertained at tea last week, her guests including Mrs. Charles Woolley, Mrs. Stephen Neiley, Mrs. John Kenerson, Mrs. Donald Gardner, Mrs. Robert Brinkerhoff, Miss Barbara Watters, Mrs. George Donaldson and Mrs. Sears Walker of Cambridge.

The Star is informed that "King" Cass has a new sail for his "Greenfish." Conomo skippers, attention! What is that old saying about a word to the wise?

THE CONGO, BELGIUM'S STOREHOUSE OF RICHES

News dispatches, reporting the tragic death of six men and a woman in an airplane crash in the Congo jungles, recently drew attention to this huge colonial outpost of Belgium in the heart of Africa. Although the plane was reported lost in a vast wilderness, only a short time elapsed before it was found, indicating that even the once primitive western borderland near the Congo River is not as far removed from the influences of civilization as it was only a few years ago.

Many places in the Congo where the bellow of the elephant, the thrashing of the hippopotamus and crocodile, and the shriek of the chimpanzee alone disturbed aborigines, now echo to the blasts of steamboat and locomotive whistles, the drone of automobile and airplane motors, and the buzz of machinery in palm oil factories, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The half century since the inspiring explorations of Livingstone and Stanley has witnessed tremendous strides in the march of Congo progress.

Ninety Times as Large as Belgium

The new King of Belgium, Leopold III, rules the colony, annexed by his granduncle in 1908. Having visited there twice as a prince, he is familiar with, and vitally interested in, its economic and commercial problems. Nearly 90 times as large as the mother country, and a third as large as the United States, Belgium Congo is populated by approximately 18,000 white men and more than 9,000,000 natives.

Perhaps the greatest stumbling block to progress has been the climate. The temperature, remaining always close to 80 degrees, is accompanied by extreme humidity. In the spring, Belgian Congo prepares for one of its two seasons of heaviest rainfall. The other is in October, when the sun again moves across the Equator. But in spite of climatic hazards, the tramp-tramp-tramp of Western progress has surged forward.

The dark cloud of depression that has hung over the world showed at least one silver lining as it passed over the Congo. During the prosperous days, the development of agriculture was side-tracked in favor om mining. With the advent of economic distress, the government has been encouraged by a return to the soil movement that has seen cotton, coffee, and rice pass from experimental to staple production.

Palm growing is an important industry. Its nut-oil and kernel products are a dependable source of income—the United States being the best customer.

Copper, Diamonds, Gold, Radium and Tin

Two-thirds of the colony's wealth is in minerals, copper being the most important. More than 3,990,000 carats of diamonds were mined in 1932. Gold, radium, and tin also rank high as revenue sources, but Congo coal is inferior, being almost worthless for industrial uses.

Despite the recent unstable condition of world markets, it is an interesting fact that dealers in American-made auomobiles found business quite good in the Belgian Congo. Belgium has continued a policy of building good roads into remote districts of its African colony. Some 24,093 miles of highway have been laid, supplementing 2780 miles of railroad.

The great trade artery of the colony, however, is the Congo River. Ninety-five miles above its mouth, at Matadi, several rapids halt steamers. A railroad line links Matadi with Leopoldville, the capital, busy doorway to the interior. Here again the Congo becomes navigable for 1068 miles to Coquilhatville, Stanleyville, and Stanley Falls.

Above Stanley Falls the Congo becomes the Lualaha River, navigable for 585 miles, bending toward the southeastern town of Katanga via Ponthierville, Kindu, Kongolo, and Kabalo. Many of these important villages, as well as Bandundu, Port Francquil, Lucho, Boma (at the mouth of the Congo), Inongo, Basankusu, Lisala, and Basoka are served by air routes. The southern part of Belgian Congo is linked by railway with the Union of South Africa and the Portuguese colony of Angola.

The present colonial government encourages all efforts to educate its native subjects. The burden of instruction is carried mainly by missionary workers, both Catholic and Protestant. Government subsidies have been granted, in some instances, in order that their work might proceed. French is taught as soon as native pupils are able to learn the language. Instruction in agriculture, carpentry, and metal working is offered in several schools.

Feared Mount's Tiny Lake

In the Middle ages Mount Pilatus, Switzerland, was generally feared by the superstitious, for the tiny lake near its summit was believed to be the last resting place of the one-time governor of Judea. In 1307 six men were actually imprisoned for having attempted an ascent, defying the rules of the town.

Fighting Crickets Bred

Thoroughbred crickets are trained in Siam to fight to the death in the same manner as fighting cocks. The insects fight with gusto, and the fight ends only when the head of one of the contestants is severed. Their owners, who serve as seconds, urge them on with small lashes made from rat whiskers.

Punishment for Crimes

Crimes vary greatly in kind and penalty throughout the world. England imposes a 20-year sentence for carrying a revolver without a permit. India gives 25 years for killing a cow and China inflicts the death penalty for chopping down a camphor tree.—Collier's Weekly.

Skating in 1685

In 1685, when the River Thames was frozen over at London, the residents of that city went in for skating with great enthusiasm. English gentlemen of the Nineteenth century went skating arrayed in frock coats and top hats.

That lower tax rate is good news to those of us who have been anxiously awaiting relief from ever-mounting levies which have been besieging us on all sides. The Assessors, even with a shrinking valuation, have succeeded in getting under last year's figures, and were unquestionably assisted to this end by the willingness of the members of the limited town meeting to follow the advice of the Finance Committee, the members of which stoutly opposed expenditures that in their opinion would tend to boost the rate above $28.

Those who have claimed that our limited town meeting is truly representative got little comfort from the recent referendum votes. In this instance two motions overwhelmingly defeated by the precinct delegates were successful by comfortable majorities with the entire town ballotting. It may have been just another case of the exception proving the rule, it may have been a coincidence or just "one of those things," but it certainly is going to go far toward encouraging future referendums by those not entirely satisfied with the limited town meeting decisions.

The Star is going to close all day Patriots' Day. We know such action is hopelessly outmoded and not in accord with modern business practices, but still the day is really supposed to be a holiday, and somehow we can't help wondering what would have happened if the Patriots we are supposed to honor had been too busy with business to have met the British at Lexington and Concord.

We read in Sunday papers of the gigantic grade crossing elimination to be undertaken with some of the President's five billion dollar gift. This article included a list of crossings here in Massachusetts which are slated for elimination, but Winchester's was not included. Although our crossing has been condemned and fought over since the dim dark ages, and although it has stood third, seventh and even first on the preferred State list, it is now so far from being considered that it is not even included in any position on the list. It looks as though someone has suddenly decided that the crossing is OK, safe and convenient! The following editorial from the Transcript will apply equally to Winchester as well as other danger spots in the State, and if Winchester desired its crossing removed, now seems to be the time to take it up and push it through. Surely, after all these years, if money is to be handed out expressly for this purpose, Winchester may justly claim its share.

Ghastly Example

Included in the program for the expenditure of the four billion dollars provided by Congress for relief through public works is the elimination of grade crossings. What happened in Maryland last night when an express train tore a school bus apart and killed fourteen young people will doubtless create compelling demand that the removal of the death traps found where highway and railway meet on the same level be vigorously prosecuted.

It is to be remembered that the peril of the grade crosings has recently been increased. There is a new tra of speed on the rail. Trains are running faster than heretofore. People are told of stream-lining as promoting increased speed as well as reducing fuel consumption. There is fascination in the stories of the entrance of the Diesel engine into railroad service, and the comparisons of speed records it has made with those of the familiar steam locomotive, comparisons that are reminders of the ability of the iron horse to travel at the rate of ninety miles an hour or more. It all goes to show that there is likely to be less and less chance to get out of the way if caught on a crossing when a train is approaching.

In another way modern conditions increase the danger at the crossings. The growth of transportation by bus exposes twenty, thirty or forty people to the peril at the same time. There were about thirty persons so exposed to sudden death in the Maryland tragedy, and death in terrible form came to nearly half of them. If there is anything to mitigate the feeling of horror it occasions, it is that the lives of these young people were ended so suddenly that they were spared great suffering.

The grade crossing was a danger in the days of horse-drawn vehicles. Under present conditions it is a menace so great that it should not be tolerated. If billions are to be spent in this country for public works as part of the effort to promote the return of prosperity, let as much as possible of the money be devoted to this task of making the grade crossing a thing of the past. It will be a work of mercy as well as of relief.—[Boston Transcript

WINCHESTER HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The second annual meeting of The Winchester Historical Society was held in Library Hall at 8 p. m., April 11, the president, Dr. J. Harper Blaisdell, presiding. The speaker was Capt. Thomas G. Frothingham, a prominent Bostonian, a native of Charlestown, and internationally known as an authority on the Battle of Jutland. His subject was "Early Charlestown Days." At the end of his address, he presented the members with copies of "A Map of the Battle of Bunker Hill," which he made as the president of The Bunker Hill Monument Association.

The Winchester Historical Society was organized two years ago with a charter membership of over 100 persons. It has prospered under the able guidance of its president, Dr. J. Harper Blaisdell. The treasurer, Samuel S. Symmes, reported a very substantial sum in the treasury and the secretary, Mrs. Benjamin F. Thompson, read the annual report of the activities of the Society. Miss Cora A. Quimby, as curator, gave the list of donors during the year. The Winchester Historical Society has received its first bequest, under the will of the late Charles E. Kendall.

Miss Quimby and Miss McLellan, as custodian, welcomed the members at the Historical Society's room at the Public Library, and much interest and pleasure shown over the splendid display.

Persons wishing to become members of The Winchester Historical Society are requested to communicate with any one of the following members: President William N. Beggs, Win. 2450 and 1116; Miss Quimby at the Public Library, Win. 1106; the Treasurer, Samuel S. Symmes, 7 Sanborn street, Win. 0588-W. Annual dues are one dollar.

The Winchester Historical Society is especially interested in receiving gifts of articles associated with Winchester, or clippings, manuscripts, photographs pertaining to the history of the town. Why not start a collection of the early products of our oldest local concerns such as Beggs & Cobb; Winn Watch Hand Factory, McKay Company, Bacon's Mill, etc. Small models made by our successful inventors such as Jack Mead, the late Edward I. Braddock, the late Louis Goddu and his son, George Goddu.

Photographs and history of our oldest manufacturing companies. The Society should have a representative collection of Indian relics, as many have been found in this locality. It should have as much data as possible on the Middlesex Canal, Black Horse Tavern, the Indians who roamed around this section, the town's first white settlers and their homes. Winchester has had many distinguished citizens. The Society should own photographs of these persons, or something definitely identified with them. Our early police and fire forces should also be represented by the special clothing or equipment used by them. Souvenirs of the numerous wars, including the World War, should be added to the Society's collection; and town histories and genealogies for its library. Stereopticon views are now welcomed by historical societies; as well as Farmer's Almanaes and early literature of "The Ancient and Honorables." Our local organization has a fair collection of coins, which should be completed. Famous political campaigns should be remembered by parade torches, and other relics.

With the introduction of gas and electricity, even the oldest type of kerosene lamps is quite forgotten. The Society will welcome any type of lighting device prior to the later kerosene lighting appliances, and is also interested in patented lighting devices. Wearing apparel up to the 1880's also elaborate or unusual clothing of the 1890's is acceptable.

Winchester with all its resources should take its place with the neighboring towns, all of which have outstanding historical societies.

Articles of wearing apparel of a more personal nature, well preserved illustrations of the styles of the Victorian period.

From the descendants of John Swan the 6th born Aug. 25, 1817. He married Jan. 1, 1845, Sarah Jane Fish of Saugus and lived for many years in the house on Cambridge street now owned by Mr. F. Patterson Smith.

A cloth Dolman, color of ashes of roses lined with pink silk, also a white skirt with a fine example of cut work, popular embroidery of that time, worn by Mrs. John Swan.

A beautiful white embroidered flannel petticoat such as every self-respecting woman of that era considered necessary, also a baby's dress and quilted bonnet.

Last, but not least, a doll evidently the precious possession of many little girls, because although once she opened and closed her eyes, now she can only wink, also she has only one surviving stocking, but that is of fine quality.

All these were presented by Lillie Josephine Swan—Mrs. Henderson.

It is the dream of the members of the Historical Society that some day, they may possess a house where all these things may be properly displayed. Until that happy day arrives we are doing our best to preserve them in the Historical Room at the Public Library.

WINCHESTER INTEREST IN KENDALL HALL

The alumnae members, in Winchester and vicinity, of Kendall Hall at Pride's Crossing, will be interested to know that this exclusive school for girls is being transferred during the present week to Peterboro, N. H.

It is now incorporated under the laws of the State of New Hampshire, as the Kendall Hall School.

The new trustees are: Mrs. Edward Osgood, formerly of Winchester and now of Cambridge and Wenham; Mrs. Edward McDowell, of Peterboro, N. H. and Los Angeles, widow of the eminent American composer and founder of the McDowell Colony; Mrs. William H. Schofield of Peterboro, who founded the first nursery school in the State of New Hampshire and who was active in organizing the American Association of University Women of the above State; Mrs. Gordon Woodbury of Manchester, N. H., wife of the former Assistant-Secretary of the Navy and vice-Regent of the New Hampshire Chapter of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association; Mr. Robert E. Kingsbury, of Keene, N. H., a member of the State Board of Education and a trustee of the University of New Hampshire; Mr. W. J. Parrot, Jr., of Winchester and New York, who was induced to become interested while his daughter, Kay Parrot was attending the school and who is largely responsible for the reorganization and present bright outlook for Kendall Hall.

The newly acquired property, formerly owned by Mrs. Schofield, and known as East Hill, comprises 264 acres of woodland and cultivated lawns, with its main buildings, of southern colonial architecture, facing Mt. Monadnock. Well equipped with playing fields, tennis courts and swimming pool, this new location offers every opportunity for outdoor life.

A large gathering of the alumnae at Peterboro, is being arranged for during commencement week in June.

WHE'RE YOU GOING?

FROM MR. CRAUGHWELL

To the Editor of the Star:

I for one desire to most heartily congratulate the various correspondents of the Star for the information that they presented to the inhabitants of the Town of Winchester in regard to moving pictures in a theatre. I cheerfully confess that I have acquired considerable knowledge that I did not possess prior to reading the various communications that appeared in the Star.

I believe the corespondents were sincere because they signed their names to the various articles that were published in the Star, but some folks would rather be right than be President—ask Huey!

Recently I have learned that moving pictures can be witnessed in my ancestral home; namely, the Town of Craughwell in County Galway, Ireland. Please remember that some foks do not realize that the Emerald Isle across the sea, the home of saints, poets, scholars and orators, is the richest country in the world! Why?—because its capitol is always Dublin.

Very truly yours,
Patrick Henry Craughwell

"Doctrine of Atonement" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 21.

The Golden Text is: "Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation" (Hebrews 9:28).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Therefore I will judge you, O house of Israel, every one according to his ways, saith the Lord God. Repent, and turn yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shall not be your ruin. . . . For I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth, saith the Lord God: wherefore turn yourselves, and live ye" (Ezekiel 18:30, 32).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Every pang of repentance and suffering, every effort for reform, every good thought and deed will help us to understand Jesus' atonement for sin and its efficacy. . . . Wisdom and Love may require many sacrifices of self to save us from sin. One sacrifice, however, great, is insufficient to pay the debt of sin. The atonement requires constant self-immolation on the sinner's part" (pp. 19,23).

MONGOOSE A DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE OF ANIMAL WORLD

A hero in the Old World, a pest and a curse in the New—that in brief is the record of the mongoose whose courage in battling the hooded cobras of India was immortalized by Kipling in his tale of Rikki-tikki-tavi.

Every once in a while someone who has been reading the "Jungle Book" writes to Washington to suggest that this doughty little animal be introduced into the United States to combat snakes and rats, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Can't Be Imported to U. S.

Then it becomes necessary for some government official to disillusion the letter-writer by setting forth that the mongoose is a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde of the animal kingdom who shows his worst side as soon as he is transplanted to a part of the world where Nature did not originally place him. In fact, one may be arrested is to bring a mongoose into the United States. Their introduction has been forbidden by Federal statute for the last 35 years.

If the sharp-toothed, weaselike little animal would eat the poisonous snakes and stop there, everything might be all right. But it does not.

Down in the West Indies—Jamaica in particular—inhabitants still have a vivid recollection of hundreds of mongooses, offspring of four or five prolific pairs, overrunning the countryside and killing not only the snakes and lizards but the chickens, lambs, kids, and piglings. Even dogs and cats were not safe. Many kinds of birds were all but wiped out, for here was a new pest which Nature had never taught them to cope.

Upset Nature's Balance in Jamaica

For the mongoose this was a paradise. Imported originally to kill the rats which were ruining the canefields, it all but exterminated these pests in short order. But when the rats were no longer numerous the ever-increasing hordes of mongooses had to turn to other food with devastating results. The killing of birds, snakes, and lizards eliminated some of the leading enemies of harmful insects which promptly increased until they became a plague. The whole delicate balance of Nature was upset and it took years to restore it. A price was placed on the head of Rikki-tikki-tavi and he was hunted down relentlessly. On one estate 1400 mongooses were killed in a few months.

On another British West Indian island, St. Lucia, the story was much the same, although here there existed an exceedingly deadly snake, the fer-de-lance, which has been virtually wiped out since the coming of the mongoose. To this the immigrant from the Old World contributed perhaps more by the indirect means of eating the food, primarily rats and mice, on which the serpent was wont to feed, than by direct attack. The terrible lance-head viper proved no such easy opponent as the hooded cobras of India against which the mongoose through untold generations has perfected a lethal form of attack.

When a mongoose meets its sworn enemy, the serpent, its long hair stands straight up until the little creature in truth seems swollen to twice its normal size. The bristles deceive the snake into striking short and also form a cushioning armor which the death-dealing fangs find it hard to penetrate.

Wholly erroneous are the stories that the mongoose is immune to the snake's poison or that when bitten it goes off and finds a root or herb which it eats as an antidote. To conquer his cobra enemy, Rikki-tikki-tavi—who gets that name from the sound of his war-cry—depends upon speed, courage, agility, and a tactical instinct inherited from a long line of snake-fighting forebears. He tires out the cobra by drawing repeated lunges. Then so swiftly that the eye cannot follow, he darts in and crunches the back of the head just above the hood. There he clings though the thrashing snake may almost bang out his brains.

In India the mongoose is domesticated to serve as protection against reptiles and to rid houses of rats and mice.

Ancient Egyptians lavished affection and even veneration upon a member of the mongoose clan, the ichneumon or Pharaoh's rat, which not only devoured snakes, rats, and lizards, but kept the number of crocodiles within bounds by feeding to a great extent upon their eggs.

In just such fashion remote ancestors of the mongoose in far-off geological times may have hastened the downfall of the enormous scaly creatures of the Age of Reptiles by the simple expedient of eating their eggs for here is one of Nature's oldest blood-feuds.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

A good song title would be, "When It Is Moonlight in Fair Winchester."

They say a fair exchange is no robbery. But where is the Winchesterite who ever saw a fair exchange?

"Easy come, easy go, certainly does not refer to that second hand automobile I bought, says a Winchester man.

There is no greater field of endeavor than the field our Winchester farmer cultivates.

Will science explain why a tack, when thrown out on a highway, always lights and remains point up?

One of the saddest words of tongue heard in Winchester are these: "That tire is flat again."

Still life—home brewing.

A Winchester high school junior defines sport as "any kind of work that one is not paid for." Then, according to that study is a sport.

How many Winchesterites remember when we bought large young chickens for 20 cents a pair, whole dressed hog for four cents a pound, dressed quarter of beef for five cents a pound and eggs at 10 cents a dozen?

And when the women of Winchester made their own sausage and mince meat?

Oh, yes, and when, our Winchester girls were so modest they would not go to the door until they rolled down their sleeves?

A love sick Winchester young man warbles:
Could she have realized how much it meant,
Those all too fleeting moments that I spent
With her the other night, she never would have went
Me home so soon.

Siamese women stain their teeth black to denote they are married, but this leads one fellow here in Winchester to wonder how the husbands go into mourning.

We hate to think how many Winchester misses will take this squib but it 'tis true as gospel that the bright rosy lips come from using the chrom-tick instead of the lipstick.

And now a Star reader rises to ask why somebody don't say something about the female male with sideburns below his ears. But where may such a female male be found? We've been scrutinizing all of Winchester's males since we got that item in our mail and cuss if we have seen a single one of the species referred to.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

Living the New Life

By Eugene Bertram Willard

As we approach Easter it is well to pause and ask ourselves: What have the days of Lent meant to me? Am I a better man or woman than I was three months ago? How we answer these questions means all the difference between making our lives count for God and humanity or continuing in the same old rut of spiritual decay. A lay writer has aptly expressed the significance of Lent and Easter in these words:

"It is not enough that the new life be given to men—they must do their part in preserving and strengthening it. And that was the message of the Lent from which we have just emerged. We are bidden, if we are "risen with Christ," to "seek those things which are above." The apostle who says "set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth" also says "mortify, therefore, your members which are upon the earth",which latter is precisely the Lenten principle. We can not continue to possess the new life unless we live it—and to live that life involves a dying to the old and lower life. As the life is a continuous process, so is the death. There is always danger lest men who have entered into the new life should think that there was nothing more for them to do—that their status was fixed. Many, when they find this is not true, are disappointed and disheartened."

It behooves every one of us to remember that Lent does not end with Easter. The discipline of the Lenten season is not only preparatory for a higher stage of existence—it is the condition on which men can maintain that higher level. We must not forget this. We must not forget that the Cross functions 365 days of the year and that unless we make it a permanent factor in our daily living those 365 days of the year we are holding out on God. Many people—even church people who pride themselves upon their regularity in church attendance fall down most shamefully before and after Lent but during Lent do fairly well in living up to their Christian obligations.

The spiritual struggle should go on day by day, week by week, month by month and year and year. Life, if it is to reach its "heavenly best" must be a constant rising or resurrection from "the death of sin to the life of righteousness."

The Fire Department was notified shortly before 5 o'clock Monday afternoon by John Pearson that a strong smell of smoke was noticeable in the apartment house at 624 Main street. Hose 4 responded and found upon investigation that a board under the bathroom floor was smouldering. How the fire started could not be determined. There was not much damage.

The Merry Old Soul

King Cole is a legendary British king, but is believed by some to have been an actual king, perhaps the grandfather of the Emperor Constantine.

WINCHESTER S. P. C. A. AUXILIARY

Our town should be an ideally happy place for the animal pets living within its borders, if their youthful owners put into practice the excellent advice they gave and received at the "Be Kind to Animals' Week" exercises in our churches and schools last week. All the elementary schools presented very fine programs, each one admirably planned and carried out.

The child trained to treat the lowly creatures aout him as he would like to be treated, fairly, kindly, grows into a manhood governed in its relation to his fellows in accordance with these same high ideals. It cannot be said too often that whatever humane societies have done for animals they have done vastly more for men, women, and children by awakening in the soul the spirit of a great and noble humanity.

The great need in our schools today, in all our educational institutions, is not a more careful training of the intellect, but a deeper culture of the things that make for character.

John Ruskin said, "Character building is our greatest business in the world. No small part of it is done by our treatment of animals committed to our care."

The April meeting of the Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. Alfred Hildreth, 371 Highland avenue. Important business was transacted, one new member enrolled and two pledges received for the Shelter Fund. After the meeting, the members enjoyed a delightful social hour, during which the tea table was presided over by Mrs. Richard Taylor, president of the Auxiliary.

BIG RAINCOAT ORDER

H. M. Sawyer & Sons Co., today was awarded a contract for 80,000 raincoats for the new recruits to the C. C. C. forces being enrolled under the four billion work relief appropriation. The Sawyers, of Winchester, now have their factory at 20 Thorndike street, Cambridge. The average price for the coats was $2.70 each. This $200,000 order was only one of many of like size placed now that the forces recruits are to be entered in camps as fast as provisions can be made for their clothing and housing by the army quartermaster corps. A single order for 4,000,000 yards of denim was placed to provide for summer uniforms, and over a million yards of heavy fabric also was ordered for uniforms.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

For your Easter dinner there will be turkey or ham, chicken, lamb or veal available at moderate prices. Since these are favorite Easter dishes it is fortunate that they also represent the best market values. Other outstanding values include asparagus, tomatoes and iceberg lettuce and strawberries.

Most other foods are higher—including butter and eggs, potatoes, the citrus fruits, apples, green beans, peas, spinach, beef and pork.

There is a probability of lower prices on onions and cabbage. Beets are cheaper and carrots are cheap. Bananas and pineapples are good value. Early cantaloupes are arriving from Mexico.

Here are three menus made up of seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner
Roast Shoulder of Lamb
Browned Potatoes Creamed Carrots
Bread and Butter
Cottage Pudding with Crushed Strawberries
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Baked Ham Sweet Potatoes
Spinach Vinaigrette
Bread and Butter
Fresh Strawberry Bavarian
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Stuffed Celery
Roast Turkey Parsley Potatoes
Asparagus Hollandaise
Tomato Salad
Rolls and Butter
Fresh Strawberry Ice Cream
Coffee Milk

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

Paramount's "Love in Bloom," coming Saturday to the Mystic Theatre, Malden, combines the dizzy antics of the screen's goofiest comedians, George Burns and Gracie Allen, with the tender love story of Joe Morrison and Dixie Lee and the hit tunes of Mack Gordon and Harry Revel.

The new Zane Grey adventure picture, "Rocky Mountain Mystery," the second feature at the Mystic this coming week, is a blend of the famous Grey, rip-roaring outdoor action with the added element of a gripping murder mystery. Adapted from Zane Grey's "Golden Dreams," "Rocky Mountain Mystery" features Randolph Scott and Ann Sheridan in the romantic leads and a supporting cast that includes Charles "Chic" Sale, Kathleen Burke and Mrs. Leslie Carter, well known stage actress who makes her screen debut in this film.

The management of the Mystic Theatre announces that soon the best picture of last season together with one of the best will be shown on the same program in a sensational return engagement. "It Happened One Night," winner of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences Award for the best picture of the year and featuring the two stars who gave the best performances for actors and actresses in this same picture, Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert.

The second picture will be the most glorious musical romance of all time, Grace Moore in "One Night of Love."

"LITTLE COLONEL" AT THE UNIVERSITY

Shirley Temple, the five-year old screen miracle who was unknown less than a year ago, and who now ranks among the ten world's outstanding box-office attractions, co-stars with Lionel Barrymore in "The Little Colonel" which begins a three day engagement at the University Theatre starting Sunday.

"One More Spring," the companion picture co-starring Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter, was adapted from Robert Nathan's best seller.

Wednesday, Review Day, the program will include "The Count of Monte Cristo" and Ann Harding and Leslie Howard in "Animal Kingdom." Due to the extreme length of the program, "Animal Kingdom" will start promptly at 1:30.

"The Wedding Night" which starts Thursday, is a dramatic romance in which Miss Sten portrays a modern American girl rebelling against the dictates and restraints of tradition, and Gary Cooper appears as a successful, sophisticated New York author with whom she falls in love.

"Society Doctor," the companion picture featuring Chester Morris and Virginia Bruce is one of those rare pictures which make audiences sit up in their seats.

WAKEFIELD THEATRE TIME SCHEDULES

Friday and Saturday, April 19, 20, "Charlie Chan in Paris," 3:50, 9:20; "Carnival," 2:24, 7:54.

Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, April 21, 22, 23, "Devil Dogs of the Air," 3:35, 9:10; "Successful Failure," 2:24, 7:54. Sunday matinee at 3. Evening at 7:45.

Wednesday and Thursday, April 24, 25, "Sequoia," 3:45, 9:15; "Grand Old Girl," 2:24, 7:54.

STRAND THEATRE, MALDEN

The exploits and adventures of the Michigan State Police, most famous of the Nation's crime hunting forces, is the subject of "Car 99," with Fred MacMurray, Sir Guy Standing, Ann Sheridan, William Frawley, Russell Hopton and Dean Jagger as the players, opens a seven day run at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. MacMurray is cast as a rookie State Trooper who is anxious to become a regular member of the Patrol so he can marry Ann Sheridan.

"Death Flies East," a mystery thriller, with Conrad Nagel, Florence Rice, Raymond Walburn, Purnell Pratt and Irene Franklin, is the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. The story concerns a young California nurse, paroled on a poisoning charge, who rushes East by plane to obtain a confession from a Sing Sing convict, sentenced to death, which is certain to clear her.

GRANADA THEATRE, MALDEN

With Dick Powell and Gloria Stuart in "The Gold Diggers of 1935," and "The Wedding Night" starring Gary Cooper and Anna Sten as the two attractions, the Granada Theatre in Malden is offering a special screen treat on the bill opening on Saturday. "The Gold Diggers of 1935," was directed by Busbby Berkley who has taken a funny, clever story and gathered together a cast of all the favorites among Warner Brothers outstanding stars. The big cast includes Dick Powell, Gloria Stuart, Glenda Farrell, Hugh Herbert, Alice Brady, Joseph Cawthorn, Grant Mitchell and Dorothy Dare. Dick Powell sings several numbers as a part of the dance routines.

"The Wedding Night," presents Gary Cooper as an author whose ability has been lost because of too many parties and too much liquor. His publisher talks him into going to a Connecticut farm house of his to seek rest and inspiration for a new book. He meets and falls in love with a neighboring farm girl, played by Anna Sten. The author and the girl realize they must keep silent because he is married and she engaged to a man selected by her father, whom she does not love. But the girl's father discovers the love affair and orders the girl to marry Ralph Bellamy at once. The girl's rebellion at this un-American procedure brings the film to a stirring climax.

Foolishness

"Dar is two kinds of foolishness," said Uncle Eben. "One makes you laugh an' de other scares you."

DOUBLE PARACHUTE AND STERILE TUBE TO "FISH" FOR SPORES IN STRATOSPHERE

A double parachute device, carrying a tube as sterile as a surgical dressing, which is one of the most unusual pieces of apparatus developed for collecting scientific information in the upper air, has just been successfully tested over aWshington. It is planned to use the contrivance next June in the balloon flight to be sent into the stratosphere under the auspices of the National Geographic Society and the Army Air Corps.

The purpose of the device is to determine whether living spores are floating in the cold but sun-bathed regions of the stratosphere. The test was made from the Goodyear airship Enterprise by Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, Director of the U. S. Bureau of Standards, and Drs. Lore A. Rogers and Fred C. Meier, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Dr. Briggs is chairman of the Advisory Committee of scientists for the National Geographic-Army flight. This committee is correlating the work of a large group of scientific services of the United States Government and other scientific and technical organizations which are co-operating in the flight's scientific program. Dr. Meier collaborated with Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in the collection of spores from the air of the Far North during Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh's crossing of Greenland and the North Atlantic in 1933.

"Toy" Barometer Will Close Tube

The spore collecting device just tested will hang, until the balloon starts down, from an arm extending from the gondola. This is to avoid passage through air that might have been contaminated by dust from the balloon bag. When released, the apparatus will drop like a stone for a short period, thus getting well away from the balloon. Then its outer parachute will fill out. The resulting jerk will pull the apparatus and a second parachute from a sterile bag. When the second parachute opens the jerk will remove plugs from the sterile tube. Stratosphere air will stream through this tube as the device floats downward for more than five miles; and if the air contains any spores they will be trapped by a sticky substance.

While the apparatus is still six and a half miles above sea level, and therefore still in the stratosphere, a "toy" aneroid barometer will trip a device which will clamp sterile pads over the ends of the collecting tube, and parachute and apparatus will float on down to the earth.

During the National Geographic-Army stratosphere flight of last summer in the Explorer I, spores furnished by Dr. Meier were taken aloft and it was found that they survived a six hour exposure to stratosphere conditions. It is now desired to know whether spores find their way naturally into the stratosphere, and if so whether they are alive after floating there for considerable periods.

"Gadgets"

You will not find the word "gadget" in many dictionaries; perhaps for the reason that most dictionary compilers consider the word to be slang. Yet, the word "gadget" is well known to everyone, and is used in every-day language in connection with some article that has a practical use, and, usually, can be bought at a low price, one that is of a mechanical nature and is supposed to do something that is more difficult without it.

TIENTSIN, GATEWAY TO NORTH CHINA

Tientsin, Chinese city which Japanese forces were steadily pushing, has grown to its present rank as chief commercial center of northern China largely because it is a focus for important trade routes, according to a bulletin from the Washington D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The city is also the capital of Chihli Province. It lies about four-fifths of the distance between Peiping and the sea. Much of the news in regard to the Japanese-Chinese conflict reached American newspapers in dispatches bearing the Tientsin date line.

Network of Transportation Lines

A network of transportation lines —railways, rivers, the Grand Canal, highways, and caravan routes—converge on Tientsin, says the bulletin. These arteries of commerce extend into all parts of the Chihli district and continue into Shantung, Jehol, Manchuria (Manchukuo), Honan, Shansi, Kansu, and Inner Mongolia.

Once Tientsin handled the tribute rice which was sent to Imperial Peking from the south. The grain was brought by boat up the Grand Canal; and at Tientsin, the northern terminus of the famous waterway, the rice was unloaded and carried overland to the old capital. Steamship lines and railways have largely replaced the Grand Canal as a commerce carrier, and the rice tribute is no longer exacted; but Tientsin continues its development as a trade cross-road.

For centuries Tientsin was a strong military center—the key to Peking. In 1368 it had a military garrison, and, in 1404, the city was inclosed within a heavy wall. Since then it has been the scene of many battles. The city was besieged by Taiping rebels in 1853; it was bombarded by the British and French in 1860 when the Chinese failed to ratify a treaty; and, during the Boxer uprising in 1900, the Chinese cut off the foreign concessions from communication with the outside world for 27 days.

Old Walls Give Way to Boulevard

Following the Boxer trouble, the walls were demolished, and the Chinese agreed not to fortify the area between Peking and the sea. The material from the old wall was used for roads and as ballast in railway beds; the site of the walls became a wide thoroughfare.

The city is situated on a great alluvial plain about 80 miles southeast of Peiping, and 20 miles by railroad from the Gulf of Chihli. The river Peiho, coming in from the northwest twists through the city, and, after its junction with the Grand Canal becomes the Haiho the rest of the way to the sea. Once the Haiho looped back and forth for 80 miles to the sea, but in recent years the main channel has been shortened to 35 miles.

Because of heavy deposits of silt, however, many steamers are forced to unload cargoes at Tangku, only a few miles up the river from the coast. Lighters bring the cargoes to the business houses of Tientsin.

All along the river and at Tientsin are many salt works, cotton mills and flour mills. Flour milling is the chief industry, drawing upon the vast wheat lands that lie in the rural districts beyond Tientsin. Twelve large American flour mills and six cotton centers, operating nearly 222,000 spindles, give employment to thousands of Chinese workers. Because it is near the extensive grazing districts of North China, Tientsin is also the chief wool exporting center of the country.

Population Increasing

The population of Tientsin is normally about 1,388,000, but the recent disturbances have caused many Chinese from the north to flock to the city for protection.

Tientsin, unlike Peiping, has few Chinese architectural attractions, but it possesses many palatial banks, ranking next to Shanghai in the number and beauty of its modern business institutions. The British, French, Japanese, and Italian concessions, cities within the city, which lie long the river south of the native quarter, impart a strong Western flavor to Tientsin.

One place, however, the Sea View Buddhist Temple, is of historic interest. There, in 1858, Lord Elgin signed the Tientsin Treaty, which eventually opened Tientsin and several other ports to foreign trade.

Gordon Hall, named for General "Chinese" Gordon, of Taiping Rebellion fame, is one of Tientsin's most imposing buildings. It includes the British municipal offices, the public library, and an entertainment hall. The city has three railroad stations which connect it with lines leading to Mancharia, Peiping, Nanking, and Shanghai.

In 1928 Tientsin's shipping reached its peak; 4133 vessels, representing more than five and one-half million tons, were entered and cleared.

EN KA STREET FAIR "SHOP" COMMITTEES ANNOUNCE PLANS

The general subject of conversation is the En Ka Street Fair since such interesting details are being announced and Saturday, May 11, is awaited with great anticipation.

The Winchester Hospital Nurses' Alumni Association will have a most attractive booth—"The Apron Shelf" where aprons of all descriptions will be displayed, also handy hot pads, kitchen towels of all styles and colors, and any colorful kitchen curtains will be for sale. A white kitchen, featuring a daintily curtained window with its shutters and flower box, bright floor and painted furniture, is the "shop" plan of this committee. Mrs. Arthur Cameron (Kathleen Mossi) and Mrs. Harold Dover (Maude Gurney) are co-chairmen, assisted by Miss Constance Lane, and the following members of the W. H. N. A. A.: Miss Hilda Hopes, president of the Association; Miss Alice Bryne of Nelson street, Mrs. Mabel Ross of Stoneham, Mrs. Mildred McGlonchlin of Stoneham, Miss Marjorie Peas and Miss Mary Parker, resident nurses at the hospital, and Mrs. Frances Willington of Medford.

The home cooked bean supper in the Town Hall from 6 to 7:30 o'clock is being arranged by Mrs. Guy Howe and her committee. Mrs. Clarence Russell and Mrs. Herbert Mills are in charge of the ticket sale. Mrs. Malcolm Lees is supervising the decorations and costumes; Mrs. John A. Tarbell, Mrs. Donald F. Meyer and Mrs. Augustino Pistorino are assisting with the supper. The hall is to be decorated as a large country barn and the waiters and waitresses will be suitably costumed. Through the generosity of the Unitarian Society the church kitchens have been opened to En Ka and the supper will be cooked there.

Another "shop" sure to please those attending the Fair, is "The Attic." This booth is to be a suggestion of a small house, featuring the attic or window. Within the "housekeeper" Miss Eleanore Boyd and her "help," Mrs. Albion Mancih, Mrs. Frank W. Rounds, Miss Florence Watters, Mrs. William Beggs, Mrs. Paul Moulton, and Miss Ruth Hollins will be happy to show you what they have accumulated in their "attic" which they will be glad to dispose of. Friends have donated many interesting lamps, china, old books, old jewelry, and a few antiques. The articles which perhaps were glorified other days are by no means "white elephants" and many are of value.

Down the "street" one will come to the "Chinese Laundry," being opened by the "grab" committee, Miss Eleanore Dow chairman; Mrs. Bouldin Burbank, Mrs. Robert Reynolds, Mrs. Forrest Pitman, are serving with Miss Dow. Those wishing a laundry package will "grab" a pink slip and the matching numbers will identify their "shirtee" on the shelf. The committee is being assisted in constructing their "laundry" by Mr. John Barchard, 2d, and it will be one of the most artistic "shops" on the "street."

Mrs. E. George Pierce, general chairman of the Fair has announced several very special prizes to be awarded the evening of the Fair, details of other "shop" plans, and further special attractions will be described next week.

Treasurer J. Albert Hersey
Directors Vincent P. Clarke, George T. Davidson, Frank W. Knight, Nathaniel M. Nichols, Thomas Quigley, Fred H. Scholl, Herbert B. Sellers, Dr. Richard W. Sheehy, Harris S. Richardson, Morris L. Snyder, Raymond S. Wilkins, Charles F. Hutchinson, George Welsch, Harry Winton.

Community singing was enjoyed, led by "Charlie" Downer of the Rotary with the able and accommodating "Jim" McGrath of Woburn at the piano. President Lochman acted as toastmaster and preceding the entertainment and gathering stood silently out of respect to the memory of Charles E. Kendall, for many years vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, deceased since the last banquet.

An excellent musical program was offered by Helena Studzinska Sibley, violinist; and Nina Spaulding, pianist; Claire Reynolds proving as charming as ever with several of her inimitable readings.

State Senator Charles T. Daley was the first speaker and he traced in a most interesting manner the progress, development and reconstruction of the Mystic Valley, giving his hearers an idea of the many problems to be met in furthering the development and telling of some of the propositions advanced.

The guest speaker of the evening Charles C. Pusey, president of the Boston Rotary, told all the hows and whens of the founding of both the Lions and Rotary Club. He also traced the development of modern Chambers of Commerce from the old trade guilds of the middle ages in Europe.

President Lochman wisely limited the speaking program, but did call for remarks from Harry T. Winn, president of the Winchester Rotary, from Leslie J. Scott, president of the Lions, from J. Winn Brown, president of Woburn Rotary and often referred to as "the Father of Winchester Rotary;" and Representative William E. Ramsdell.

CAPACITY CROWD AT POLICEMAN'S BALL

Fine Entertainment Preceded Dancing

A crowd estimated at between twelve and fifteen hundred taxed the capacity of the Town Hall to the utmost at the annual concert and ball of the Winchester Police Relief Association Monday evening. The big crowd was very orderly and thoroughly enjoyed the excellent program which lasted from shortly after 8 o'clock until 1 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Seats in the small Town Hall were removed and this area was completely filled with guests who stood throughout the entertainment which preceded the general dancing. Every seat elsewhere in the hall was filled long before the curtain rose on the first act of the show.

The hall was attractively decorated with red, white and blue bunting, police and National flags and quantities of balloons. The stage was banked with palms and ferns. Members of the police force in tuxedos and wearing boutonnieres served as ushers.

Among the invited guests were members of the Board of Selectmen and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Harold V. Farnsworth, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Beggs, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Wilkins, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Fitzgerald, Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilding; Town Clerk Mabel W. Stinson, Assistant Town Clerk Helen E. Stinson. State Senator and Mrs. Charles T. Daley, Alderman Gerald Seminatore of Woburn, Police Chief J. Clarence Nelson of Stoneham, Clerk of Court and Mrs. Charles Loring, Secretary John Dolan representing Mayor Edward F. Kenney of Woburn; Miss Mary Golden of the clerical staff at the Woburn District Court, Mr. James McCauley of the Edison Light Co. and Mrs. McCauley, Officer and Mrs. Charles J. Cody of Newton, representing the Newton Police Department and Officer and Mrs. Harold O'Brien, representing the Reading Department.

The excellent entertainment program opened with an overture by M'Lelland's Orchestra and included seven fine acts of big time vaudeville. K. M. White of the Bureau in charge of the show acted as master of ceremonies.

The great Carrado opened the bill with a musical act that included some fine accordian numbers, and was followed by Mildred McMurray, a dainty tapper, who proved such a favorite she was forced to make a second appearance on the bill.

She first appeared in the conventional dancer's costume of short black bloomers white blouse and black tam, later coming on in red overalls. Beatrice Henderson offered banjo selections and the Cap'n and the Sailor, two real old timers, proved very popular with their nonsense and jigging. The Cap'n's midget harmonica was a feature of this act.

Fenard, favorite European juggler, astounded the house with his dexterity and Harry Bolden, the colored porter, was a big hit with his songs, "hoofing" and chatter.

LONSDALE PLAY BY GROUP THEATRE

"Aren't We All," May 4 at High School

The final production of the current season by Winchester Group Theatre will be given to its subscription audience on the evening of Saturday, May 4, in the high school auditorium. The play will be Frederick Lonsdale's bright comedy, "Aren't We All," in which Mr. Cyril Maude scored such an outstanding success some years ago.

In accordance with Group Theatre's policy of rotating its production committees, the present play is under the guidance of Messrs. Clifford Cunningham and Theodore Godwin as co-chairmen. It was but natural in view of the outstanding success of "The Swan" that Mrs. Jacobs, Messrs. Hubert Bernard, Kenneth Clark, Ralph Hale, Frank Owen, Kenneth Hall and Frederick Cole, Mr. Gerald Hills will be seen in the Maude role. The play will also witness the local debut of Miss Madelyn Moffett and Mr. Robert Jackson.

Details of stage design, production and decorations are in the capable hands of Mr. Harry Goodwin. Mrs. Ralph Budd is in charge of properties.

"Aren't We All" is the type of play eminently suitable to late spring production and the trend of the rehearsals indicates that it will play at the high level set by "The Swan." A limited number of guest tickets are available to active and sustaining members on application to Mr. Cunningham (02541) or Mr. Godwin (1580).

MAYOR WEEKS SPOKE

Mayor Sinclair Weeks, perennial Mayor of Newton, was the speaker at last evening's meting of Winchester Post, American Legion, in the Post Headquarters. He was introduced by Donald R. Waugh and gave an interesting address on Japanese competition with American manufacturers. Comndr. John H. McCarthy presided and spoke of the Legion's current membership drive. Refreshments were served by "Jack" Moynihan and his committee. There was a large attendance.

CHORAL SOCIETY CONCERT TUESDAY

Many favorite numbers, for which there have been repeated requests, appear upon the program which the Winchester Choral Society will present next Tuesday evening in the Town Hall to close its sixth successful season.

Under the direction of J. Albert Wilson the chorus of 100 voices will sing two excellent vocal arrangements of music from Tschaikovsky's famous "Nutcracker Suite," the delicate "Dance of the Reed Flutes" and the dashing "Trepak" both tremendously popular when first sung two years ago.

Rubinstein's beautiful "Seraphic Song" is another selection which Choral Society patrons will be glad to hear again, and this year's presentation is a most interesting one, with Josephine L. Taylor singing the contralto solo role and violin obligato by Armand Lucci of the People's Symphony Orchestra.

New music includes an especially beautiful number by Rheinberger, the syncopated spiritual, "It's Me, O Lord" and the spritely, "Come to the Fair," familiar to all radio addicts. As usual the Society's superb male choir will contribute to the program.

The guest artist, Gertrude Ehrhart Boston soprano, has chosen her selections carefully and those who were delighted by her beautiful voice and charming personality at her last appearance in Winchester, will welcome the opportunity to hear her again.

The Society's accompanist, Mary Ranton Witham, will also accompany Miss Ehrhart. In the four-hand arrangements of accompaniments for the chorus, Mrs. Witham will be assisted by Lucy L. Wilcox.

The concert will commence promptly at 8 o'clock and the Society's usual policy of admitting no one during the singing of a number will be adhered to.

MRS. KATHERINE C. HILL

Mrs. Katherine C. Hill, widow of William G. Hill, leather merchant and genealogist, died shortly after midnight Friday morning, April 19, at her home, 6 Fletcher street. She had been in good health during the day previous and had visited the center, spending the evening at her home in the usual way. Her passing was peaceful, but wholly unexpected and came as a severe shock to her family and friends.

Mrs. Hill, who was in her 87th year, was a native of Richmond, Va., the daughter of Charles Gage and Elizabeth (Wallwork) Thompson. One of her ancestors, James Thompson, came to Charlestown with Governor Winthrop in 1630 and was among the founders of Woburn. Rev. John Carter, first minister in Woburn, was also one of her ancestors and others participated in the Colonial-Indian and Colonial-French Wars, and also in the War of Independence.

As a girl, Mrs. Hill came to Watertown at the time of the Civil War, and it was while she was being privately educated at the home of an aunt there that she met Mr. Hill whom she later married in Richmond. During the war her family was literally under two flags, one of her brothers being an officer in the Union Navy while another served as a private in a Confederate Battery.

After her marriage Mrs. Hill lived for a time in Malden and later, in Hudson, from which place she came to Winchester ten years ago. Her husband died in 1903.

Mrs. Hill was a member of the Fortnightly Women's Club and had many friends among older residents of the town. She leaves two sons, William G. Hill and Clarence E. Hill, both of Winchester.

Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon at the late residence with Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, rector of the Church of the Epiphany. Interment was in Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett.

SECOND MOVIE PERMIT REQUEST DENIED

At Monday night's meeting the Selectmen denied a second movie petition permit. This was received from Ernest Dudley Chase, the well known artist, and was denied on the ground that he desired to show pictures on his property at 3 Lakeview road, which is forbidden under the zoning by-law which forbids business enterprises in single residential zones.

Mr. Chase's request for a permit followed that of Mr. Locatelli, the original petitioner, whose request for a permit had already been placed before the Board.

Thus far these two requests are the only ones which have been made for movies, and in the case of Mr. Locatelli, action upon his petition was postponed for one week.

E. H. Butterworth—Jeweler

GOT BOYS IN STOLEN CAR

Shortly after 9 o'clock last night Patrolman James E. Farrell at the point of his revolver arrested four youths who were riding in a car which had previously been reported stolen in Somerville.

Officer Farrell spotted the machine on Main street near Swanton street, headed south. He gave chase in a commandeered car and stopped the machine at Lake street.

The four youths were booked at headquarters and gave their names as Daniel McCarthy, 16, of Brainbridge street, Alexander Taylor, 16, of Washington square, John Wilson, 19, of Gray street and Anthony Chuillis, 16, of Congress street, all of Charlestown. The police said that all were full of bravado and seemed to treat their escapade as a joke. They were turned over to Sergt. Hugh R. Cunningham of the Somerville Police. Wilson, who was driving the car, was said to have boasted of stealing cars before.

TO CURB LIQUOR CONSUMPTION

The following letter has been sent by the Woman's Public Safety Committee to Governor Curley concerning his recent statement that he was going to do something about liquor. The statement reads as follows:

May we say that any careful study of the liquor problem shows that liquor consumption is curbed in three ways; first and most potent by the example of total abstinence in high places; if your Governor's Council and all those whom you place in high official positions would proclaim, "because we drive we do not drink," and if this fashion could be copied by fraternal organizations and strong men everywhere, it would do more to bring down motor accidents than any other one thing could do. Second, if you could tell the salient truth that removing the ever ready opportunity does reduce consumption—in other words, the closed up town—that would be the next greatest help. Thousands will not take the trouble to frequent a speakeasy where they must be introduced. Under no-license arrests for drunkenness invariably fall because drinking decreases. Third, stiffer penalties; but this last expedient for reducing motor accidents and fatalities in which drink figures is probably the least efficacious.

Signed,
Mabelle Graves,
Secretary Woman's Public Safety Committee

The funeral, in charge of the members of Abitibi Masonic Lodge, was held from the United Church, Rev. D. H. Woodhouse officiating, and burial was made in the Masonic plot, Iroquois Falls cemetery.

He leaves to mourn in passing in addition to his wife, formerly Miss Clara Brown, four sons, Charles, Fred, John, Robert, and one daughter, Joan.

Herbert Choate Butterfield, aged 52 years, was born in Cambridge, Mass., but has been in Canada for many years. He started to work at the Twin Falls plant of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company, on Oct. 26, 1923. Previous to that date he had been employed at Belleville, Ontario, Ford, Ontario, and at power plants in the Trent River.

He was well known in Masonic circles, being a member of Trent Lodge, No. 38, A. F. and A. M., Trenton, Ont., the Royal Arch Chapter, Haileybury Preceptory; Rameses Temple, Toronto, and was an 18th degree Scottish Rite Mason.

BETHANY NEWS

May-day next week, so watch out for youngsters, hanging baskets to their lady-loves. It's a pretty custom that even husbands might do well to copy.

The Bethany luncheon falls on Tuesday, May 7, with the following hostesses in charge: Mrs. Morrow, Mrs. Josephson, Mrs. Cutter, Mrs. McElhiney, Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Richburg. A business meeting will follow the luncheon.

On Friday evening of this week, at 8 o'clock, the entertainment committee or the month will present two plays. The public is cordially invited to attend—even urged to make a special effort to be among those present. The first play to be given is entitled, "It's a Woman's Privilege," and the cast of characters follows:

Mrs. Lewis, a charming clubwoman ..... Alberta Baker
Margie Lewis, her daughter, vivacious high-school girl ..... Ruth Morrow
Mrs. Robson, a gushing and stylish lady ..... Gertrude Eddy
Mrs. Lawton, simple and unaffected ..... Isabel Richburg
Kate Hannish, another modern woman ..... Harriet Higgins
Cousin Mary, old-fashioned, dowdy, unhappy ..... Kathryn Saunders
Josephine, her unpleasant daughter ..... Dorothy Thompson

A short intermission follows, and then the second play, entitled "Mother's Cooking" will be given. The characters in order of appearance are:

Lorette Pape, 22, a bride of a few months ..... Helen W. Saunders
Mrs. Warren Pape, Sr., 50, her mother-in-law ..... Mae Ball
Alwe Wells, 22, a Brideyware saleswoman ..... Frances Duncan
Grace Burns, 22, a radio saleswoman ..... Helen Saunders
Irene Nesbit, 23, a vacuum cleaner saleswoman ..... Ollie Robinson

Both of these plays contain a bit of dry humor mingled with some common sense, which we trust will prove entertaining.

The eggs have just hatched and now is the time to get after them.

READING HERE TODAY

Winhester High School's Middlesex League baseball game with Reading High School originally scheduled for Reading, has been shifted to Winchester and will be played this afternoon at 3 o'clock on Manchester Field.

Coach Mansfield will send Capt. "Tom" Donaghey after the game and will play Grey at the hot corner where Donaghey was stationed in the Lexington tilt. Provinzano will again play shortstop and "Brother" Donaghey will be behind the bat.

Donaghey's throwing to first and third has not been up to par, but his catching has been satisfactory and practice should eradicate his throwing weaknesses. Provinzano was not at home in the shortfield against Lexington, but is the natural type of athlete who soon accustoms himself to any position, and should be much better today.

Coach Mansfield has organized an intra-mural baseball league at high school this spring and activities commenced on Wednesday. One hundred and two boys have signed up for the league and it is expected that each team will play about two games a week, games being limited to five innings.

Intra-mural tennis starts next Monday and already 35 boys have signed up for this competition which preceded the regular inter-class series.

HOCKEY CLUB HAD SUCCESSFUL SEASON

The Winchester Hockey Club is closing its season this evening with a gala dancing party at the Winchester Boat Club, for which music will be furnished by "Jack" Hennessy and his orchestra.

The club finished its season with a record of 12 wins and four defeats, an excellent showing for an outfit playing its first year in organized hockey. Only strong teams were played and the locals could have hung up a much more impressive record had they cared to take on "set-ups."

Inclement weather prevented the playing of many contests scheduled, but the club will be on the ice again next season when it hopes to give the town even a better brand of hockey. Most of the club's games were played at Winter Pond and many of the town's hockey enthusiasts enjoyed witnessing them.

In closing the season the management of the club wishes to thank all those who assisted in making the season a success and particularly those merchants who contributed the funds that made it possible to purchase uniforms for the players.

WINCHESTER WON FROM LEXINGTON

Winchester High School made an auspicious opening of its interscholastic baseball season on Manchester Field Tuesday afternoon when Coach Mansfield's boys set back Lexington High in a Middlesex League game, 8 to 4.

The locals played good steady ball and showed considerable promise despite the fact that several of the boys were playing positions to which they have not as yet become accustomed.

"Buz" Kendrick, apple-checked veteran right hander, went the route and pitched good consistent ball, especially in the early innings when the visitors could do nothing with his slants.

The opposing pitcher, Yachoes, football captain-elect and one of the largest schoolboys in captivity, had the edge on Kendrick in the matter of strikeouts, but yielded one more hit than "Buz" who didn't work too hard in the closing innings. Tighter baseball would have held the score at 8 to 2, had the locals elected to cut off runs instead of play for the out.

Aside from Kendrick, "Joe" Dinneen at second base made a good showing, and Olford, Lexington catcher, was the best hitter on either team.

PRESIDENT OF STATE TAXPAYERS' ASSOCIATION VISITED WINCHESTER

Mr. Reginald Bird, president of the Massachusetts Taxpayers' Association addressed a small gathering of taxpayers in Winchester Tuesday evening in the Public Librnry, telling them of the work being done by this association, particularly in connection with State appropriations and outlining the scope of associations now functioning in many of the State's towns.

Mr. Bird emhasized the necessity of co-operation between such associations and town officials and Finance Committees, stating that in such co-operation is found the ideal way for taxpayers' associations to function, rather than in hostile opposition to those entrusted with the administration of town affairs.

Mr. Bird's remarks proved enlightening and while no active steps were taken toward this end, it is hoped that his visit and Tuesday evening's meeting may result in the formation of a Winchester Tax Payers' Association. Mr. James Nowell presided and introduced the speaker.

Since the vote on movies the Star has been deluged with letters. One and all are in protest of this or that feature of the pictures. As the Town has at last succeeded in securing a favorable vote for the pictures, and as any further protest against them must be made next year, the Star feels that the incident, good or bad, is closed for the present and letters of protest will not be published. Possibly these writers failed to vote. Surely they appear in sufficient quantity to swing the result if their fevor was as high then as now! Next year, if these correspondents still feel so indignant over the situation, the Star will be pleased to air their views and protests. That successive boards of Selectmen failed to grant a movie license during the past fifteen years with repeated negative votes, may raise a source of hope that the present board will not rush to grant a license after the one and only affirmative vote. Meanwhile, if correspondents care to confine themselves to voicing their opinion on the various sites which have been proposed, the Star has no objection to publishing them, provided their communications are non-commercial.

A MOVIE BILL

To the Editor of the Star:

The Pettingill bill (H. R. 6472) is now pending in the House of Representatives.

The situation which prompted the introduction of this bill is as follows:

Compulsory block-booking is the trade practice whereby exhibitors are forced to lease from the distributing agents (the distributing center for most of New England is Boston) a large block of pictures produced by one company with no opportunity to buy a few selected films from that producer. This results in an exhibitor being forced to fill his screen up with many pictures he does not want to show as he has a limited capacity on his screen—52, 104, 156, 208, etc. depending on the number of features he exhibits each week of the year. Compulsory block-booking means that he will have no room for many good pictures which his patrons would like to see. In their place he often has to show pictures which are "indecent, immoral and unfit for public entertainment."

One Massachusetts independent exhibitor writes: "Changing programs twice a week, with double features, I require 208 pictures yearly. Paramount will release about 60 pictures, MGM about 50, Fox 50, RKO 50, Columbia 40, Warner Bros. and First National 60, Monogram 30, United Artists 30, Universal 40, altogether about 350 besides many independently produced pictures. As I need only 208 pictures it is necessary to pass up the product of three or four companies. If they happen to have some outstanding pictures and I do not show them in my theatre, my business suffers. Last year I had not bought RKO pictures. This company released "Little Women," a picture so outstanding that I felt I must have it. I had to buy 20 pictures I did not need in order to get "Little Women."

Blind-selling is the trade practice whereby pictures are leased without adequate descriptions of their content, sometimes only by title or by number. It is obvious that no power of selection can exist so long as exhibitors have to lease blindly.

Some exhibitors who are affiliated or controlled by the "Big 8" are granted special privileges and are therefore not subject to the same restrictions as an independent. Nevertheless the community in which such a theatre is operated must suffer, for it is part of a larger system and its local interests must sometimes be sacrificed for the benefit of outside communities. Policy in such cases is determined by some distant office in New York or elsewhere.

The effect of freeing the independent exhibitor in his choice of pictures will be to raise the standard of pictures which he can show. This will result in a higher standard to be met in competition by the chain theatre which is affiliated with a big producer. Thus abolition of compulsory block-booking and blind selling as sought by the Pettengill Bill will have an effect even on a chain theatre which may not now be fettered by compulsory block-booking.

Letters to our Representative, Honorable Edith Nourse Rogers, House Office Building, Washington, D. C., should aid in the passage of this bill.

Very truly yours,
Louise Vandivert Bernnard

MEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB MEETING

The first annual meeting of the Winchester Men's Republican Club will be held in the high school auditorium Tuesday evening, May 7, commencing at 7:45 o'clock.

The speaker is to be Christian A. Herter, member of the House of Representatives, who brings a message all will want to hear. Members are urged to attend and to bring their friends.

EN KA STREET FAIR TWO WEEKS FROM TOMORROW, MAY 11

As May 11 draws near with increasing interest to all of Winchester—the En Ka Street Fair Committees are hard at work and today have their weekly all day meeting with the managers at the home of Mrs. Arthur Driscoll of Lantern lane.

Mrs. Driscoll and her sister, Mrs. Loring P. Gleason are arranging the garden and flower shop; Mrs. Edward Casey and Mrs. Clifford Mason will attend "shop" with them. For several weeks they have been assembling attractive garden baskets, tools and useful accessories, of which many have been hand decorated. Garden flowers, plants, herb boxes and cut flowers may be had here, just in time for Mothers' Day. This booth will be the first "shop" on the "street" as you enter from Mt. Vernon street.

The Mill Pond Island, so attractive in itself, and inviting with its cedar bough bridge will be more enticing, dressed in colorful Japanese lanterns and cherry blossoms. Here afternoon tea will be served from 2 to 5 o'clock. Tea hostesses are Mrs. William H. Smith, Mrs. Fred Abbot, Mrs. Gardner Pond, Mrs. Leon Hughes and Mrs. Gordan Smith. Assisting with the serving are six High School girls wearing Japanese costumes — Miss Geraldine Moulton, Miss Norris Chal, Miss Marjorie Smith, Miss Janet Burns and Miss Helen Ghirardini. Through the interest of Mrs. Charles Watkins of Ridgefield road, two small native Japanese girls will complete this picture.

A booth which will delight the young shoppers will be the Alice in Wonderland Candy Shop with "Alice" in attendance and the shop front a story book picture, that to describe would spoil all the fun. Br'er Rabbit, the King and Queen will be readily recognized and if all is topsy turvey just remember it is only a looking glass candy shop after all!

The Fair will open at 11 a. m. and those wishing luncheon will find all to their liking at the Sandwich Bar which opens at noon. Mrs. Alvin Litchfield and Mrs. Carl Bolter with Mrs. Charles Hart and Mrs. Donald Boothby helping will make sandwiches to order and have cold drinks or hot coffee ready. So make your luncheon date for Saturday, May 11, and the Sandwich Bar, En Ka Street Fair! Ice cream, to top off with will be found at the "Simco" ice cream motor car, which is managed by Miss Martha Ginn and Miss Margaret Comins of Concord; and not forgetting the popularity and demand for hot dogs the "cart" will be found on the "street" and the "owners" are Mr. Elisha George Pierce, Mr. Alvin Litchfield and Mr. Carl Polter.

Mrs. Marie Chaffee of Watertown, one of En Ka's earliest members is to establish herself as a palmist. Mrs. Chaffee has a reputation for her close readings and many have made an appointment as early as this. Mrs. Samuel Taylor of Bacon street will be the Gypsy partner and gladly usher you in to hear your future if you but cross her hand with silver.

There will be a Knit Shop on the "street," managed by Mrs. R. W. MacArthur, assisted by Miss Flora Locke and Miss Barbara Watters. They will have many attractive wools and costume designs on display. Mrs. Charles Wooley will "keep shop" for them.

And for the little girls who will "come to the Fair," great joy will be found in the doll house, big, little, fair, dark, surely the one each will want. For the past month dozens of dolls have been distributed among friends and are being dressed with hand-sewn clothes. Mrs. Clinton Mason, in charge of the doll house and her assistants, Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth, Mrs. Charles Clarke, Mrs. Donald Gardner, Mrs. Kenneth Moffatt and Mrs. John Wilson, will gladly let you make your choice.

So much to see and do—so much to tell about that the En Ka Street Fair promises to be one of the outstanding civic entertainments we have had in some time. Weather permitting the fair will open at 11 in the morning and though the "shops" will close at 11 in the evening the street dancing will continue until midnight.

In case of a disappointment on account of rain it is planned to postpone the afternoon program one week but in the Town Hall, the bean supper, beano games and dancing will be held as planned on May 11.

PROFESSOR DAVIS DELIGHTS GARDEN LOVERS

The second of three lectures on "The Outdoor Living Room" by Professor Arnold M. Davis, Wednesday evening at the Library, proved to be particularly interesting and helpful. Taking up in detail the question of construction and soil preparation, Mr. Davis explained the importance of the right kind of tools, proper spading and raking and the application of fertilizers. He dwelt particularly on the need of sufficient food for growing things if they are to maintain health and develop properly.

The use of compost, the difference between organic and inorganic materials, and when, how and how much to use of the different kinds was carefully explained.

The slides used in demonstrating the various types of gardens were especially beautiful and instructive.

Mrs I. Bratt, Fortnightly Conservation Chairman, spoke briefly and forcibly on the importance of destroying the tent caterpillar nests immediately before they develop into unsightly, destructive masses—a reflection upon both individuals and communities that harbor them.

Several announcements were made by the president of the club, Mrs. Woodside. Replying to the question of who is eligible to membership in the club she said that any reputable Winchester resident who is interested in gardening and the general purposes of the club is more than welcome. All who join at this time will have 13 months for their year's dues —50 cents. The larger the membership the more funds there will be for more and better programs.

Mrs. Goodwin, Win. 0371, Membership Chairman.

Reference was made to the lecture, "In an Hawaiian Garden" by Alice Cooper Bailey, at the Unitarian Church, May 28. Mrs. Dwight B. Hill, chairman for the event, reports a long list of patrons and patronesses and many tickets sold.

Announcement was made of group meetings on Friday afternoons at 2:30 p. m., with local experienced leaders. The first will be on May 3, when Mr. John Wills will discuss his particular hobby, "Roses." The third lecture by Professor Davis will occur on May 15.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Eight members were absent from the meeting of April 25. A shower of "make-ups" is in order.

This is the last call for attendance at Charter Night of the newly organized Rotary Club of Cranston, R. I., Wednesday, May 1, at 6:30 p. m. At Rhodes Banquet Hall on the Pawtuxet, Cranston, R. I. Tickets $1.50. Dress optional. The Cranston Club will bring the number of Rotary clubs in the 31st District up to 70, a net gain of two during the year.

Past District Governor Ernest Dunbar has been chosen as the first president of the Massachusetts Branch of the International Crippled Children's Society. We congratulate Ernest on his new honor and the Society on its acquisition of a tried and true executive.

Also our good friend Waldo Thompson of the Rotary Club of Woburn has been honored in receiving from his fellow club members a solid gold badge. Waldo has never sought nor received executive honors in Rotary and is the only such Rotarian in this country who has been presented with a gold badge, which speaks volumes for his popularity and useful serice as a Rotarian. In addition he is one of the oldest active Rotarians, being 81 years of age, and is further distinguished by holding an attendance record very close to the 100 per cent mark. His preferment is therefore well earned.

The annual dinner of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce took place Thursday evening, April 25. As has been the custom for several years the Lions Club and the Rotary Club of Winchester joined with the Chamber of Commerce at that time to make the affair a grand symposium of the service clubs of this town. President George H. Lochman of the Chamber of Commerce presided and Fred Scholl a member of both the Chamber and the Lions Club served a delicious dinner, enjoyed by 108 club members and guests. Entertainment was provided by Mrs. Helena Sibley, violinst and Mrs. Clara Reynolds, reader both of this town, and both artists of exceptional ability. President Leslie Scott of the Lions Club, President Harry Winn of the Rotary Club, William N. Beggs representing the Board of Selectmen and William E. Ramsdell, Representative in the General Court, were called on for brief responses. State Senator Charles T. Daly of Medford favored with a highly interesting address descriptive of proposed developments in the Mystic Valley region with special reference to plans for an outlet for the Woburn Parkway through this town.

Charles C. Dasey past president of the Rotary Club of Boston and passenger agent for the Cunard-White Star Steamship Lines, delivered one of those sterling speeches for which he is justly famous. Outlining the origin and development of each of the organizations represented at this meeting, he explained how each had come to be actuated by the desire to serve not only its own interests and the interests of its members but the requirements of the community, the nation and humanity at large. Mr. Dasey closed his address with a stimulating appeal to true patriotism.

The present gathering has proved once again the value of this united action of the municipal service clubs in promoting the acquaintance and consequent desire to serve their community, of the several members of these clubs. For these meetings we bespeak continued and increasing success.

Attendance percentage of the Rotary Club of Winchester, April 18—86.67 per cent.

PRAISE FOR WINCHESTER POLICE

To the Editor of the Star:

May we through the Star express our thanks to the Winchester Police Department for the excellent care its members gave our property during our extended absence from home.

We spent the winter in Miami and arrived in Winchester last Friday evening to find everything at our home just as we left it. As a matter of fact the patrol was at our house the evening we arrived in town, and neighbors have assured us that our property was carefully watched in our absence.

It is worth a lot to property owners absent from town to know that the police are constantly on the lookout for trouble and we wish publicly to express our appreciation of their efforts in our behalf.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fleming.

FINANCE COMMITTEE'S TAX ESTIMATE

In reply to a question asked him by the Star reporter, Frank T. Olmstead, secretary of the Finance Committee during the past year explained the difference in the actual tax rate and the estimated rate of the Finance Committee by the difference in three totals which at the time of the town meeting could only be estimated.

The estimated overlay furnished the Finance Committee by the Assessors was $15,000. The actual figure set aside by the Assessors was $12,413.77, making a difference in the tax rate of eight cents.

The amount of the State and County Taxes was estimated for the Finance Committee as $125,000 and eventually turned out to be $113,170.75, making a difference of 37 cents. Finally the estimated decrease in valuation was more than it actually turned out to be, the figures given the Finance Committee being $31,121,-750. Instead of $31,670,725, the actual figures. The difference in this case amounted to 22 cents, and the three items totaled the 67 cents difference between the actual tax rate and the rate estimated by the Finance Committee at the time of the town meeting.

"Probation After Death" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 28.

The Golden Text is: "God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave: for he shall receive me" (Psalms 49:15).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer: behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried; and ye shall have tribulation ten days; be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life. . . . He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death" (Revelation 2:10, 11).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "If the change called death destroyed the belief in sin, sickness, and death, happiness would be won at the moment of dissolution, and be forever permanent; but this is not so. Perfection is gained only by perfection. . . . The sin and error which possess us at the instant of death do not cease at that moment, but endure until the death of these errors. To be wholly spiritual, man must be sinless, and he becomes thus only when he reaches perfection" (p. 290).

FINANCE COMMITTEE DINED

The Finance Committee of 1934-35, with the outgoing members of 1934, were guests of their chairman, Selectman Raymond S. Wilkins at a dinner and forewell get-together in the Winchester Country Club Wednesday evening.

The affair was delightfully informal, no program being attempted. A social hour was followed by the serving of dinner and after the repast those present sat about in the bonds of good fellowship permitting memory to range at will and recall humerous incidents connected with past gatherings of the committee and the enjoyment of the friendly association which had so often helped to lighten the work that had to be done.

Such speaking as was indulged in was entirely impromptu and enlivened with stories, sparkling and entirely original. Intelligence tests proposed by Mr. Wilkins and Secretary Frank T. Olmstead kept the gathering interested and occupied for a couple of hours.

Among those who attended were Raymond S. Wilkins, Paul F. Avery, Frank T. Olmstead, Thomas Quigley, Jr., Arthur E. Kendrick, Kenneth F. Caldwell, Ambrose E. Kerrigan, Theodore von Rosenvinge, Lorimer B. Slocum, John H. Joy, William H. Magill, Leon D. Hughes, Albert K. Comins, J. Frank Tuttle, G. Russell Mann, Frederick B. Craven and Edward J. Dinneen.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

"Jim" Fitch proved to be Winchester's star performer at the Guide's meet at the Boston Garden. Starting on the opening night he won his favorite event, "The Hand Paddle" and each night thereafter, whenever the schedule placed him on the program he was a winner. In a total of five times up he was responsible for 12 points for Winchester.

Winchester had the distinction of being the only four-boat crew entered to take the tug o' war. After the first night it was changed to a regular paddling race with a turn. The Winchester four of Fitch, Locke, Pistorino and Pratt won from the Nite Owl No. 2 crew, but lost later to Breed's Canoe Club, No. 1.

"Jim" Fitch and "Ken" Pratt lost to the Bingham's of Samoset in the tilting.

The above Winchester team won from Nite Owls, No. 2, in the bucket race but lost to Nite Owls, No. 1 crew of Green and Chapell.

Winchester Boat Club supplied several attendants on various nights during the week and a half of the Guides' Show. Among those present were: "Monk" Russell, "Staff" Rogers, Kirby Thwing, Junior Gustin and Harold Bennett to do their turn around the tank.

Winchester's new and complete trailer situated at the East entrance to the Boston Garden drew much favorable comment.

WINCHESTER DISTRICT NURSING ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting of the Winchester District Nursing Association was held Tuesday, April 16 at the First Congregational Church.

After a short business meeting and the election of the board of 20 members for 1935-36, Mrs. Howard Morrison, the president introduced the guest speaker of the afternoon. He was M. Malcolm Nichols, head of the Family Welfare Society of Boston. His subject was, "New Alignments in Social Service."

Mr. Nichols led his listeners up to the consideration of the present relief system by tracing the history of relief giving. Even 200 years ago there was a system of poor relief in New England, brought here by those first settlers that left England during an Elizabethan depression. It exists today in almost its original form and though antiquated in many ways it has given us a stability in public welfare that is not as apparent in other parts of the country.

As the present depression grew it became clear that the federal government would have to assist local governments in relief work.

The expensive civil works program was put into effect as an emergency measure. It buoyed up the morale of the people. At present the President has $4,880,000,000 made available for relief.

The Federal Government has copied somewhat the New England plan. It believes that local governments should support the unemployable, i. e., the senile misfits, mental cripples, those individuals under 16 or over 65 years of age. But that the Federal Government should assist the employables without work. The assumption is that the country at large is responsible for unemployment.

Every state is swinging into line and modernizing its welfare. Massachusetts has House Bill No. 1074 under consideration which would modernize the whole procedure of relief. Especially would it rid Massachusetts social welfare administrators of awkward settlement law which does not allow an individual to receive relief from a community until as lived there five years. Much valuable time of workers is wasted in finding what town is financially responsible for certain relief. Statistics show one out of six persons in towns is receiving relief. This reveals a very serious situation. Relief is like a snowball. It grows bigger and bigger and tends to undermine self reliance and one's ability to work. However, Mr. Nichols expressed the belief that the present plans for federal and local relief plus the American character will bring us successfully out of the dilemma.

The following were elected members of the board of the District Nursing Association:

President Mrs. Ben R. Schneider
Vice President Mrs. Paul S. Phenix
Secretary Mrs. William C. Cusick
Treasurer Mrs. Gardner T. Pond
Finance Committee Mrs. Edwin P. Rooney, chairman, Mrs. Samuel O. Starrs, Mrs. Charles E. Young, Mrs. Colver P. Dyer
Nursing Committee Mrs. Lester Walker, chairman; Mrs. Paul B. Elliott, Mrs. Walker Jones.
Publicity Committee Mrs. Jamieson S. Slocum, chairman, Mrs. Kenneth Moffat, Mrs. Wade L. Grindle.
Membership Committee Mrs. Lowell Bond, chairman; Mrs. Clarence G. McDavitt, Jr., Mrs. Richard Parkhurst, Mrs. William F. Hickey, Mrs. Allen R. Wyndham.
Nominating Committee Mrs. Albert E. Gledhorge, chairman, Mrs. Joseph W. Butler, Mrs. Robert S. Clark.

"GOLD DIGGERS OF 1935" AT THE UNIVERSITY

"Gold Diggers of 1935," the latest musical spectacle, opens Sunday for three days at the University Theatre. The story is a rollicking comedy with three separate love tangles. There is a play within the play, a wealthy widow producing a milk fund show at a swanky hotel. Dick Powell and Gloria Stuart have the romantic leads, with Frank McHugh and Dorothy Dare in a semi-comic love affair and Glenda Farrell taking an eccentric millionaire over the jumps. Alice Brady has the role of the wealthy widow.

"While the Patient Slept," the companion picture co-starring Aline MacMahon and Guy Kibbie in a thrilling murder mystery drama with a comedy twist. It is based on the popular novel by Mignon C. Eberhart.

On Wednesday, Review Day, the program will include "Back Street" with Irene Dunne and John Boles and "Lady For a Day" with May Robson.

A stellar Hollywood comedy cast brings Harry Leon Wilson's famous story of the English butler in a Western back-woods town to the screen in "Ruggles of Red Gap," which starts Thursday. Heading the cast is Charles Laughton, foremost English actor, in his first full-length comedy role as "Ruggles." He is supported by Mary Roland and Charlie Ruggles, as the famous "Prouds" and by Roland Young, Zasu Pitts, Leila Hyams, Maude Eburne, and Lucien Littlefield in supporting roles. The picture, set in the booming 1900's shows how Ruggles, won in a poker game in Paris, upsets the little town of Red Gap, U. S. A., when he goes democratic in a big way and becomes a gentleman, instead of a gentleman's gentleman.

Damon Runyon's "Princess O'Hara," read by millions of readers of Collier's Magazine last year, is the companion picture. Jean Parker and Chester Morris are co-starred.

Dandelion Leaves

Dandelion leaves contain more protein, fat, carbohydrates, iron and ash than do the leaves of other "greens" but tests fail to show them a better source of vitamins.

The hit of the show was Adrian O'Brien, favorite radio tenor, whose beautiful voice and pleasing manner won his audience from the start. The salvo of applause that greeted his every number was spontaneous and very genuine. The crowd liked him and would have listened to his lovely voice much longer with the same enjoyment.

After singing his radio theme song and the popular "Wagon Wheels," with other favorite numbers, he ruggishly asked if the audience would like "an Irish song" and the burst of applause clearly indicated that just that was what the crowd had been waiting for.

He responded with "That's How I Spell Ireland" and at the special request of the Star reporter, the lovely "I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen." One of his most popular numbers was "When I Get Too Old to Dream."

At the conclusion of the show "Ed" Callahan and his "bully boys" cleared the hall and dancing was enjoyed until 1 o'clock, with music by M'Lelland's Orchestra. The big press of dancers made anything like fancy dancing impossible until late in the evening when those who remained were treated to many of the newest steps by experts.

At the rear of the hall, Randall's, local caterer, served refreshments. The entire note of the party was a happy one, many speaking to the officers of their enjoyment.

Chief William H. Rogers acted as floor marshal with Lieut. John A. Harrold as assistant. President John E. Hanlon of the Relief Association was Floor Director, his assistant being Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell. Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy, Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell and Sergt. Charles J. Harrold were members of the Reception Committee.

Past President, James P. Donaghey acted as chief of aids and his assistants were Patrolmen John H. Boyle, Joseph J. Derro, Henry P. Dempsey, Archie T. O'Connell, William E. Cassidy, John J. Dolan, John J. Murray, James E. Farrell, John F. Hogan, Clarence E. Emery, John J. Regan, Winthrop A. Palmer and D. Irving Reardon.

The officers of the Relief Association include John E. Hanlon, president; Joseph J. Derro, vice president; John J. Dolan, secretary; and D. Irving Reardon, treasurer.

While the regular officers and their guests were making merry at the hall the town was being guarded by special officers, reinforced by members of the State Constabulary.

Special Officer Edmund Rondina, who for several years has filled this important detail, was at the desk in Headquarters, Special Officer M. J. Foley was on duty with a State Trooper in Patrol 51 and Special Officer Stanley Mullen was in Patrol 52 with a State Trooper. Special Officer Joseph Quigley was in the traffic box and Special Officer Frank P. Zuffina was at the Town Hall. Special Officers Norman Harrold, Patrick Toland and John Cline were on patrol duty.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The Winchester World War Mothers are holding a whist Wednesday afternoon, May 1, at the home of Mrs. Blanche Bennett, 36 Highland avenue, commencing at 2 o'clock. All who would care to come are welcome.

The Fire Department was called at 5:00 Wednesday afternoon by an alarm from Arlington Box 378 to assist in putting out a brush fire in Arlington.

Driver Robert Scanlon of the Fire Department's Engine 3, who was returned to his home on Lebanon street last week by the Choate Memorial Hospital in Woburn, is reported as somewhat improved in health and now able to sit up for a little while each day. Fireman Scanlon has been suffering with a form of rheumatism which is particularly painful and weakening and it will be some time before he is able to get about.

Shortly after 11:15 on the night of the holiday Police Headquarters was notified that two men had broken a window in a store in the North End of the town. Patrolman James E. Farrell went to investigate along with the patrol car in which were Sergt. Charles J. Harrold and Patrolman D. Irving Reardon. They found that a large window had been broken in the Cash Market at the corner of Main and Border streets in Woburn. While searching the neighborhood the police came upon two local

LUXEMBOURG: 999 SQUARE MILES OF PROSPEROUS ARCADIA

Citizens of Luxembourg, Europe's last grand duchy, think a lot of their sovereign, Grand Duchess Charlotte. They recently pulled approximately $2,500,000 from their own pockets to purchase for her the three castles which bankruptcy was forcing her to sell. Since tiny Luxembourg's inhabitants number only about 299,782, the amount voted meant an average of eight dollars from each man, woman, and child in the realm.

This is not the first time that Luxembourg subjects have expressed admiration of their ruler, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Given a choice of government in 1919, they cast only 16,885 votes for a republican regime, as against 66,811 votes for having Charlotte on the throne.

Contributes to World's Iron Supply

The generosity of Luxembourg's citizens is understandable when one remembers the extreme prosperity of this diminutive country tucked away in a corner between Belgium, Germany and France. Everyone is employed, either in agriculture, mining, metallurgical or related industries.

Underlying part of Luxembourg are the world's second largest iron ore fields, the Lorraine ore deposits which continue underneath northeastern France and southern Belgium. Luxembourg's wealth comes chiefly from the extraction and smelting of ore. In 1932, this scrap of a country, only 999 square miles in extent, had 16 blast furnaces and seven steel works; it produced 3,211,603 metric tons of iron ore, and 1,955,571 metric tons of steel. Other important industries include the making of gloves, wines, cement, woven wear, fancy leather, paper and tobacco.

Although the soil is not particularly fertile, about one-third of the population is engaged in agriculture, and raises numerous crops successfully by intelligent, scientific farming. Every farm boy attends an agricultural school. A college of agriculture near Ettelbruck offers free diagnosis of soils.

Contains a "Little Switzerland"

Luxembourg's plains are covered with fields of oats and potatoes; orchards; and vineyards, which in a good season yield 1,250,000 gallons of wine. Other crops are wheat, flax, hemp, and rapeseed, from which is extracted an oil used for quenching steel.

Cattle raising is important. Stimulated by prizes offered annually for the finest livestock, Luxembourgers are constantly importing better breeds of cattle and horses from Belgium, as well as goats from Switzerland.

Bordered by France and Germany, Luxembourg recognizes both French and German as its official languages. Though a chip off ancient Germany, and the place of origin of five German emperors, Luxembourg is more French than German in sentiment. During the World War, when the Kaiser, having violated Luxembourg's neutrality, established himself in the city of Luxembourg and sought to join its famous Casino Club, members closed the club. Luxembourg is now united in an economic union with Belgium.

Luxembourg encompasses in a region smaller than Rhode Island a great variety of scenery. Its orchards vineyards, and cultivated fields checker the southern part known as the "Good Country," which lies in the basin of the Moselle River. The southwest country-side, to which black patches of iron ore and refuse give the name, "The Black Country," glows with the fires of blast furnaces and steel works. The eastern part of the duchy is called "Little Switzerland" because of narrow chasms winding among huge fantastic cliffs and forests.

Country of Haunted Castles

The most picturesque scenery is found in the north, where huge plateaus rising 1300 to 1600 feet above sea level, split by deep fissures, often bear ruined castles on their summits. A few of the castles have been converted prosaically into preserve factories or distilleries, but the ruins of many remain untenanted except by wind and rain. Timidly penetrating their somber dungeons and damp subterranean passages, visitors start at mysterious sounds. Guides explain these as the whirring of invisible spinning wheels, the clicking of ghostly dice, or the pattering feet of "the little people."

Overlooked by most tourists seeking the more spectacular offerings of France, Belgium, or Germany, Luxembourg possesses unspoiled beauty. In its capital, cathedral chimes ring out the refrain of the national hymn, which begins "We wish to remain just as we are." This national motto is singularly appropriate. For the country still keeps up its ancient customs, such as pilgrimages to wonder-working statues, and the dancing religious procession at Echternach. Luxembourg men and women working in the fields flock to church when the Angelus rings. A visitor watching them walking slowly across the peaceful countryside, sees a living Millet landscape and catches the spirit of this tiny contented Arcadia.

LONDON'S EXHIBITION HALLS MIRROR ENGLISH LIFE AND TRADE

Buyers of industrial products from five continents recently invaded London's annual British Industries Fair held at Olympia and White City.

East meets West in the great exhibition halls, for here buyers come from Perth and China, Canada and Syria, France and Australia, to window-shop and place orders. They are guided through two miles of stands by a corps of interpreters, and the catalogue is printed in nine languages.

The commercial London, which few tourists ever see, boasts many fine exhibition halls, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The best known is Olympia, while a short distance away are the White City and Earl's Court. They form a little city of spectacular show places not far west of London's aristocratic West End.

Six Acres Under Glass

Olympia, a huge, glass-roofed building covering six acres, is the scene of two outstanding events of the spring in London—the Royal Military Tournament and the Horse Show. This year furniture trades, ideal homes, terrier club, confectionery, radio, shipping, engineering, and automobile exhibits; the Royal Horticultural Society's Flower Show, and a circus and fair will be held there.

In near-by White City are held, under floodlights, rugby football games, and other athletic contests, and greyhound racing, besides many exhibitions. The huge Earl's Court exhibition hall is now closed.

Drab Islington, one of the most populous suburbs of northern London, houses Royal Agricultural Hall, built in 1861. Cattle, horse, and dog shows, used-car, shoe and leather, and brewers exhibits and public works displays spread over its three acres of space, while at Christmas time, there is fun and laughter at the inevitable circus and World's Fair.

Wembley Recalls Britain's "Century of Progress"

In northwest London, a little station called Wembley Park conjures up ghosts of a great exhibition, for here, in 1924 and 1925, was held the British Empire Exhibition. Called "Wemhley" for short, it was to London what "A Century of Progress" was to Chicago, but all that remains today of its halls, oriental temples, artificial lakes, fountains, and walks, is the Empire Stadium. This huge bowl is half as large again as the Colosseum at Rome, and has a seating capacity of 100,000.

When the Empire Stadium is filled for England's great annual soccer game—the Cup Final—the spectator is treated to a thrilling sight. The King and the Prince of Wales present cups and medals to the teams and players, military bands play stirring tunes, thousands of voices join in community singing, airplanes zoom overhead, and England becomes as wildly excited as the United States does during the World Series.

Before the World War, the Cup Final was played in the grounds of the Crystal Palace, the most imposing and romantic Exhibition Hall in London. It is a mammoth, drafty edifice of glass and iron, 1600 feet long, consisting of a great central hall with aisles and two transepts. At either end is a water tower 282 feet high.

The Crystal Palace was originally built in Hyde Park for the Great Exhibition of 1851, but three years later it was moved to its present site on a hill at Upper Norwood, dominating southeast London. For decades, it has blended eucation with the amusement of side-shows, exhibitions, concerts, organ recitals, and firework displays. During the war it was used for training the Royal Naval Division and was nicknamed "H. M. S. Crystal Palace." From 1920 to 1923 it housed the Imperial War Museum.

The Palace now is used for flower, dog, and poultry shows. As side attractions it has a movie house, outboard motor racing on the lake, and thrilling motor cycle races on its dirt track. Radio research is carried on in one of its flanking towers. The 200 acres of grounds are a quaint mixture of ancient and modern, with tennis courts, walks, old classical statuary, row boats, and life-size models of prehistoric animals in their geological formations. The triennial Handel Festivals, reminding American visitors of the famous Bach festivals at Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, are held in the Handel Orchestra auditorium, which can accommodate 4000 persons.

Exhibitions fascinate the British. They find in them, gay spectacles and displays portraying their manners, modes, customs, and habits. The Great Exhibition, however, was a little too much for Charles Dickens, for he wrote to a friend on July 11, 1851: "I find I am used up by the Exhibition. I don't say there is nothing in it—there's too much. I've only been twice; so many things bewildered me . . . . It is a dreadful thing to be obliged to be false, but when any one says a Have you seen—? I say, Yes, because if I don't, I know he'll explain it, and I can't bear that."

WINCHESTER PUBLIC LIBRARY

Library Notes

There are certain to be, always, minor features in every building which are unknown to, or unobserved by those who frequent it. One who is a regular patron of our Public Library becomes so accustomed to the building that only very new features attract attention, while the new-comer observes the library as a whole, failing to notice or realize small, but interesting details. We wonder, therefore, how many know:

That we have a newspaper-clipping file kept up to date on subjects of national and international interest?

That we have bound volumes of the "Winchester Star" from 1899 to the present date?

That in the balconies overlooking the delivery room of the Library are to be found interesting books and periodicals on art and music?

That when the town accepted the library the amount of $8.50 was taken in fines during a year, while now a similar amount may be collected in the course of three or four days?

That in 1860 an average of 75 books per week were in circulation, while now our average daily circulation is almost three times as large?

That our average daily circulation in the adult department is 212, out of which number about 72 per cent is fiction?

That there is a small hall on the lower floor used for meetings of the Garden Club, Art classes, College Club, Historical Society, etc.?

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

Who ever heard of a tramp resisting a rest if one of Chief Roger's men suggested it?

It won't be long now before the mercury will start to go up and then the collars of Winchester's staid citizens will go down.

It seems strange, but it is a fact that a dental sign will often cure a toothache.

Avoid the Winchesterite who looks at your feet and talks to your head.

According to one Winchester fellow a desirable neighbor is a man with no sons to play the saxophone.

Flatter a woman and she wants to believe you whether she does or not.

There are two kinds of girls here in Winchester. Those a young fellow knows and those he would like to know.

Man is made of dust and woman is the feather duster.

Some people right here in Winchester seem to thing the more they frown the wiser they look.

It is always the open season for trouble hunting in and out of fair Winchester, and even the amateur can hit what he is aiming at.

A Winchester woman saw her husband gazing at a young woman on Main street. "You never looked at me like that," she said. And probably the poor fellow was right. If some women would take more pride in their personal appearance, they would keep their hubbies longer and maybe they would not get the habit of gazing so much at other women.

When a fellow proves himself to be a "dud" in his own community he growls that folks do not understand him.

Winchester is the richest town in the world. Every mother's baby is worth a million dollars and then "some" in her estimation.

One Winchester policeman has an eye like an eagle. He can tell when a girl is barelegged or when she is wearing skin colored stockings.

A Winchester man once bottled up a toad in an air-tight jar. It died in three weeks. The Texas toad that lived 33 years in a corner stone no doubt had better air.

Harry Benson of this town is a member of the "Chanting Men," a quartet of selected singers from the newly organized Glee Club representing the School of Medicine at Boston University. Both club and quartet made their debuts at a concert given Wednesday evening in Evans Auditorium, Boston, for the faculty, administrative members and the student body of the school with their guests. Mr. Benson has been for some years a member of the choir at the Church of the Epiphany.

Two Winchester boys, Allan Grant and Rufus "Bim" Clark took a vacation jaunt last week to Woonsocket, R. I., making the trip on their bicycles and covering altogether a distance of 100 miles.

BOWLING LEAGUE TO STAGE BANQUET

The Community Bowling League, which has just completed a most successful season is planning a banquet for all the teams to be held on Wednesday evening, May 1, in Association Hall on Vine street.

A tempting menu is to be offered and an excellent entertainment program will be presented during the evening. Prizes will be awarded and a general good time enjoyed. The "Dan" Lydon is the manager and general royal rooter, again won the league championship, but had to come from behind in its final match to nose out the Legion team which was out in front during much of the latter part of the season. Walter J. "Tonny" Shaughnessy is in general charge of arrangements for the banquet.

MALDEN STRAND THEATRE

"When Strangers Meet," starring Richard Cromwell and Arlene Judge, will head the double bill opening at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "When Strangers Meet" is adapted from a story by Zona Game and concerns the activities of a group of people living in a bungalow court. Arlene Judge is cast as the daughter of a hard-drinking but loveable gardener. She falls in love with Richard Cromwell whose father owns the bungalow court where they live. Others who live in the court and play an important part in the film are Hale Hamilton, Barbara Weeks, Sarah Padden, Maude Eburne and Shelia Terry.

Thrilling mystery, tingling suspense and the most novel detective plot ever presented on the screen are the features of "Sing Sing Nights," the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. An outstanding cast which includes Conway Tearle, Boots Mallory, Hardie Albright, Mary Doran and Jameson Thomas play the more important roles. The film tells the story of three men, each condemned to die for the murder of a famous newspaper correspondent, and the novel means used by a criminologist to determine which man actually fired the fatal shot.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

One of the strongest programs of the season presenting "Mississippi" with Bing Crosby and W. C. Fields, plus "The Folies Bergere" starring Maurice Chevalier, Ann Sothern and Merle Oberon, will open a seven day run at the Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "Mississippi" is a story of the South in the days when ladies swooned and man fought duels for entertainment. Bing Crosby, as the Yankee sweetheart of Gail Patrick, declines to fight a duel for his lady love and is branded a coward. W. C. Fields is as funny as ever as a blustering braggart who talks a better fight than he ever saw. One of the outstanding scenes of this film is Crosby's singing of the old favorite "Swanee," with the assistance of a chorus of 40 Negro voices.

"Folies Bergere," is gay, fanciful and Parisian to the core and an ideal starring vehicle for Maurice Chevalier. Chevalier is cast as an entertainer who makes a hit each night by impersonating a famous Baron. "Folies Bergere" is a musical film with beautiful staged numbers and plenty of singing by inimitable Chevalier.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

Starting Saturday, April 27, and continuing for one week, the Mystic Theatre in Malden are presenting without doubt the best program ever shown in this theatre. "It Happened One Night" and "One Night of Love." For the first time in the history of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences one picture was awarded five major prizes. "It Happened One Night" was chosen as the best picture of the year, Clark Gable who is co-starred with Claudette Colbert in the picture, was given the prize for the best performance of any male screen player. When played on the same program with "One Night of Love," the most glorious musical romance of all time, it is without doubt the greatest and most enjoyable evening's entertainment anyone could possibly wish to have. For the first time the venerable Society of Arts and Sciences, (this must not be confused with the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences), has recognized the motion picture industry recently in awarding a fellowship and gold medal to Grace Moore for distinctive service in the arts. There are two motion pictures that have been showered with honors by all parts of this country and Europe. One is a high class comedy drama with dialogue that just sparkles with its brilliancy; the other is a beautiful romance woven around the life of a young girl who aspires to an operatic career and played by Grace Moore, whose voice is the most glorious thing ever heard through the medium of the talking screen.

A group of young people in the vicinity of Pierrepont road deserve the thanks of the community for their efforts in collecting and destroying about 2200 egg clusters of tent caterpillars, thus preventing the hatching of approximately 600,000 caterpillars. All interested in the welfare of the town's beautiful trees will be delighted to hear of this fine example of good citizenship. Among those who helped were Nancy Wolfe, "Joe" Burton, Thelma and Virginia Bratt and Donald Dolan.

W. C. T. U. MEETING

The April meeting of the Winchester Union, W. C. T. U. was held at the Home for Aged People, and, as always, was a very enjoyable gathering. Although it came on Patriot's Day, the meeting was very well attended.

The devotional exercises were conducted by the president, Mrs. Alfred W. Friend, with selections appropriate to the Easter season, and then there was a brief business session.

The program of the afternoon was both varied and interesting. Mr. Victor Bridge pleased with his singing of "Santa Lucia" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," accompanied by Miss Delia Whitney.

Following this Mrs. Edward S. Winn read an entertaining story, "A Unique Contest."

This was followed by a series of enjoyable violin duets and solos played by Barbara Hughes and Laura Sibley accompanied by Mrs. Helena G. Sibley. They opened their program with "Caprice Viennois" as a duet, after which Miss Hughes played "Serenade D'Amour," and Miss Sibley, "Spanish Dance." Then together again they played Beethoven's "Minuet in G," and for an encore, "Gilbert and Sullivan" all of which were enthusiastically received.

Mrs. Marguerite Blank in her own inimitable manner read "The Seven Ages of Woman" and "The Road to Mandalay."

The program closed with a solo by Mr. Bridge, "In the Time of Roses," and two readings, "The Irish Fruit Pedlar" and "Jamie Loves Me," by Mr. Blank.

Ice cream and cake were served and a pleasant time spent "visiting."

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Lower prices on eggs and butter are here but there is no promise that they will stay. Several vegetables are also cheaper including onions and cabbage, which for several weeks have been prohibitively priced. Asparagus, green peas and lima beans are also more moderate. Potatoes continue to be high. Green beans and spinach are relatively high, but new beets and carrots are cheap.

All meats but lamb are high, and stormy weather has made fish rather scarce and high. However, fish twice a week will help to keep the food budget in order as it is sure to be plentiful and inexpensive again before long.

It is about time to do any preserving of strawberries, pineapple or rhubarb or combinations of these as they are now plentiful and moderate in price.

Here are three menus made up of reasonable foods adapted to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner

Veal Chops — Milk Gravy
Baked Potatoes — Buttered Beets
Bread and Butter
Deep Dish Apple and Rhubarb Pie
Tea or Coffee — Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Braised Chuck Roll — Potatoes
Carrots — Onions — Tomato Salad
Bread and Butter
Floating Island
Tea or Coffee — Milk

Very Special Dinner

Cream of Asparagus Soup
Roast Beef or Lamb — Br'nd Potatoes
Green Peas
Green Salad — French Dressing
Rolls and Butter — Banana Sponge
Coffee — Milk

HALT SPENDING TO PREVENT A "MESS"

"Unless our Government now begins to curtail its reckless spending this country will be in a stinking mess," Roger W. Babson declared, in an address before members of the Babson Institute Alumni Association of New York City Monday night. "There has never been one instance," Mr. Babson said, "where a national currency has been destroyed without leaving revolution in its wake. We are already in the rapids and are racing toward the falls.

Mr. Babson warned that such a revolution would be made up of the 1,000,000 youths now unemployed, "over 600,000 of whom will be training in CCC camps for the very purpose of revolution." He asserted that the "same gamblers who in previous years have financed Wall Street pools, Florida booms and wholesale bootlegging" would supply the money for the upheaval.

Declaring that world stability and peace depended solely upon this country and Great Britain, Mr. Babson asked: "Should the ultimate welfare of 125,000,000 people be blotted out in order that our present unsuccessful alphabetical experiments be continued longer?" Earlier in his talk he had stated that "never before in the history of the world has any nation so deliberately unbalanced its budget as the United States is doing at the present time."

Mr. Babson suggested three remedies:

1.—Return to the fundamental principles of honesty, industry, thrift and unselfishness.

2.—A coalition government for four or eight years whereby both political parties will forget themselves and unite for the common good.

3.—All senators should be given their full salaries for life in order to offset the "bullying and threats of blocs."

WINCHESTER TOURISTS SAILED

Several residents and others well known in Winchester sailed Patriots' Day afternoon from India Wharf in Boston on the S.S. St. John for a Bermuda cruise. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Kelley of Sheffield west, Mr. and Mrs. John Carruthers of Orient street, Miss Elizabeth Downs of Arlington street, Miss Mary Crosby of Stoneham, a member of the National Bank clerical staff; and Miss Grace Van Buskirk, nurse at the Winchester Division of the New England Laundries.

WEEK-END FIRES

The holiday afternoon at 12:40, Box 33 was sounded for a grass fire near the residence of Mr. John Murphy of 547 Washington street.

At 12:44 Sunday morning an overheated tire caught fire on an Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Bus on Main street near the Mystic School. Box 27 was sounded and the firemen prevented any damage to the bus beyond some scorching of the body above the wheel.

The Water and Sewer Department lost one of its trucks taking on the pipe cleaning job at the corner of Church and Bacon streets early Sunday morning. The machine, one of the oldest in the service of the town, developed trouble with its gasoline line and went quickly and very much on fire. Box 53 was sounded at 4:19 o'clock and brought the fire department to the scene, but the fire had progressed too far to permit the men to save much of the machine.

SOLVED MISSING CAKE MYSTERY

For several weeks previous to Tuesday, Franklin Neal of 29 Orange street, Woburn, manager of the First National Store at 167 Washington street had been missing large boxes of cake left at his store by the baker, and repeated attempts on his part to catch the persons responsible had failed.

Tuesday morning shortly after 7 o'clock, Patrolman William E. Cassidy of the Police Department with the First National Superintendent, Maurice Hambro of 39 Walnut street, Revere, went to the store, and with Manager Neal, took up positions at strategic points.

It was not long before Patrolman Cassidy saw a 16-year old boy approach the store and take the newly delivered box of cake. Patrolman Cassidy gave chase and arrested the youngster in the rear of a neighboring house. The police say he admitted having taken other boxes of cake previously.

In the District Court at Woburn the boy was given a suspended sentence to the Shirley School.

WINCHESTER HIGH SCHOOL BOYS' BICYCLE TRIP

Peter Scully of Sheffield road and Peter Sibley of Mason street, high school students, had an interesting bicycle trip during the vacation period to the White Mountains. Their first stop was after a 54 mile pedaling to Salem, N. H., through Derry to Manchester where an over night stop was made at the Carpenter Hotel.

The next day was used up in a 50 mile bicycle journey to Suncook, Concord and return to Hampsted, N. H., where the boys camped with another high school student, Ben Schneider. The tour was then continued by the boys through the territory in and around Long Lake. During the visit to the Schneider Camp at Long Lake the boys went fishing, and the most interesting point was that all meals were prepared by the boys out doors.

They all returned to Winchester on Sunday after completing a pedaling journey of approximately 200 miles. This trip was a preliminary one to a longer journey which is estimated at 600 miles, which the boys intend taking immediately after school closes in June, doing it all on bicycles which will begin at Winchester through the entire range of White Mountains, out door campjing and to end at East Jaffrey, N. H., where the boys intend to visit the camp of "Bim" Clark who also will be in the party.

The "Key to the Culbertson System for 1935," as arranged by Harold Sharpsteen is being given, free, to visitors at the salesroom of Kelley & Callahan, Inc., at 18 Thompson street.

This little book represents a special supplementary edition to the sixth regular printing of "The Key to Contract," Red Book, by Harold Sharpsteen. It sets forth Mr. Sharpsteen's resume and analysis of the outstanding changes in the Culbertson System for 1935, as recently announced by Ely Culbertson, on the refinements of expert bidding and for which the public in general was not previously prepared.

Mr. Sharpsteen is well known by bridge players as an associate of Ely Culbertson, as officer in many bridge associations and is nationally known as a writer, lecturer, broadcaster and teacher.

The "Key to the Culbertson System" is a clear and concise presentation of the new method of bidding and has been very favorably received. WASHINGTON SNAP-SHOTS

A picture of Washington today would defy any camera—or even words—to portray. Momentous legislation awaits in Congress, measures that are more important than those of 1933, for they are designed for permanency rather than temporary relief. As a result the hotels and the halls of Congress are filled with those giving warning against any of these proposals and their effect upon recovery.

In the steadily expanding Government departments and bureaus—with their increased personnel and payrolls—things move at top speed reminiscent of war days. Although in the past ten years many large and beautiful government buildings have been erected, the Government bureaus have overflown into all available office space in the city. Rented office space is on the upgrade, as Washington control of local affairs expands.

David Lawrence, eminent newspaper correspondent, describes the situation in this manner:

"The real problem of the moment is for those persons who come to Washington to see their representatives in Congress on business. Many a company is faced with ruin by pending legislation. Many a company will have its operations materially curtailed or restrained if some of the bills go through. Should all the Administration measures be passed, for instance, there will be a revolutionary change in the management of businesses related to foods, drugs, cosmetics, agricultural products that are processed, public utilities, banks and trust companies, certain aspects of advertising, and manufacturing establishments that employ large numbers of employees, especially as labor relations may produce more strikes and more labor controversies."

Illustrative of these dangerous bills is the Social Security legislation which would embark America upon a huge program of welfare work. Discussing this problem the Washington Post points out that "if this initial effort to establish a system of Federal old age pensions and provide other forms of social relief were less ambitious and if an attempt had been made to keep costs within reasonable limits, the program would have a much better chance of succeeding. As it is the heavy burdens which the Doughton bill proposes to place upon industry and upon the Federal government would doubtless increase the economic insecurity of the workers whom the bill is designed to safeguard against the major hazards and vicissitudes of life."

Latest reports from the Commerce Department showed better business conditions in February over the preceding month and February of last year, with employment, payrolls, farm income and distribution improved. Reports from the steel industry showed an aggregate loss of $24,500,000 in 1934. This made a total loss over the past four years of $285,000,000.

Into consideration of pro-union labor legislation in Washington came an unwholesome picture recently of union activity. An expose by the Government in Chicago, which reached the Capital, showed the business agent for the Motion Picture Operators Union, who was slain recently, with a $1000 bathroom and a $5000 bar in his home, and $24,000 expenses for a grand trip through Europe, all paid for by union activities. In the investigation by Federal agents, deals involving hundreds of thousands of dollars were turned up, and other incidents to high living of union organizers were turned up while "cutting" the wages of workers, and at times double-crossing them by taking money from the other side.

Processing Taxes Seen as Double Boomerang

Washington (UPS)—Farmers are paying the highest proportion of their own processing tax "benefits" and are losing their domestic and world markets on the very products they hoped would restore them to prosperity.

This was the substance of a clear-cut description of the processing tax situation presented to the Senate Committee on Education and Labor by Donald Comer, Birmingham Ala., textile manufacturer and chairman of the Rural Rehabilitation Committee of Alabama. His reference to processing taxes was made as incidental to an appeal for rejection of the Wagner Labor Disputes bill to make the government a recruiting sergeant for labor unions.

Hog raisers who joined the AAA curtailment program are losing their lard markets to other shortening products, especially those produced as a by-product of cotton seed, Mr. Comer said. He pointed out that cotton seed increased in price to $50 a ton, due largely to a reduction in the hog lard supply. He described cotton textiles as hardest bit by the curtailment program and processing taxes, "because we are losing our world markets."

The policy of levying processing taxes on a poundage basis placed the bulk of this new tax burden right on the farmer's doorstep, Mr. Comer said, because, in the case of cotton goods, the farmers buy much of the heavier materials. He illustrated by pointing out that the increase in the price of a pair of overalls made necessary by the processing tax is from three to six times as much as the increases made necessary on equal yardage of finer materials.

As a remedy, Mr. Comer recommended a sales tax, whereby consumers would pay in proportion to the price of each article.

Not a Matter of Politics

Huge expenditures for relief, experiments and social developments have reached the point where politics is laid aside while Democrats and Republicans alike warn that the Government can not continue to pour out billions of dollars without retarding recovery and endangering the jobs of the millions working.

The danger is obvious that in following hastily thought out schemes to aid those out of work the Government might make the position of the unemployed worse and throw many of the vast majority now working onto the relief rolls.

This viewpoint was expressed by Democrats and Republicans as the past new relief bill was forced through Congress.

"I want unemployment relief that gives relief and will continue to give it as long as relief is necessary," said Senator Barbour, a New Jersey Republican. . . . "I voted against a further four billion dollars for more public works because obviously such a program will not keep pace with unemployment and is the most costly approach to relief. It is an approach that no country can continue to pursue."

And Senator Van Nuys, an Indiana Democrat, said:

"I thoroughly appreciate the fact that such severe drains upon the Federal Treasury cannot continue indefinitely. Sooner or later we shall reach the bottom of the barrel.

"As I see it the instant duty of the Administraion and the Congress is to encourage the states and private industry to rehabilitate themselves through their own efforts.

"I deplore the growing tendency to depend more and more upon Federal aid."

The Nation cannot afford to ignore such statements from able and experienced Senators speaking the thoughts of their people back home.

Move to Speed 30-Hour Bill Meets Resistance

Washington—(UPS)—The Black 30-hour-week bill received hard blows from two directions as an effort was made to bring the bill up for action in the Senate. First, the Senate, by a 56 to 21 vote, supported the Roosevelt administration and laid the bill "on the shelf" until the fate of the National Industrial Recovery Act is determined. Second, the bill drew new fire from the farm press, with the Prairie Farmer, Chicago, leading the attack.

The 30-hour bill would limit earning capacity by not permitting more than 30 hours of work a week, and woud increase living costs.

In expressing the growing opposition of farmers to the Black bill, the Prairie Farmer said:

"The farmer cannot understand all this talk about a 30-hour week. He can understand why city workers should want to earn all the money they can, but he cannot understand how they can expect to get good wages without producing in proportion. He knows that if he were to try to operate his farm on a 30-hour week basis, food would have to bring prices that most city folks could not pay. He fears that similar short hours in the city will raise prices of manufactured goods to a level he cannot pay."

Little Demand for Wagner Bill

With Senate Committee hearings concluded on the Wagner Labor Disputes Bill, it is now possible to compute the sum total of support expressed for this proposed law. The transcript of hearings is not yet available, but persons who "kept tab" on witnesses who spoke for the bill say the advocates were confined almost entirely to professional labor organizers, reformers and a few government officials. Very little support was expressed by industrial workers, and that goes for trade union members as well as non-members. The much-touted demand for more Washington bureaucracy is exposed as more fiction than fact.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

The Basis of Character

No individual can hope to be called a worthy citizen of a community who does not have a fair moral character. The basis of such a character is virtuous principle, a deep, ingrained sense of moral obligation, sustained and invigorated by te fear and love of God. The man who possesses such a character is a mighty valuable asset for any community. He can be trusted. Integrity, truth, benevolence, justice, are not with him words without meaning; he knows and he feels their sacred import, and aims in the whole tenor of his daily dealing with his fellowmen to exemplify the virtues they express. Such an individual has decision of character. He knows what is right, and intends to do it regardless of anything or anybody. What a relief it is to deal with a man or woman who has consistency of character, who pursues a straight forward course—who is today what he will be tomorrow and the day after and next week and next month and next year, if God spares him.

No person can hope to pass the ordeals of life in safety unless his outward virtues derive vitality and vigor from an inward religious life. To be perennial, the stream must proceed from a living spring; to be fruitful, the tree must spread its roots in a congenial soil; so, to insure the possession of uprightness through the manifold trials of human life, the soul of a man must be in full harmony with God, must take the Ten Commandments at their face value.

Greatly good men are always "like solitary towers in the city of God; and secret passages, running deep beneath external nature, give their thoughts intercourse with higher intelligences, which strengthens and controls them."

GOLF SEASON OPENED AT COUNTRY CLUB

While the official golf season at the Winchester Country Club opened on the holiday there were not many on the local course that day and nothing in the way of a tournament was attempted. The preceding cold weather had evidently dampened the ardor of the local enthusiasts and as a consequence only individual competition was in order and no scores were announced.

On Saturday afternoon there was a handicap medal tournament, but only relatively a few participated and the following were the only cards turned in:

Class A

R. F. Conners	79	63
S. Walker	79	74
A. P. Chase	78	74
L. S. Marvin	83	74

Class B

W. W. Smart	92	74

This tournament served as an introduction of three class golf at the local country club, at least so far as tournament play is concerned. Class C golfers include those with handicaps from 21 to 32, and most clubs have had competition in this class for some time.

At the Winchester club this week it was reported that the cold and uncertain weather has retarded the schedule, but that with the advent of some warm days things will commence to hum in real earnest.

WINCHESTER BOYD REPRESENTATIVES WON

In an exciting bowling match on the Winchester Alleys last week Wednesday evening the Winchester salesmen and representatives of W. T. Boyd & Son, milk dealers, won three points and lost one to the company's representatives from Nashua, N. H.

The New Hampshire "Boyders" have been flaunting their bowling prowess in the faces of the Winchester boys until a challenge was issued and the match arranged.

There was some good rolling on both teams, but the Winchester outfit had the edge with Erb showing the way, rolling 312 on a single of 115 to lead both teams. Reed's 113 was second high single.

Following is the summary:

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC YUKON EXPEDITION "DIGS IN" IN UNEXPLORED MOUNTAIN REGION

After photographing from the air the hitherto unknown upper course of a large stream, the Alsek River in southwestern Yukon Territory, Bradford Washburn, leader of the National Geographic Society's Yukon Expedition, has joined the remainder of his party at his base camp in the heart of an unexplored mountain region near the Alaskan border, and will be out of touch with civilization for several weeks.

Word of Washburn's completion of his aerial surveys and of his start on intensive exploration work and surveying on the surface was received at National Geographic Society headquarters here when the airplane, which took him 150 miles to the west into the wilderness of peaks and glaciers, returned to Carcross, Yukon Territory.

Important Discoveries Made

In aerial surveys and photographic flights made several weeks ago, Washburn discovered the existence of an unsuspected mountain range approximately 50 miles long with at least 20 peaks more than 10,000 feet high; found three huge unexplored glaciers; and determined that the famous Hubbard Glacier, which pours its ice into Yakutat Bay, is nearly twice as long as it was supposed to be. Extremely bad weather delayed the final photographic flight just reported.

The base camp which probably will be the headquarters of the expedition until late in May, will lie on the face of one of the newly discovered glaciers that flows from Mount Hubbard. The five members of the party who preceded the leader, have already advanced 30 miles up the glacier since they, their supplies, and their dog team were set down on the ice by plane two weeks ago. Skis and the dogs are beng used in this work.

A thousand-foot ice-fall rises just above the tents as Washburn found them. Everything will be moved up this frozen cascade to the final site of the base camp on the smoother slopes above. From this position the party will be in reach of a vast unknown tract at the head of Hubbard Glacier which they will explore and map.

HANNIBAL, MISSOURI, HONORS MARK TWAIN, A FAMOUS SON

Dedication of a memorial lighthouse on Cardiff Hill, overlooking the Mississippi River at Hannibal, Missouri, recently opened the centennial celebration of the birth of Mark Twain (Samuel L. Clemens). Other cermonies are being planned in Elmira, New York; Hartford, Connecticut; New York City, and Bermuda—all of which were intimately connected with the later life and writings of the famous humorist.

As the little white town drowsing in the sunshine, described in the novels Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer, Hannibal is perhaps the best-known small town in the United States, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Now a City of 23,000

Countless thousands of readers in many lands (Mark Twain's works have been translated into a score of languages) know Cardiff Hill, Jackson and Turtle Islands, McDougal's Cave, the Mississippi River, and the whitewashed board fences which form the background for the most popular stories of American boyhood ever written.

Meanwhile the little white town has grown up into a busy community of 23,000 persons—the seventh largest city in Missouri and the fourth industrially. Its steamboat landing, where the youthful Sam Clemens was inspired by the stories and legends of daring pilots and imaginative negro roustabouts, is no longer as important commercially as its railroad lines, trunk highways, shoe factories, cement works, car shops, and woodworking plants.

Yet Hannibal has never forgotten its most famous son. His boyhood home, the house built by his father in 1844, is preserved by the city as a shrine and museum. It contains a unique collection of relics and many articles of household equipment which give an excellent idea of how people of ordinary means lived in a Mississippi River town during the forties and fifties of the 19th century. Atop Cardiff Hill which Mark Twain describes as green with vegetation, set just far enough away to seem a Delectable Land dreamy, reposeful, and inviting, rises the new memorial lighthouse, an octagonal shaft 75 feet high, whose beacon sheds its rays on all the scences of the writer's youth.

North of Cardiff Hill a bit of wooded highland has been set aside as a public park. Here, overlooking the long reaches of the river he loved so well, stands a bronze statue of Mark Twain. From Inspiration Point, the Mississippi is a thing of beauty on moonlight summer nights, when the shimmering surface of Ol' Man River is dotted with pleasure craft, and now and then the lights of a large excursion steamboat.

New Bridge Across Mississippi

Just under the foot of the hill stands another memorial—the Huck and Tom Monument. Bronze figures depict two carefree, barefoot boys swinging along in search of adventure. The old swiming hole and fishing bank along the Mississippi, near the Huck and Tom Monument, is today the scene of construction activities for a $2,000,000-highway bridge being built across the river.

Two miles south of Hannibal is McDougal's Cave, whose gloomy recesses and legendary lore offered such a rich setting for the adventures of Huck and Tom. Today it is called Mark Twain Cave, its bats have been banished, and gates and a watchman preclude its use as a refuge for criminals, such as Injun Joe. But one may still see the cryptic marking No. 2 under the cross, and scores of names and dates carved in the rocks, or smoked on them with candles.

Citizens of Hannibal also point out the home of Becky Thatcher, Tom Sawyer's sweetheart, who in real life was Laura Hawkins; the site of the print shop of Orion Clemens where his younger brother Sam served as a printers's apprentice and gained his first knowledge of the world of letters; a street renamed Mark Twain Avenue; and a dozen other places that link fact and fiction so intimately in this historic old town, affectionately masked under the name St. Petersburg in Mark Twain's writings.

Another Missouri community shares honors with Hannibal during the centennial. The little village of Florida, about 30 miles southwest of Hannibal, is the actual birthplace of the writer, but his family moved to Hannibal when Samuel was four years old. As the humorist spent all of his boyhood and part of his young manhood in and about Hannibal, the city has always claimed him as a native son. Strictly speaking, however, Mark Twain is a stranger to Hannibal. The pen name Mark Twain (a riverman's call meaning two fathoms, or twelve feet) was not adopted by the famous humorist until he was a newspaperman in Nevada years later.

Early this spring Hannibal will open a special Mark Twain Museum in a bank about four blocks from the Clemens' home. Here will be displayed a loan exhibition of original manuscript and personal belongings of the writer. During the summer there will be a Homecoming Pageant, a Tom Sawyer's Day, an Old-fashioned Singing School contest, and other activities. The celebration will close with a banquet at Hannibal on Mark Twain's birthday, November 30

HORSE SHOW COMING

The Winchester Horse Show will be held on Saturday, May 18 at Good's Riding School in Medford. This is the fourteenth successive year of this interesting sports event which always attracts so many persons of social importance.

In June, 1921, the first horse show was given in Winchester under the auspices of the Pop Concert Committee, at Agremont, the estate of Mrs. Oren C. Sanborn. The Pop Concert committee, formed in 1907, had given several thousands of dollars to the Winchester Hospital, having assumed much financial responsibility of equipment at various stages of the hospital's growth. The idea of a horse show originated with the then Miss Helen Sanborn, who acted as secretary of the show and it was so successful both socially and financially that it was decided to make it an annual affair.

Mrs. Oren C. Sanborn is chairman of this year's Winchester Horse Show Committee, with Miss M. Alice Mason as treasurer, Dr. Mary T. Maynard as secretary and Miss Constance Greco as assistant secretary. Others on the committee include Mr. Arthur Black, Mr. John P. Marston, Mrs. Helen Sanborn Ralf, Miss Marjorie Danforth, Mrs. Gladys Marchant, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Burkard, Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. J. Westley Dennis and Mr. and Mrs. William K. Irving.

Winchester exhibitors will include Miss Gladys Marchant, who will show her chestnut mare, Bit o' Glory, which won the blue at the recent Worcester Horse Show; Miss Constance Greco, grey gelding Greylight, which won the blue and several other awards at the same show, and Miss Helen Bowmer, who exhibits Dixiana Wonder, a three-gaited saddle horse from Dixiana Farms. Miss Pearl Campbell, now working with a promising youngster, will be absent this year, her horse being not quite ready for showing.

FISHERMAN'S SUNDAY NEXT SUNDAY AT FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Arrangements this year are in charge of Mr. Vincent Farnsworth and Mr. Harris S. Richardson. Special seats will be reserved for the fishing fraternity who will be greeted at the door by Mr. Farnsworth and Mr. Richardson. Dr. Chidley will give a special address on "Fishing Fever."

Whether lovers of the out-of-doors have received a special invitation to this service or not, they are heartily welcome. The service has grown in popularity from year to year. It is unique, and has always attracted not only fishermen, but many others as well.

Mrs. James Dwinell, Jr. and Mrs. Stephen Neiley are making the smoke shop one that is different. It will be located near the street dancing, and here you will find your favorite brand —and many clever smoking accessories.

It is announced that Mel von Rosenvinge, of Winchester, and his orchestra are to furnish the music for the street dancing, from 8:30 o'clock until midnight; Washington street from the beacon to the Legion House, will be closed, and partly roped off for the dancing. Mrs. Stephen Neiley and a large committee have charge of this entertainment. En Ka members are Mrs. Charles Wooley, Mrs. James Dwinell, Jr., Miss Alice Rogers and Mrs. C. M. Mensch, they will be assisted at the dance by a large group of floor managers.

With Beano games so popular the Fair would not be complete without tables. The prizes are to be worth trying for and, under the management of Mrs. John Kenerson, Mr. Richard Fenno and Mr. Clinton Mason, these games will be run off quickly and the play will be exciting.

Mrs. Franklin Flanders and Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth are in charge of the balloon booth. The balloon girls are Miss Marjorie Danforth, Mrs. E. Carleton Nickerson of Cambridge, Miss Ruth Aseltine, Miss Elizabeth Chadwick, Miss Gretchen Stone, Miss Elizabeth Sexton and Miss Katharine Davenport.

Winchester High School boys will be barkers. Mr. Kenneth Pratt is to help with the games and all grown-ups will find much to amuse them in the midway.

Mrs. Robert T. Burr and Miss Edna Hatch, principal of the Washington School, are helping Mr. Stuart Bace arrange an interesting exhibit and sale of the Art Class under his direction; also Mr. W. H. W. Bicknell, nationally known artist, will hang several etchings and life sketches; Mr. Wesley Dennis will show his interesting portrait work, and has consented to do life sketches for a short time, both afternoon and evening. Mr. George Budd also will have a few etchings, block prints and some delightful crayon scenes. Mrs. Fuller Brown, whose stage setting won the Theatre Guild prize last year will offer a few designs. Mrs. Rowena W. Hallowell, who, with Mrs. Hollis A. Nickerson has done very tinished clay modeling will show her figurines Norton will lend a few very clever —Professor and Mrs. Frederick H. small models. CHORAL SOCIETY CLOSED SIXTH SEASON

Chorus and Gertrude Ehrhart in Excellent Program

The Winchester Choral Society, of which J. Albert Wilson is director, gave the closing concert of its sixth season Tuesday evening in the Town Hall, presenting the following program: Bach, "Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee;" Rheinberger, "The Stars Are Shining in Heaven"; Anton Rubinstein, "Seraphic Song" (with contralto solo by Josephine L. Taylor and violin obligato by Armand Leuci); Sullivan, "Chorus of Peers" from "Iolanthe" (men's voices); Brahms, "Chorus of Homage"; two Negro spirituals, (a) "Swing Low Sweet Chariot", (b) "It's Me O Lord"; Purcell, "Passing By" (men's voices) Schubert, "By the Sea" (men's voices); Tschaikovsky, "Dance of the Reed Flutes" (Nutcracker Suite); Tschaikovsky, "Trepak" (Nutcracker Suite); and Martin, "Come to the Fair."

The guest artist, Gertrude Ehrhart, soprano, sang: Donizetti, "O Luce di Quest Anima" from "Linda di Chamounix"; Foote, "Constancy"; Clark, "Shy One"; Walker, "Sleep Song"; Foote, "Love Me and I Live"; and Buzzi-Peccia, "Under the Greenwood Tree (text by Shakespeare).

Mary Ranton Witham accompanied both the chorus and soloist, and the assisting pianist in the Bach and Martin numbers was Jancy L. Wilcox. The large audience that comfortably filled both halls and balconies was especially responsive and enthusiastically applauded both chorus and soloist, on several occasions literally demanding encores.

Many regular Choral Society patrons feel that Tuesday evening's concert was the best that the Society has given since its inception. Surely the chorus never sang with finer precision, nor with more general musical intelligence. Skilled training and faithful rehearsing have developed an esprit de corps which was most apparent in the flexibility and responsiveness of the singers to their leader's demands, musical refinements which set this most recent performance in the front processors, fine though the latter have been. Deprived of several fine voices through illness and other unavoidable absence, the chorus nevertheless sang with a fine quality of tone and an abundance of power in the louder passages. At no time did the softest music drag and there was no noticeable deviation from pitch in the selections sung without accompaniment.

Worshippers at the Bach shrine were treated to a superb rendition of his chorale which opened the program, the chorus singing with all the breadth of tone, excellence of phrasing and clean cut attacks and releases so necessary for an acceptable performance of Bach's choral style. In the lovely number by Rheinberger the singers displayed a fine regard for nuance and a beautiful flowing legato that brought out all the wealth of harmony in this appealing composition.

Outstanding on the entire program was the Society's performance of Rubinstein's "Seraphic Song," a vocal arrangement of the familiar and favorite "Kamenoi Ostrow," with contralto solo and violin obligato. Mrs. Taylor sang the solo passages beautifully with a quality of tone unusual in a contralto and an appealing manner that won the admiration of the entire audience. There was no lack of tonal quality throughout her performance despite the exacting demands of the score, her highest notes being entirely pleasing while her lowest tones were round and full with no hint of dullness.

Mr. Leuci's obligato was well played with a singing tone and sufficient volume to be effective. His solo passages added greatly to the pleasure of the number, and the work of the chorus, too, contributed to the general excellence. Notable were the passages sung by Mrs. Taylor and the alto section, the sustained singing of the unusually long phrases creating a beautiful tone and the thrilling full voiced singing of the chorus just before the number's ending.

Enthusiastic applause greeted this selection and despite its length an encore was demanded. A repeat was also necessary after the difficult Brahms number with its alternate singing of the women's and men's choirs and closing full chorus. Only those who have attempted to sing music of this type in the Town Hall can at all appreciate the Society's performance of this particular selection.

The chorus was especially fortunate in its singing of the two spirituals, its performance of the rhythmic "It's Me O Lord" having a tremendously popular appeal. The tenors achieved a fine thin head tone in the soft echo passages which opened and closed the number and the syncopated melody between was sung with a swing that was irresistible but at no time exaggerated. Perhaps the most difficult bit of singing on the entire program was the closing passages of this spiritual, the entrances and releases being especially trying, yet they were faultlessly done and repeated, in response to real demand, without the assistance of the piano.

Happily chosen and in widely varying styles were the two selections by Tschaikovsky, both vocal arrangements from the famous "Nutcracker Suite." The delicate staccato of the "Dance of the Reed Flute" with its alternating legato passages proved an excellent foil for the dashing Trepak which the chorus sang with a full throated verve and abandon that nevertheless showed no hint of getting out of hand. The gradual accelerando at the close of the number and the excellence of release on the

SCHOLARSHIP TAG DAY

On Saturday, May 4, the Winchester Mothers' Association will conduct a Tag Day for the benefit of the Scholarship Fund for High School graduates this June. The award is decided on the basis of scholarship, school citizenship, and financial need, for work beyond high school.

Mothers from each elementary school will be in the center of the town and at the stations from 7:30 a. m. to 9 p. m. They will wear an identifying badge and hold a box temptingly before you. This is an opportunity for the people who do not feel they can help schools and yet would like a share in this worthwhile enterprise. The committee has already received a few checks, but it is fully appreciative of the large amount which can be realized from many small contributions.

A number of applications for the scholarships are before the committee and the splendid caliber of the students applying makes it especially eager to raise as much money as possible. Remember Saturday morning, put on your best smile for the lady with the box, give her all your change, and then notice the warm feeling in your heart for helping some boy or girl on the road to high accomplishment.

COMMUNITY BOWLERS DINED

It was impossible to seat at one time all those who wished to attend the first annual banquet of the Winchester Community Bowling League held Wednesday evening in Association Hall on Vine street. Late arrivals had to wait their turn to be served, but every one was good natured and all were finally accommodated, Steward Fred Litchfield of the Elks fellows serving a delicious turkey dinner, assisted by members of the stewards' boards of both the Elks and Legion.

Selectman W. Allan Wilde ably filled the toastmaster's chair and those seated with him at the head table were Rev. Fr. Joseph E. McGoldrick of St. Mary's Church, a real bowling and all around athletic enthusiast; Walter E. Shaughnessey, chairman of the league banquet committee; Louis Locatelli, manager of the Winchester Alleys where the league matches have been rolled; Selectman Harold V. Farnsworth and Raymond S. Wilkins, Comdr. John H. McCarthy of Winchester Post, A. L.; Ralph Clifford sports writer of the Boston Traveler staff; and Edward P. "Mack" McKenzie of Woburn Daily Times. With the exception of Father McGoldrick all responded to toasts and others who spoke were Exalted Ruler Arthur J. Harty of Winchester Lodge of Elks and Frank Vallely, bowling enthusiast of long years' standing.

There was a musical and entertainment program during the evening and a handsomely decorated cake, donated by the Christie McDonald Company was drawn for by John Doherty, captain of the Fells Plumbing team.

Prizes were presented by Mr. Locatelli and awarded as follows: Championship prize, Knights of Columbus; Legion, second; Town Team, third; high average, Davis, K. of C., 101.57-83; high single, Rogers, Legion, 99.51-4; high three strings, K. of C., 1397; second, Legion, 1516; team single, K. of C. 548; second, Legion, 546; high three strings, McAdam, K. of C., 351; second, O-borne, Town Team, 348; high single, McAdams, K. of C., 140; second, Rogers, Legion, 137; third, Goddu, Legion, 132.

M. S. P. C. A. AUXILIARY NOTES

The last meeting of the season of the Women's Auxiliary will be held in the parlor of the First Congregational Church, Thursday, May 9 at 2:30 p. m. Our guest speaker will be Mr. Albert A. Pollard, Treasurer of the M. S. P. C. A. Mr. Pollard does not come to solicit funds, or members, but to give an informing talk on the growth and scope of the Angell Memorial Hospital.

During "Be Kind to Animals' Week" letters were sent to some of our townspeople. We are gratified at the response which we have already received. How happy it would make us if every man and woman in this town would add to our fund by the gift of $1.

We believe the heart of Winchester beats in sympathy with Humane Education and kindness to every living creature. As this is an open meeting, a cordial invitation is extended to all who would enjoy hearing Mr. Pollard.

VISIT INTERRUPTED BY POLICE

Last Saturday morning at 5:15, Police Headquarters was notified that three boys were playing around McCarthy's garage on Cross street. Patrolman William E. Cassidy was sent to investigate, it being said that the boys had been there for about an hour.

When Officer Cassidy arrived at the garage the boys took to their heels. He caught one at the corner of Harvard and Florence streets and the other two at Leonard Field.

At Headquarters they gave their names as Frank Hunt, 14, of 7 Thorndike street, Kenneth Hunt, 13, of 7 Thorndike street and Francis Webster, 15, of 7 Wellington street, all of Everett. They told the police they had left home Friday afternoon to visit an uncle and were on their way back to Everett when they were overtaken by night and had stopped in the garage. The Everett Police were notified by Sergt. Charles J. Harrold and later the father of the Hunt boys came to local Headquarters and took the trio home.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT NOTES

The School Department again urges parents who plan to send their children to school for the first time next September to make sure that the children are in the best possible physical condition for school entrance. A special registration period for such children wil be held in the several elementary schools from 3:15 to 4:15 each school day beginning Monday, May 6, and extending through Friday, May 10. At the time of registration, the parent will be given a physical record card upon which may be recorded the physical record of the child. This will be done by the private physician.

The Department strongly urges this physical examination by the private physician immediately after the registration during the week of May 6. The holding of this physical examination at this early date makes possible the correction of many physical defects, if such are found, before the child's admission to school in September.

If there be any parents who would find it difficult to pay for such physical examination, they may take their children to the Board of Health clinic for examination any Thursday afternoon beginning May 9.

Henry "Hennie" Knowlton, former Winchester High star athlete, now coach at New Hampton Prep at New Hampton, N. F. S. SNYDER ATTACKS OMNIBUS BANKING BILL

Frederic S. Snyder, of this town, Boston business man, attacked the proposal to increase Washington's control of banking in a speech before the Chamber of Commerce of the United States Wednesday.

Incidentally, he criticized "share-the-wealth" plans with the remark that "subdivided, the national income would accomplish practically nothing new. Successful employment of all employable labor is therefore our merchandising mecca."

Concerning the omnibus banking bill, he said:

"The business world fears dictatorial power vested in a politically-controled Federal Reserve Board. Business interests will lose confidence in the system if there is a loss of local autonomy by the Federal Reserve Banks. They prefer that local control be increased rather than diminished.

"Business interests resent the indicated competition of Government agencies, either in business or in banking.

"They believe that demand deposits ought not to be received in Government institutions; that commercial credits ought not to be extended by Government except as an emergency measure."

WINCHESTER COLLEGE CLUB

An extra meeting of the Winchester College Club will be held at the home of Miss Alice Main, 14 Herrick street on Wednesday, May 8, at 2:15. Anyone interested may attend by telephoning Mrs. Judson L. Cross or Mrs. Clinton E. Farnham.

Mrs. Frederick E. Stockwell, field secretary of the Institute of Euthenics at Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., will discuss Vassar's unique experiment in the field of adult education at a meeting of the Winchester College Club. Mrs. Stockwell, a Bryn Mawr graduate, is a sister of Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar College. Before October 1934, Mrs. Stockwell was president of the Pennsylvania-Delaware Branch of the A. A. U. W. During the summer of 1931, Mrs. Stockwell attended the Institute of Euthenics with two of her grandchildren, and she has information on the latest developments in the field to give to her groups.

The Institute was established in 1926 as a summer course for men and woman graduates who as parents, teachers, or community-minded citizens are interested in questions of the family and social progress. In 1935, from June 26 to Aug. 7, the Institute will hold its 10th anniversary session. Dr. Ruth Wheeler, Director of the Institute, says of Vassar's summer session, "It is a vacation school for the whole family and their friends, offering refreshment for mind as well as for body." Children of parents attending the Institute are cared for 24 hours a day in two schools, those from 2 to 4 in the Lower School, those from 4 to 8 in the Upper School. Those who come to the Institute are young parents, grandparents, nursery and progressive school teachers, social workers, public health nurses as well as individuals interested as citizens in family-community problems. An arts and crafts studio, Vassar's golf course, tennis course and new indoor swimming pool are open to registrants. The atmosphere on campus during the summer is one of leisurely study and recreation, and makes the six weeks at Vassar a real vacation.

During her stay in Winchester, Mrs. Stockwell will be the guest of Mrs. George H. Reed.

A dinner will be given for Mrs. Stockwell after the meeting at the Winchester Country Club. Members, husbands and those interested are invited to atend.

Supreme Marshal Emily H. Scholl of this town with Miss Alice Sullivan attended the installation of officers of the Manchester, N. H. Emblem Club, at the Hotel Continental in Manchester last Sunday afternoon. resulted in the necessity of cutting them down in the event of street widening or removing some of the branches when the trees reached a size to interfere with overhead wires.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard W. Snyder are the parents of a daughter, born at the Strong Memorial Hospital in Rochester, N. Y. Mrs. Snyder was before her marriage, Elizabeth A. Wilson of Washington, D. C. and the paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Frederic S. Snyder of McCall road.

Lecture

The fourth in a series of five lectures sponsored by the Winchester Chapter of the Guild of the Infant Saviour, was given at the home of a member, Mrs. F. B. Riley, Eaton avenue, Woburn.

The ushers for the afternoon were Mrs. James Haley and Mrs. M. J. Meagher. The pourers for the tea were Mrs. William Henchey and Mrs. Robert Cavenaugh, assisted by Mrs. T. J. McDonough and Mrs. Phillip O'Rourke.

A lovely musical program preceded the lecture with Selma LaRochelle of Brookline, as the artist. She was accompanied by Rose Dolan. Both Miss LaRochelle and Miss Dolan appear on Station WBZ of the National Broadcasting Company.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Herbert N. Dawes of Winchester who chose for her subject, "Mexico."

Mrs. Dawes approached that subject entirely from a historical viewpoint, going back to the conquest by Cortez, the work of the missionaries in christianizing, civilizing and educating the Indians.

She dwelt upon the influence of the French Revolution as it affected this new world, described the tempestuous period of independence from Spain and explained how President succeeded President in bewildering revolutions 57 Presidents in the first 54 years after separation from the mother country, 12 during the two years of war between Mexico and the United States—72 to date, of which 55 were military men and only 12 took office legally.

The speaker discussed the age-old conflict between Church and State in a fair and impartial manner, definitely placing the beginning of politics at the period of self government in inexperienced hands. She clearly differentiated between the opposition of the State to the Church as an organization years ago and the present attempt to exterminate religion in general and God in particular in the same way that it has been attempted in Russia.

"With the church flat on her back, so to speak," said Mrs. Dawes, "with nothing left in a material sense of which they can divest her, they now turn their attack on her belief which they term 'Fanaticism.'

Contrasting the treatment of the Indian in Mexico at the time of the conquest with that offered him in the United States, Mrs. Dawes proceeded as follows: "Let us be fair. The British Colonists came to these shores, found the Indian, robbed him and, as the United States grew, drove him into detention areas until today he is little better than an object of curiosity and often of pity. That did not happen in Mexico. The missionaries held that the Indian had a soul and was worthy of salvation. The Indians of Mexico have produced men of letters, artists, scientists, soldiers, learned Bishops and priests—men of genius.

"Further, when education was very much of an innovation, the Church made a success of it in Mexico. One hundred years before Harvard was founded, Mexico had its University; 204 years before Harvard had a medical school, the University of Mexico had one; 86 years before the Hunter School in England studied surgery by dissection, they were doing just that in Mexico.

"Popular education in the United States as it was properly conceived, dates back to Horace Mann and he died in 1859. In 1684, New England did not permit girls to attend the schools. In 1825, girls were permitted to attend primary schools only. The first public examination of a girl in geometry in 1829 raised a storm of ridicule and indignation. But Mexico had a boarding school for girls in the 16th century.

"Now that education has become a passion in most countries, the Mexican Government in charge of it down there for the past 80 years, has done nothing. The illiteracy today is about 85 per cent.

"Certain it is, the religious problem is not the only one to be settled in Mexico, though it would be the easiest to dispose of. National debt, oil, mining, land interests and labor are all factors now present. The persecution of religion is but a smoke screen for the other problems.

"The land question, for instance, has always been left for posterity to settle. Mexico is not the only country that has such a problem, however, England has had it. Ireland has had it. In Canada and the United States it was taken care of by homesteads and the railroads.

"As one writer has said, 'You may stay land hunger by stealing, but the soul cannot digest the sin.'

"Much has been said about the wealth of the church, the amounts being greatly exaggerated. However, it is not a question of how much she had, but what she did with it.

"Today we have the Red Cross, the Salvation Army, Community Chests, Emergency Campaign Drives and many other private charities, whereas, Mexico had only one agency to take care of the poor, the sick, the aged and infirm and that was the church. It was necessary, therefore, to have some income with which to discharge these obligations.

"Liberal politicians and avaricious generals saw in the church a source of loot and plunder. Periodically, to this very day, they helped themselves under the guise of putting sterile wealth into circulation for the benefit of the masses.

"We know it never works out that way. As Ralph Adams Cram tells us in his book, 'The Ruined Abbeys of Great Britain,' 'Of the eighty million dollars realized by Henry VIII through pillage and despoilation of church property, thirty-five millions went into Henry's pocket; forty millions into the army and navy for pursuit of further wars and only about five hundred thousand dollars into new bishoprics.'

"Today the very church buildings in Mexico are national property."

It was very evident that Mrs. Dawes does not believe in intervention by the United States. On this subject she said, "All the Latin-American nations have for generations been suspicious of our motives, both in regard to the Monroe Doctrine and in its interference with their affairs."

"The Monroe Doctrine was not adopted at their request, and, as the power of the United States increased, their uneasiness has increased with regard to the use we might make of that power in dealing with them.

"They still remember that we came out of the war with Mexico with additional territory. Let us not awaken those half buried resentments.

"At the same time, when the government of Mexico, and also some of our own citizens, attempt to justify what is going on south of the Rio Grande today by a mis-statement of conditions which obtained some centuries ago, it is about time we were brushing up our history in order to substitute the truth for their falsehoods.

"As Dr. Frank Tannenbaum has said in his book 'Peace By Revolution,' 'That the Indian has a future in Mexico is in no small measure due to the saving influence of the Catholic Church and the Catholic Religion.'"

This is the Lobster Season

Again lobsters, the most popular of all seafoods, are in plentiful supply. During April, May and June they are at the peak of their excellence and at the lowest prices of the year.

Now is the time to enjoy lobsters, but to enjoy them be sure that you get good ones. The same discretion is needed in buying lobsters as is required for all seafood. Lobsters are not all alike even live lobsters are not necessarily good. The rich, sweet flavor that makes them such a treat is at its best only in hard-shelled, firm-meated fish. Oftentimes it proves to be cheaper to pay a few cents more per pound and get lobsters which are full-meated than to find that you have a shell only half full of watery, soft meat.

The Seafood Store carries only the best Maine lobsters. We do our own boiling and pick all our meat, so in purchasing here you can have complete confidence in the freshness and quality whether you buy live, boiled or meat. Because 1½-pound lobsters have the largest percentage of meat in proportion to the weight of the shell we keep that size in stock, but can supply "chickens" and "jumbos."

READING HIGH BEAT WINCHESTER

Winchester High took an 11—3 shellacking from Reading High in a Middlesex League game on Manchester Field last Friday afternoon, the visitors bunching their hits and taking advantage of some loose playing on the part of the locals.

Capt. "Tom" Donaghey started on the mound and after hitting the first batter, made them altogether too good for Done and White, the latter's double to center field scoring two runs. Two more came over in the third and in the fourth, Skane's homer with a mate on accounted for another pair of tallies to put the game on ice.

With two away in the first, Provinzano singled cleanly over second and went all the way around when "Tom" Donaghey hit a tremendous fly that dropped off the roof of the bandstand and was prevented from going into the river for a homer by striking a tree and falling dead at the feet of the plunging left fielder. We can recall no schoolboy duplicating this batting feat. "Bull" Lowe dropped one off the stand years ago, but it was after his high school days, and last summer Frank Skaff of Villa Nova and the Lord Tanners hit the roof, but he too was hardly in the schoolboy class. Big "Jim" Fitzgerald and his brother, "Nick," "Tacks" Connell, "Shanty" Hogan, "Buz" Harvey and "Eddie" Britt have all hit balls further than that wallop of Donaghey's, but these were all seasoned players with considerably more experience. We can't remember another high school boy hitting the apple as far on the fly.

Aside from Donaghey's belt, Winchester had little to crow over. Nutter, Reading pitcher, with a fair hook and excellent change of pace, stood the local hitters on their heads when hits meant runs and was given fine support by his mates, who just couldn't seem to do anything wrong. The locals had several good chances to score, but couldn't hit in the pinches.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY LEGION NEWS

Plans are now being formulated for the Junior American Legion Baseball season and already it is expected that there will be eight teams striving for Middlesex County championship honors. Two years ago Lowell was the only team in the County and last year was challenged only by Billerica and Medford. This season it looks like some real competition, and as there is still plenty of time to enter a team in the league it is hoped that even more clubs will enroll. A phone call to the county athletic o cer, Roland E. Garmon, 737 Massachusetts avenue, Lexington, phone Lex. 0359-M, will give you any information desired and the necessary entry blanks will be forwarded at once.

PARISH PLAYERS PRESENTED "THE ROUNDABOUT"

The Parish Players of the First Congregational Church presented their third play of the season, "The Roundabout," a comedy in three acts by J. B. Priestly last Friday night with the following cast:

Lord Kettlewell	Samuel M. Graves
Churton Sanders	F. Milne Blanchard
Larsons	Edmund A. Merriam, Jr.
Alec Grenside	George S. Hill
Pamela Kettlewell	Lenore Thrift
Comrade Staggles	Oscar W. Crowers
Farrington Gurney	Prescott R. Taylor
Lady Knightsbridge	Dorothy M. Wills
Hilda Lancecourt	Ellouise T. Graves
Lady Kettlewell	Bertha K. Blanchard
Alice	Alice L. Bowie

The action of the play takes place in the lounge drawing-room of Lord Kettlewell's country house. The time of the year is September. Alan Hay was the director.

"The Roundabout" is light comedy with a substantial plot that holds interest throughout. Lord Kettlewell, beset with many troubles including financial disaster and his attempts to ease out a former love, is further annoyed by the unexpected arrival of his daughter Pamela, whom he has not seen for years, accompanied by a fellow worker from Russia, Comrade Staggles. Despite the entreaties of her father, Pamela refuses to leave and takes her place as daughter of the house. Her clever plotting rids the house of the grasping female, but nothing she can do prevents Comrade Staggles from getting into all sorts of trouble. Pamela's mother turns up, is reconciled with Lord Kettlewell and there is much talk of Pamela's future, which is very quickly settled when a former sweetheart arrives with satisfactory explanations. The butler draws a horse in the sweeps, offers to buy the house for a week-end hotel and saves his lordship financial ruin.

The cast held the hilarious bits down with nice restraint; it would have been so easy for several "fat" parts to have been overplayed. The part of Lord Kettlewell, for instance, as Mr. Graves played it, gave a true impression of an English gentleman holding on to his dignity throughout many surprising events without becoming too pompous or blustering. Dr. Blanchard, as Churton Sanders, the old family friend and confidante, gave an excellent performance, delivering his droll lines in an easy, natural manner.

Miss Thrift's portrayal of Pamela was a splendid interpretation of a serenely independent young woman. She well brought out her human, lovable qualities that induced the audience to admire her, even if they could not sympathize with her ideas.

Mr. Crowers, as Camrade Staggles, uncouth and grim, gave a capital performance. Here again there must have been a temptation to exagerate this part; to make a clown out of the comedy character, but Mr. Crowers dealt with it admirably.

Lady Knightsbridge, played by Mrs. Wills, was an amusing picture of a woman who has a mercenary interest in everything, be it antique beds or society scandal.

The role of Hilda Lancicourt was effectively played by Mrs. Graves. An unsympathetic part is a trying test for amateurs, but she passed it and made one sympathize even more with the object of her affection.

Mr. Hill and Mr. Taylor gave fine performances and Mrs. Blanchard as Lady Kettlewell gave a true portrayal of an English gentlewoman quite helpless at her daughter's hands.

The lesser roles, which so often are disappointing to the performers, in that they simply "walk on and off," were promoted to places of some prominence in this play. The parts of Parsons and Alice, played by Mr. Merriam and Miss Bowie, were full of opportunities and they realized them well.

Many details of the production were nicely done. One was spared the usual misconception of an English country house; the setting was pleasing and in good taste. The ladies' gowns were charming and appropriate and the entire cast, with a creditable English accent, could be distinctly heard to the audience's satisfaction.

"The Roundabout" was a well-chosen medium for the Players and was a most enjoyable and successful conclusion to their ninth year in "The Little Theatre Under a Spire."

The scenery was designed and executed by Carlene Murphy Samoiloff, the lighting and properties planned by Mrs. Samoiloff and executed by the Carlson Lighting Co. and Mrs. Prescott Taylor. Mrs. Joseph Worthen was the prompter, the coffee hostesses were Mrs. Allan R. Cunningham and Mrs. Walter Winship, and the pourers were Mrs. Kenneth Caldwell, Mrs. Reveley H. B. Smith, Mrs. William B. Elmer and Miss May Thompson.

The ushers were under the direction of Mr. Joseph W. Butler and included Mr. R. H. B. Smith, Mr. Kenneth Caldwell, Mr. Edmund Sanderson, Jr., Mr. Donald Bates, Mr. David Grosvenor and Mr. Bradford Hill.

Mrs. Clarence Whorf had charge of the candy vendors, including Miss Lucy Fowle, Miss Cynthia Barr, Miss Natalie Stevens, Miss Joan Gleason, Miss Janet Spencer and Miss Betty Whorf.

Mrs. Clarence E. Ordway had charge of the tickets.

MIGHT CHANGE ZONING LAWS

May 2, 1935

To the Editor of the Star:

It is regrettable that the Selectmen didn't see fit to grant my application for a movie license, for, as I pointed out in my request, there is ample parking space all about us. There is not only the Wedgemere depot handy, as well as the Sandy Beach Reservation, for parking purposes, but by midsummer folks may drive down on to the Aberjona Delta in Upper Mystic Lake, and in the winter mid ample parking space on the frozen lake.

Certainly my building is not unsightly, and we have a quiet neighborhood where honest people reside, so there would be no need of police protection. Hence, while the Selectmen may feel that the zoning laws should be adhered to, even the people of Winchester might see fit to change them if a referendum were offered for such changes as might be deemed necessary; for who would have suspected, even three or four years ago, that the people of this town would ever vote for movies?

However, Mrs. Chase is pleased, as she will now not have to move out of our residence.

Cordially yours,
Ernest Dudley Chase

ROTARY CLUB

One absentee on leave of absence was recorded at the meeting of May 2. Let us maintain or better this record at least for the month of May. The April figures are disappointing.

The days business included election of officers to serve the club for the year 1935-36. We take great pleasure in announcing that William N. Beggs was chosen President for the above term and Charles P. Downer will act as Vice President. New members of the Board of Directors are John F. Cassidy and Warren A. Hersey. The new officers will enter on their duties July 1, 1935.

As of this date, May 2, Ralph Bonnell has been reinstated to membership in the club. He will figure as the first member to be re-instated in our club history. We remember Ralph as an enthusiastic Rotarian and we know that he will carry on as a good Rotarian should. Welcome, Ralph.

We expect that "Jim" Quinn will have sufficiently recovered from his recent surgical operation, so that he may attend our regular meeting next week. This is indeed good news. Surely every member will want to congratulate "Jim" in person on his convalescence and next Thursday will be the time to do it.

The Rotary Club of Quincy is very active in preparing to entertain the Spring Conference of the 31st District on May 15 at Quincy. Four members from this club have already registered for this event. There should be at least as many more. Get in touch with the club secretary at once. The 31st District has had an unusually active and progressive year in 1934-35. Go to Quincy and learn about it all from those who know. Find out why on even better year is in prospect. Assure yourself that Rotary has the stamina to triumphantly weather one of the most devastating economic upheavals known to history. Then, indeed your faith in Rotary will be firmer than ever; then will you be truly thankful for the opportunity and privilege of doing your bit to serve as Rotary points the way.

At the close of the current meeting, George Davidson personally conducted about half of our members to the new rock garden on the riverway at the northern end of Washington street, where a great variety of flowering plants were placed as the contribution of the club in beautifying the new rock development along the scenic valley which traverses our town. As Chairman of the Park Commission, George has probably done more than any one man to carry out this major project. The club is particularly appreciative of his efforts.

At the next meeting of the club, May 9 our new members will be formally welcomed to the ranks. This is another reason why every member should be in attendance at that time. The membership at present stands at 30.

Percentage of Attendance, April 25—82.76 per cent.

CHORAL SOCIETY CLOSED SIXTH SEASON

final shouted "Yai" were very spectacular and brought forth hearty applause.

From the popular standpoint the closing number on the program, "Come to the Fair," was one of the most enjoyable, and the chorus gave a fine rendition of this familiar tune, bringing out all the swing of the tempo and thrill of the splendid climaxes. Here again attacks and especially releases were excellently achieved.

Once more the Society's splendid men's choir scored with its fine balance, excellent tone and artistic singing. Perhaps the most popular of its three numbers was the familiar "Passing By" in which the second verse was sung as a tenor solo by David Downer against a humming accompaniment. Mr. Downer's clear high tenor was heard to advantage in the sweet refrain which he sang most effectively and the audience demanded a repeat, which was sung by the soloist and chorus without the piano and in perfect tune. Especial mention should be made of the fine low B flat which the Society's basses contributed to this selection.

The men have done no more artistic bit of singing than their performance of Schubert's poignant "By the Sea." Fine tone, responsiveness and excellent phrasing all contributed to this gem of harmony, the final low D of the basses standing out against a beautifully sustained soft quality of tone in the other voices.

In the favorite "March of the Peers" all the stately bombast and petty consequence of the number were faithfully portrayed, the men singing with a fine sense of rhythm, especially apparent where the staccato bass accompaniment is heard against the smooth melody of the tenors.

It is safe to say that the Society has brought no more delightful guest artist to Winchester than Miss Ehrhart. Both her voice and stage presence were entirely pleasing and to these requisites was added a charm of manner that won her audience even before she commenced to sing. Her voice is a glorious soprano, clear and without trace of shrillness, even in its highest register, and having a warmth and color that enables its owner to effectively sing music of widely varying moods.

All Miss Ehrhart's rich vocal resources were lavished on her opening aria from Donizetti's "Linda di Chamounix" which she sang beautifully, achieving the climaxing D above high C without effort. This number served excellently to display the artist's admirable breath control and wide range, yet she was equally at home in the simpler group of songs which she sang in English during her second appearance upon the platform. Especially charming was the number, "Love Me, If I Live" by the American composer, Arthur Foote, though the audience also was delighted with the spritely arrangement of the familiar Shakespearean poem, "Under the Greenwood Tree," and intrigued by the unusual "Sleep Song."

Enthusiastically encored after her group, Miss Ehrhart sang Rubinstein's arrangement of the English poet, Thomas Morley's "Good Night," one of the loveliest of all her selections.

The Society's director, Mr. Wilson, was warmly greeted each time he appeared upon the platform, and it is hard to over-emphasize his contribution to the excellence of the program.

His conducting was at all times definite and his interpretations of the widely divergent scores pleasing and musically above reproach.

At all times he had the big chorus under complete control and he was especially happy in his choice of tempo in such selections as "It's Me, O Lord" and "Come to the Fair." Much of the credit for the excellence of the Society's performance of the Seraphic Song was due to his leadership and handling of chorus and instrumentalists during the difficult sustained passages. He was accorded an ovation at the conclusion of the program and insisted upon the chorus and accompanists arising to share in the applause.

Mrs. Witham, the Society's accompanist, contributed in large measure to the success of the concert, affording the chorus excellent support that was never obtrusive and playing with a sense of rhythm that was especially helpful in the faster moving numbers. She was called upon to play some particularly difficult music, especially for Miss Ehrhart, yet each number was done with a finish that showed a high degree of technical proficiency as well as a feeling for the singer's mood. In the arrangements of chorus accompaniments for four hands Miss Wilcox lent notable assistance and her playing of the glissando passages in the final number of the program was especially brilliant.

Louis E. Goddu again served as head usher, and was assisted by Grafton Abbott, Norman Carse, Clifford Cummiskey, John Downs, Harry Eaton, Arnold Morse, Richard Offutt, Ivor Olson, Robert Thornton, Lorimer Walker and Herbert Wood. G. Raymond Bancroft was in charge of the box office.

Following are the members of the chorus:

"Unsatisfactory" Voice

An "unsatisfactory" voice, according to a writer in the Woman's Home Companion, is one that is muffled, guttural, strident, rasping, shrill, raucous, monopitch, flat, nasal or in which articulation is so blurred that those listening must continually resort to that most monotonous phrase in American conversation, "What did you say?"

"The Forgotten Man"

The expression "the Forgotten Man" was used by Byron. Earlier it was used in a poem called "The Common Lot." In 1883 William Graham Sumner, professor at Yale university, described the forgotten man.

"Everlasting Punishment" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 5.

The Golden Text is: "By mercy and truth iniquity is purged: and by the fear of the Lord men depart from evil" (Proverbs 16:6).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And behold they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lying on a bed: and Jesus seeing their faith said unto the sick of the palsy; Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee. . . . And Jesus knowing their thoughts said, Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts? For whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and walk?" (Matthew 9: 2, 4, 5)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Healing the sick and reforming the sinner are one and the same thing in Christian Science. Both cures require the same method and are inseparable in Truth. Hatred, envy, dishonesty, fear, and so forth, make a man sick, and neither material medicine nor Mind can help him permanently, even in body, unless it makes him better mentally, and so delivers him from his destroyers" (p. 404).

ZONING LAW

The Board of Appeal will give a hearing to Mr. Fred C. Macdonald Tuesday evening, May 7, 1935, at eight o'clock p. m. at the Building Commissioner's office, 9 Mt. Vernon Street.

Mr. Macdonald has made application for a permit to build a single residence building on lots 216-217 Pierrepont Road, located in a single residence district.

The Commissioner denied the permit on the grounds that it would violate Section 8A of the Zoning Law which requires an area of 10,000 square feet per lot.

All persons interested are invited to attend.

THE JUNIOR C. D. OF A. DANCE

The Dramatic Club of the Junior C. D. of A. held an Easter dance, Friday night at Lyceum Hall, under the direction of Mrs. Genevieve Elwell. The hall was most attractive with spring colors. An old fashioned garden for the stage setting created an atmosphere of quaintness for the program of old fashioned dances.

Christine Flaherty and Polly Kenton dressed in colonial costumes carried baskets filled with nosegays to which were attached dance programs.

During the evening, Miss Rita Connors and Ruth O'Connell of Miss Dorothy Horn's dancing school entertained delightfully with their specialty dances.

A prize waltz was won by Mrs. F. Humphrey and Mr. J. Kenton.

Patrons and patronesses for the evening were: Mrs. Francis T. Conlon, Rev. Fr. Fitzsimmons, Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Moffatt, Mr. and Mrs. Kenton, Mr. and Mrs. M. Grant and Mrs. C. Flaherty.

Gag Rule

Gag rule refers to the practice in legislative bodies of limiting or suppressing debate on matters which come before the assembly for decision or action.

A BUNDLE TEA

While bundle teas have been having their day with Junior Leaguers and Society Clubs in Boston, Mrs. F. H. Williams of Everett avenue was the first to launch one here. In her very charming and unusual home she gave the first bundle tea of the spring season, for the benefit of the First Congregational Church.

A large number were present and a sum realized from the many generous gifts received to be sold at the tea.

One outstanding gift was a precious little yellow kitten donated by Nancy Nutting.

Those assisting Mrs. Williams with the tea were: Mrs. Clifford Cunningham, Mrs. Alice Drew, Mrs. Dorothy Wills. Pouring were Mrs. Barr and Mrs. Helen Norris.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL REPORT

President's Report for Year 1934-1935

To the Members of the Winchester Hospital:

The Winchester Hospital year, which ended March 31, 1935, was one of greatly increased service. The records show 15,065 patient days, an increase of 2050 over 1933-1934, almost 16%. This was reflected through all divisions of the hospital work. The largest single day occurred when 61 patients were being cared for compared with 51 in 1933-34. Seventy doctors used the hospital this year compared with 61 last year.

We regard this sustained development as evidence that we are giving the patients and the doctors the service they need and want, and are gratified to see it take place.

The increase in business is not without its problems because we have never refused to receive patients because of inability to pay. The increased business under present day conditions brings an increased number who cannot pay the full costs or whose payments have to be deferred over a long time. Mr. Crawford has dealt with the problem of collections as successfully as the other departments of the hospital have met the increased demand for their services. His careful and sympathetic consideration of each case has made friends for the hospital and has convinced all of its need of continued financial support.

In the long run, it is this interest of loyal friends and organizations that enables us to give the standard of care and nursing which the doctors require.

We infer from the uniform increase in our business and comments of patients that we are also continuing to give a service of the highest grade in a very acceptable way to people who could go elsewhere, but find it more convenient or desirable to use the Winchester Hospital.

Great credit for this is due to the fine spirit of co-operation and skilled service which the nursing staff and other members of the organization have shown. Conditions have enabled us to restore a part of the wage reductions made in 1932, and we hope the present scale can be maintained and increased with a continuation of present conditions.

The organization deserves commendation for the spirit in which they have maintained the various services of the hospital.

Our Supervisor of Nursing, Miss Cooke, left last June to be married, and Miss Louise Dempsey was appointed to fill this position.

We are grateful to the Winton Club for a gift of $800 toward the operating expenses and for linen to nearly as much additional value, besides their invaluable interest in our welfare.

We appreciate the donation of $6000 by the Pop Concert Committee for the future maintenance of the Operating Suite and also for their continued interest and support.

The En Ka Society has shown a commendable interest in helping to maintain the traditions of the hospital by service and helpfulness in numerous ways, and for a donation of $250.

The Fortnightly Club has donated $100, for which we express our thanks. There were numerous other donations from individuals, totalling $6774.

On account of the above gifts, we close the year with a nominal profit of $887.25 after the necessary reserves have been set aside for uncollectable accounts and for depreciation of the buildings and equipment.

We believe we have merited, and we earnestly solicit, the continued support and interest of the community and especially of those organizations to whom we owe our ability to continue to render the services required of us by the community. It is such interest and support that determines the balance between failure and success.

Respectfully submitted,
THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

ANNUAL REPORT OF WINCHESTER HOSPITAL ENDING MARCH 31, 1935

The staff of the Winchester Hospital has held its regular meetings every month during the year except in the months of July and August.

The meetings have been well attended and have proved of interest and benefit to the members.

A new plan has been adopted this year in that at each meeting a member of the staff has presented a paper on some subject relating to medicine, surgery or of interest to the hospital in general. This feature has been of great benefit and in the general discussions which have followed the papers much knowledge has been gained.

There have been many out-of-town doctors who have applied for admission to the courtesy staff and have been admitted. The out-of-town doctors have made use of the privileges of the Winchester Hospital, this past year, to a greater extent than ever before.

At the annual meeting of the staff held April 8, 1935, the following officers were elected for the coming year:

Chairman Dr. Clarence E. Ordway
Vice Chairman Dr. Milton J. Quinn
Secretary Dr. Roger M. Burgoyne

Respectfully submitted,
Clarence E. Ordway,
Chairman

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Spring fruits and vegetables are at their peak in abundance and much lower in price than they have been. Especially choice are strawberries, pineapples, rhubarb, green peas, stringless beans, asparagus, spinach and tomatoes. New cabbage and onions are in market and somewhat cheaper than they have been. New potatoes are still high.

Both fresh and salt water fish are abundant and moderate or low in price. Poultry is still relatively cheaper than any of the meats but lamb. Butter and egg retails are about the same as last week but may change at any time.

Here are three menus made up of reasonably priced foods adapted to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner
Braised Lamb Shanks
Potatoes Carrots
Bread and Butter
Vanilla Cream with Bananas
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Roast Shoulder of Lamb
Browned Potatoes Creamed Onions
Bread and Butter
Jellied Fruits
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Stuffed Celery
Chicken Fricassee Boiled Rice
Green Beans Tomato Salad
Rolls and Butter
Banana Ice Cream
Coffee Milk

GLOBE SENDS BEVERAGE PRODUCTS HERE

This product is sponsored and certified by the Beverage Institute which stands behind the Globe trademark as representing products of positive quality at a price within the reach of everyone. These beverages have enjoyed increasing popularity in all sections of New England for the past three years, and the opening of the sales campaign in Winchester developed after many inquiries by customers who have purchased the low price article elsewhere.

The local stores have responded to the demand for Globe products, and there will be a good supply at every place designated. The advertisement in the Star will direct those interested to the stores handling the Globe products.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

Courtesy in the Home

Children are very imitative creatures. In a jiffy of time they catch the spirit surrounding them. It is fine to be courteous in one's home and where there are children around by example, a thousand times more quickly than by precept, can the little ones be taught to speak kindly to one another, to graciously acknowledge favors, to be gentle and unselfish, to be thoughtful and considerate of all the members of the household.

The perfect home is the one where no angry voices are ever heard, where no sullen kiddies are sent from the room, where no peremptory orders are given to cover the delinquencies of housekeeping or domestic employees. A really happy atmosphere pervades the home—unmistakable, yet indescribable. Yet how few homes of this sort there are.

Speak kindly in the morning. It helps much to make lighter the cares of the day, and certainly makes the household and all other affairs move along more smoothly.

Speak kindly at night. For who knows that before the sun rises in the East some loved one may have finished the earthly life. It will then be too late to ask forgiveness for the harsh word uttered.

Speak kindly at all times. It lends encouragement to the downcast, cheers up the sorrowing. And nine times out of ten it awakens the erring to earnest resolves to do better, with the spiritual strength to keep them.

Le all of us bear in mind that none of us may be on earth tomorrow. So—

"Let me live, let me love, let me sin if I must For tomorrow, who knows, I may be only dust."

Capetown to Buenos Aires

The distance between Cape Town and Buenos Aires by great circle sailing is 3,728 nautical miles, which is roughly 4,300 statute miles. This is the course taken going east. The course taken going west is by rhumb line and is 3,834 nautical miles, which is approximately 4,410 statute miles.

BETHANY NEWS

Remember the May luncheon next week Tuesday at noon. There's only one more before the season closes for a well-earned summer vacation (and a rest from the good old cake spatula!)

The efforts of the "all-star" casts which presented their plays last Friday evening before a capacity house apparently were much appreciated, judging from the applause and giggles which came at the proper times. The parts were all admirably taken and acted in a most convincing manner. The gate receipts were also quite satisfactory.

We regret having to admit, however, since we must be honest, that the style show given at the close of the evening entirely eclipsed the players in all their radiance. This show was a clever take-off on women's fashions, depicted by some of the male members of the community. Howard Chase, extremely chic and svelte as a French modiste, displayed the latest creations on some most unusual mannequins. Glenn Potter modelled a lovely afternoon costume of flowered chiffon, with garden hat and scarf; and also a child's play suit with sunbonnet. He was charming in both and his complexion quite the envy of all the girls. Fred Saunders appeared in an informal evening dress of pink chiffon, with black sport hat and coat, and a large tapestry hand bag. The effect was quite startling and decidedly novel. "Billy" Bowles was attired in a rust colored silk sport suit, with hat to match, and was most nonchalant and at ease, with a tennis racket for an accessory. Warren Fogg wore a very good looking black satin frock with large black hat, and patent leather pumps. His jewelry consisted of crystal ear drops and silver bracelets. Many a young lady would be glad of such a trim figure and smart looking feet. Fred Baker made a very languorous and alluring debutante in a black and white printed chiffon evening dress, sealskin wrap and picture hat, and silver slippers. The ladies concealed their jealousy as best they could, and magnanimously congratulated these gentlemen on their success. It is rumored that this style show may be repeated and enlarged upon in the near future, owing to popular demand. We ladies must look to our laurels!

The Entertainment Committee extend their gratitude to all who cooperated and contributed in any way towards the evening's program.

Although your scribe is reported to have been in Lynnfield over the week-end, this is contrary to fact. Instead, the family spent the holiday and Easter Sunday in the Berkshires, attending church in the little village of West Cummington. It was such a beautiful service that it seems worthy of being reported. The church is one of the old white meetin'-house type, set up above the village on a hill overlooking the main highway, but far enough back to escape the blare of motor horns and traffic. Behind the church are still standing the old horse sheds, and on this particular Sunday, a white horse hitched to a lumber wagon, was tethered inside one of the stalls. Sixty people made up the congregation, and we overtook one elderly lady toiling along, nearly bent double, painstakingly making her way up the hill with a cane. The doors were left open, and the sunshine entered with us. The platform and pulpit came first, and the pews faced the doors, so that there was no chance for latecomers to drop into a rear seat. The rear seats are farthest from the doors! Six Easter lilies and a jar of daffodils were the only decorations, and these we learned later had been bought by the hard-earned pennies of the village children. At the close of the service, these flowers were given to the older members of the congregation. The pastor was a young man, who had recently returned from a trip to Egypt and Palestine. His message was simple and sincere, seemingly inspired by the contacts he had made there, and he brought home to us the teachings of Jesus with appealing directness and earnestness. The choir consisted of five young girls, who sang, accompanied by a parlor organ, several notes higher than concert pitch. And yet the songs they chose, "Near the Cross" and "Low in the Grave He Lay" seemed most fitting in this environment. We came away, feeling that we had attended a real service of worship, for the beauty and strength of the hills were there, and, no glamour, pomp or sham marred the peacefulness and dignity of that lovely country service.

MRS LOBINGIER'S PAINTINGS

To Be Shown at the Public Library

The Winchester Art Association takes great pleasure in announcing an exhibition of the paintings of Mrs. Elizabeth W. Lobingier at the Art Gallery in the Public Library beginning Monday, May 6. As usual, there will be a private view and tea for members of the association and guests Sunday afternoon at 4 p. m.

Mrs. Lobingier is a well-known resident of Winchester where she and her husband, Mr. John C. Lobingier have lived for several years. She is not only an artist of established reputation, but has been a teacher of Art at Chicago University. The exhibition to be shown in Winchester has already been seen at the Boston City Club gallery, where it was greatly admired. It consists of landscapes and marines, the latter mainly painted on Cape Ann. We are confident that it will be one of the most interesting exhibitions of the year, both because of its high standard of excellence and because the artist is a Winchester woman, who has a wide acquaintance among the people of the town. It will remain at the Public Library Gallery until early in June and we urge all lovers of paintings to take advantage of the opportunity of seeing it.

Mrs. Cutler B. Downer, Mrs. Frank Moseley and Mrs. Bertram Bernnard are opening their homes for bridge on Friday afternoon, May 17, in aid of the Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church. Play will commence at 2 o'clock.

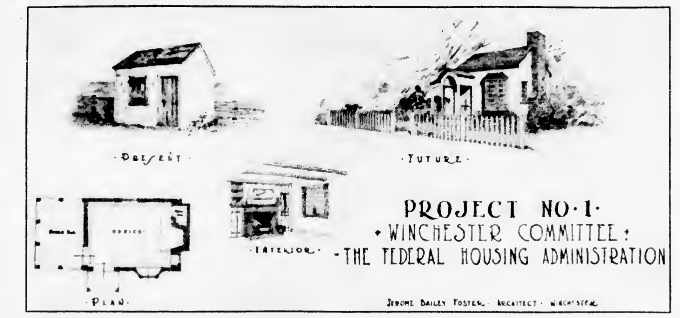
VOL. LIV NO. 41 | WINCHESTER MASS., FRIDAY, MAY 10, 1935 | PRICE SEVEN CENTS



WINCHESTER'S "LITTLE HOUSE"

The above is a "before and after" sketch of the Federal Housing Administration demonstration house now located on Manchester Field, opposite the post office. The sketch on the left shows it as it looked before being moved from its location in the rear of the old William C. Wade property on Blind Bridge street. The sketch on the right shows it as it will look when the workmen are finished remodeling it.

Winchester's Federal Housing Administration Campaign is to start this week. The plans of the Winchester Committee under the able direction of Selectman W. Allan Wilde as General Chairman, have been extensive and carefully prepared to the extent that every individual or organization who is in a position to perform labor or supply materials in connection with the remodeling of homes, has been, or is to be, registered with the committee, among whom the inquiries, which may result from this campaign, will be passed out. Inquiries will be given to those organizations whom the home owners suggest, or if no suggestion is made as impartially as possible by rotation.

Winchester is fortunate in having its two commercial banks, the Winchester Trust Company and the Winchester National Bank, registered and in a position to grant loans to home owners for remodeling or reconditioning purposes. Further information in relation to the requirements for borrowing can be obtained from the campaign headquarters or from either of the above mentioned banks.

The plans of the Winchester Committee are attracting the attention of both the State and the National Headquarters of the Federal Housing Administration, principally because of the unique demonstration or remodeling which has been accomplished at the building which is to be used as campaign headquarters, and which is pictured in this edition of the Star. The idea of such a demonstration building to be used for campaign headquarters has been undertaken in many of the larger cities in the country, but seldom in a community the size of Winchester. In this connection it will be interesting to note that each and every item of improvement which has been undertaken on the demonstration building can be performed individually on any existing residence. Nothing, therefore, has been done to Winchester's "Little House" of a spectacular unnecessary nature, but only what could be done to your home.

The committee wishes to extend its thanks and appreciation to the following named individuals and organizations among those who so generously contributed to the work or supplying of materials incidental to the completion of our campaign headquarters.

Thomas Quigley for moving the building; John Russell for foundation construction and walks; James J. Fitzgerald for flagstone and loam; George W. Blanchard Company for lumber and building materials; Frank Enman, Ralph Ritchie, Fred Dotten, James Shaw, Norman Osborn and Albert L. Whynott for carpenter labor; the Camera Shop for pictures; Jerome Bailey Foster for architectural services and general supervision; Brockway, Smith, Haig & Lovell, for sash and doors; the Winchester Glass Company for glazing of windows; Campbell-Moore of Woburn, for brick supplies; Casper Jenney of Concord for brick work; P. T. Foley & Co. for copper work; Cliftondale Woodworking Company for interior finish; Duncan Hardware Company, Hersey Hardware Company and Central Hardware Company, for hardware supplies; Harry Bennett for electrical work.

The committee hopes that the building will be thrown open to the public tomorrow, Saturday, May 11, although it seems at the time of going to press that it may be another week before the building is entirely completed.

CHORAL SOCIETY HELD ANNUAL MEETING

George E. Willey New President

George E. Willey was elected president of the Winchester Choral Society at the annual meeting and post-concert party of the organization, held Tuesday evening in Waterfield Hall.

The new president has had a long and varied musical experience as chorister and soloist, having sung as soloist in churches and on the concert platform, both in and around Boston, as well as having appeared in many amateur musical shows, in this connection many will recall him in those old time Calumet favorites, "The King of Bamboo" and "Rose of India" and later in the war time, "Ma'mzelle Taps," which by the way was conducted by J. Albert Wilson, now director of the Choral Society.

Mr. Willey was warmly applauded as he took over his new duties and told of his plans for the Choral Society's future. He paid high tribute to the retiring president, Dr. William L. Davis, who was also loudly acclaimed as he welcomed Mr. Willey to office.

Reports of the various officers showed the Society, everything considered, to be in good condition financially, there being a slight balance in the treasury after all outstanding bills were met. Musical Director J. Albert Wilson was presented with a box of cigars in recognition of his labors in the Society's behalf and the accompanist, Mary Ranton Withant, was given a handsome corsage of flowers.

After the business meeting and election of officers, a musical program was presented by talented members of the Society, the program including vocal solos by Betty Alden Perry, Robert E. Evans and Melania Kawah, a duet by Sophia Gardner and David Downer and whistling solos by Mary Willey. The accompanists were Mrs. Witham and Mr. Wilson, the former also contributing three piano solos. During the evening an attractively iced cake, made by Mary Willey, was raffled off and won by Sophia Gardner.

Delicious refreshments were served at small and attractively decorated tables, each guest being presented with favors and noise makers. After the refreshments, dancing was enjoyed, music being generously furnished by Mrs. Witham and Peggy Marchant.

Olive Page MacLellan was in charge of arrangements for the party, which was voted one of the most successful which the Society has yet enjoyed. She was assisted by Carolyn D. Gilpatric, Idabelle H. Winchin and Margaret E. Randall.

Following is the complete list of officers elected:

President George E. Willey
Vice President Mary B. Davis
Secretary Margaret E. Randall
Treasurer Olive Page MacLellan
Librarian Edmund A. Merriam
Directors Caroline S. Fitts, Dana J. Kelly, James H Penaligan, C. Earle Sylvester, Lucy L. Wilcox.
Music Committee Carolyn D. Gilpatric, John H McPherson, J. Albert Wilson
Nominating Committee Edward W. Berry, Jr., T Parker Clarke, Dorothy Marston, Nina Richardson, Marion K. Wright.

REV. GEORGE A. BUTTERS

SUCCEEDS REV. J. WEST THOMPSON AT M. E. CHURCH

Rev. George A. Butters, who for the past four years has served as pastor of the Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church in Beverly, assumes his work as new minister of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church in Winchester next Sunday, May 12.

At the 139th session of the New England annual conference meeting in Lowell, Rev. Mr. Butters was appointed by Bishop Adna W. Leonard, of Pittsburg, to the Crawford Memorial Church of this town, succeeding Rev. J. West Thompson, who has served the church faithfully and efficiently for the past five years and who has now been appointed to the Webster Church.

Mr. Butters comes from a very successful pastorate in Beverly during which time the congregation nearly doubled in size, the church has been painted inside and out, a new organ built, recess chancel added and new pulpit furnishings given.

During his four years in Beverly, Mr. Butters was active in civic and fraternal organizations and was a member of the Masons and Odd Fellows. He is at present president of the Beverly Ministers' Association.

Rev. George Alison Butters was born May 12 1904 in Renville, Minnesota, the son of Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Butters. He was graduated from Hamline University in St. Paul and Boston University School of Theology where he received the degree of Master of Arts and Master of Sacred Theology. He joined the Northern Minnesota Methodist Conference in 1924 and preached in the West before coming to Boston University. His first appointment in the New England Conference was as assistant to Rev. Lynn J. Radcliffe, pastor of the College Avenue Methodist Church in Somerville, one of the largest Methodist Churches. After serving there for a year, he was appointed pastor of the Beverly Church.

Mrs. Butters was Ella Fleming before her marriage. Her home was in Pepin, Wisconsin. She was educated in the River Falls State Teachers' College and at Boston University. The Butters were married in 1927 and have two children, Robert Bruce, 5 and Barbara Jane, 15 months.

Mr. Butters will appear in his new pulpit next Sunday and will be presented by the Epworth League of the church who will be in charge of a special Mothers' Day service of worship. He will preach his first sermon in Winchester on the following Sunday, May 19.

MISSION AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH

Murphy, O.M.I., will close on Sunday morning at the 8 o'clock mass with a general Communion of all the women of the parish.

A pleasing feature of the Mission has been the large attendance each evening in spite of the inclement weather, and the very large number who have been receiving Holy Communion daily. This evening at 8 o'clock, a special ceremony peculiar to the Oblate Order will take place. This ceremony is known as the promulgation of the law. Each of the ten Commandments will be explained.

On Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, a special sermon will be preached on devotion to the Blessed Virgin. After the sermon, 150 small girls dressed in their first Communion attire will march to the Shrine of the Blessed Virgin, where an Act of Consecration will be read, dedicating the entire congregation of women under the protection of the Blessed Virgin Mary. Papal Benediction will follow. Solemn closing of the children's Mission will take place Saturday morning at the 7:30 Mass. The most attractive feature of the Mission will take place this afternoon, Friday, at 3:30, when all the children of the parish who have not yet received their first Communion will receive the blessing of the Missionaries.

[illegible] ion for the men of the parish will open Sunday evening at 8 o'clock and continue each evening at the same hour.

"STEVE" COREY HOME MAY 12

Winchester Boy with Byrd in Antarctic

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Corey of Governor's avenue have received the following radiogram, relayed by the Signal Corps of the United States Army, written by their son, Stevenson Corey, supply officer of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition, and sent them from on board the S.S. Jacob Ruppert, en route for Virginia and Washington, D. C.:

"Ruppert going direct Boston from Norfolk. Am coming home from Washington on train. Probably arrive Back Bay May 12. Details later. Love.

Steve"

"Steve" is coming home ahead of his ship which is not due in Boston until May 16 when the members of the expedition will be given a public reception in the Hub.

When the radiogram was written May 2, the Ruppert and the S.S. Bear of Oakland, in which "Steve" sailed from California to Boston before the expedition sailed South, were en route up the East coast bound for Washington where they were due to arrive today. On the way to Washington the men on the Ruppert were transferred to the Bear of Oakland.

President Roosevelt is to receive Admiral Byrd and the expedition members at 4:50 in the afternoon, after which the members will be free to greet their families and remain with them until 8:30 in the evening.

At that time the National Geographic Society will give a reception for the expedition members at Constitution Hall in Washington. Expedition headquarters are to be at the Willard Hotel and sections are being reserved there for families of its members, as well as at the Navy Yard.

After the festivities in the Nation's Capitol the ships will leave on the trip to Boston in time to arrive here May 16. In the mean time "Steve" will be in Winchester four days in advance of that date, which is good news for his parents and his many local friends who are eager for a look at him after his long absence from home.

FIRE AT SYMMES GRAIN SHED

Two alarms from Box 41 called local fire apparatus to put out a fire in the storage building at the hay and grain establishment of C. H. Symmes at 751 Main street, Wednesday afternoon.

The first alarm was sounded at 3:48 from Headquarters where the department was informed of the fire by a telephone message from Mr. Symmes. The second alarm was sounded at 3:53, sending Engine 1 to the scene in addition to the other apparatus. Arlington Engine 4 covered in at the Central Station. The proximity of Hambly's Garage and the type of building in the neighborhood made it necessary to take great precautions against the fire's spreading.

The building was largely filled with hay and the fire was a hot one. Five lines of hose were laid and quantities of chemical poured on the flames. The contents of the building were destroyed and the inside badly gutted.

After the fire had been put out the Police had to make a trip to the building to drive away a crowd of youngsters that was prowling around the place.

GYMNASTS AND WRESTLERS AT ODD FELLOWS' MEETING

Through the courtesy of "Gus" Hakanson, former middleweight amateur champion wrestler, a troup of gymnasts and wrestlers will exhibit after the regular meeting of Waterfield Lodge, I. O. O. F. at Association Hall on Vine street Monday evening.

The Posse Gym Team of Boston will give an exhibition of gymnastics which should prove most interesting as the team members are all expert in their field. As a windup several crack wrestlers from the Viking A. C. of Woburn will swap grips on the mat, and it is hoped to have big "Jim" Kendrick, one of Paul Bowser's troupe of professional pachyderms, on hand for a bout. The exhibition will commence about 9 o'clock.

ONE MOVIE APPLICATION

Contrary to public report, the Star is informed that but one application for a moving picture license is in the hands of the Selectmen, that of Mr. Albert J. Locatelli. An application from Mr. Ernest Dudley Chase has been received, but owing to his location being within a residential district, he has been notified that this cannot be granted.

It is further reported that three other letters have been received by the Selectmen requesting that they defer granting any application until the writers could have time to prepare plans. These letters are said to refer to two movie theatres on north Main street and one either in or near Waterfield Building. Report has it that these two applications will be presented at the coming hearing.

COMMITTEE NAMED ON WEST SIDE SCHOOL

In accordance with the recent vote the following town committee has been named to consider and report upon a site for a school building on the west side of the town: W. Allan Wilde, representing the Selectmen; Joseph W. Butler, representing the School Committee; Fred C. Alexander, representing the Park Department; William L. Parsons, representing the Planning Board and Robert M. Stone, appointed by Moderator Hayward.

KERRIGAN ELECTED CHAIRMAN

At the last meeting of the new Finance Committee, Ambrose Kerrigan was elected chairman. Frank M. Gunby was elected vice-chairman and John H. Joy was elected secretary.

WINCHESTER GIRL OFF TO HOLLYWOOD

Miss Martha Tibbetts of Sheffield road left New York for Hollywood Tuesday under contract to the Warner Brothers' Studio. Although her Winchester and Boston friends know her primarily as a dancer, she has studied and worked, both at singing and dancing here and in New York, since graduating from Winchester High School.

She was a dramatic student under E. E. Clive his last season at the Copley Theatre and was also a member of the first Hans Wiener group to dance at Pops in Symphony Hall. The following season she went to New York where her dancing immediately won her a place in Sam Harris' "Face the Music." After the closing of that show she studied voice in New York and the following season went into the original "Let 'Em Eat Cake" Company. Always studying between performances, she kept up her vocal lessons and also took lessons of Paul Haakon who is now considered by critics to be America's foremost male dancer.

Last September she opened with McGowan's musical comedy, "Say When," and it was her stage personality and acting in this Broadway production which interested the film companies in her work and led to her present engagement. Although she has studied with the best teachers here and in New York, Martha considers that her real foundation in dancing was laid here in Winchester under Mrs. Cora Corthell Phelps.

Mr. and Mrs. Tibbetts were in New York with their daughter last weekend, and she was seen off at the train by New York friends and representatives of the Warner Brothers' Studio. She will not return East until September.

WINCHESTER AND WELLESLEY IN TRACK DEADLOCK

Winchester and Wellesley High School track teams split 72 points exactly in half last Friday afternoon, concluding their meet on Manchester Field in a 36 to 36 deadlock. At the request of Wellesley the relay event was omitted from the meet, and had this usual fature been included it is likely that the locals would have been returned winners. The Winchester sprinters looked to have sufficient edge to make this statement safe.

"Larry" Bairstow, blond thatched local sprinter, was Winchester's only double winner, taking both dashes. Capt. "Lynnie" Mathews, patently off form, was second in the century and third in the furlong.

"Ken" Gurney's 5:12 mile could have been much faster had his pace been better judged, but for an inexperienced youngster his showing was fine. Downes was Winchester's other first place winner with a high jump of 5ft. 3in. Lowell, Wellesley football star, captured the shot with a heave of slightly better than 40 feet.

Following is the summary:

100 Yards Dash Bairstow, (Win), 1st; Mathews (Win) 2nd; Feroli (Wel), 3rd.
220 Yards Dash Bairstow (Win), 1st; Hogdsen (Wel), 2nd; Mathews (Win), 3rd.
440 Yards Run Feroli (Wel), 1st; Graham (Win), 2nd; Gaum (Win), 3rd.
880 Yards Run McMahon (Wel), 1st; Croto (Win), 2nd, Gorman (Wel), 3rd.
Mile Run Gurney (Win), 1st; McGlone, (Wel), 2nd; Ferullo (Win), 3rd.
Broad Jump McMahon (Wel), 1st; Wienz, (Wel), 2nd; Derby (Win), 3rd.
High Jump Downes (Win), 1st; Lowell (Wel), 2nd, Wienz (Wel), 3rd.
Shotput — Lowell (Wel), 1st; Gaffney, (Win), 2nd; Whitcomb (Wel), 3rd.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Albert O. "Al" Wilson, Jr., former Winchester High tackle and track man, rowed in the bow of the Tech freshman boat in the regatta on the Charles last Saturday when crews from Harvard, Syracuse, Cornell and Technology participated.

Winchester won its match last week Thursday in the Boston Twilight fourball golf league, defeating Charles River on the latter's links, 8—7.

Miss Anne Shanklin of Winchester was a member of the Wellesley Verse-Speaking Choir, the members of which participated in a round-the-world broadcast last Sunday evening from the studios of the short wave station WIXAL. The choir was the first American group to give a full recital of verse-speaking and as a consequence of its Sunday broadcast, the first to be heard on radio short wave. Its members were invited by the English Verse-Speaking Association, of which John Masefield is president, to give a recital at Oxford this summer, but were unable to accept, the short wave broadcast being used as a substitute.

ANNUAL FATHERS' AND SONS' NIGHT OF MEN'S CLUB AT FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

An evening of unusual and interesting events has been arranged for the annual Fathers' and Sons' night of the Men's Club of the First Congregational Church. This popular event —the final of the current season—will be held in the parish house this Friday evening, May 10. An abundant supper with special attention given to the gastronomic capacity and impulses of the boys will be served at 6:30 o'clock. This will be followed by several special events, including "Jimmy" Knox, Harvard football scout and coach, who will show various slow motion pictures of Harvard football games and explain how football should and should not be played. These slow-motion pictures are the type that are in general use today by the large college teams. They are taken during various matches and are then shown to the teams to demonstrate the correct or faulty execution of different plays and how the game was won or lost. They are of the greatest assistance to the coaching staff and the players by revealing visually to the minutest detail every important physical movement of the game. They are proof positive of what was done in the execution of each play. "Jimmy" Knox is a veteran scout and will also have some fascinating experiences to relate.

A group of boys in the church will give a gymnastic exhibition of various stunts with a challenge to the men to try them also. It is expected that the challenge will go unanswered. Under the guidance of the club and with its support each year special coaching and instructions are given to the boys in basketball, baseball, gymnastics and other sports. This has become one of the important functions of the club and the demonstration by the boys is anticipated with great interest.

Since the rigors of our advancing civilization seem to necessitate the compliment of brain with brawn and brawn with brain, with the result that the cave man is now handmaiden to the classics, a collegiate wrestling match has been arranged. It is expected that the winner of the 1934-35 Intercollegiate Championship, will engage in an exhibition bout with the runner-up in the championship. College wrestling is different from the professional type. Success depends principally upon the effective use of scientific holds and bouts may be won on points without either contestant obtaining a fall.

Another event which might be considered the principal feature of the evening has also been arranged. It cannot be disclosed at this time, but will give a thrill to every father's son and every son's father at the meeting.

All men in the church are invited to come and to bring their sons with them. Men without juniors are urged to bring their neighbors' sons and heirs.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Croughwell of Ravine road quietly observed their 20th wedding anniversary on Sunday. During the afternoon and early evening they were the hosts to many friends who recalled the anniversary and attended to offer their congratulations. They were the recipients of many gifts including a quantity of beautiful flowers.

Pearl E. Campbell of Euclid avenue, at the Bear Hill horse show of last week, was awarded for her new horse, "Dwight's Choice," the blue ribbon in the Neighborhood Saddle Horse Class; in the saddle horses over 14.2 and under 15.2, the second prize; in the Novice Class, third prize; and in the Ladies' Saddle Horse Class, fourth.

Mr. Stafford Rogers of Winchester Post, A. L., is repairing the formerly gold eagle surmounting the honor roll in front of the Town Hall. For some time it has been felt that this bird had been superceded by Nira, but it is to be brought back to its former colors. When the work is completed, the whole memorial will receive a new coat of paint.

SPRING IS BACKWARD

This spring the weather has been so backward and cold that the younger generation has been more or less bottled up. Anticipation of fair and warmer weather was held responsible for a slight outbreak of youthful exuberance over the week-end. Robert E. Fay of Park avenue, instead of catching a rat which had been annoying him, took into custody a kid's three fingers when the trap sprung after the boy had crawled under the piazza for some reason or other. The kids have been annoying Robert, but he did not anticipate a remedy of this nature. Harry A. Goddard of Wolcott road was another citizen who was somewhat peeved when he found the window of his Ford smashed. Diplomatic negotiations, contrary to Europeon custom, have resulted in a peaceful and satisfactory adjustment of the incident. On Spruce street a truant baseball was confiscated by the lady who owned the yard into which it traveled. Preliminary negotiations for its return met with some opposition, both pro and con, but this phase of spring is expected to wear off with more warm weather. Three young men desiring refreshments for the inner man on their way to Winchester Saturday night embraced what they thought was an opportunity to collect a few souvenirs at the restaurant which hey patronized. The proprietor, however, had closed the souvenir department of his shop and when the Winchester police asked "how come," they were awarded by two salt shakers, one saucer and a sugar bowl. This incident, while it may not reach the World Court, is reported to have occupied the attention of a more minor judiciary body. However—with spring, work relief, the abundant life and prosperity just around the corner, our police force seems capable to cope with the emergency.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bugbee of Symmes road left yesterday for Atlanta, Ga., on a ten-day trip.

WINCHESTER COLLEGE CLUB

The members and guests of the College Club had a treat on Wednesday, May 8, in hearing Mrs. Frederick E. Stockwell, Secretary of the Institute of Euthenics at Vassar present the plan for the summer session, which this year celebrates its tenth anniversary.

Miss Alice Main, 14 Herrick street, was the hostess and was assisted during the social hour which preceded by Mrs. Lorimer Slocum, Mrs. Chas. Greene and members of the Board.

A dinner at the Country Club was given for Mrs. Stockwell and was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Judson L. Cross, Mr. and Mrs. George Reed, Mrs. Corthell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton E. Farnham and Mrs. Wm. Spaulding.

The regular meeting of the morning study group, the last for the current year, was held in the public library, Thursday, May 2, with Mrs. Mei, the wife of the professor of Chinese Philosophy at Harvard, as speaker. Having studied in American schools in China in her girlhood, and with her outlook broadened and deepened by an eight years' residence in this country where she has studied and observed American conditions and modes of life, she was able to give a most interesting talk on the position of women in China today.

When we think of the Chinese woman the picture of her hard lot as portrayed in "The Good Earth" and other current books comes to our mind. We recall the stories of the unwanted baby girls being sold into slavery or abandoned by their parents. Although these conditions do exist they are the exception rather than the rule. As a rule the little daughters in the family are loved as is shown by the quaint expressions such as "pearl in the palm" and "1000 pieces of gold" that the Chinese use in speaking of them. The mother is the center of the family and it is the custom of the student to kneel down before his mother for her blessing before he goes to take his examinations.

It is true that a majority of the Chinese are entirely illiterate but in the true sense of he word not uneducated. To quote Tzi Hsai "The man who can appreciate moral worth and disengage his mind from sensual passions, who can put forth his utmost strength to serve his parent and lay down his life for his prince, who speaks sincerely in his intercourse, such a man though she world may call him untaught has in my opinion received the best and highest education." How many of our college graduates today can measure up to such a test of character and should not the function of education be to create a person who will accept and conscientiously perform his obligations to family and country.

For countless generations the unlettered Chinese have been taught by the itinerant shows that have gone from village to village and with their dialogues and songs based on the teachings of the classics have taught honesty, truthfulness, duty to parents and prince as the qualities to be sought and cherished. Each village has had its wise man, versed in the teachings of Confucius and Buddha to whom the simple people could look for help and moral advice.

Modern education in China began with the coming of the missionaries and the establishment of schools and hospitals. These schools did not teach the Chinese classics which had been for thousands of years the foundation of the Chinaman's spiritual life. A tragic thing took place. The young people suddenly torn from national tradition and spiritual life, were yet unable to absorb we-tern civilization and religion. The foundation was cut from under them as it were, which accounts for much of the instability in China today. The students coming back from American colleges and seeing only the poverty and graft and lack of physical comforts in their own country cried "Revolution"—in family, home, government and everything. Reforms were badly needed but by going to such extremes they have cut off much that is precious in Chinese civilization.

It has been 80 years since the first missionary school was established in China and 50 years since the first government school was started. Of the 18,000 districts in China 400 have no schools for girls. However, in 1920 60 colleges and special schools became co-educational. About one fourth as many women as men are graduated from these schools.

The Chinese Woman's Movement was started in 1911. It has accomplished something for women. Higher education has been opened to them. Slavery and concubinage have been abolished. Absolute freedom of marriage and divorce is allowed but Mrs. Mei is not sure that this has proven a blessing as yet. The two chief reasons why more is not being accomplished at present are: first, the inheritance laws which give women no money of their own; and second, the communist menace which has forced the government to restrict organizations.

WYMAN SCHOOL NEWS

On May 1, Miss Goodle, of the Audubon Society, gave an illustrated talk on birds to grades 2 through 6. She certainly made us wish to be more alert to the value and beauty of many varieties of bird life around us.

Miss Hackett's first grade celebrated Health Week in their assembly play, Friday, May 3. A cleverly costumed "mad turtle" and a "boy with dirty hands" were among the chief actors.

This Health Week play was supplemented by a talk by Mrs. Savage, the school nurse, to all the children, emphasizing cleanliness and good health habits.

Following this assembly Mrs. Savage held a class of the two sixth grades to discuss pasteurization and vaccines. Lane McGovern told of the life of Pasteur, and Derrel Nevins, of the life of Edward Jenner.

Miss Howard's assembly of Wednesday, May 7, celebrated Mothers' Day with many fine poems—honoring mothers then as well as on the following Sunday and continuously, too. This fourth grade play called "Voices of the Past." The "voices" advised the children of today to carefully conserve trees, flowers and birds, which help us and give us happiness.

Miss Bowie's fifth grade gave an interesting review of the class geography study, "Products of the Jungle." Many trophies were shown. From the class history study of the War of 1812 many characters were posed and delightedly guessed by the school audience.

James Coon, of the Mystic School, was guest speaker at our Upper Grades' Red Cross Assembly on Tuesday, May 6. He gave an excellent account of his trip to Washington as Junior Red Cross delegate. His talk was so well planned and charmingly given that everyone who heard him vividly shared the fun of such a trip.

WINTON CLUB LUNCHEON

The Winton Club held its annual luncheon and final meeting of the year at the Winchester Country Club on Monday, Mrs. Bonsall G. Crowell continues in office as the president of the club and other officers were elected as follows: vice-president, Mrs. Howard A. Morrison; secretary; Mrs. Harry N. Squires, Jr.; treasurer, Mrs. Richard Parkhurst; board members, Mrs. Ernestus B. Badger and Mrs. Lawrence S. Mattin; chairman of work committee, Mrs. Clark W. Collins.

Other appointments were Mrs. Edward V. French as chairman of the membership committee; Mrs. Allan Cunningham, chairman of the hospital linen fund; Mrs. Robert S. Clark, chairman of the cabaret committee and Mrs. Edwin R. Rooney as custodian of properties.

The luncheon and entertainment that followed the business meeting were arranged by Mrs. Gordon Parker.

APPRECIATION

The Mothers' Association was extremly gratified by the response of the town to the Tag Day last Saturday and wishes to express its great appreciation for the $1300 raised. They have 15 applications for the scholarship and there are an unusually large proportion of outstanding students. It makes the decision hard, but that the committee are very grateful for all the money they have to use.

Mrs. Fisk Butterfield, Mrs. John Munro, Miss Margaret Newman and Mrs. Marshall Symmes drove to Worcester on Wednesday to attend the Girl Scout Conference.

MARY E. CUTTER

WINCHESTER GIRL WINS JACKSON HONORS

Miss Mary E. Cutter of this town, daughter of Mrs. Grace G. Cutter of Black Horse terrace, was thrice honored at the recent announcement of outside activities awards at Tufts and Jackson Colleges, made public last week-end.

Miss Cutter, or "Susie," as she is familiarly called, was named as captain of the Jackson varsity tennis team for 1935, as treasurer of the College Athletic Association and among the winners of the Jackson Athlete Association emblems.

Miss Cutter is taking a pre-medical course at Jackson and has been active athletically, having played on both the college field hockey and tennis teams. She is the former girls' intercollegiate tennis champion, has held several junior State titles in tennis and is probably the best of the town's women players.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Ten Bugle and Drum Corps competed at the Arena in Boston on Saturday, May 4, for the State Championship. Only Dorchester and Holyoke rated Class A (90-100 per cent) with Dorchester receiving the highest honors. Their drum major was also given the state drum major-ship. Winchester and Arlington combined to make a corps to demonstrate the corps routine. Elena Shinn of Arlington won the contest for State drummer.

The final meeting of our corps was held Friday night, May 3 for drill with Arlington after which gold and silver star attendance awards were made by Mrs. Jackson.

Many members of the Girl Scout Council and Leaders' Association enjoyed the meetings of the New England Regional Conference at Worcester from May 7 to May 9. Great help is given to those attending the small group discussions which deal with the problems which arise in the various phases of Scouting. One could not but be impressed with the earnestness of the leaders who came together from the various states and who are giving their time and energy for the furtherance of this world-wide movement which aims to make of girls better citizens, ready to face their responsibilities prepared by Scout training and ideals.

Troop 1 held its last meeting April 25 and had about 25 parents and friends present.

A play entitled "Magic Gold Pieces" was given in which 20 merit badges were awarded. The play was coached by Miss Margaret Millican, who later was presented with flowers by the cast. TOZIER PICTURES MAY 24

Winchester will have an opportunity on May 24 to see the beautiful and unusual colored pictures taken by Dr. Charles H. Tozier of Bruce road, world traveler and photographic expert, on his most recent trip and one which the doctor himself characterizes as the most interesting of the many he has taken in the last 20 years.

Entering Mexico under the auspices of the Boston Rotary, with the assistance of Ambassador Daniels and traveling under special permits issued by the Mexican Government, Dr. Tozier was able to photograph objects in the country never before photographed by a foreigner. Priceless articles in museums were placed at his disposal and as a special tribute Mrs. Daniels posed for him in ceremonial robe given her by one of the Mexican States, a robe that must be sent to be appreciated.

Even the Mt. Alban Jewels, the finest relics on earth of an extinct civilization, were photographed, with the gods, pottery and other wonderful relics of the ancient capitol of the Montezumas. The finest examples of modern art in Mexico were included among the subjects photographed, with striking examples of the beautiful flowers of the country and "shots" of bull fighting, the national sport of the Mexicans.

This collection of pictures is positively unique and no lover of the beautiful, no one at all interested in antiquity can afford to miss them. They are to be shown to the Boston, and other Rotary Clubs to stimulate interest in the coming Rotary Convention in Mexico City in June, and their Winchester showing is being sponsored by the First Baptist Church. Admission is nominal, adult tickets being 50c, and children being admitted for 25c. Don't forget the date, Friday evening, May 24, at 8 o'clock in the town hall.

"AREN'T WE ALL" CAST ENTERTAINED

After the Winchester Group Theatre's presentation of "Aren't We All" in the high school auditorium, Saturday evening, May 4, the entire cast, the director and the committees connected with the production gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore R. Gibbs as the guests of the Group Theatre.

The 60 odd people were in a gay and festive mood occasioned partly by the relief from responsibilities, but more especially by the very evident success of the production.

These after the performance "get-togethers" of the Group Theatre have proved very popular and are looked forward to with anticipated pleasure by those connected with the play as a fitting climax after the long evenings of rehearsals and preparing of the stage.

MOVING DAY FOR THREE MINISTERS

Cooperative household moving—Beverly to Winchester to Webster and back to Beverly was executed Thursday by three Methodist ministers who have recently been transferred and who have entered into plans for replacing each other.

The three pastors concerned, the Rev. George A. Butters going to Memorial Methodist Church of Beverly, the Rev. J. W. Thompson of the Crawford Memorial Church of Winchester and the Rev. Irving W. Arnold of the Webster Methodist Church, were recently ordered to change pastorates. Mr. Butters going to replace Mr. Thompson at Winchester, Mr. Thompson replacing Mr. Arnold at Webster and Mr. Arnold replacing Mr. Butters at Beverly.

As all three ministers planned to move Thursday, it was a simple and highly efficient plan for moving which the three evolved. Early Thursday morning a truck moved Mr. Butters to Winchester, then moved Mr. Thompson to Webster and there picking up Mr. Arnold's belongings, returning with them to Beverly.

We note by the papers that we are going to find out about the "American Dollar" next Monday night, when Secretary Morgenthau will assist administration propaganda by a nation-wide broadcast. This will be interesting. Secretary Morgenthau, so it is reported, plans to cover the whole monetary situation since he took office. We will be glad to have him speak concerning this matter, for he apparently is the first man who has been able to puzzle out what has been done and to tell us how we stand. We all know that food, and especially meats, have risen enormously in price—which explains the former cryptic assertion that the American people must change their diet. There seems good ground for believing that our grain is largely beginning to come from outside the United States, and we know that all that advantageous trade prophecy concerning our Russian friends has been relegated to the sound proof vault. The cotton situation seems muddled and New England has lost all its old hardy pioneers. The Japanese, from observation, are providing us with novelties of a thousand varieties and have far outstripped the old German imports. We can borrow money to paint our houses but not to buy our bacon which the farmers are paid not to raise. We probably will not learn anything about silver, which is thought to be going up—although those versed in this phase of the situation are reported to be ready to make a little something at the proper time. In fact, if the information to be given is as clear as the whole situation has been since the present administration came into power, we are still more or less pessimistic.

WHAT IS EN KA?

Winchester will undoubtedly turn out in force tomorrow for the En Ka Street Fair at the Town Hall. Without doubt the affair is well advertised by the large corps of active young ladies who form the society, and its novelty will add to the attractiveness of Winchester's numerous social affairs of a charitable nature. The society is to be complimented upon its energy and activity, and while not so well known as other similar organizations, it bids fair to add a substantial share to the town's welfare.

En Ka was born 32 years ago as a secret Society of the high school. Three years ago the hospital wanted the En Ka room, which had been donated and furnished by the Society, put in better order; so a get-together dinner was arranged. At this dinner a vote was passed to re-organize En Ka and to form it as a charitable organization to aid charitable work of Winchester.

For two years the Society worked out its policies and then informed the town that En Ka was ready with workers to be of help.

En Ka was soon flooded with requests and needed more members—people with civic pride who would give of their time for charity—and so this year they elected provisional members.

En Ka has had two members at the hospital every day except Sundays assisting the floor nurses; has given a tea at the Home for Aged People; has taken people from the Home for automobile rides; helped the Welfare Committee with the Thanksgiving baskets; sewed and knitted for the Red Cross; read to blind students, and has been ready to aid any group where time is needed.

Financially, they have taken an interest in the Nurses' Home, which is the "Hospital Orphan"—sadly in need of repair. Already this year En Ka has refinished the floors and hung several pairs of new curtains. It is to continue this particular work that the Street Fair is being run.

The town is fortunate that such an active, ambitious and hard working group center their efforts on something of benefit to the town. Let's support En Ka at the Street Fair tomorrow.

Although Winchester's grade crossing elimination, now 35 or 40 years of age, appears to be still slumbering peacefully, the fact that report has it that some of the presidential billions may be expended throughout the country for crossing eliminations has led some interested citizens to revive a hope that Winchester may at least achieve its goal of a quarter of a century and do away with this menace in our own town.

While the Star has unqualifiedly endorsed the Kellaway Plan since its first presentation, it is to be expected that various residents should be equally desirous of presenting their views of how the plans should be made and how the work should be done. The Star has, ever since the first project for our crossing elimination was formulated, been the receptacle for elimination plans of every description. It has seen the center raised and the tracks raised, the tracks depressed and the station relocated, and various bridges numbering from one to as many as three advocated—along with a banner idea of shooting the whole railroad over back of the Congregational Church and beside the shores of Wedge Pond.

The Star still sticks to the Kellaway Plan as the most feasible, the most workable and the most desirable for the future of Winchester.

This week we have received from Mr. E. L. Burwell, a well known resident of Madison avenue west, a letter from a Cambridge engineer giving opinion and estimate for depressing the tracks. This information is supplied at Mr. Burwell's request and he has, in turn, submitted it to the Star for publicity.

In brief, without reproducing the entire letter, the engineer believes that a plan for depressing the tracks is possible and estimates the cost of the change to be approximately $1,900,000 including the necessary land and rights.

The tracks would start their downward pitch at a point south of and near the Wedgemere Station and would rise to join the present track level at a point near the overpass south of the Winchester Highlands Station. For a portion of this distance the tracks would be in an open culvert with reinforced concrete walls and bottom.

Details of carrying out the work are included, and it is interesting to note that "it is proposed to make an opening in the dam (Mill Dam at Main street and the Parkway) and to lower the water level about seven feet along the line of the proposed work, by dredging a channel for a distance of about 2900 feet above the dam."

There would be slight changes in both the Winchester and Wedgemere Stations, and two overpasses—one at the center and one at the station. "The surface of the street is to be raised about four and a half feet with ramp approaches." An electrical pump, in duplicate, would care for drainage water in the culvert.

Mr. Burwell's interest in the matter is commendable, and the Star would give his plan its unqualified approval over any scheme to raise the railroad, for it never could and cannot now picture our rail traffic running through this beautiful valley, high in the air, and filling every space with its noise and dirt. A granite wall dividing Winchester into two arts from one end to the other! Perish the thought! Under such a condition one cannot picture a continuance of our present grade of development.

On the other hand, we do feel, as we have repeatedly stated in these columns, that the Kellaway Plan is the best solution ever presented for the elimination of this crossing. It was presented by a particularly able town committee, and if interested citizens, with Winchester's welfare in mind, will give it their study, we feel sure they will concur with us.

UNLOOSE THE SHACKLES

To the Editor of the Star:

I was glad to submit for your inspection, use and comment, if you think proper, the conclusions and judgment of the eminent civil engineer, Mr. Edward Graustein, in re—the elimination of the grade crossing in the center of our town.

Mr. Graustein is a university and M. I. T. graduate, who made a thorough, painstaking investigation in the subject matter, from the standpoint, as prompted by me of the depression of the railroad tracks. Mr. Graustein is firmly of the opinion that this is not only feasible, but the best solution of the problem for the interests of Winchester.

If it is possible to keep the railroad line in the same location as at present but with easily graded culverts so that at Common street and the square (but not elsewhere) the traffic, both freight and passenger, may be down out of the way—what a boon and safety gesture this would prove and advantage the town immeasureably from every point of view.

Right now with 36 millions to be devoted from the Presidential allotted funds, to the elimination of grade crossings in Massachusetts, is our golden opportunity to have the menacing tracks removed from our public center, making it safe for pedestrian and vehicle while safeguarding real estate and lives, on the west side, through the open way for our Fire Department. Now, if ever, may we resolutely unloose the shackles with which the B. & M. Railroad has bound us for so many years.

Very faithfully,
E. Langworthy Burwell
16 Winslow road

WHE'RE YOU GOING?

HORSE THIEF

A horse thief! And run to earth without the famous Rangers, Vigilantes, Sherriff's posse or what have you! Right here in (more or less) staid Winchester, Patrolman D. Irving Reardon, during the wee small hours of Thursday morning came upon a boy leading a horse that the police say can only be described as "a nag." To the animal was tied with a rope the boy's effects such as they were. The youngster's costume was very sketchy and chiefly distinguished by a pair of enormous boots which in themselves would have precluded anything like a "getaway" for their wearers.

Officer Reardon met the youngster and his charger on Thompson street and in response to questions, the boy admitted having stolen the horse from the Silk Contracting Company at 13 Silk place, Arlington. At Headquarters he said he was a State ward and gave his name as Carl Curtis, 15, of 13 Teel street place, Arlington. He wasn't just sure what he was going to do with the horse, but did tell the local authorities that he and the steed had remained hidden in some bushes along the Parkway while the Metropolitan Police went by them.

Officer Henry P. Dempsey, one of the local department's expert cowboys, was unable to make friends with the horse which was taken to the town stables by Patrolman Reardon. Curtis was turned over to Patrolmen Hannihan and Keefe of the Arlington Police Department.

FISHERMAN'S SUNDAY

The 13th annual Fisherman's Sunday service attracted sportsmen in Winchester and from surrounding places, including several far distant points, to the First Congregational Church last Sunday morning. Special seats were reserved for the fishermen at the front of the auditorium, and as usual there was a large general attendance.

Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the church, himself an ardent fisherman and the comrade of many local fishing devotees on their trips to the Maine woods, preached one of his inimitable out-of-door sermons, so appreciated by his fellow sportsmen and enjoyed by those in the congregation whose knowledge of the woods and streams must of necessity be second hand.

"Fishing Fever," was given as the topic of his current address, and a most desirable affliction it seemed to be as described by Dr. Chidley, who among others, aroused a hearty laugh when he advised fishermen to believe each other's stories, for no one else will.

Special music appropriate to the service was sung by the Chancel Choir under the direction of J. Albert Wilson, who during the offertory played a selection on the organ chimes, given to the church by the late, Charles A. Lane, who is affectionately known as the father of Fisherman's Sunday.

SELECTMEN'S NOTES

George B. Smith, 120 Cambridge street, was drawn as juror to serve at the second session of the Superior Criminal Court at Cambridge, to appear on June 10.

The First Baptist Church has been granted the use of the Town Hall on Friday evening, May 2, for an illustrated lecture.

Examination for Lieutenant in the Fire Department will be held on May 31 and for private on June 8. Salaries for privates will start at $1590 per year, with $100 annual increase to maximum of $1890.

The Board has authorized the construction of a new police box in the centre under the direction of the Town Engineer.

On the basis of a revised tabulation, taking into account certain new names which had been overlooked in the first count, the census of 1935 shows the population of Winchester as of Jan. 1, 1935 to be 13,371. These revised figures have been approved by the Secretary of State's Office.

A second hearing on the proposed street layout between Canal street and the Winchester-Woburn line will be held in the Selectmen's room on June 24 at 8 o'clock.

Citizens are reminded of the public hearing on motion pictures, to be held at the Town Hall Wednesday evening, May 22 at 8 o'clock.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WOMEN'S LEAGUE

The annual meeting of the Women's League of the First Baptist Church was one of the most delightful gatherings of the year. The ladies met for sewing in the morning, finshing the White Cross work for the season. Luncheon, with Mrs. O. A. Weld as hostess, was served by the members of Mrs. Weld's group to over 100 women. In the afternoon the presentation of reports was made in a unique manner, every officer and chairman bringing in their tiny ships laden with a report of the results of the year's labor in their respective departments.

The election of officers for the coming year was as follows:

President Mrs. Norman Mitchell

The Golden Text is: "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:14, 15).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For if by one man's offence death reigned by one; much more they which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ" (Romans 5:17).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The standard of perfection was originally God and man. Has God taken down His own standard, and has man fallen? God is the creator of man, and, the divine Principle of man remaining perfect, the divine idea or reflection, man, remains perfect. . . . The relations of God and man, divine Principle and idea, are indestructible in Science; and Science knows no lapse from nor return to harmony, but holds the divine order or spiritual law, in which God and all that He creates are perfect and eternal, to have remained unchanged in its eternal history" (p. 470).

EN KA STREET FAIR—TOWN HALL GROUNDS TOMORROW—SOMETHING DOING 11 A. M. TO MIDNIGHT

The paint brushes, the hammers, the needles are being kept busy putting the final touches to the Street Fair, which will open tomorrow Saturday, May 11, at 11 a. m. on the Town Hall grounds; each day plans are perfected and still more generous offers to donate, contribute to help are received by En Ka.

Mr. John Kenerson, Mr. Richard Fenno and Mr. Clinton Mason have offered to take over the "beano" games. And as enthusiasm has increased over 100 chairs are to be set up for play. A "mike" will be used for calling and will be in charge of Selectman W. Allan Wilde, Mr. Laurence S. Martin, Mr. Lindley Beardsley, Mr. Lynn P. Marsh, Mr. Charles Clarke. The following will act as cashiers and have charge of the prizes. Mr. James Dwinell, Jr., Mr. Robert S. Clark, Mr. Arthur Driscoll and Mr. Robert MacArthur. All the prizes have been donated by local merchants, including the several surprises to be offered at specially priced games, during the evening. The tables will be on the right as you enter from Mt. Vernon street. There will be room for all players and under the management of the following attendants: Mr. Donald Gardner, Mr. John Wilson, Mr. Loring P. Gleason, Mr. Charles Woolley, Mr. Harold Hovey, Mr. Charles S. Eaton, Mr. Charles Hart, Mr. Vincent Farnsworth, Jr., Mr. Donald Boothby, Mr. Herbert Miller, Mr. Kenneth Moffatt, Mr. Herbert Wadsworth, Mr. Chesley Whitten, Mr. Morris Kerr and Mr. Stephen Neiley, and Dr. Frank W. Rounds.

One interest shop where contributions have been greatly appreciated is "Danske Bagevarer." Can you translate it? If not, we will say that it means a place where good food is sold. Come early to get your selection of home cooked pies, breads cakes, or doughnuts. (Your purchases will be held while you go for further shopping on the "street.") The "Manager" is Mrs. T. Price Wilson, with Mrs. Lowell R. Smith, Mrs. Clark Collins, Mrs. Whitelaw Wright, Mrs. Robert S. Clark and Mrs. Earl Spencer assisting. They have many people to thank for helping with their shop, esecially Mr. Preston Corey and Mr. Leonard MacNeill, who constructed it. The doughnut booth has been loaned by Dr. Richard Sheehy. Come to No. 19 Shop for your "Mother's Day" baking.

Plans that have had to expand as the Fair time has drawn near are those for the Bean Supper in the Town Hall. But Mrs. Guy Howe and her committee, Mrs. John A. Tarbell, Mrs. Clarence Russell, Mrs. Harold F. Meyer, Mrs. Herbert Mills, Mrs. Augustino Pistorino and Mrs. Malcolm Lees have been equal to it. The Town Hall decorations are unusual. The setting is a large country barn; and on the stage a realistic corn field has "grown." Mrs. Malcolm Lees of Wildwood street, a graduate of Course A Architecture at M. I. T. has designed and executed it all. The farmer boys and girls assisting are Miss Shirley Smith, Miss Sylvia Hatch, Miss Madeline Little, Miss Marjorie Little, Miss Madeline Sawyer, Miss Eleanore Lampee, Miss Deborah Gilbert, Mr. Larry Palmer, Mr. Winthrop Andrews, Mr. John Bottger, Mr. Norman von Rosenvinge, Mr. Benjamin Wild, Mr. David Macomber and Mr. William Bottger.

To the many townspeople hoping with us for a beautiful day and who are planning to come to the Fair, En Ka extends a cordial welcome and trusts they will make many purchases on the "street." Remember that the Winchester Hospital Nurses' Home is in need of their support, given indirectly through donating to the En Ka Nurses' Home Fund.

"AREN'T WE ALL?"

On Saturday evening, May 4, at the Winchester High School auditorium, the Winchester Group Theatre presented, "Aren't We All," a three act comedy by Frederick Lonsdale, before an enthusiastic audience, every one of whom came away thoroughly convinced that he had witnessed perhaps the finest amateur performance ever presented in Winchester.

There are so many things to commend in attempting to review this play that one can hope to touch intelligently upon only a few of them. The one positive impression produced upon the writer was that the spirit of the play was superbly interpreted by an excellent cast, with the result that the audience early became aware of the fact that they were being offered, not just a play, but rather a bit of life itself, a museum piece, whose dominant characteristic was a delightful wholesomeness.

From the entrance of Gerald Hills, as Lord Grentham, one was conscious of a subtle quality pervading the atmosphere of the play as surely, yet as artlessly, as the scent of a rare perfume permeates the interior of an old chest of fine linen. One might even go so far as to compare the human interest stuff from which the plot-design of this play is woven to just such an old treasure chest of priceless linen. The theme, as old as the history of human emotions and passions; the action, as well conceived and as finely portrayed as the weaving of fine linen; the atmosphere, as natural and wholesome as the life of just such a group of people as were brought together in the play; and through the inter-weaving of these elements, that fascinating, constantly reappearing, whimsical twist of color, identified by the personality of Lord Grentham, which one might define as a sort of "roguish wisdom."

Such a refreshing production as "Aren't We All" presents to the thoughtful critic many definite impressions: one feels grateful to Frederick Lonsdale for having conceived so charming a representation of real life; to the Winchester Group Theatre for having selected Mr. Lonsdale's play from the thousands available; to the production committee for having chosen such a splendid cast; to the stage committee for their truly fine piece of work in fashioning such genuine settings for the action of the play; to Miss Emily Perry Bishop, the director, for her conscientious and thorough accomplishment in moulding a group of 12 individuals into a professional group; and most of all to the players themselves for the quality of entertainment which they provided.

"Aren't We All," in short, achieved that rare distinction of perfection which many a professional group may fail to achieve. It was the sort of production which one would find delight in seeing again and again. There is no exaggeration in the statement that a repetition of the play by the same group would find many of those who enjoyed it so thoroughly last Saturday evening reserving early the privilege of attending a second performance.

The play itself is, as its title suggests, a light comedy. The setting of the story is in England. The action shifts, between the first two acts, from the bachelor establishment of the Honorable Willie Tatham in Mayfair to the country house of Lord Gresham, his father.

From the opening scene in which we learn that the Honorable Willie's young bride is traveling in the Mediterranean sector, while the Honorable Willie himself is marking time in London with such trifles as acting as god-father to a masquerade ball in his apartments; and his honorable father, Lord Gresham, is disturbing the equanimity of his friends and relatives and particularly of Lady Frinton—a clever and genuinely attractive person who plans to marry him eventually, if not sooner—by his persistent refusal to "be his age"—something in the neighborhood of 57 or thereabouts—and Kitty Lake is thoroughly enjoying the opportunity of testing the vulnerability of the Honorable Willie to subtle femininity; from these preliminary threads of distinctive human color the first situation suddenly develops. A situation in which the Honorable Willie inevitably embraces the pretty Kitty Lake in his own house, on the evening of the masquerade ball, and at the precise moment that his bride, unexpectedly returned from her honeymoon, appears at the door, flushed with eagerness to make up to her lonely husband for her weeks of absence. And from that moment on, the action advances rapidly, and with intriguing originality, with the young outraged bride stubbornly refusing to forgive her thoroughly penitent and entirely bewildered husband, to the final situation where she herself is maneuvered into a situation where she is forced by her sense of humor to accept the compromising initial situation at its true value and to reconcile herself to the knowledge that, after all, we are all of us susceptible to vanity and subtle flattery. A position by the way, which she accepts only after a characteristically feminine struggle in which she finds herself no match for her father-in-law, Lord Gresham.

The first ripple of applause from the audience came with the appearance of the two masqueraders, Frank Owen and E. Kenneth Clark, arriving at the Honorable Willie's in their own impersonations of a Chinese gentleman and of Charlie Chaplin, respectively.

And the audience had hardly settled themselves comfortably when Gerald Hills, as Lord Gresham, appeared as an unexpected guest, and from that moment on captured and held the imagination and affection of every one in the audience. Playing the part of a happily disillusioned member of the older generation who nevertheless persisted in identifying himself with the younger generation, Jerry surpassed anything that he has done before in his many successful appearances in local productions. For the first five minutes, perhaps, one was conscious of watching Gerald Hills playing a part well. Then suddenly one forgot all about Gerald Hills and saw only Lord Gresham, true to life, imprinting his whimsical personality upon every situation to the delight of his audience. And that is character interpretation of a very high order.

This rare quality of genuine character interpretation was in marked evidence throughout the cast. Hubert N. Bernard, playing the part of the Honorable Willie Tatham, was convincing and entirely natural. He definitely established his personality with the audience, and throughout the many situations which demanded a nicety of interpretation of mixed emotions he gave to the part an unusual quality of integrity and of reality. His interpretation of the impossibility of earnest youth to grasp the point of view of roguish old age in his friendly tilts with Lord Gresham appealed to the fun-loving imaginations of the audience; his portrayal of the helpless male in the toils of the delightfully sophisticated Kitty Lake, played so well by Eliabeth Jacobs; his natural helplessness in the face of his wife's refusal to understand his motive, or rather, lack of motive in kissing Kitty; his handling of the situation which developed with the arrival of the man from Australia, and his deftness in giving a sense of naturalness to the few really emotional scenes with Margot, all accounted for the selection of Mr. Bernard for the leading male part of the play.

Playing opposite Mr. Bernard, in the role of Margot Tatham, Miss Madelyn Moffett, a comparative newcomer to Winchester, won her audience from her first appearance. With confidence and poise she brought to the part of "Margot," a delightful sense of reality and of charming naturalness which so difficult a part demanded. In attempting to convey one's impressions of the work of the principles of this play, one finds himself disposed to repeat the same words. Perhaps no other word than "genuineness" serves to express so well the impression which Miss Moffett gave in her interpretation of the part of Margot Tatham. Incidentally her work indicated the thorough preparation which she has had in dramatic work. In her home community in New Hampshire Miss Moffett was active in amateur theatricals before going to Milton to teach. In Milton she has been a member of the Milton Players for the past two years, appearing as the leading lady in several productions. During the summer she has been an active member of the University Players at West Falmouth on the Cape, a group from which several prominent Broadway careers. Miss Moffett's interpretation of Margot Tatham was what one might expect from such a background. Her audience will look forward to seeing her in other Winchester Group Theatre productions another year.

The unusual variety of cleverly handled situations which developed as the action of the play progressed afforded occasion for appreciative laughter or applause. Perhaps the most enjoyable situations were those in which Lord Gresham and Margot, facing each other on the divan before the fireplace, in an apparent air of camaraderie, engage in a bit of delightful fencing with words, in which both are extremely clever. Or the scene between Lord Gresham and Lady Frinton, shortly after the surprise announcement of their engagement, in which Gresham reveals himself as a magnificent liar and Lady Frinton gives Lord Gresham, as well as the audience, a glimpse of the hidden depths of her personality. Martha Kelley's interpretation of the extremely feminine Lady Frinton will not soon be forgotten. The scene between the vicar, Ralph Hale, and his wife, played by Clara Reynolds, brought a shower of applause with its subtle revelations of amusing personalities. And one cannot overlook the several effective exits which added so much to the quality of the play: the vicar's wife, declaring that "she was going to take a walk" conveyed more meaning to her words by the movement of her plump shoulders than one would believe possible. Margot's final exit was a perfect climax of her acting throughout the play. And one must certainly not fail to comment upon Frederick W. Cole's fine handling of the several really difficult scenes in which he played so important a part. Perhaps more than any other single character he was faced with the problem of handling delicately what might be called "tricky" or dangerous scenes where the lightest over-playing would have spoiled the effect of the whole scene. Mr. Cole was at all times equal to the challenge of his part.

Not many plays boast of two butlers as good as were Kenneth S. Hall and Robert Jackson in Saturday night's performance. Always a minor character, the butler as interpreted by these two gentlemen realized fully the possibilities of the part and fitted perfectly into the whole picture of English life.

Perhaps no review of this play would be complete without reference to a few of the clever lines of the script. One still chuckles at the memory of Lord Gresham's salty comments upon the frailty of human nature. "Many a woman," stated the twinkling-eyed old peer to his bewildered son, "has carried on a long conversation with me without opening her mouth, while there were 20 of us at table." "As he contemplates the picture of the dance floor, he declares that "the likes these jazz dances because it doesn't matter a damn whether you can or whether you can't." In response to his son's emphatic declaration that he will never kiss another woman except his wife as long as he lives, Lord Gresham admits that "It is a noble sentiment but a terribly cramped position to be in upon occasion." "The driving force of the world," he decides, "is the desire for appreciation," and describes his own age as "that when understanding takes the place of vanity." His final words to the vicar epitomize his philosophy of life: "Aren't we all, old friend, aren't we all bloody old fools?"

One must come to a pause somewhere. But not without a recognition of the fine work performed by Beatrice Budd and her Properties Committee in making possible such appropriate settings for the play. Their success was the result of conscientious hard work abetted by the generosity of a great many friends and members of the organization. One of the most significant of their contributions was an actual portrait of Miss Moffett, as Margot Tatham, used in the first act, and painted by Kenneth Campbell.

MAYNARD HIGH WON FROM WINCHESTER

Though outhit, 15 to 11, Maynard made its bingles count to win its Middlesex League baseball game from Winchester High on Manchester Field Wednesday afternoon, 7 to 5. "Polock" McCormack with three hits out of four times up was the percentage hitting leader, though big Chidley of the visitors slammed out a triple to lift his three in five into the select class.

Winchester was still minus its veteran hard hitting catcher, "Frankie" Provinzano, recovering from an attack of grippe, and there were times when his big bat might have made plenty of difference.

CUBS WON AGAIN

The Cubs won their third straight game from the Campo A. A. on Leonard Field, 4—1, Saturday morning. A pitcher's battle was waged between DeMinico of the Cubs who allowed the Campo A. A. boys three hits and struck out six while A. Johnson allowed the Cubs only two hits, and striking out four, but poor support was responsible for his defeat.

On Sunday the Cubs will go to West Medford for a game there.

BOY SCOUTS

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Over 80 Men Attend Opening Session of Scout Leaders' Training Course

Between 80 and 90 men were present at the first session of the Scout Leaders' Training Course on "Troop Program Building" at Cousens Gymnasium, Tufts College, last night. This is the largest group of men that have ever assembled at one time for a training course in the Fellsland Council. Mr. Nelson, the new Scout Executive, was very well pleased with the initial turn-out and is of the opinion that about 60 or more of these men will meet the requirements needed to receive the training course certificate at the closing session.

Mr. Charles L. Oxnard, president of Fellsland Council, opened last night's session with a word of welcome to the men, and then introduced Prof. Crosby F. Baker of Tufts College, who is serving as Chairman of Leadership Training for the Fellsland Council. Professor Baker then told the men that it was very gratifying to see such a large group of men that were interested in acquiring knowledge of the leadership of boys and Scouts in particular. After a brief summary of training course needs, he asked each member of the Training Course Staff to stand so that all members of the Training Course could recognize them. The group of 80 men were then broken up into patrols varying from six to 12 men. One patrol, namely the one from Medford South, under the direction of Clarence L. Thompson, had close to 25 men and this necessitated making Medford South splitting into two patrols, the second of which will be lead by Scoutmaster Edward Holland.

Each patrol then selected a name and patrol yell. After patrols were reassembled, Mr. Nelson gave a brief summary of the Council Index as compared to the National Standards, which showed the Fellsland Council to be rated very low at the present time.

The next speaker, Mr. Leon Davis, who is serving as Scoutmaster of the course, then showed in a sketchy way the methods needed to bring up the rating of Fellsland Council. With the aid of a blackboard and help from the body of men the desirable qualities needed for a yearly program were outlined. The patrols were then given assignments on program building for two months apiece, and after a short patrol meeting, returned to give the results of their patrol discussions. Through these presentations and criticisms of the group, a yearly program was outlined for the group.

A bit of fun was injected into the program by Mr. Nelson through a series of handsigns designed to eliminate the use of whistle or word of mouth.

At the close of the meeting proper assignments for the next meeting were given by Assistant Scoutmaster of the Course, Major William J. Bogrette. These assignments call for dramatization of monthly programs through the year, and also opening and closing ceremonies. Added assignments were announced by Mr. Nelson, and the meeting closed without ceremony.

The next meeting of the training course will be held next Wednesday, May 15, at 7:30 p. m. at the Cousens Gymnasium.

The Scouters from Winchester attending this course are as follows: Philip Hartson, E. H. Butterworth, Dexter Oliver, Charnley H. Slack, Ben R. Schneider, Raymond D. Bohannon, A. O. Weld, Harry W. Moulton, Robert H. Sibley and Malcolm B. Lees.

EMBLEM CLUB INSTALLATION

Last Wednesday evening in Lyceum Hall, before a large gathering of Emblem Club members from all over the Union supplemented by members of the B. P. O. E., the officers of Winchester Emblem Club, No. 28, were installed by Supreme President Mary F. Clark and her suite. Mrs. Fred H. Scholl acted as Supreme Guard, and Mrs. George H. Lochman served as Supreme Trustees. Mrs. Margo Hart O'Rourke of Providence filled the position of Supreme Marshal.

About 100 arrived in time to partake of the turkey dinner, served by a caterer at 6:30. A feature of the banquet was the awarding of the club birthday cake to Sister Mary Chamberland. A short business session followed, with President Kathryn T. Griffin presiding. Mrs. Griffin thanked all her officers and committees for their help and co-operation during the past year and presented the club's gift to the incoming president, Mrs. Minnie A. O'Neil. In behalf of the club, also, Mrs. Griffin presented gifts to each of the retiring officers—Guard Ethel A. Horn, Marshal Emma M. Cullen and Trustee Emily A. Scholl. Her appointive officers, Mrs. DeMorris, Mrs. O'Neil, Mrs. Cullen and Mrs. Scholl were remembered by personal favors. On behalf of the local Lodge of Elks, Exalted Ruler-elect Harry Stevens and P. E. R. John F. Donaghey presented the retiring president, Mrs. Griffin, with a beautiful basket of flowers.

With an honorary escort from the local lodge of Elks, the new officers were assembled—President Minnie A. O'Neil, Past President Kathryn T. Griffin, Vice President Esther C. McCarthy, Secretary Frances Sullivan, Financial Secretary Caroline L. Coakley, Treasurer Myrtle F. Goodhue, Trustees Katherine F. Fallon, Margaret F. Flanders and Anna M. Little; Guards Josephine Power and Mary A. Fenton, Chaplain Mary L. DeMorris, Marshal Mae J. O'Neil and Organist Mary F. O'Neil. They were inducted into office with due ceremony and the following Elks, introduced by Esquire Joseph Callahan, made up the honorary escort: District Deputy Fred H. Scholl, E. R. Harry N. Stevens, P. E. R. Everett P. Hambley, P. E. R. George H. Lochman, P. E. R. John F. Donaghey, P. E. R. Thomas F. Fallon, P. E. R. Charles Farrar, E. L. K. John Murphy, Edward Taylor, C. M. Lyman, A. Flanders, Peter E. Griffin, John J. McCarthy and Frank Goodhue.

On assuming her station, President Minnie A. O'Neil on behalf of the club presented a shower bouquet of greenbacks to the retiring president, Mrs. Griffin. She also presented the club's gifts to the Supreme President and Marshal.

Flowers were very much in evidence, gifts being received from Mr. F. E. O'Neil and Mr. P. E. Griffin by their respective wives. Mrs. Coakley, Mrs. Scholl and Mrs. Flanders and others received bouquets from admiring friends and relatives.

Among the speakers were members of the Supreme Suite, and the following Big Brothers: District Deputy G. E. R. Fred H. Scholl, Exalted Ruler-elect Harry N. Stevens, P. E. R. George H. Lochman, P. E. R. Thomas F. Fallon, P. E. R. Everett P. Hambly, P. E. R. John F. Donaghey and others. Miss Dorothy Horn introduced two of her pupils as entertainers—Miss Barbara Coss in a ballet dance, and Miss Helene Gelone in a tap dance. An orchestra furnished music for the evening and the hall decorations were provided through the efforts of Supreme Marshal Emily A. Scholl.

Miss Marion Hickey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hickey of Edgehill road was chosen as "Prom Maid" for the Wellesley Junior Prom of May 3. She was elected with about three dozen other members of her Freshman class, the best looking girls of that class to have the great honor of attending the Wellesley Prom in their first year. Miss Hickey has attended both the Marycliff Academy of Arlington Heights and the Winchester High School.

BOWLING ENDS WITH DINNER AT CALUMET CLUB

The annual bowling dinner was held at the Calumet Club on Saturday, May 4, in conjunction with the annual meeting.

So close was the race for the leading teams that all winning places were not decided until Friday, May 3, when it was necessary to have a roll-off to determine the third place winners. By winning two matches on Friday, Team 5, captained by "Jim" Fitzgerald, succeeded in nosing out Team 7, captained by President Wallace Flanders, for third place.

The race for first place was also close, Team 3, finally succeeded in winning the team championship after shaking off Team 1, in a match between these two teams at the end of the season. The season was enjoyed by all those taking part and everyone is looking forward to next year's tournament.

The dinner was provided by the six lowest teams as is the usual custom and it was voted a good time by all. The prizes were awarded at the dinner by the chairman of the Bowling Committee, Harry McGrath.

The prize winning teams were: first place—Team 3, G. H. Browning, Paul Forrester, Jr., F. N. Millett, L. J. Scott, E. W. Zimmerman; second place—Team 1, Wm. Ferguson, E. B. Goldsmith, H. L. Pilkington, J. J. Pike, Russell Symmes; third place—Team 5, B. F. Callahan, J. F. Coakley, J. L. Doherty, J. J. Doherty, J. J. Fitzgerald, Jr.

The high average for the season was won by Harry McGrath for the fifth consecutive year. High averages in the various classes were won by Ralph Purrington, Class A; Harry Pilkington, Class B; "Joe" Gendron, Class C.

High three strings went to Earl Goldsmith and high single to Russell Symmes.

MINSTREL SHOW BY C. E. OF SECOND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Two performances of a most entertaining minstrel show were given at the Second Congregational Church Friday by the young people's society—one a matinee at 4 o'clock, with 56 children and 12 adults present and the other at 8 o'clock with 140 adults present. The net proceeds were well over $30, even after serving free the ever popular hot dogs, cake and coffee.

Mr. Howard Chase arranged and supervised the entire show, and surely his efforts were well rewarded and much appreciated. He was assisted by Warren Fogg, the "behind-the-scenes man, who arranged lighting, curtains, and the 101 other necessary details. Mrs. Fred Baker was untiring in her assistance, and accompanied al the song and dance numbers, besides the preliminary drilling, which is no small item.

Helen Saunders, attired in a nifty looking "tux" and tall silk hat made a very pleasing interlocuter. The end men were Betty Kendrick, Margery Carruthers, Ralph Colliander and Levon Boodakian and their jokes and repartee were snappy and clever. Helen Hendrickson, Eleanor Thompson, Jane Armstrong and Evelyn Carruthers made up the inner circle. The chorus consisted of Dorothy Thompson, Barbara Wright, Eunice Gile, Nancy Goodwin, Florence Baron, Dorothy Chase, Glenn Potter, John Chase and Howard Chase, Jr. The singing of the chorus was especially good, and all the comedy parts well played. The specialty numbers follow:

Patsy Pierson, very lovely in a pink ballet costume, danced for us "The Powder Puff" a very dainty number. Little Helen Chase and Marjorie Colliander, as diminutive pickaninnies, brought down the house with their rendition of "Good Ship Lollipop," and responded to three encores. Eunice Gile gave a fine exhibition of acrobatic dancing. Dorothy Chase sang delightfully a typical minstrel number, "Harbor of Home, Sweet Home," and was roundly applauded. Dorothy Thompson's song, "What's the Reason I'm Not Pleasing You?" was very well done, also. Both girls responded to encores.

Glenn Potter's dance with his rag doll sweetie was fast and furious, and made a decided hit. Mr. Hartley, one of the few men left who can rattle the bones, pleased the audience very much with Turkey in the Straw, Chicken Reel and Jingle Bells. Fred Baker quite covered himself with glory with his legerdemain stunts, producing a bowl of jonquils from mid-air, eggs from an empty box, besides numerous other mysterious tricks that we have never been able to fathom. He gave a very popular dance number, too which was decidedly new and entertaining. The program was broken up by a lively skit the scene for which was laid in an African jungle. The sultan was played by Levon Boodakins, the brave soldier by Ralph Colliander, the standing army by Evelyn Carruthers and Eleanor Thompson, and the cook, by Barbara Wright. During intermission the orchestra gave several musical numbers, and played for dancing following the show. Virginia Farnham was at the piano, with Mr. Chase, saxophone; Howard Chase, cornet, and John Chase, clarinet. This orchestra is acquiring quite a reputation, and is decidedly an asset to our social affairs.

It would be unfair to omit honorable mention of Mrs. Ward, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Potter and Miss Abbie Potter who held forth so nobly in the culinary department and dispensed the refreshments so capably.

Altogether it was a most successful affair, so much so that it is planned to repeat it early in June in another place. We are pleased to report that even the harshest critic there volunteerd the remark that it was well worth coming out in the rain to see! This seems to argue well for the efforts of all concerned, and justifies the use of these children's talents in our own church, rather than in some other, or on some street corner. Their energies must be expended, and where better than right here?

WINCHESTER HIGH DEFEATED CONCORD HIGH, 4—3

Winchester High School's baseball team rallied after two successive defeats and gave the highly favored Concord High School nine its first reverse of the season last Saturday afternoon at Emerson Playground, Concord, winning 4 to 3 behind the effective pitching of apple-cheeked "Buz" Kendrick.

Tompkins, big Concord right hander, who incidentally is Coach Mansfield's nephew, proved no "cousin" to the Winchester batters, getting 14 of the locals on strikes, while permitting but eight hits. Kendrick whiffed seven and allowed six safeties, none of which came after the fifth inning.

Concord put over two big ones in the opening frame. After Mara had fanned, Loughlin singled to left and went to third on Cullinane's one-shot to right. Cook's single to left brought both runners in, and the batter went down as MacKenzie threw home. Kendrick tossed out Williams and "Albie" MacDonnell threw out Macone to end the inning.

Winchester tied it in the fourth. MacDonnell singled to left, reached second on a passed ball and remained there while "Tom" Donaghey and Kendrick struck out. "Sandy" MacKenzie cracked a single to left center, scoring MacDonnell, and reached second himself when Williams' throw in was wild. Dineen's single to right scored "Sandy." but McCormack fanned for the final out.

With one away in the fifth Mara dropped a single in left, reached second on a passed ball and scored on Loughlin's double to center. "Joe" Dineen threw out Cullinane and "Tom" Donaghey took Cook's fly to end the rally.

Capt. "Tom" Donaghey opened Winchester's eighth with a single to left, stole second and reached third while Tompkins was tossing out Kendrick. MacKenzie, over anxious, struck out, but Dineen drove out a hit to left that brought in the tying run. "Joe" advanced while Tompkins was mussing up McCormack's roller. This brought up red headed "Brother" Donaghey with the winning run on second. The square jawed little backstop looked them over carefully and belted one on a line into left field that scored the needed tally. Tompkins got Coss on strikes for the third out.

Things looked bad in the ninth. Nelson drove a hard one toward the bag at third, on which "Slicker" Coss made a sparkling pickup. His hurried throw to first, however, was poor and the runner reached second. Dee hit what looked like a Texas Leaguer into short right field and Nelson started for third. Off with the crack of the bat, "Tom" Donaghey made a corking running catch of the ball just off the diamond and doubled Nelson at second, MacDonnell taking the throw. While the long sigh from the Winchester fans was still audible, Tompkins hit it another looper still shorter than Dee's and again Donaghey came in fast to make this time an even more difficult catch.

The locals tried an entirely different lineup for this game and were handicapped by having "Frankie" Provinzano, hard-hitting catcher on the sick list. "Brother" Donaghey, however, filled in nicely for the veteran and his hit in the pinch won the ball game.

DUST STORMS AROUND THE WORLD

Dust storms that have alternately scoured and smothered the prairie States this spring are labeled the worst in the history of the country. High March winds have sucked up billions of tons of soil from the western plains and rolled it eastward turning green fields to yellow desert, stalling motor, rail, and air traffic, causing death and disease, and spreading a dry haze as far east as the Atlantic seaboard.

The great storm of May 11, 1934, which reached from Montana to the Atlantic, and hung a 10,000-ton dust blanket over the National Capital, was merely a preface to this year's catastrophe.

Tree Belt From Canada To Texas

Severe winds and the worst drought in seventy years are only secondary factors in the farm problem that faces the United States, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. During the World War, when wheat prices shot sky high, thousands of acres of semi-arid grazing land were plowed under and planted to grain. Destruction of the natural cover for this soil and over-grazing on the ranges that were left, exposed the land to wind and water.

It is the same thing that has happened in Syria, Palestine, and North Africa. Experts declare that such regions, where the rainfall is less than 25 inches a year, should be left to livestock and not cultivated.

Grass restoration and reforestation are being advanced by government scientists as the best insurance against wind erosion. A $15,000,000 shelter of trees, to stretch from North Dakota to the Texas Panhandle is a part of a plan to protect farms within its area. This forest barrier, 100 miles wide and over 1,500 miles long, following roughly the line of 18 inches rainfall, is designed to restore the water level, improve living conditions within the belt, act as a snow fence and hold wind blown dust.

During the next ten years the Forest Service will plant 3,500,000,000 trees in hundreds of narrow strips, a hundred feet wide and a mile apart. Only trees suitable to the climate will be chosen, and there will be gaps in the ranks, where the soil is too poor to justify planting.

Over sixty years ago Russia began such a project to protect the wheat fields of the Ukraine from the "black dust storms" that sweep across the Southern steppes. Italy, Hungary, and France have recently reclaimed waste land and prevented erosion by reforestation.

"Red Snow" and "Showers of Blood"

Dust storms are not by any means the exclusive property of the United States. Darwin reports that in South America, during the dry seasons of 1827-1830, so much soil was blown about that boundaries were obscured and property rights confused. In October, 1928, chocolate dust from Australia stained the snow peaks of New Zealand, 1,500 miles away. In the spring of that same year, some 15,000,000,000 tons of earth from the Ukraine was scattered over Europe.

The Saraha is the source of supply for most of the European dust storms. Hot sirocco winds carry the dust over the Mediterranean and northward as far as the Baltic. Homer, Virgil, and Livy mention these 'dry fogs.' When the northeast trades blow over Africa, they sweep this dust out over the Atlantic region, which sailors of ancient times called the sea of darkness.

Sahara dust usually has a reddish tinge due to particles of iron compounds. A three-day storm in 1901 rouged the snow fields of the Alps, spread a reddish haze from the Canaries to Cape Verde Islands, reached England and northern Germany, and dumped nearly 2,000,000,000 tons of dust north of the Mediterranean. A similar type of dust may have caused the "red snow" that alarmed the natives of northeastern Turkey recently; although this coloring can also come from microscopic plants.

Red dust mixed with rain makes the "showers of blood" that have frequently terrified the people of southern Europe. Gregory of Tours tells of such a shower in Paris in 582. "Showers of milk" are rain mixed with chalky dust. Colorado recently experienced a "sulphur blizzard" which proved to be yellow pollen from pine trees.

Dust Builds China's Farmland

A dust storm is really a sort of atmospheric flood, an intensive phase of something that goes on all the time. A farmer never plants his crops in the same soil two successive years. No air is ever free from dust. It settles on Antarctic snows and Greenland ice. Near the earth this dust is chiefly wind blown soil; high above, it is "star dust" from the millions of meteors that enter the earth's atmosphere each day, or volcanic ash, blown skyward by eruptions. Any dustfall is composed of this local air content mixed with foreign material brought by the storm.

China is famous for her dust storms. In winter they sweep over the North China Plains, covering trees, houses, crops, and people with yellow sediment. It is estimated that in 1932, during one dust storm in Peiping, over 2,700 tons of dust fell within the city walls. The Yellow River and the Yellow Sea are well named. Even the imperial color was yellow.

Dust storms of another age built the Loess Highlands that lie between the North China Plain and the deserts of Central Asia. This fertile, yellow earth, often reaching a depth of 300 feet, covers thousands of square miles in the northern provinces. Crops may be raised on loess without fertilizing; wind renews the soil as the Nile does in Egypt. The fine yellow silt has a tendency to split in a vertical direction, furrowing the region with steep cliffs and canyons. The natives often carve cave dwellings in these cliffs, climbing to the roofs of their homes to plough their fields.

High School "Highlights" Column

Junior-Senior Prom to be Held on May 11

The Prom Committee, under the supervision of Mrs. Stacy and Mr. Butters, has been busy making final preparations for the prom which is to be held at the high school gymnasium Saturday evening, May 11, at 8 p. m.

The gym is to be festively dressed in rainbow colors. Other attractions will be the music of Howard Cutter and his orchestra, delicious refreshments and favors for the dancers.

In the receiving line will be Mr. and Mrs. John F. Cassidy, parents of the president of the Senior Class; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Provinzano, parents of the president of the Junior Class; Mr. and Mrs. James J. Quinn, and Principal and Mrs. Wade Grindle.

Varsity Girls' Chosen

The girls' varsity tennis team selected after the recent tournament was decided upon by the results of the tournament, the New England rating, and last year's squad. The honor of first place goes to Ruth Aseltine, who defeated Ruth Cutter in the final round. The schedule planned keeps ten players in action all the time, four single players and three doubles. The substitutes are permitted to play on class teams; but they have a chance to advance in the varsity list by means of a ladder tournament. The order of the players according to the latest ranking is as follows: Ruth Aseltine, 1st; Ruth Cutter, 2nd; Phillipa Kelly, 3rd; Ruth Bernnard, 4th; Katherine Gilbert, 5th; Gretchen Cleaves, 6th; Shirley White, 7th; Suzanne Reed, 8th; Dorothy Kleeb, 9th; Dorothy Bruno, 10th. Subs: Janet Spencer, Priscilla Jones, Jeanne Phelps.

Junior Dance Associates Give $500

The Junior Dance Associates are doubling their gift fund of $250, which was given the school last year to be distributed as prizes and scholarships.

The $500 will be divided as follows: First, $50 will be given for the five $10 cash prizes for excellent scholarship. If you remember from last year, the five fields are: Business, English, Foreign Language, Mathematics, Science.

Four hundred and fifty dollars will be used for scholarships which will go first to deserving members of the Senior Class and the rest to help students who are now in college but who need some help in order to continue their studies.

Error

At this time we also wish to acknowledge an error which appeared in the Highlights, April 1. It stated that in order to be eligible for the Mothers' Association Scholarship, a student must have attended a Winchester elementary school for at least three years. On the contrary, he is eligible if he has attended for only one year.

Dramatic Society

Amateurs! The vaudeville had them, Fred Allen has them, now the Dramatic Society is going to have them. May 23, 1935 will be the day when all talented members of the Dramatic Society will participate in an entertainment. Last year, you will recall, there was a story-telling hour with refreshments. This year we have heard from Ward Albro that the refreshments will be more and better.

With Norris Chevalier, John Downs, and many others already promising to help entertain the faculty, and members of the Society, we are insured of a highly enjoyable afternoon. If you haven't as yet reported to Miss Bailey or Robert Thornton your wishes to participate in this Amateur afternoon, do so soon.

Save the date, May 23, 1935. It's a Thursday. The auditorium will be the place for part of the afternoon's program: Amateurs, we're looking for you!

Scientists Get Soap in Their Ears—27 Pilgrims Go on Quest

While it is a bit late to print a news item about an event which took place two weeks ago, it seems worth while to pass on to Highlights' readers a succinct summary of the Science Club trip to the Lever Brothers Soap Factory.

Twenty-seven of our scientists undertook the journey, travelling by automobile. Among the autos starting out was G. Abbott's famous "26," with Grafton at the wheel. It seems that Grafton had done most of his driving either in other directions or on very dark nights, for he stated that he knew practically nothing about the route to Boston, and elected to follow Mr. Alley's car. Unknown to Grafton, Mr. Alley had an errand to do at the Massachusetts General Hospital, and Grafton tooled along behind with steadily mounting disgust. He was heard to mutter when they finally reached home that a blind man could find a more direct route to Boston.

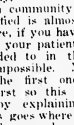
Apparently boys are more interested in soap than are girls. Twenty-three boys and four girls made the trip.

The whole process of soap making from raw materials to soap bubbles was observed.

As a guide through the vast plant was a former student of Mr. Alley's. And, did he "get a kick" out of explaining to the doctor all the chemical processes of soap making.

The soap makers were more than generous to their young visitors, giving samples of Lux and Rinso to the girls and of shaving cream to the boys, including Ward Albro.

Those who would like to hear a more scientific account of this trip should wangle an invitation to the next meeting of the Science Club.



DISTRICT NURSES' ANNUAL REPORT, APRIL 16, 1935

2653 calls made on 793 patients
2212 full pay calls made on 493 patients
605 part pay calls made on 126 patients
836 free calls made on 168 patients
772 Metropolitan Life Insurance calls
225 John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. calls
57 physicians used our services
1644 calls made on 449 medical patients
823 calls made on 107 surgical patients
430 calls made on 23 chronic patients
321 calls made on 37 maternity cases
575 calls made on 11 newborn babies
60 calls made on 20 prenatal patients
10 minor operations
18 emergency calls

Ten minor operations were performed in the home by the doctors assisted by the nurse who makes the necessary preparation and stays with the patient as long as necessary.

Eighteen emergency calls were answered and first aid given.

We took care of 37 maternity patients, of this number 24 were delivered at home, the remainder were patients that were delivered in the hospital, but on account of finances only stayed there a week and we had the care of them from 3 to 7 days at home.

Many patients who are ill and under a doctor's care and who have industrial insurance with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. or the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. are entitled to nursing care without charge. The Winchester District Nursing Association is the official local organization, through which, these companies secure the service. We did 772 calls for the Metropolitan Company and 225 calls for the John Hancock Company.

To keep a community of this size always satisfied is almost impossible —for instance, if you have a full day, nearly all of your patients would like to be attended to in the morning, which is impossible. Many would like to be the first one, everybody cannot be first so this difficulty is eliminated by explaining that the nurse always goes where most needed, first acute illness, and maternity cases taken care of as early as possible. Now and then a patient leaves a message "to come at your own convenience" this is quite a rare treat and sometimes we feel rather guilty that such a generosity may be taken advantage of.

The articles from our loan chest have been in constant use and we are most fortunate in having our supply replenished by the generous donations from various individuals, rubber rings, crutches, ice caps and many other articles have brought comfort and help to patients.

There was a splendid contribution of 107 articles of new clothing from the Needlework Guild of America. Six hand-knitted sweaters and bonnets from small group for distribution at Christmas.

We have given away eight complete layettes, as far as possible we try and have the prospective mothers get as many articles as possible themselves, we supplying the rest. Twelve mothers were given help this way and for them we wish to thank the societies of the Baptist, Unitarian, Congregational, Epiphany Churches and Symmes Corner Club.

Our personnel remains the same, one full time and two part time nurses. In April Mrs. Hazel Roberts who had been with the Association for two years gave in her resignation to take effect May 15. The Board patients and associates were very sorry to lose her, as she had endeared herself to all of us.

Miss Hilda Hope, a Winchester Hospital graduate, accepted the position made vacant by Mrs. Roberts.

We wish to thank the Doctors, Management, Faculty and Office force of the Winchester Hospital and members of the Association for their co-opernition and willingness to help make our work a success.

Respectfully submitted,
Alice Gormley,
District Nurse

BELMONT HIGH SET BACK WINCHESTER

In sub-arctic temperature at Belmont Wednesday afternoon, May 1, Belmont High won its postponed Middlesex League baseball game from Winchester, 12 to 11. The locals outhit Belmont, but the Belmont hits were mixed with passes in a way that enabled the home team to build up a four run lead at the close of the eighth frame.

Winchester staged a determined rally in the ninth, scoring three runs, but couldn't get the tying run over. The high wind and frigid temperature made good baseball out of the question.

"MISSISSIPPI" AT THE UNIVERSITY

As the "biggest liar on the river" and the champion calliope player of seven continents, W. C. Fields, dean of film comedians, plays his new starring role in "Mississippi" which comes Sunday for three days at the University. A medley of songs and entertainment, centering about Fields, the picture stars Bing Crosby and Joan Bennett. Adapted from the Booth Tarkington play, "Mississippi" is the story of a modest youth who strove to get a reputation as the South's fiercest gunman, then tried to lose it when he fell in love with a girl who didn't like duelers.

During their aerial conquest of the African jungle, as recorded by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson in their thrilling film, "Baboona," the companion feature, the explorers photographed more than 72 breeds of wild animals, including droves of monkeys, hundreds of baboons, lions, tigers and all-manner of man-killing beasts.

Wednesday, Review Day, the program will include "Dancing Lady" with Joan Crawford, Clark Gable and Fred Astaire and "Death Takes a Holiday" with Frederic March.

Helen Hayes and Robert Montgomery are co-starred in "Vanessa: Her Love Story" which opens Thursday. It is a picturization of Hugh Walpole's novel, "Vanessa," which was the fourth and last of his group of books dealing with the spectacular Herries clan of the rugged Cumberland district of England. The story concerns Vanessa, the heroine, and her troubled love affair with Benjie Herries, the "wild one" of the clan.

"The Case of the Curious Bride," the companion picture, is a baffling mystery melodrama, interspersed with rollicking humor. It is based on a Perry Mason story by Erle Stanley Gardner. The all star cast includes Warren William, as Perry Mason, the astute attorney detective, Margaret Lindsay, Donald Woods, Claire Dodd, Allen Jenkins and Philip Reed.

MALDEN STRAND THEATRE

"The Florentine Dagger," with Margaret Lindsay, Donald Woods, C. Aubrey Smith, Henry O'Neil and Robert Barrat as the stars, will be the feature attraction on the bill opening at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. The picture deals with the romance of Juan Ceasare, played by Donald Woods, who has written a play about the murderous Borgias of centuries ago, and Miss Margaret Lindsay, star of the production, who is called upon in the play to slay her lover. Ceasare calls on Miss Lindsay's father to ask her hand in marriage and is refused. That night he is horrified to learn that Miss Lindsay has left the theatre on a pretext of illness and also her father has been found dead, stabbed with a Florentine dagger, with which the Borgias are supposed to have done their killing, buried in his heart. The girl is arrested for the deed and the suspense grows in intensity until the smashing climax in which the baffling mystery is solved and the slayer discovered.

"The Swell Head," with Wallace Ford, Barbara Kent and little Dickie Moore as the featured players, will be second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. "The Swell Head," is a story of baseball and concerns Wallace Ford as the league's greatest batter.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

George White's "1935 Scandals" with Alice Faye, James Dunn and Ned Sparks, will divide the headline honors with "McFadden's Flats" starring Richard Cromwell and Betty Furness, on the bill opening at the Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. George White's "Scandals" boasts of haunting and peppy melodies, rich stage extravaganza, and a wealth of stars and beautiful girls. The picture has a strong story that could alone sustain interest with its romantic element drawn from small-town Americans lured by the siren calls of Broadway and Hollywood. Contributing to the gayety of "Scandals" are Alice Faye, James Dunn, Ned Sparks, Lyda Roberti, Cliff Edwards, Arlene Judge, Emma Dunn, Benny Rubin, George White and Eleanor Powell, a Springfield, Mass., girl who is known as the world's greatest feminine tap dancer.

"McFadden's Flats" is the robustly humorous story of a self-made Irishman and a Scotchman, and presents Walter C. Kelly, the "Virginia Judge" of vaudeville fame, in the leading role. Andy Clyde is cast as the Scotchman and friendly enemy of Kelly, who has risen from hod-carrier to the builder of the grand new McFadden tenements. When McFadden's project is faced with ruin, Clyde comes to his aid secretly. But Clyde and Kelly still carry on their friendly enmity, although their children, Richard Cromwell and Betty Furness are very much in love. Thinking himself wealthy, Kelly sends his daughter off to a finishing school to acquire the manners of a lady. When the girl returns completely changed it seems as though their romance will be broken and there will be a breach between the two families. But it all turns out happily in the end with the two ancient enemies united and happy in the engagement of their respective offsprings.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

Gerald Massey has written:

Hope on, hope ever! yet the time shall come
When man to man shall be a friend and brother;
And this old world shall be a happy home,
And all earth's family love one another!
Hope on, hope ever!

Will it ever be possible for Massey's prophesy to become a reality? What is needed today is men who will live for their fellows, who will give every inch of their time and every particle of their being for the welfare of the human race, the common weal. As Bishop Charles H. Brent has written: 'Everybody needs a supreme passion in life. A man cannot have purity unless he is passionate. A man cannot have power unless is is enthusiastic.

"The greatest of all faults is to believe we have none," said Samuel Maunder. "We never yet knew a man disposed to scorn the humble, who was not himself a fair object of scorn to the humblest." How shallow are many of our human relationships! How to be scorned the individual who thinks he is a better man than some other man just because his position in the world may have given him more money to do with. But God wants us to bear in mind that we are Brothers, put here on earth for a purpose and well may we say with Jacob Bobart:

"Count that day lost whose low descending sun Sees from thy hand no worthy action done."

We need to have a passion for human brotherhood—we need to be enthusiastic about helping those who need help, always being cheerful and spreading blessed sunshine day by day. Today, tomorrow and the next, and on and on, till the end of human time, let us help one another and show the "Giver of all good gifts" that we are thankful for life and the privilege of being among men. For if we do:

"When my life work is ended,
And I cross the swelling tide,
When the bright and glorious
Morning I shall see,
I shall know my Redeemer,
When I reach the other side—
And His smile will be the first
To welcome me."

OBSERVATIONS

(By the Observer)

An ideal wife is one who neither burns her husband's money nor the biscuits.

Listing things that a resident of Winchester can get free, is that of "getting arrested." But who wants to get arrested?

Many Winchesterites are called, but quite a few turn over and snooze a while longer.

Indigestion is a disease a rich man can't get rid of and a poor man can't get.

The telephone is now as much of a household necessity in fair Winchester as the frigidaire.

"Ain't nature grand!" exclaimed a felow in Winchester Square as a stockingless young woman tripped by.

A Winchester does not need an alarm clock where there is a baby in the family.

No matter how big a Winchesterite's feet are, he can always put his foot in it.

It is the height of one Winchester girl's ambition to marry a prominent man and have the marriage recorded on the front page of the Star.

To properly build a town it takes a little co-operation, a little building, a little painting and weed cutting and a great deal of optimism and faith. We have all these in Winchester.

According to one Winchester fellow, one grand thing about any season other than summer is that a man has four more pockets in a vest in which to store various articles.

A citizen without loyalties to Winchester is like a ship in a storm, without an anchor.

If a man has no reverence for God, he is not likely to pay respect to his fellow Winchesterites.

A Winchester man who loves to play solitaire beat himself the other evening, and now he refuses to speak to himself.

MYSTIC THEATRE MALDEN

The year's gayest and most colorful musical romance starring Irene Dunne, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers is being held over for a second week's run in Malden. "Roberta" features the singing of Miss Dunne, the dancing and singing of Astaire and Miss Rogers, and a brilliant display of feminine fashions by a regiment of beautiful mannequins, the production as a whole affording sparkling entertainment of tremendous appeal. Melody and dance numbers are woven logically into a fast-moving thoroughly plausible story which combines tender romance with gay comedy.

The second feature next week with "Roberta" will be "While the Patient Slept" with Aline MacMahon and Guy Kibbee. Guy Kibbee plays the part of a small town detective with Allen Jenkins as his dumb asistant, while Miss MacMahon brings to the screen nurse Sarah Keate, the most remarkable character in all detective fiction and the favorite sleuth of millions of mystery story readers. Others in the cast include Lyle Talbot and Patricia Ellis. Robert Cavanaugh, Robert Barrat and Henry O'Neill.

Due to the length of the show there will be only one showing of "Roberta" on week day evenings at approximately 8:15. There will be the usual continuous performances on Saturday and Sunday.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

The market news this week is somewhat more favorable from the housewife's standpoint. Butter is cheaper and will probably stay so. Many vegetables are low or relatively low in price, including spinach and asparagus. New potatoes, cabbage, and onions are lower.

Oranges are plentiful and cheap. Puerto Rican pineapples are approaching the peak of their season. Bananas have never been finer or cheaper. Strawberries are a little less plentiful. The real cantaloupe season opens with the arrival of fruit from the Imperial Valley although Mexican cantaloupe have been in market several weeks.

Veal, lamb, and poultry offer the best meat values though forequarter beef is slightly lower. Fish is unusually plentiful and cheap.

Here are three menus made up of reasonably priced foods adapted to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner

Braised Veal Potatoes
Spinach with Onions
Bread and Butter
Banana Cream Cake
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Roast Veal Browned Potatoes
Creamed Asparagus
Bread and Butter
Fresh Pineapple and Strawberry Cup
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Fruit Cup
Roast Stuffed Chicken or Baked Ham
Parsley Potatoes Green Peas
Combination Salad Rolls and Butter

Canberra (pronounced cann-bra) Australia's capital, is a word of aboriginal or native origin but there appears to be no authentic definition of its meaning. It is a name associated with the district long before it was selected as the site for the capital city.—Pathfinder Magazine.

OBSERVATIONS
(By the Spectator)

Look out for the individual who gives you a poke in the ribs and swears he is speaking the gospel truth.

Many men in and out of Winchester are like poor mucilage—they stick to nothing.

Even if a Winchesterite does not manage to come out on top, his hair may.

If one-half the world does not know how the other half lives it is probably because it hasn't any next door neighbor.

A fool and his money are soon parted—but they go some before the separation.

How many old timers can remember when the fiddle was common here in Winchester.

The women of Winchester are not getting the exercise they used to when dresses buttoned up the back.

Looks like some people in Winchester are buying automobiles faster than the people of the average community. But Winchester people are prosperous and as an outsider once remarked: "It's a sign of prosperity to live in Winchester."

A fellow generally has troubles enough of his own without worrying over the troubles of other folk.

IMPOSING MEMORIALS MARK "BITS OF AMERICA" IN EUROPE

Seventeen years ago, on Nov. 11 the last shot of the greatest war in history was fired. Today on the battlefields of Europe eight memorial chapels and 11 monuments commemorate the part played by American military forces in the great struggle. Although they rise on foreign soil they are, with the possible exception of the Amphitheater at Arlington, America's largest and finest war memorials.

Armistice Day directs our attention to these shrines, which range in size and design from the towering Doric shaft, topped by a statue, on the hill of Montfaucon, to the simple effective monument, near the town of Ypres, with its low lines blending with the plains of Belgium, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Chateau-Thierry, Where the Germans were Stopped

The major battlefield memorials were placed by the American Battlefields Commission, under the chairmanship of General John J. Pershing, in three historic localities on the Western Front where American forces in large numbers engaged in active combat. They are known as the Aisne-Marne, the Meuse-Argonne, and the St. Mihiel battlefields.

To help stop the great enemy drive of May 27, 1918, which began north of the Aisne River, American divisions were hurried into line in the vicinity of Chateau-Thierry, directly across the German advance toward Paris. Of the 300,000 Americans taking part in this operation and the counter offensive, 6,000 were killed or wounded. Therefore, on historic Hill 204, rising just west of Chateau-Thierry, has been constructed perhaps the most impressive of the American war memorials, with twin rows of majestic square columns, and a huge, modernistic carving of an American eagle.

Nearby are two American military cemeteries. One, the Aisne-Marne, is located at the northern side of the hill on which stands the famous Belleau Wood. The other, the Oise-Aisne, is near Fere-en-Tardenois just north of the Oureq River.

The St. Mihiel memorial marks the first operation of a complete American Army as an independent unit in the World War, although this offensive did not begin until September 12th, and was halted in two months by the Armistice. The circular Doric colonnade, on an isolated hill, Montsec, can be seen for miles. Eight miles away, at Thiaucourt, is the third largest of the American military cemeteries in France, marked by a marble chapel.

The famous Champagne district, center of the last French drive, lies between Rheims and the Argonne Forest. A monument to the activities of the American troops in this area stands on Blanc Mont, near Somme-Py.

Monument Built Over Canal

A unique American War Memorial is the Bellicourt Monument, built over a section of the old St. Quentin Canal. Just north of the city of St. Quentin, in the region of the Somme, the canal flows through a historic tunnel used by the Germans in the Hindenburg Line defenses. The monument commemorates the activities of the American 27th and 30th Divisions, which went into the front line with the British Army to attack the formidable Hindenburg Line.

On this part of the front the Hindenburg Line followed roughly the St. Quentin Canal, and made use of that obstacle as a primary feature of its defense system. For more than three miles the canal flows through a tunnel, which the enemy converted into a huge underground shelter and storehouse.

They dug comfortable bomb-proof rooms into the tunnel walls, and by means of numerous passageways maintained communication with their machine-gun nests and trenches above ground. Canal boats, tied up in the tunnel, afforded other living quarters and a fully protected magazine for supplies.

Scene of First American Victory

The Somme American cemetery is located at Bony. At its lower end a simple, effective chapel has been dedicated to those who sleep there. Some 70 miles southwest lies the circle crossroads town of Cantigny. There the First Division won its spurs in April 1918, and a month later made the first American division al attack of the war. In 1923 the National Geographic Society presented to the village of Cantigny a complete water supply system and memorial fountain. The fountain was removed to make way for a national monument erected by the Battlefields Commission to mark this first American victory of the World War.

In the Meuse-Argonne, where our main body of troops was concentrated, was written the foremost chapter in American overseas military history. The battle which raged in this region from Sept. 7 until the Armistice, involved more than 2000, 000 Americans, of which 122,000 were killed, wounded or missing. It is fitting, therefore, that the largest American War Memorial in Europe should be erected on the hill of Montfaucon, the most prominent point in the area. This memorial is a colossal Doric shaft, 175 feet high, surmounted by a statue of Liberty.

The American cemetery of the Meuse-Argonne is near Romagne-sous-Montfaucon. Overlooking green hillsides and long rows of white crosses is the largest of American cemetery memorials, a beautiful example of modern Romanesque architecture. Two other cemeteries, one in Suresnes, outside of Paris, and the other at Brookwood, near London, have stately chapels containing the names of those buried there.

At Tours, France, a fountain honors the activities of 450,000 Americans who worked behind the lines in the service of Supply. In tribute to the American Navy which "took them there and brought them back" a rectangular shaft 100 feet high has been erected overlooking the harbor of Brest. On Gibraltar, another base for American vessels overseas, a memorial stairway and arch marks the part played by U-boat chasers.

THE LETICIA REGION, SOUTH AMERICA'S NEWEST "HOT SPOT"

Four South American nations are involved in the dispute over Leticia, a tiny Amazon River village of 500 inhabitants near the meeting place of the borders of Colombia, Ecuador, Peru and Brazil. Since last September, when Peruvians captured this hitherto unheard of river port, Colombia has threatened reprisals and Brazil has issued warnings that its neutrality must be observed. In recent weeks troops, airplanes and gunboats of three powers are reported to be concentrating in South America's newest "hot spot."

Leticia presents the strange paradox of a sea port that is nearly 2000 miles removed from the ocean in the midst of a jungle, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Comercially it has almost no importance, for vessels must anchor offshore and the few buildings of the town are mostly low, straw-thatched cottages. Tabatinga, the Brazilian fortified town two miles farther down the river, offers much better port facilities.

Navigable Headwaters Real Prizes

The navigable headwaters of the Amazon and the farthest inland sea ports in the world, however, are the real prides at stake in this region, which has long been shown by cross-hatched lines (one of the map-makers' ways of indicating disputed territory) on the charts of the world.

Since the collapse of the wild rubber market in the Amazon valley above Leticia has resumed commercial importance through a wide variety of products. From the campos of Peru and Colombia come cotton, cacao, sugar and cattle, while from the forests come precious woods, nuts, and plants used in medicine. Rubber, which first entered commerce from the upper reaches of the tributaries of the Amazon, still plays a part in the economic life of the district, and may resume its old leadership when plantations are developed.

A small fleet of steamers moves busily up and down all the large affluents of the Amazon. It is possible to travel in comparative comfort from Belem (Para), at the mouths of the Amazon, to the city of Yurimaguas, far above disputed Leticia, in Peru. Ocean-going steamers regularly ascend the Amazon to Manaos, nearly 900 miles from Belem, and the same vessels could go to Iquitos, Peru, more than 2000 miles from the mouth. During the rainy season the Amazon branches rise from 30 to 50 feet.

EN KA STREET FAIR

COLORFUL PAGEANT DREW THOUSANDS LAST SATURDAY

Favored by a wonderful day—one of the few really spring days of the whole season—and amid a most perfect setting—with a large spacious parking space at the rear of the Town Hall, running from Washington street and ending at the beautiful island in the river—the En Ka Street Fair attracted thousands and proved a huge success last Saturday. Some estimate of the attendance may be made by the fact that over 5000 were customers at the midway alone.

The idea of a Street Fair was a novelty to Winchester, but nevertheless a most acceptable novelty. Conceived by the active organization of En Ka, the proceeds, which will be announced in a few days, are to be devoted to the Winchester Hospital where the money will be used for the Nurses' Home.

Apart from the natural setting of new spring growth, no particular decorations other than a large American flag were used. At the entrances to the "Street" were brightly painted posts with an array of balloons spanning the space between them and electric lights topped a large "En Ka Street Fair" sign.

Each shop in itself was a decoration and surprisingly different. Each had a street number. No. 2, was the "Apron Shelf." Here the Alumnae of the Hospital School did a sell-out business in aprons, hot pads and colorful towels. Their booth was a kitchen, painted ivory and green with a daintily curtained window and its flower box.

The nurses also sponsored the pop corn stand managed by Mr. Warren Fogg, and several nurses assisted him. Mr. Frank E. Crawford took his turn at popping and found that pop corn is popular at a Street Fair. Mrs. Arthur Cameron of Eaton street, a Hospital Alumnae and En Ka member was co-chairman with Mrs. Harold Dover, assisted by Miss Constance Lane and the following members of the W. H. N. A.: Miss Hilda Hope, president of the Association; Miss Alice Bryne, Miss Mable Ross, Mrs. Mildred McGloughlin, Miss Marjorie Pease, Miss Mary Tucker and Mrs. Frances Waingt [illegible] The nurses are indebted to Mr. Harold Dover, Mr. and Mrs. C. Robie McCarthy and Mr. C. R. Metchear for their help. The men master donated by the nurses and offered as a prize was won at the drawing when Miss Hilda Hope, drew the number of Mrs. David Kaveff of 710 Washington street.

Next door stood a small house featuring the "Attic" windows, where large cobwebs hung. In "The Attic" was a large collection of interesting and valuable treasures which sold at greatly reduced prices. Due largely to a splendid sales force, by 10 o'clock the "Attic" was cleaned out. Miss Eleanor Boyd was chairman and

WINCHESTER MAN HEADS BANK OFFICERS

Mr. Raymond Merrill of Rangely road, trust officer of the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company, was elected president of the Bank Officers' Association of the City of Boston at the organization's 50th anniversary, with dinner and entertainment, at the Hotel Statler Wednesday. The association was organized in 1885 and has a membership of more than 2000.

During the business meeting Mr. Herbert E. Stone of Edgehill road, vice president of the Second National Bank of Boston gave a stereoptican talk on "Fifty Years of Boston Banking."

Mr. Alonzo P. Weeks of Pine street a trustee of the permanent fund of the Association, declined re-election, having served continuously since 1925.

The Association, by a rising vote, adopted the following resolution which will prove interesting to the many Winchester friends of Mr. Weeks:

RESOLVED: The Bank Officers' Association of the City of Boston record with regret the decision of Mr. Alonzo P. Weeks to retire from the Board of Trustees.

A charter member, Mr. Weeks, has been intensely devoted to our Association and for these many years has been a wise and firm counselor with the best interests of our organization always in mind. Elected a Trustee in 1898, he has served on that Board continuously up to this day, but is now declining to allow the use of his name for renomination and, while we regret this decision, we feel that he is justified in asking to be relieved from some of his many business cares.

We think of Mr. Weeks not only as a successful banker qualified for this work by natural ability, unsparing effort, good business sense, and spotless integrity. Beyond this, there is always in our thoughts his capacity for devoted, loyal friendship, his genial personality, intelligence, force and sincerity.

We are happy to take this means of expressing our appreciation and extend to him our thanks for the many years of loyal, efficient and successful service which he has so willingly given to the Bank Officers' Association.

WOBURN HERE TODAY

Winchester High School and its ancient rival, Woburn, will meet in baseball this afternoon on Manchester Field at 3 o'clock. Neither club has a very impressive record thus far, and the game ought to be pretty much a toss-up.

Winchester has been hitting better than any club the locals have had for some years, but have been getting uncertain pitching. Woburn showed plenty of power whaling Wakefield on Leonard Field Wednesday afternoon and on the whole has been a little more consistent than Winchester. The locals have few experienced players in their lineup, but if given good pitching will make the Tanners hustle to win.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Marriage intentions have been filed with the town clerk as follows:

Henry W. Cushman and Eileen M. M. Dawson, both of Lebanon, N. H.

Peter Tofuri of 21 Spruce street and Mary Hilda Uberti of 74 Adams street, Malden.

John Frederick Turner of 32 Sherman place, Woburn, and Eileen Katherine Coleman of 12 Foxcroft road.

GEORGE HARRINGTON LEAVES $100,000

The will of George Harrington, late of 89 Bacon street, who died Feb. 9 at Winter Park, Fla., his winter home, was filed Wednesday in Middlesex Probate Court and includes bequests to servants as well as provisions for the aid of persons suffering from nervous diseases or disorders. Mr. Harrington was a retired wool merchant and left an estate estimated last night at $100,000.

If next of kin survive, papers with the will state, they are not known. The Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company, is named as executor. The Unitarian Society of Winchester and the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals are given $5000 each.

To his housekeeper, Mrs. Mary J. Shepherd, Mr. Harrington leaves $2000 and such household goods as she may select, and he directs the executor to purchase an annuity for her that will yield her $15 a week for life. Daniel A. Dubbyn, an employee, is given $2000 and Minnie Russell, another employee receives $500.

The executor is directed to pay Imogene P. Atwood (a distant relative) during her life $170 a month, including $50 a month to Harriet M. Deane as long as she attends her.

The residue of the estate is left in trust to Dr. Henry L. Houghton of Boston and Charles M. Rogerson of Milton "to use, apply, and expend for the help and benefit of people afflicted with nervous diseases or disorders." This may be done in individual cases, in the advancement of medical skill, in medical schools or departments of research and in hospital aid.

In a memorandum to his housekeeper, filed with the will, Mr. Harrington said: "As I am last of my family, I feel that many things having personal association with any member of my family should be destroyed and I request her to destroy any bric-a-brac, furniture, pictures, books, etc., that I have had in the house for many years." The housekeeper, it was stated, had received oral instructions.

STRUCK ON HEAD WITH GOLF CLUB

Leslie Wildquist of 68 Hutchinson road, a care-taker and special police officer at the Winchester Country Club, was knocked unconscious Tuesday afternoon when he was struck on the head with a golf club wielded by a man whom he found playing golf near the club's seventh hole, opposite the home of Mr. Harry Locke in High street.

Wildquist, according to Harold Hovey manager of the club, discovered two men playing golf at that place and finding that they were not club members, started to question them. As he was talking to them, one of the pair suddenly hit him over the head with his golf club, knocking him down and rendering him temporarily unconscious.

As he came to, Wildquist saw the two men driving away in a Ford sedan. He was not able to get the registration of the car and could not furnish a very clear description of either of the men. The matter was reported to the police by Mr. Hovey.

Mrs. Charles Gould of Norwood street has recently been registered at the Barbagon-Plaza, New York City.

MRS. JULIA GROSJEAN SOMERBY

Mrs. Julia Grosjean Somerby, widow of Rufus Choate Somerby and mother of Rufus Alfred Somerby, widely known in theatrical circles as manager of the G. E. Lathrop Interests, died shortly after midnight Friday morning, May 10, at her home, 270 Washington street, after a two months' illness.

Mrs. Somerby was born 78 years ago in Ava, N. Y., daughter of Stephen and Elizabeth (Palmer) Grosjean. Much of her early life was spent in Boonville, N. Y., where she was married and lived until coming to Boston about 1885. Her husband, a theatrical manager, died 35 years ago.

Mrs. Somerby came to Winchester from Boston in 1921 and had since made her home here. She was a member of the Unitarian Parish and of its Ladies' Friendly Society. She was intensely interested in the testimonial banquet given her son early in April, upon occasion of his 35th anniversary in the theatrical business, and records were made of the festivities at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston for her especial benefit.

Besides Mr. Somerby, there are surviving a daughter, Miss Jennie Somerby, with whom the deceased made her home; a brother, Howard Grosjean of Carthage, N. Y.; a sister, Mrs. Florence MacMurdie of Boston; and four grandchildren.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon in the Unitarian Church with the minister, Rev. George Hale Reed, officiating. There was organ music preceding the funeral, played by the church organist, Kenneth Moffatt and during the services a male quartet sang. The remains were cremated at Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

SIDNEY ROLLINS ON SCHOOL BALL TEAM

Richards Junior High School of Newport, N. H., boasts a girl base ball player, member of the regular nine. She is Sidney Rollins, 14 years of age, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Rollins of Newport. She plays first base and last Friday was elected to pitch in a game against the Warner High School nine of, Concord. Her batting is reported weak, but she is an excellent fielder. In Friday's game she pitched three innings, struck out six batters and no runs were scored against her. Sidney is widely known among Winchester's Junior High boys and girls, for she made her home with her parents here until last fall, when they moved to Newport.

DEMOLAY DANCE

To top off a very successful year, the Mid Hesex Chapter, Order of DeMolay is putting on a monster dance at the Bellevue Golf Club in Melrose on May 29.

The chapter has been very fortunate in securing the services of Glen Fells and his orchestra which will furnish enchanting dance rhythms throughout the entire evening from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. To add to the pleasure of the evening, there will be a prize waltz, a Paul Jones, and an elimination dance.

This band has been heard throughout Boston and is directed by one of the veteran bandmasters of New England. Mr. Barrington-Sargent began his musical career over 60 years ago and has risen from leader of a little time honored village unit to one of the largest bands in the world, a 400 piece ensemble which he directed for two consecutive years and presented in several band festivals at the Mechanics' Building in Boston.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS AND JUNIORS IN COMBINED PROM

For the first time, at least in recent years, the junior and senior classes of the Winchester High School combined their promenades, holding one big party last Saturday evening in the high school gymnasium. Neither class was financially able to swing a single prom, and rather than do without these outstanding social events of undergraduate life it was voted to combine them, this solution proving a particularly happy solution of the problem.

The gymnasium was attractively decorated with rainbow crepe paper, balloons and floor lamps. Music was furnished by Harold Cutter's Orchestra, and after intermission the use of a spotlight lent an added glamour to the festivities. Horace Ford entered for the refreshments. Favors were hats for the girls and Indian feathers for the boys, and each dancer was given roll confetti to throw at the final dance.

In the receiving line were Principal and Mrs. Wade L. Grindle, Mrs. James J. Quinn, wife of the superintendent of schools; the senior class president, Joseph Cassidy, and his mother, Mrs. John F. Cassidy; and the president of the junior class, Frank Provinzano, and his mother, Mrs. Pietro Provinzano.

The senior members of the committee in charge of arrangements were Robert Thornton, chairman; Natalie Stevens, Priscilla Danforth, Gladys Moulton, George Billman and Ewart Bairstow. Junior members were Phyllis Lybeck, Janet Fuller, Pauline Clark, Bickwell Lockhart, Robert Higgins, Edward Stone and Robert Graham. Faculty supervisors were Ella M. Stacy of the History Department and Arthur E. Butters of the Mathematics Department.

The Park Department now is using a large new power mower that materially increases the amount of grass that can be cut in a given time. With the greatly increased amount of lawn which the department now has to care for, it was necessary to increase its facilities for cutting the grass regularly.

CONGREGATIONAL FATHER AND SON NIGHT GALA EVENT

The second annual Father and Son Night of the First Congregational Men's Club attracted 200 happy dads and their sons or "guest sons" to the parish recreation hall last Friday evening.

After the gathering had done full justice to a delicious dinner the president of the men's club, R. Gilman Wallace, who acted as master of ceremonies, introduced Harold Bates, who outlined in a most interesting manner the activities of the church boys' club, the members of which have met in the church gymnasium in three age groups on Saturday mornins this year under that popular assistant to Coach Mansfield at high school, "Bob" Friery. This worth while athletic training has been sponsored and financed by the Men's Club. The boys' appreciation of its opportunities was voiced by David Grosvenor who also reported something of what the boys have done during the winter and spring months.

No mention of the dinner would be complete without reference to the community singing, led by Dr. J. Churchill Hindes, with Mrs. Hindes at the piano.

The guest speaker of the evening turned out to be no less a personage than old "Hankus Pankus" Gowdy, former star catcher and now battery coach and general "right eye" for Manager "Bill" McKechnie of the Boston Braves. "Hank," one of baseball's finest figures and an excellent speaker, was enthusiastically welcomed and given the closest attention of all present.

He gave a most interesting address, emphasizing true sportsmanship and the need for right living and hard, clean competition from all those who call themselves sportsmen.

"Dick" Hingston, New England intercollegiate 165 pound wrestling champion, was next introduced and with a team mate from the championship Tufts wrestling team, demonstrated and explained the various holds employed in amateur wrestling. Hingston was assisted by Prof. Robinson Abbott of the Tufts Engineering School, a resident of Everell road and well known in the sports world as coach of the Tufts junior varsity football and freshmen wrestling teams. At the conclusion of the demonstration Hingston and his partner put on a spirited bout which Professor Abbott refereed.

Following the wrestlers a group of the church's senior boys gave an excellent exhibition of tumbling and work on the parrellel bars and spring board, under the watchful eye of "Bob" Friery. Among the participants were Kirby Thwing, Alfred Mathews, John Sexton, Kenneth Gurney, Leonard Millican, David Grosvenor, George Botten, David Howard and Henry Hill.

A fitting windup for the party was the showing of moving pictures of the 1933 Harvard-Yale game by Capt. Herman Gundlach, guest fall's sterling Crimson guard, and Capt.-elect "Bob" Haley, Harvard's backfield ace from Winthrop. The pictures shown in slow motion were explained by the two varsity players, many in the audience getting an entirely new slant on football from their remarks.

Harold Bates acted as chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements, the other members of which were Ben Schneider, Lieut. Comdr. Richard Rush, Frederick Hatch and Clarence Newton.

LUNCHEON TO BE AT CHURCH OF THE EPIPHANY

Mrs. Archibald Campbell Jordan of Highland avenue is the chairman of the luncheon to be held at the parish house of the Church of the Epiphany on Tuesday, May 21. Mrs. Jordan and her vice-chairmen, Mrs. Malcolm Cook and Mrs. E. Craig Greiner, promise an especially fine lobster luncheon and Mrs. Frederick Cameron is arranging a program of songs, dancing and character readings. There will be bridge for those who care to remain and play. Mrs. Frederick Archer of Bacon street is the chairman of tickets.

Mr. Robert A. Reynolds has leased an estate on the Cape at Rochester, and will spend the summer there with his family.

WINCHESTER CHILDREN'S MUSIC GROUP

Last Meeting at "Carrig Rohane" Studio

Most people work better when they know what they are about and what results the work can bring. This is peculiarly true of children. The necessity of long continued effort before satisfaction comes from the result irks and discourages the child. Music, alone, and with others, is a vivid example of this fact, well-known to teachers and mothers. There must be some way almost from the beginning of the child's studies so to arouse his interest in the music and the making of it that much of the drudgery of practice can be eliminated.

From these ideas grew the Children's Music Group in Winchester. The children are not obliged to attend. They have an opportunity to play or sing to an understanding yet critical audience of their own age. The beauty and charm of good music can be counted on to supply the pleasure and stimulate the interest which make apparent the real use of work and practice. It is equally true that poor performance and inferior music always fail to hold the interest of the audience.

Accordingly, each meeting has been devoted chiefly to the fine music of one composer. The fixed program has been of selections from his works, each number prepared and performed by a member or group of members, an orchestra or chorus. The human interest, so to speak, has been added by a short resume of the composer's life history. A guest artist, obviously expert on his instrument, presents vivid and concrete evidence of the value of work and practice by excellent performance, by answering questions about his instrument and by telling how he became proficient in its use. At the end is a "free period" when any member may play anything he wishes. The object of the whole plan is to have each member perform and want to perform good music on his or her instrument, thus bringing home to the performer the idea that music is not just the drudgery of practice, but a distinctly worthwhile and pleasurable activity.

Following this plan, the six meetings, this last winter, the Group's third season, have been as follows:

November Guest artist, Mrs. Conrad Valkenier, instrument, French Horn; composer, Haydn.
December Guest artist, Mr. Frank Owen, instrument, bass; composer, French Christmas Festival.
January Guest artist, Mr. Henry H. Stasinaus, A. R. A. M. of the Boston Symphony, instrument, Oboe; composer, Schumann.
February Guest artist, Mr. Gaston Dufresne of the Boston Symphony; instrument, Double-bass; composer, Bach.
March Guest artist, Mrs. Virginia Stasinaus; instrument, Saxophone; composer, Mendelssohn.
April Guest artist, Miss Olivia Hall; instrument, Harp; composer, Grieg.

It seemed especially fitting that the last meeting which was held on April 28, at the residence of Mrs. Alexander Smoiloff, "Carrig Rohane" Studio, should present as guest artist, Miss Olivia Hall, a charming little girl, 11 years old, a pupil of Mr. Bernard Zighera, the harpist of the Boston Symphony. Miss Hall is already an accomplished musician, playing the harp with ease and beauty of tone and great musical understanding. Vivid indeed was the impression created on everyone that music was not just drugery and that the pleasure and gratifying results of earnest work and practice were not years and years away, but could be had quite soon.

Of the 64 members, practically everyone has taken part in some program, either as a soloist, in the orchestra or in the chorus.

The following were members of the Group this last season:

George Budd	Anne Murray

BALLOONS EXPLODED

Saturday evening shortly before 6 o'clock a resident of Wedgemere avenue notified Police Headquarters that her children had been burned by balloons which she had purchased for them earlier in the afternoon from a vendor in Winchester. She further informed the authorities that the balloons had exploded after the children had gotten home and that the hair and faces of the youngsters had been singed and scorched, and their clothing damaged. Dr. Milton J. Quinn treated the children.

Lieut. John A. Harrold investigated and found the man selling balloons to be Michael Naimo of 43 Franklin street, Somerville. He stated that the balloons were inflated with hydrogen.

Police Chief William H. Rogers ordered the gas container taken to Headquarters after he received another complaint about the inflamable nature of the gas. He communicated with the State Fire Marshall's Office and as a result of information received there, returned the gas to the vendor.

WINCHESTER BOY TO PRESIDE AT FRENCH SERVICES

Edwin L. Murphy, who was born in Winchester, and who is now connected with the American Embassy in Paris, will preside at the Memorial Day ceremonies to be held in Thiaucourt Cemetery on May 30. The speaker will be E. A. Baldwin, president of the American Chamber of Commerce in France.

Mr. Murphy served with the 101st Infantry (26th Division) during the World War, having the rank of first Sergeant. He is now the Commander of Benjamin Franklin Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Adjutant of Paris Post of the American Legion.

Exactly 30,832 A. E. F. graves will be decorated in France on Memorial Day, requiring more than 100,000 poppies, 30,000 palm wreaths, 30,000 American and 30 000 French flags. Although the memories of the World War recede and become obscure, nevertheless both France and the United States pay reverent tribute every May 30 to the American war dead who sleep in French soil.

ACTIVE AT WELLESLEY

Miss Anita Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert O. Wilson of Yale street, is executing the float, "Sirens" for the annual float night pageant at Wellesley College, where Miss Wilson is a junior. The theme of the festivities this year is the wanderings of Ulysses. Students design and make floats to illustrate the theme. Float night, traditionally before Tree Day, features crew races and exhibitions, the forming of the "W" and singing.

Miss Wilson will also be active in the Tree Day festivities. This year the theme for the pageantry of Saturday will be Orpheus and Euridyce. Miss Wilson is on the committee of plans and also designed the cover to the program for the event. Tree Day is the oldest of Wellesley fetes, having been instituted even before the first graduation.

Everyone who is interested in the various national amusements will want to see the pictures which will be shown in the Town Hall on Friday evening, May 24. These pictures were taken this spring by Dr. Tozier of this town, who attended this event—a "Bull Fight," not because he approves of this so-called sport, but because it is as much a part of Mexican life as the Harvard-Yale football game is to the life of New England.

THE LAND OF THE AZTECS BY DR. CHARLES H. TOZIER OF WINCHESTER

This lecture on the birthplace of American history will be fully illustrated by the most remarkable collection of color slides in America. They were photographed by special permission from the Mexican Government and with the help of Ambassador Daniels in Mexico City.

Many of the shrines and treasures of that country, both ancient and modern, have never been photographed before, and none of them have ever been taken in color. These pictures will portray the times of Montezuma, the last Aztec ruler of Mexico, and then on through the Spanish conquest down to the present modern Mexico. The Monte Alban jewels, a recent find, are the most remarkable relics of an ancient race in America and prove that Mexico is truly the Egypt of the so-called "New World." Some of the gods, altars, pyramids and other relics of this extinct race will be shown on the screen.

Modern Mexico will be illustrated by some of the most outstanding sights to be seen in that country today. The Riviera murals showing his conception of both ancient and modern life in Mexico will be shown in color. These murals are some of the most interesting murals in the western world.

To supplement these color slides, Dr. Tozier will show a motion picture of travel in Mexico, the Mexican Charros gathering for the bull fight, which is as much a part of Mexican life as the Harvard-Yale classic is to New England.

After seeing these pictures you will realize that the history of ancient America is fully as interesting as that of any other country on the globe.

Supt. Thomas McGowan of the Park Department discovered last Saturday that some one's idea of a good time had been the removal of rocks from the new rock garden on Cross street near Brophy's store. The matter was called to the attention of the Police.

A pilgrimage will be made to Time Stone Farm, Marlboro, the home of Mrs. Edna H. Little, one of the best known collectors in the country. The house dates from 1702, and is furnished almost entirely in pilgrim century antiques. The restoration of this early 18th century farm house to its original condition is one of the most remarkable achievements of the day. There is an additional building known as the Book House. This was built in 1668 in what is now Malden, Mass., cemetery, and was moved by Mrs. Little to Marlboro. The two upper rooms contain a valuable collection of books, while below on one side is a living room, and on the other a school room with old fashioned desks and benches.

Mrs. Little is having as her guest Mrs. Hollis Webster, noted garden authority who will explain the many interesting features about the famous Time Stone Farm herb garden.

A stop will be made in Sudbury for the benefit of the new members, who have not visited Henry Ford's Wayside Inn, Country Store and "The Little School House."

Reservations for this trip must be made before noon May 22 with Anna Burgoyne, Win. 0470, or Alice R. Andrews, Win. 0017, as it is necessary to know the number in the party at that time. Directions will be given to drivers, and the route will be marked by red arrows "Time Stone Farm" from Wayside Inn to the Farm.

All passengers ride at their own risk.

RETIRES AS PRESIDENT OF SAVINGS BANK

At the annual meeting of the Corporation held recently, Mr. Harry C. Sanborn, who has served so ably as President for the past 14 years, announced his retirement from that position to the deep regret of all the officers, Trustees and Corporators of the bank.

During his term as President the assets have more than doubled to the present total of over $5,300,000 and the bank now stands as one of the strongest in the State, an institution of which Winchester may well be proud.

Mr. H. Wadsworth Hight who has been a Vice President for some years and connected with the bank since 1914 was elected President and Mr. Samuel S. Symmes a Vice President.

The place of meeting this year will be the parish house of the Unitarian Church and church school workers, parents, teachers and all other persons interested are urged to attend these inspiring courses. The purpose of the school is to foster and encourage the newly revived interest in Religious Education which is manifest all over the country and to offer courses which will be helpful to people of all denominations. The program committee, consisting of Miss Eda Knowlton of the Baptist Church and Miss Evelyn Scott and Mr. John L. Lobingier of the Congregational Church, is working hard to secure speakers of the finest type and with a universal appeal so that the School may continue to maintain its high standards and to interest an ever increasing number of people. The School is conducted under the auspices of all the Protestant Churches of Winchester.

BETHANY NEWS

The social calendar for May and June is decidedly crowded. Note the following events in order of sequence (besides leaving room for several other church affairs, not listed under Bethany News.)

At 1 o'clock on Wednesday, the 22nd, there will be a very special luncheon, sponsored by the Barbara Everett people of Boston. The menu sounds most appetizing: tomato juice cocktail, chicken a la king, rolls, vegetable salad, cake and coffee. Small tables will be arranged so that if one wishes to assemble a "foursome" of special friends, this will be possible. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

On Friday afternoon, the 24th, at 2:30 o'clock, the finance committee is holding the last silver tea of the season. These last affairs make us realize the season is most over and gives us courage to hang on a little longer. Ladies of the community are always welcome.

On Tuesday, June 4, comes the last Bethany luncheon until fall. The hostesses for this luncheon are Mrs. Farnham, Mrs. Albert Thompson, Mrs. Bowles, Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Foster. It is well to remind the members that at this time the president will call for the Easter booklets filled with our hard-saved dimes since April. No one will ever know how many times those poor little dimes have been removed from their niches and again and again replaced!

Friday, June 7, is the date of a very popular affair, the Bethany breakfast, served in the assembly hall from 5:30 to 9 a. m. Come and bring the family and give the breakfast dishes at home a rest. A large crowd is anticipated.

Better get out your little engagement pads and jot down these dates, as they will not be officially announced again in the Star.

Lord Tanning finally won its game Tuesday evening in the Suburban Twilight League from the Finast nine on Manchester Field, 10 to 9. Neither starting pitcher went the distance, Winchester's "Robbie" Robinson being shelled out of the box in the fifth after pitching good ball for four frames.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOR

Annual Meeting

The last meeting of the year of the Winchester Chapter, Guild of the Infant Savior was held at Lyceum Hall on Tuesday. As each member was privileged to bring a guest, a very large assembly was greeted by the President, Mrs. Margaret T. Hintlian. She thanked the members of her board and all who helped in any way to make the year such a success.

The program for the afternoon was in charge of Mary T. Ghirardini, program chairman for the year. Under her supervision a series of very successful lectures and musicales have been enjoyed throughout the winter and Mrs. Ghirardini thanked her hostesses and artists for the fine spirit of co-operation which they had shown. The program of the afternoon "Around the World in Bed" was directed by Mrs. Anita McGaragle, whose untiring efforts are always appreciated by the Guild. The music was in the capable hands of Mary Ranton Witham.

Many lovely costumes were worn by the members of the cast, among the interesting ones was costumes worn by Mary Hintlian which had been worn 50 years ago at a wedding in Armenia.

Helena S. Sibley gave a very interesting talk on musical Poland preceding her group of violin selections.

The dancing numbers were all beautifully interpreted.

The characters represented by the reader and the vocalists were cleverly portrayed and they are all to be congratulated on their work.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

On Wednesday, May 15, the Winchester Girl Scout Council held its last meeting of the winter. Members of the Leaders' Association and troop mothers committees were also invited to be present, so that there was a large gathering in the parish house of the Church of the Epiphany.

Among the most interesting of the regular reports was that of Mrs. Alton Jackson for the Bugle and Drum Corps for the past winter. Mrs. Butterfield outlined the work of the Badges and Awards Committee which has awarded 175 badges since Jan. 1. One member of the Advisory Committee has passed 24 cooks for badges.

Many council members have been attending the Scout Conferences during the past week and brought back reports from them. Mrs. Phelps told of the meeting of the Metropolitan Division at Cedar Hill; Mrs. Davis, the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Girl Scouts.

The day of training for council members and leaders at the New England Regional Conference in Worcester last week gave many helpful suggestions to those who attended. Reports from this conference were made by Mrs. Morse for publicity; Mrs. Lyman for the camps; Mrs. Farnsworth for training and personnel; Mrs. Moffette, Captain McElwain and Captain Newman for troop work and leaders' association; Mrs. Fiske, "What Badges Mean to Us."

Announcement was made that Mary Guernsey of Wellesley had been chosen to represent the New England Region at the International Scout meeting at the "Chalet" in Switzerland this summer.

Our summer day camp will be held at the cabin on this summer on Tuesday and Thursday, July 9-Aug. 22, under the direction of Miss K. Carlisle. Further notices of this activity will be given.

A meeting will be given in honor of Lord and Lady Baden-Powell in Symphony Hall, Boston, on July 11 at 7:30 p. m. Leaders and their husbands and Scouts over 18 years of age will be welcome. Anyone who wishes to attend, please phone Mrs. Morse, Win. 1530 as soon as possible as the number of tickets is limited.

FROM OUR REPRESENTATIVE

To the Editor of the Star:

I believe that the people of Winchester will be interested to learn of the progress of the present session of the Legislature, and I am taking this opportunity to call to their attention a few matters which have already been considered by the House of Representatives.

During the past week, 72 bills, providing for the construction of new state highways, or for the extension or widening of existing state highways, calling for a total appropriation of three hundred million dollars ($300,000,000) were acted on by the House of Representatives and in every case the bills were rejected.

Another measure which has been rejected by the Legislature is House Bill No. 372 which would reduce the exemption of tangible personal property from local taxation. At present the law provides that "The wearing apparel, farming utensils and cash on hand of every person and the tools of his trade if a mechanic, to any amount; and to an amount not exceeding a total value of one thousand dollars in respect to all the articles hereinafter specified in this clause, his household furniture and effects, including jewelry, plate, works of art, musical instruments, radios and gasoline or motor car accessories, used or commonly kept in or about the dwelling which is the place of his domicile,"—shall be exempt from taxation by the local Board of Assessors.

House Bill No. 372 provided that "The wearing apparel and farming utensils of every person; his necessary household furniture used in the dwelling which is the place of his domicile not exceeding five hundred dollars in value; and the necessary tools of a mechanic not exceeding three hundred dollars in value," would be exempt from taxation by the local Board of Assessors.

The bill providing for the widening and reconstructing of the Woburn Parkway, which is of great interest to the residents of the West Side of our Town, has been transferred to the next annual session of the Legislature, and the subject matter covered by this bill will be studied by the Metropolitan District Commission, which will make recommendations to the next Legislature.

I am enclosing copy of the bill recently passed by the Legislature and signed by the Governor, relative to the display of the flag of the United States in school houses, and requiring the teachers and pupils to salute the flag and to recite the "Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag." This bill is not the so-called "Teachers' Oath Bill" which has created such a stir during the past weeks and should not be confused with it. I suggest that this bill be printed in the Star, if space permits it.

An Act relative to the Display of the Flag of the United States in Schoolhouses and requiring the Teachers and Pupils thereat to salute the Flag and to recite the "Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag".

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Chapter seventy-one of the General Laws is hereby amended by striking out section sixty-nine, as appearing in the Tercentenary edition, and inserting in place thereof the following:—

Section 69. The school committee shall provide for each schoolhouse under its control, which is not otherwise supplied, flags of the United States of silk or hunting not less than two feet long and such flag or bunting to be manufactured in the United States, and suitable apparatus for their display as hereinafter provided. A flag shall be displayed, weather permitting, on the school building or grounds on every school day and on every legal holiday or day proclaimed by the governor or the president of the United States for especial observance; provided, that on stormy days, it shall be displayed inside the building. A flag shall be displayed in each assembly hall or other room in each such schoolhouse where the opening exercises on each school day are held. Each teacher shall cause the pupils under his charge to salute the flag and recite in unison with him at said opening exercises at least once each week the "Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag". Failure for a period of five consecutive days by the principal or teacher in charge of a school equipped as aforesaid to display the flag as above required, or failure for a period of two consecutive weeks by a teacher to salute the flag and recite said pledge as aforesaid, or to cause the pupils under his charge so to do, shall be punished for every such period by a fine of not more than five dollars. Failure of the committee to equip a school as herein provided shall subject the members thereof to a like penalty.

Very truly yours,
William Eben Ramsdell,
Representative 29th Middlesex District

CALUMET TO HOLD SUPPER

An interesting observation on Winchester's movie situation is that none of the applicants who desire to run a theatre here care to go to the expense of erecting a brand new building. Thus far the applicants have confined themselves to altering over old property, with the addition of the simple, unadorned and certainly unornamental storage warehouse auditorium. As matters now stand, our Selectmen would not choose amiss if they decided to allow this matter to stand for a time—and see just what Winchester can get in the way of a movie theatre. By the way—what has become of that community theatre movement we heard advocated?

The success of the recent Street Fair, both socially and financially, should point the way to En Ka for the establishment of an annual event of much interest. Of course the fact that the Winchester Hospital was the recipient lent town-wide assistance to the affair, but when the town has been shown that it possesses such an ideal setting for this feature, a setting which can hardly be duplicated anywhere locally, it does seem that En Ka could well continue it each year. The Winton Club's now famous cabaret would be sadly missed as an annual event and its yearly success is an assured feature. With En Ka following in the spring with a Street Fair, the Hospital certainly should have an appreciable part of its load lifted.

Say what you like, one cannot get away from hard, cold facts, and what the President said in 1933 and what he has done, together with what conditions were and what they are, constitute something in such a solid and stable foundation—if such a thing is possible today. There is no question but that the President's assertion early in his reign that if his experiments were not successful he would be the first to say so, was a popular stand. Of course this is one of the many points wherein the public has been disappointed—although even at this late date some of his early popularity could be regained if he would admit even a few of the obvious failures the government is continuing to force upon us. The NRA, we read, is done. In the next paragraph we read of this or that firm being prosecuted for failure to observe its laws. Taken from the average businessman's viewpoint, it is done—but it still struggles, and causes no end of contusion. And yet, even though everyone concedes its failure, the President admits nothing and even wishes, so it is reported, to continue it for an apparently indefinite period. It would seem to be good politics for him to come forth and admit a few of the obvious failures of his experiment, as he so blithly promised. But this, according to what we see of New Deal policies, is just about the last thing which will be done. How long this attitude can be maintained, even in the face of the volume of propaganda issued hourly from the Capitol, and even bolstered up by rocking-chair chats, is interesting. Even the most obtuse must begin to recognize that something is missing from the painted picture so loudly acclaimed a few years ago.

THANK YOU! FROM EN KA

To the Editor of the Star:

May En Ka through your paper extend its sincere thanks to all who in any way aided in making the "Street Fair" last Saturday so successful. The society deeply appreciates the efforts of the many volunteer workers who were so helpful, and it is also most grateful for the generous patronage of the townspeople throughout the day and evening.

Frances C. Kenyon
President

SELECTMEN'S NOTES

The Board wishes to call the attention of the public once again to the hearing to be held on next Wednesday evening, May 22, in the Town Hall on the question relating to the location of a motion picture theatre in Winchester; to give the general public an opportunity to express its views, and to see plans presented by the various applicants.

The Board has authorized the purchase of a new Ahrens-Fox two-stage centrifugal pump having a capacity of 500 gallons per minute. It is believed the new piece will be shipped in about 60 working days.

Joseph Silverman, 14 Border street, East Boston, has been granted a license to deal in second-hand clothing.

A Fuel oil delivery permit has been given to Arthur H. Ballard, Inc., 535 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, for another year, ending May 14, 1936.

The report on the oil burner survey which has been carried on as a white collar project for the last several weeks shows 3909 houses visited and 1186 oil burners found. This project was primarily for the benefit of the fire department to facilitate the fighting of fires in being able to locate immediately the oil tanks and the location of the burners, which information has been set down on cards that are on file at the fire station.

STEVENSON COREY
Supply Officer with Byrd in Antarctic

STAY IN LITTLE AMERICA CROWDED WITH THRILLS AND HARD WORK

Winchester's "Steve" Corey, otherwise Stevenson Corey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Corey of 5 Governor's avenue, arrived home last Saturday afternoon after an absence of nearly two years in the Antarctic with the Byrd Expedition to Little America. He landed at the East Boston airport at 2:30 o'clock, flying the last leg of his trip from Washington in a Condor plane similar to the one the expedition had used in the frozen South. Members of his family and intimate friends greeted him at the airport, among them being Richard McNeil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McNeil of Governor's avenue and a youthful pal of "Steve," to whom the latter had promised to bring home a real "sure-enough" sled dog.

Richard was greatly disappointed when he found that "Steve" had not brought the dog with him in the plane, but was told that the promise held and that his dog, named Roger and a Canadian sled-dog, would arrive in Boston on one of the expedition's ships.

In addition to Roger, "Steve" is bringing home one of his own dog team, "Cindy," bred at the famous Chinook Kennels at Wonalancet and a cross between an Alaskan Malemut and a wolf dog. Neither of the animals is a husky, there having been but one such dog on the expedition.

"Steve" flew to Boston after a busy day in Washington, D. C. The young supply officer of the expedition was naturally among those who attended the President's reception to the Byrd Party, at which Governor Peery of Virginia and Secretary Swanson of the Navy were present. After also attending the National Geographic Society's reception and dinner in the evening, the Winchester boy got in touch with his fellow townsman, Harold Ambrose, now chief of publicity for the Postmaster General James Farley and other important personages. At 10:30 o'clock the young adventurer took off for Newark on his way home.

While as supply officer of the expedition "Steve" naturally had business to attend to in connection with the arrival of the expedition in Boston yesterday, his primary reason for coming on in advance of the party was his desire to "get home." There could be no doubting that by any one who saw him lounging on the divan at the Corey residence as the Star reporter found him Tuesday evening.

Though he didn't say so, and undoubtedly wouldn't exchange his experiences in the Antarctic for considerable, we hardly think that Winchester young man will care to take another similar trip in any great hurry. And surely he has had packed in the past few years adventures sufficiently thrilling and varied to last any one indefinitely.

He admitted to being in fine condition and certainly looked the part—clean and virtually hard as nails—about four pounds under the weight he carried when the expedition left Boston for the South. That was on Oct. 11, 1933 and the expedition arrived at the Bay of Wales, off Little America, Jan. 17, 1934. Incidentally "Steve" was the third man ashore, preceded only by the man who leaped with the line and Admiral Byrd.

As a matter of fact this Winchester boy stands well up in the expedition's personnel, being the second oldest man in point of service in the party and the first new man to be chosen for the expedition just completed. He provisionally joined the expedition May 5, 1932, was definitely picked March 27, 1933 and helped sail the famous old Bear of Oakland from the Pacific to the Atlantic seacoast preparatory to the expedition's start.

When asked by the reporter for his first impression of Little America, "Steve" stated that he really couldn't say. Every one was too busy at the time of arrival to think much about it.

He personally was one of the advance expedition who drove two dog teams three and one-half miles over the snow to Little America, establishing camp for the main party who followed. "That was one tough haul," he said, for the snow was soft, the dogs were soft and "we were soft!"

Everything left in Little America by the previous Byrd party was buried in snow, it being necessary to go down 20 feet to reach the entrance to one cabin, and 15 feet, to another. The roof of one of the buildings had caved in, and this had to be repaired. It was in this particular building, the former administration house, that "Steve" lived.

There was snow as far as the eye could see, the nearest land being a low range of mountains, called the Rockefellers, about 125 miles to the east. There was plenty of hard work for every one and despite the fact that the expedition was theoretically under the NRA, work stretches of 40 hours were not infrequent.

The expedition members endured severe hardships, working out of doors in temperatures from 50 below, on down to the maximum of 72 degrees below zero. Each day the men started out in frozen shoes, losing the skin on their feet. Daily "Steve" froze the lobes of his ears and his big toes, often froze his hands and his face and once when working at 60 to 65 degrees below, began to spit the telltale blood that warned him that his lungs were freezing.

It was found that the men could not exert themselves at temperatures lower than 55 degrees below without great danger of freezing, the danger increasing as the glass fell below that point. At 50 to 55 degrees below zero it was found impossible to use the dogs for hauling sleds because at these temperatures the exertion of pulling caused the animals to freeze their lungs.

From "Steve's" point of view his long trek to the Edsel Ford Range of Mountains was the highlight of the expedition. These mountains were discovered by Byrd on his previous expedition, picked up dimly with a camera from his airplane. The exploring party, of which the Winchester boy was one, went 450 miles from Little America to the mountains, finding them to include many peaks not at all visible in the pictures, taken by Byrd. "Steve's" party constituted the first and only humans to set foot on the mountains which have now been charted completely by plane.

Twelve different types of mosses, as yet unclassified, were discovered at the mountains with an abundance of microscopic animals frozen in the ice. These animals were found to be alive when the ice was melted back at the main camp. A rookery of Skua gulls was found in one of the mountains and a snowy petrel rookery in another. An interesting find was 25 square feet of mica discovered in the middle of an ice field. Samples of microscopic life were also found in this. In the mountain rocks were found galena, from which lead is made, molybdemite, used in the manufacture of automobile steels and also evidences of copper. "Steve" and a comrade also discovered an extinct volcano at the southeastern end of Raymond Fosdick Mountains.

It was on Mt. Grace McKinley, the first mountain reached and 2700 feet high, that "Steve" had a thrilling experience. He and Olin Stancliffe of Erie, Pa., were going down a steep slope of blue ice, covered with a snow crust, at the extremity of a plateau when the Winchester boy's foot broke through the crust. The ice also let go and he slid 700 feet down the slope managing to stop himself by grabbing a large stone, which he and Stancliffe had previously pushed down into the ice valley, little knowing how valuable it was to be.

"Steve" caught it just in time to prevent falling into a deep crevasse, he being partially in the crevasse when he came to a stop. He broke two bones in his wrist and this with the loss of a tooth which he broke and had to have extracted were the only physical mishaps he experienced if one is willing to overlook constant freezing and frostbite and the bleaching of his hair.

The trip to the Edsel Ford range was made by dog team and the party returned with 24 of the 27 animals that went out. "Steve's" team lost two dogs, his lead dog, a veteran of the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police, dying in the harness. It was necessary to kill the other when he was unable to hold the pace that had to be made to cover 116 miles in five days.

The Winchester boy had another very narrow escape when he was returning with his dog team from the volcano through the valley of crevasses. These crevasses came down from the mountains in glaciers, averaged 30 feet in width and couldn't be crossed at right angles.

"Steve" was driving a team of 11 dogs and was following Paul Siple of Erie, Pa., Boy Scout representative with the first expedition, who was picking out a safe path through the valley.

Instead of following his trail at one point the dogs started across a crevasse covered with a concave crust of frozen snow. When the team was trying to scramble up the far slope the crust gave way and "Steve" was thrown from the sled directly into the deep crevasse. As he fell, he managed to grasp a sled lashing and at the same time ordered the dogs to pull. They did and succeeded in hauling the sled and their master out of the bottomless pit.

Another thrilling but exceedingly unpleasant experience was spending the night in the open at 55 degrees below. This took place on a test trip in the middle of the winter, only the second such trip ever to be made at this season of the year.

It was too cold to use the dogs so the men themselves hauled 800 pounds on the sleds going out five miles from the main camp (incidentally it took 12 hours to make those five miles in the soft snow) to establish a sub-camp.

From this point the men trekked seven miles to find open water. On their return trip they faced a 25 mile gale which at 55 degrees below was "bad medicine." All members of the party froze their cheek-bones, noses and fingers, and one member, a big 220 pounder was badly frozen about the face and hands.

Getting back to the sub-camp, it was decided to spend the night there, and even "Steve" admits this was a tough experience. All were so tired they simply had to sleep, but even in the Caribou sleeping bags, in which the men sleep naked, they were cold, and in the morning the frozen man was found to be in bad shape.

While the other member of the party treated him, "Steve" and Siple skied six miles to the top of the barrier to put up a snow gauge. Upon their return, the men dug out a sledge, wrapped the frozen man in furs and the three hale members of the party hauled him to camp in 2½ hours. Though the sufferer lost 18 pounds during the experience he is now none the worse and shows no scars, despite his severe freezing.

One has the feeling after talking with "Steve" that there are many interesting sidelights of the expedition that only time will bring to light. He is planning now to lecture on his experiences and has the official sanction of Admiral Byrd to do so.

His work with the expedition is not yet over. As a matter of fact as supply officer he will be one of the last to be discharged. When everything is over however, and he has enjoyed a well earned vacation, "Steve" has but one ambition; to settle down and go to work! As if tackling hurricanes, treking miles in sub-zero temperatures, freezing one's person and on many occasions risking one's life has been play!

MOTION PICTURE HEARING NEXT WEDNESDAY

Residents of the town, interested in the location of a motion picture theatre in Winchester are reminded of the hearing which the Board of Selectmen is holding next Wednesday evening in the Town Hall in connection with the granting of a license to show motion pictures here.

It should be remembered that this hearing will not discuss the merits of motion pictures in Winchester, that matter having been settled by the recently held referendum. Opportunity will be provided at the hearing for applicants seeking licenses to present their plans for the town and for any town-people interested in the location of a theatre to state their views.

Up to last night the Board had received three applications for motion picture licenses, one from Albert J. Locatelli of Belmont, who proposes to erect a theatre on Main street at the site of the present Petrie Block opposite Converse place; another from Ernest Dudley Chase who proposed to show pictures at his residence, 3 Lakeview terrace; and the third from Arthur T. Nelson of Boston, owner of Waterfield Building, who proposes to erect a theatre at the site of that property.

The Board has already denied Mr. Chase's application on the ground that it is contrary to the provisions of the town's Zoning By-Laws.

This leaves Mr. Locatelli and Mr. Nelson in the field, though the Board considers it not unlikely that another application will be received from parties proposing to erect a theatre on North Main street.

A letter has been received by the Board from Max Levenson of Boston who states that he is interested in the erection of a theatre for the Wedgemere Theatre Corporation, to be organized, the building to be placed on one of three locations under consideration on North Main street. There had been received, however, up to last night no formal application for a license from Mr. Levenson.

The Fire Department was called at 10:49 last Saturday night to put out a slight fire at the home of George P. Govostes at 18 Swanton street. The fire started in an easy hair and aside from this, a burned rug and a hole in the floor, did little damage.

Monday afternoon at 1:30 there was a dump fire on Main street at Madison avenue west and at 4:35, the same afternoon, a woods' fire on Hutchinson road.

Yesterday afternoon at 5:25, the Department was called to put out a brush fire at the rear of the residence of Thomas Quigley on Wedge Pond.

WILL PARTICIPATE IN ERSKINE SCHOOL ACTIVITIES

Miss Dawn Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Kelley of Mystic Valley Parkway, will take one of the leading roles, that of Florindo, in "A Servant of Two Masters," which will be presented next Wednesday evening at the Repertory Theatre, Boston, by the students of the Erskine School.

Two other Winchester girls will assist with the play—Miss Edith Roche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Roche of Dartmouth street and Miss Caroline D. Kellogg, daughter of Mrs. C. J. Kellogg of Calumet road. They are both serving on the costume crew.

This is the second project of the kind to be produced this year in connection with the new program of music and allied arts established at Erskine this year. The presentation will be made before an invitation audience of music and dramatic critics, parents of students, and friends of the school. In thus limiting the attendance to this invitation audience, Erskine is taking the first step toward building a constructively critical, permanent body of sponsors for future dramatic ventures.

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 19.

The Golden Text is: "In the way of righteousness is life; and in the pathway thereof there is no death" (Proverbs 12:28).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. . . . Verily, verily, I say unto you, If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death" (John 8:31, 32, 51).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus said (John viii. 51), 'If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death.' That statement is not confined to spiritual life, but includes all the phenomena of existence. Jesus demonstrated this, healing the dying and raising the dead. Mortal mind must part with error, must put off itself with its deeds, and immortal manhood, the Christ ideal, will appear" (p. 129).

Statutory law is a law which depends upon a statute for its authority. In distinction from this, common law is the unwritten law which receives its binding force from immemorial usage and universal acceptance.

High School "Highlights" Column

S. O. S.

Do you know what a remarkable job the Red Cross association does every year? We were able to learn about this subject at the assembly Wednesday morning with Dave Grosvenor presiding. He first introduced Collette Gaffney who spoke briefly on the success of our association in collecting over 1000 magazines for hospitals, with the co-operation of the students, especially the freshmen in rooms 35 and 23.

Dave then introduced Capt. "Jack" Wallace, Director of the Life Saving Department of the Metropolitan Chapter of Red Cross.

Since Mr. Wallace has done Red Cross and Life Saving work for 30 years, he was able to speak interestingly and intelligently on these subjects.

Every year there are fires, revolts, eathquakes, floods, accidents, etc. At these times the Red Cross holds sway. There are 3700 Red Cross chapters which do this marvelous work throughout the country, and 50,000 people learn first aid every year. In Boston there are 800 to 900 men trained in this work and all these head small individual groups which they teach.

The greater part of Mr. Wallace's talk was on that very interesting subject of Life Saving. He strongly urged everyone to learn to swim and to learn Life Saving unless he had already done so. He told several stories of rescues quite apropos to the latter remark.

His talk closed with an interesting demonstration of artificial respiration by which he explained the manner and position used in reviving an unconscious person.

More interesting entertainment like this will make the assembly programs greatly increased in popularity.

For Aspiring Athletes

In sports the High School has been rather active in the past few years; basketball, football, field hockey, baseball, tennis and recently ice hockey are included in the sports curriculum. Here, indeed, we might say is a fair chance for every student to enter into competitive sport. But on observation of sports achievements, we find they are limited to a small and selected group. The reason for this is that all these activities require excellent athletes possessing strength and speed.

There are many who would like to be active in a sport but have neither of the two requirements for those that this school offers. There is, however, a field open to them—golf; it is merely a matter of perfect form and timing which is available to anyone through practice. Already Swampscott and Weymouth have school golf teams. Why not Winchester?

We who have never had the experience of a war in which we were active taken pleasure in reading stories inspired by the past conflicts. The sentimental ones are the most appealing; the soldier who dies on the field gasping in his death rattle, "Tell her I died fighting" has been a source of admiration to readers. They choke at the last words to the soldier's mother and doubtlessly they think of their own mothers who would cherish the thought of death for freedom of humanity.

Just as the soldier's thoughts turn to his mother in death so do those of men who never handled a gun. Is it animal instinct? Perhaps. But we prefer to believe that it is the purest most unblemished love known. It is the thing that makes men hush up the truth to spare a shattering of fondest hopes; it makes the strong like little children. But does one have to be at one's death door to express appreciation of motherly love?

Decidedly no! Every day there is a chance for some little act of thoughtfulness. Each one in itself is worth 10 dying words. "Ignorance plays the chief part among men, and the multitude of words; but opportunity will prevail."

Genius

In the British film, "The Unfinished Symphony," one gets a glimpse of real genius. Franz Shubert has fulfilled the prophecy of the princess when she said that he had immortality. His music still lives. "The Unfinished Symphony," the "Serenade" and the "Ave Maria" are only a few of the pieces which are played everywhere. Our own chorus sings his "Who Is Sylvia." Genius like his is forever immortal; it will never die.

How many of the students of the Winchester High School are geniuses? We may have writers, poets, musicians, artists and scientists in our midst. Can it be that we have a Franz Shubert, a Charles Dickens, or an Einstein among us whom we do not recognize?

One of the characteristics of a genius, judging from the picture, is compete absorption in his subject, regardless of time or circumstances. At last we may have found a solution to this absent-mindedness so prevalent in school. Alas, the poor souls may have verses, themes, or theories surging through their heads which they are longing to express. When a student is sharply awakened from a day dream, his whole idea may be shattered, and who knows what the world has missed? Someday we may have the privilege of saying to a fellow man, when we hear a future Rachmaninoff or Edwin Markham, "I knew him in high school. Isn't he marvelous?"

M. A. S.

C. Ray Hansen Speaks

Last Friday the High School was fortunate in having Mr. C. Ray Hansen, prominent lawyer, criminal investigator, and lecturer, as guest speaker at a special assembly. His topic was "Ganging Up on Gangland."

Of special interest was the fact that he had been "taken for a ride" by Chicago gangsters when trying to prevent illegal voting in a Chicago election. As he described this horrible occurrence, so vivid was his vocabulary, and so ringing his voice, each student sat on the edge of his chair, reliving with Mr. Hansen the outrageous affair.

It was through this kidnapping that Mr. Hansen took up the battle with Gangland. After his injuries were healed he went into the heart of the Chicago underworld, posing as a "confidence" man from Detroit. For six weeks and three days he mingled with powerful gang leaders, gleaning evidence, which convicted many notorious men when it was later revealed at trials.

Mr. Hansen is personally acquainted with "Al" Capone, with members of the Dillinger gang, and with members of the Dillinger family.

Another point which he emphasized strongly was that gangsters are not great heroes as newspapers paint them. In fact they are quite the opposite, and, since the Government is labeling prominent gangsters as Public Enemy, No. 1 or 2 to be taken dead or alive, the common desire of every member of the underworld is to be far from the top of the heap.

During the day Mr. Hansen visited classes in American History and Problems of Democracy, answering any questions the students might ask regarding the modern trend in disposing of crime or questions of similar significance.

Mr. C. Ray Hansen's was an educational talk, powerfully given and warmly received.

Amateur Afternoon

How many have listened to amateur nights over the radio? Those who intend to take part in the forth-coming High School Dramatic Society amateur afternoon need have no fear of the dreaded gong interrupting their part in this program given for the entertainment of members of the High School faculty and society. Under the capable management of Miss Bailey and Robert Thornton, president of the society, this event will take place on Thursday, May 23, in the assembly hall.

Norris Chevalier will give one of her laugh-provoking monologues, Arnold Morse will sing and several other members of the society including Russell Ellis, Janet Barns, John Downs and Jacqueline West are making plans for the afternoon.

This is the last real get-together of the society, and is expected to be great fun.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

This week things are gliding right into high speed. Tennis struck its stride over the week-end. Volley ball got underway with a bang Tuesday night and will be on schedule every pleasant Tuesday evening for the entire season. The first dance is Saturday night, the 18th, and a good crowd is anticipated for this opening party. Sunday morning, brings the first regular crew practice. In the afternoon from 2:30 to 5 p. m. there will be a concert for members and friends. This will constitute open house day. New and prospective members are cordially welcome. In case of rain the concert will be held in the club house otherwise it will be on our newly grassed lawn right in the open.

A novelty regatta is also planned to take place while the concert is in progress. Surely here is action and also entertainment packed right into a single afternoon. Come, and look us over. Open to the public.

On Tuesday, May 21, the Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association holds its final meeting of the year.

A cafeteria supper is to be served at 6:30 in the High School cafeteria if enough reservations are received by Friday morning. It is made possible through the courtesy of Miss Nevin, head of the Domestic Science Department in the High School. This will be an excellent opportunity to see the working of the caeteria where our children lunch so frequently.

If unable to come to the supper parents are urged to attend the regular meeting which follows immediately after at 7:30 in the High School Auditorium. There will be an exhibition of manual arts and gymnastics after the meeting.

LINCOLN SCHOOL NOTES

Miss Salice's special class gave a very interesting Mother's Day program Friday morning, May 10.

The program was as follows:

Salute the Flag
Song—America, the Beautiful
Poem—When Mother's There
Americo Solazzi
A Play—The Home Maker and Her Aids
Act 1—Friday before Mother's Day
Act 2—Mother's Day
Act—This Song — Mother

Miss Ternant, our musical director, with the Junior High School Orchestra, visited the Lincoln School on Tuesday to give a demonstration of orchestral instruments. After a brief explanation of each instrument, the orchestra played three selections, which were very enjoyable.

Miss Frederica MacVicar of Chesterford road was one of a group of seniors at the Chamberlain School in Boston who spent the past week-end at Biddeford, Me.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Over 80 men again attended the second session of the troop program course held at the Cousens Gymnasium last night. It was very encouraging to the leaders of the course to find that better than 90 per cent of the men at the first session were present again at last night's meeting.

One of the highlights of the evening was a special tug-o-war promoted under the leadership of Harry O'Brien, who is the official outfitter of Boy Scouts in the Fellsland Council. Scout leaders taking the course had three of their huskiest Scouts present to participate in the tug-o-war. Troop 5 of Medford, under the guiding hand of Scoutmaster Gay, had three of his huskies who eventually were the winners, after a very long and strenuous pull. In place of a rope for the tug-o-war, Mr. O'Brien furnished a regular stock pair of Scout pants. It was expected by everyone present that with six young men tugging away at this pair of trousers that the pants would certainly come apart. All present were somewhat disappointed on this score, as the pants were still intact after a full five minutes of pulling and tugging.

The patrols as organized from the various districts of the Council include the Flying Eagle Patrol of Winchester, with J. Andrew Millican as patrol leader.

The patrol contest up to date shows that the Bear Patrol is leading with a total of 70 points to date. The special handicraft projects for last night's session included soap carving and pipe cleaner animals. The assortment of soap carvings and animals would remind an outsider of a toy factory, but included some very original ideas in both lines. Mr. DeMelle Garey's exhibit was adjudged the best collection for the evening.

The dramatizations put on by the various patrols were inclined to lack the pep generally associated with this type of training, but after the game period, which was a riot of fun the dramatization showed a marked improvement.

The Investiture ceremony performed by the jumbo patrol under the leadership of Clarence Thompson, was very impressive and should be carried over into the majority of troops in the council.

Next week's session will be the last session of this particular course, and it is planned that all those men who have attended the three sessions will be presented their certificates at the closing of the meeting.

Mr. Nelson announced that a training course in troop camping will be held some time in June with definite announcements to be made at next week's meeting by Prof. Crosby F. Baker of the training committee.

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION NINE TO START

The Immaculate Conception baseball team will get underway Friday evening on the Loring avenue playground at 6:15, with a suitable opponent. The lineup includes former high school, prep school and college players and the team will play two games weekly on Wednesday and Friday evenings with real fast semi-pro teams of Greater Boston.

LEGION AUXILIARY POPPY DAY

The Auxiliary to Post 97, American Legion, will distribute little red poppies in the streets of Winchester on next Friday and Saturday, May 24 and 25 in the annual observance of Poppy Day, simultaneously observed throughout the nation.

All loyal Americans are asked to wear one of the poppies as a tribute to the memory of the war dead and to make a contribution to the disabled veterans, widows and fatherless children of veterans.

The poppies to be distributed here have been ordered from the Disabled Veterans' Exchange in Boston where they were made by disabled world war veterans. The poppy making has provided employment for needy veterans through the winter and spring months, and the response on Poppy Day will determine how soon and how extensively this work can start again.

SAFE PARKING IN BOSTON

Bowdoin Square Garage Provides Special All-Day Rate 6 A.M.-6 P.M. Of Fifty Cents

Visitors to Boston may now have safe, garage parking for their cars at a reasonable rate. The Bowdoin Square Garage is now offering a special rate of fifty cents for all-day (6 A.M. to 6 P.M.) parking. It is the largest garage in downtown Boston.

Situated in the heart of downtown Boston, at Bowdoin Square, particularly easy of access from the north side of the city, the Bowdoin Square Garage has well-lighted, well ventilated capacity for 850 cars, and an automobile laundry which can turn out 200 cars a day, thoroughly cleaned inside and out.

Even the often neglected running gear is cleaned by this process.

Gasoline, oils, water and air are on every floor; crankcase, battery, tire and greasing service are also provided. There is a parcel checking room and parcels may be sent direct from the shops to the garage. A ladies waiting room is on the first floor.

The Bowdoin Square Garage is the official garage for patrons in the Parker House and Bellevue Hotel.

A steadily increasing number of visitors to Boston are taking advantage of the Bowdoin Square Garage facilities, having found that the protection afforded by the new all-day (6 A.M.-6 P.M.) rate is well worth while. It not only eliminates the risk of expensive tagging which accompanies street parking, but the garage parker knows when he comes to get his car it will be in A1 condition with fenders, bumpers and all accessories intact.

In addition, by parking his car in the garage, he is not only conforming to the proven best practice but performing what is rapidly becoming accepted in Boston as a civic duty in helping to speed up Boston traffic by keeping the streets free from "curb parking."

APPEAL FOR FUNDS

Before the discovery of insulin, there were no diabetic children. Today they have a good chance of reaching maturity.

The Massachusetts Committee on Social Service of the General Alliance of Unitarian Women of which Mrs. Arthur G. Robbins is the local chairman is appealing for money to send diabetic boys, who have had no opportunity until now, to the Prendergast Preventorium where they receive not only care but also instruction as to proper food, etc. and administration of insulin.

Winchester will be especially interested in this project as Miss Bernice W. Billings is in charge of the Preventorium.

Miss Gretchen Cleaves of Lawrence street spent last week-end in Vermont.

THANKS FIREMEN

I wish to express my appreciation to the Winchester Fire Department and my many other friends for their prompt and effective service at my recent fire.

her committee included Mrs. Alvin Mancib, Mrs. William N. Beggs, Mrs. Frank M. Rounds, Mrs. Paul B. Moulton and Mrs. Edward F. Boyd, who though not En Ka members are among the many persons who have worked so hard this past month for the Fair's success. Also serving were Miss Ruth Hollins and Miss Florence Waters. Mr. Edwin P. Hall of Malden constructed the booth and made the very artistic mahogany sign.

The "Gift Box," No. 5, was indeed "Gifty." A large red shiny box tied with a large white oilcloth bow on top. Their wares were beautiful and very popular. The Cherokee pottery displayed on a black pyramid, sold rapidly, as did the hand made articles. The committee tried to find useful and different gifts. Their co-chairman were Miss Barbara Pratt and Mrs. Paul Goddu, who may be justly proud of the results. The En Ka members serving were Mrs. Willard Hudson, Miss Lucy Wilcox, Miss Dorothy Nash Mrs. Marshall Symmes and Mrs. F. Milne Blanchard. Assisting them all day were Mrs. Clifford Williams, Mrs. George French, Mrs. Lloyd Goddu, of Southbridge, Mrs. Doris McLeod, Mrs. Harry Locke, Mrs. Warren Johnson and Miss Katherine Weld.

Miss Lillian Clarke of Somerville was surrounded every minute by an interested group watching her cut silhouettes. Many of those who had theirs cut had a "Mother's Day" gift in mind.

Back from the "Street" was the pergola on the library grounds. Here an exhibit of work by the members of the Art Association was held. Many beautiful paintings and etchings were hung. A black velvet covered stand was at one end where choice models in clay by Rowena W. Hallowell and Professor and Mrs. Frederic H. Norton were shown. Also some clever soap models done by Miss Edith Cummings, who demonstrated her work for a short time. Two stain window designs of hers were shown. The water colors of the Aberjona bridges and the old Bacon house done by the late Bowen Tufts were greatly admired. Etchings by Mr. W. H. W. Bicknell, and pastels by Mr. George Brown attracted attention. Mrs. Winsome Brown contributed interesting advertising cuts. The work by Mr. Stuart Bruce and Mr. Wesley Dennis was outstanding. Mrs. H. W. Phillips, Mr. George Budd, Mrs. Vernon Hall and Miss Florence Watters hung interesting work. One painting greatly admired was the head of "Bit o' Glory." Miss Gladys Marchants' prize winning mare, done by Wesley Dennis. An opporunity was given for someone to own the lovely colonial doorway by Mr. Stuart Bruce and Mr. Jesse Wilson of Lakeview road was the fortunate person.

All afternoon Mr. Wesley Dennis drew pencil portrait sketches. He did a great many and was happy to contribute to the Nurses' Home Fund in this way. A count kept by Mr. Robert Hayden, who assisted Mrs. Robert Burr, and Mrs. Vernon Hall in arranging the exhibit of persons stepping into the pergola, was over 2000. Others on the committee were Miss Edna Hatch and Mr. Stuart Bruce, director of the Cambridge School of Art and the Art Class.

Several shops were devoted to supplying food for the hungry ones—The Alice in Wonderland Candy Shop had a variety of candies to suit all tastes. The shop with its story book figures against the black and green background attracted the eye immediately. Mrs. Percy Bugbee, chairman of this group, turned the responsibility over to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Campbell Ross, as she left for a short stay in Atlanta, Ga., the day before the Fair. Others helping Mrs. Ross were Mrs. Francis Booth, Mrs. Carl Eaton, Mrs. Jameson Slocum, Mrs. F. B. Withington and Mrs. Albert E. Gelsthorpe. Assisting all day in the booth were Mrs. Harold O. Dodds, and Mrs. Elbridge Wyman, Miss Katherine Parrott drew the figures which were so attractively colored and Mr. Edward Grosvenor of Lloyd street constructed the booth.

All the booths were interesting, but without doubt the most noved was the "Knit Shop" with its thatched roof, ivy covered trellis, pink curtains and window boxes filled with "flowers." These flowers were knitting needle stems with colorful balls of yarn for flowers. The shop was designed and built by Mr. Irving Goold of Cambridge with the help of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rutter of Wildwood street and Mr. Robert MacArthur. The offer of a knit dress to the holder of the lucky number was given by the shop and Miss Caroline Joy of Church street held it. A sweater was won by Mrs. Harold Bostwick. A substantial contribution was made to the En Ka Nurses' Home Fund by the owners, En Ka members, Mrs. Robert MacArthur, Mrs. Barbara Watters, Miss Flora Locke and Miss Jean Livingston, who helped all day.

The ice cream Simico truck was in charge of Miss Martha Ginn and Miss Margaret Comins of Concord. They did not have to encourage customers, as the ice cream was good and there were many varieties. A toy aeroplane gift soon brought repeat sales.

Located in front of the stairway into the Town Hall was a Sandwich Bar, most capably run by Mrs. Alvin Litchfield, Mrs. Carl H. Bolter, Mrs. Charles E. Crane, Mrs. Charles Hart, Miss Pearl Prime. Mrs. Donald Boothby and assisting were Master Carl H. Bolter, Jr. and Phillip Twombly. They had clever menus that told good sandwiches, cold drinks and hot coffee could be had.

Close by, in the small play house borrowed from Dr. Richard Sheehy, the doughnut machine, held the attention of a never thinning crowd who watched it run all afternoon. Mr. Lester Gibson and Mr. E. E. Gardiner of Brookline sold 100 dozen doughnuts before 4 o'clock when it was necessary to discontinue the electricity supply. This booth was in connection with the "Danske-Bagevarer" located in a brick shop with blue and gold trimmings. Dainty curtains hung in the windows and shiny copper utensils decorated the gay yellow interior. An outstanding artistic note of the Fair was the Danske-Bagevarer sign done by Mr. Leonard McNeill who with Mr. Preston Corey constructed the booth. Serving with Mrs. T. Price Wilson on this committee were Mrs. Clark Collins, Mrs. Robert S. Clark, Mrs. Lowell R. Smith, Mrs. Whitelaw Wright and Mrs. Earl Spencer. The pies, bread and cakes, were unusually good and this shop, too, was sold out by 10 o'clock.

In the show case of this shop was a large birthday cake. It became known that Saturday was Mr. Frank Crawford's birthday. During the evening he was surprised when Mrs. Elisha George Pierce, general chairman, presented him with this cake marked "To F. E. C.—greetings from En Ka."

In the doorway portico of the Town Hall, Mrs. Arthur Driscoll and Mrs. Loring Gleason set up a "Flower and Garden Shop." Their novelties and practical garden tools were in great demand. Small plants for early planting and seeds of all kinds were marketed by Mrs. C. Frederic Eberle and Mrs. Albert E. Gelsthorpe. The garden boxes, glass containers, oil cloth bags and cushions were colorful as the flowers. During the evening the cold garden tools and their large supply was exhausted early. Mrs. Clifford Mason was on this committee and kept shop through the day.

Circling the street again the Island Tea must be described. The Mill Pond, the quaint rustic bridge and the fresh spring day made "tea hour" even more inviting than hoped for. Colored lights hung with Japanese lanterns, at arches at each end of the bridge of birch boughs and flowering shrubs and flowers made a setting for a Japanese Tea Garden. The committee was Mrs. William H. Smith, chairman; Mrs. Leon P. Hughes, Mrs. Frederic Abbott and Mrs. Gordon Smith. They had to help them serve, six high school girls dressed prettily in Japanese dress: Miss Geraldine Moulton, Miss Eugenia Peppard, Miss Ruth Trott, Miss Ruth Luttus, Miss Helen Ghirardini and Miss Marjorie Smith. They worked long and hard serving 200 persons. Adding greatly to the "tea hour" was the presence of three Japanese sisters from Charlestown. They were Tomiye Hamano, Namiko Hamano and Mariko Hamano.

The tea setting was Japanese, but the grabs were Chinese—a "Chinese Laundry" in a most artistic booth which was the work of Mr. John Burchard, 2nd. Early in the afternoon all "shirtees" had been claimed, but a new order was available and business continued. Costumed in Chinese dress with head-dresses were Miss Eleanor Dow, manager; Mrs. Robert Reynolds, Mrs. Bouldin Burbank and Mrs. Forrest Pitman. Little Nancy Reynolds and Master Charles P. Howe were dressed in Chinese clothes too.

As popular as the grabs were with the children, so were the balloons, at a colorful booth around the big tree. All kinds and colors were for sale by Mrs. Franklin Flanders, Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth, assisted in selling by Miss Deutzia Cole, Mrs. E. Carleton Nickerson of Cambridge, Miss Ruth Aseltine, Miss Elizabeth Chadwick, Miss Gretchen Stone, Miss Dorothy Drewson and Miss Katherine Davenport. By early evening when the young shoppers had gone home to dream of the good times they had at the Fair, several hundred balloons went with them.

A summery corner was reserved for selling the permanent wave prize. Under a beach umbrella was arranged garden furniture and the committee did a rushing business. Mrs. Lowell R. Smith was in charge and was assisted by Mrs. Lowell Bond and Miss Barbara Jean Bond. Miss Stasia Ahern of Cross street, Woburn, held the number drawn at 9 o'clock by Miss Marjorie Pease of the Hospital.

"Tony and Piedro," the wandering musicians, were followed by a crowd as they played popular airs on their violin and accordian. Mr. Mel von Rosenenge and Leo Willworth of Boston are to be congratulated for entering into the spirit of the Fair as they did.

Another single attraction was Madam Zara, palmist, whose time was occupied from noon until midnight. Mrs. S. A. E. Taylor, the Madame's gypsy friend, had a continued waiting line before the tent. Mrs. Marie Chaffee, an En Ka member from Watertown, read the fortunes and from the many satisfied listeners she must have seen happiness ahead for each. She did tell each their birth month which amazed them.

So varied and so interesting was each feature of the Street Fair that many attending were impressed with the order and smoothness with which the program unfolded, showing the work and organization behind it. The plans of entertaining the children was in the hands of Mrs. Samuel D. Cole and Mrs. Franklin Lane, assisted by Miss Marguerite Barr, Miss Janet Grant, Mrs. Leon Sargent, Mrs. Kenneth Grant, Mrs. Norrel Nevins. Through the generous cooperation of Selectman F. H. Dockman of Stoneham, the midway was set up on the high drive behind the Legion house. A large covered booth where games were played was at the entrance which was roofed by a long tennis net swung between two trees with large letters "Midway." There was plenty to do. A merry-go-round for the little children, ring the canes, balls in the barrels, turtle races, "hit the Ape" and ring the bottles. Mr. Doeham supplied three ponies to ride and a goat and cart. Donald Cole stayed all day and loaned his pony and cart for the small riders. The crowd was so grent that the "barkers" who offered to help were kept busy until closing time. The following persons contributed greatly to the success of the midway: Franklin Lane, Nathan Thumim, Kenneth Grant, Samuel D. Cole, Derrell Nevins, Raymond Wilkins and Kenneth Pratt whose specialty "Ane" act pleased the children.

This committee offered a beautiful filet cloth made by Mrs. Franklin Lane. It was won by Mrs. Harold Brainard of Yale street.

Another large and popular featnre was the beano game. Many tables surrounded the prize stand at the right approaching from Mt. Vernon street. By 2 o'clock, the chairs were all occupied and the games were all being run off quickly. The prizes offered were unusually fine: lamps, food, china, bats, balls, tables, etc. A radio was given for a special game and won by Francis Fisher.

The games were managed by Mr. John Kenerson, Mr. Richard Fenno and Mr. Clinton Mason, and assisting them at the loud speaker, as cashiers and attendants were Selectman W. Allan Wilde, Laurence S. Martin, Lynn P. Marsh, Lindley Beardsley and Charles Clarke at the "mike." James Dwinell. Jr., Robert S. Clark, Arthur Driscoll, Robert MacArthur had charge of prizes and cash. Donald Gardner, John Wilson, Loring P. Gleason, Charles Woodward, Harold Hovey, Charles S. Eaton, Charles Hart. Vincent Farnsworth, Jr., Donald Boothby, Herbert Miller, Kenneth Moffatt, Herbert Wadsworth, Chesley Whitten, Morris Kerr, Stephen Nelley Dr. Frank M. Rounds, Harry McGrath, Jr., Robert Winton, Robert Bunkerhoff, David Kenerson and George Barton were attendants.

Other men who gave their day to help were the "Masters of the Hounds." Two hot dog stands did a great business, for their "dogs" were good and the sales talk convincing. The men were Mr. Coleman LeMont, Boston, Mr. Edward Moran, Newton; Mr. W. Reginald Higgin, Brookline; Mr. Ralph T. Smith, Mr. Carl Bolter, Mr. Clyde Fryc, Dorchester; and R. H. Gardner, West Medford.

At the Washington street entrance to the grounds all stopped and lingered long admiring the doll house with its large family of hand dressed dolls. This little white house, trimmed with its green blinds, white picket fence and green "lawn" was the most finished work on the "street." The committee is indebted to Mr. Frederick E. Hollins for the construction of the shop. Also to Mr. Clinton Mason and Mr. Richard Fenno for long hours of work.

The miniature doll house, given to a fortunate ticket holder, was made and donated by Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson of Salisbury street. Mr. John Twelmeier, Jr., was the lucky one. Donald Dolan of Winchester as winner.

The committee's chairman was Mrs. Clinton Mason with Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth, Mrs. Donald Gardner, Mrs. Charles Clarke, Mrs. Kenneth Moffatt and Mrs. John Wilson.

Mr. Harvey Carlson of the Carlson Lighting Company of Cambridge, made and donated the Snack Shop, very cleverly worked out with advertisements covering all sides. Here was sold all the popular brands of cigarettes and smokes; also decorative match boxes and smoking accessories. During the street dancing, this shop did a large business. All day cigarette girls could be located on the street, dressed in Spanish costume, selling their "wares." Mrs. Stephen Nelley and Mrs. James Dwinell, Jr., were assisted by Mrs. C. M. Mensch, Mrs. Charles Woolley, Miss Alice Rogers.

Mrs. Nelley and Mrs. Dwinell managed the street dancing, which was indeed popular and was enjoyed with "Mel Von's" orchestra. At 8:30 o'clock, Mr. Thomas McGowan, foreman of the Park Department at his men, who, under Mr. George E. Davidson had been so co-operative in laying out the "street" closed Washington street from the square to the Legion House and placed the platform for the orchestra. Dancing was continuous until 11:45 p. m. The music was amplified through the loud speaker which had been on the street all day. Another speaker was used at the beano games and all announcements were amplified.

The Information Booth was headquarters for the committee and Miss Peggy Marchant of Lincoln street was on duty there throughout the day. She handled the bicycle drawings which Miss Gladys Marchant had in charge. Dr. Wilfred McKenzie drew the winning number and "Snif" Ficociello of Oak street was the happy youngster who rode away on the bicycle. It is reported he rode until 2 a. m., when he went home and went to church Sunday morning again on his new possession.

Also at the Information Booth the En Ka "Street Fair News" was distributed and sold for donations to the Fund. This was a complete newspaper telling of the Fair, a bit of En Ka history and listed the patrons and patronesses. A "Street Directory" was clearly printed on the back page. The Executive Board of the Hospital sent a letter of appreciation for what En Ka is doing at the Home, and this was included. (There are copies of the "News' available, if anyone wishes them.)

At 6 o'clock the crowd on the Street increased as the bean supper time drew near. The figure given out was that 1030 suppers were served. The large committee headed by Mrs. Guy Howe deserve the praises of all for the comfortable manner and order in which all were served. The hall was set with tables for 380 at one serving. The decorations, designed and executed by Mrs. Maleolm Lees, were of a large country barn. The stage, where a farm gig, plough and scarecrows stood in the hay, was a realistic farm scene.

The committee is indehted to the Unitarian Society, the Episcopal Church and the Hospital for the use of their ovens to cook the beans. All Saturday, Mrs. Charles P. Dow was taxied by Mrs. Herbert Mills from one oven to the other so she might "watch her beans." Mr. Ralph Symmes loaned the farm properties and many thanks go to Guy Howe and Whitelaw Wright who were chief ham and pie cutters.

On Mrs. Howe's committee were: Mrs. John A. Tarbell, Mrs. Clarence Russell, Mrs. Harold F. Meyer, Mrs. Herbert Mills, Mrs. Augustine Pistorino and Mrs. Malcolm Lees. The farmer boys in overalls and the girls in light dresses and sun bonnets, who were waiters and waitresses were: Miss Shirley Smith of Cambridge, Miss Sylvia Hatch, Miss Madeline Little, Miss Eleanore Lampee, Miss Marjorie Little and Miss Deborah Gilbert. Also "Larry" Palmer, Winthrop Andrews, John Buttger, Norman Rosenzweige, Benjamin Wild, David Macomber and William Buttger.

That the En Ka Street Fair was the finest community entertainment Winchester has had in many years is the opinion of all who attended. And Mrs. Elisha George Pierce and her committee, Mrs. Lucius Smith, Mrs. Percy Bugbee, Miss Gladys Marchant, Miss Eleanore Dow, Mrs. William Parrott, Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth and Mrs. C. Frederic Eberle may feel justly proud of the results of months of preparation by the members of the En Ka Society.

STONEHAM SET BACK WINCHESTER

Winchester High dropped another Middlesex League game last Friday afternoon, losing to Stoneham High at the Pomworth street grounds in Stoneham, 6 to 2.

Once again the locals outhit the opposition, but Stoneham bunched its four hingles more effectively than Coach Mansfield's boys, who were unable to hit Gross, Stoneham southpaw, when hits meant runs.

Twice Winchester had the bases loaded and twice second and third were left stranded, but on none of these occasions was a local batter able to deliver the all important safety.

"Slicker" Coss, injured in the Maynard game, was out of the going and Provinzano, veteran catcher, was playing his first game in a week after an attack of "grippe."

Kendrick pitched effectively, but lapsed badly with men on bases, permitting two runners to steal home.

WINCHESTER FIFTH IN MIDDLESEX INTERSCHOLASTICS

Winchester High School's track and field team, still quite short of work after a late start, finished in 5th place behind Lexington, Belmont, Wakefield and Concord in the sixth annual Middlesex League championships last Saturday afternoon at Belmont.

As usual the meet was divided into sophomore, junior and senior classes, the locals scoring in each, but getting their firsts in the junior and senior competition. "Bob" Graham won the junior quarter in 57.2 seconds and big "Gerry" Gaffney copped the senior shot with a heave just short of 40 feet.

Gaffney also finished fourth in the senior 100 and Larry Bairstow of "The Bairstows" took second in the senior furlong. Underwood was third in the senior half and Downes, third in the senior high jump.

Lockhard took a third for Winchester in the junior furlong and Gurney tied with Greer of Lexington for fourth in the junior mile. Blaisdell got third in the junior shot.

Captain Whitmore was second in the sophomore half mile and the only local second year man to place.

New members admitted to the Home during the past 12 months were:

Mrs. Nettie L. Pease
Mrs. Isabella L. Tufts
Miss Mary Susan Chafee

During the year the following members of the Home passed away:

Mrs. Lillian Augusta Cushing
Miss Adella R. Bates
Mr. Mary L. Wetherbee

Again this year Doctor Burgoyne and Doctor Quinn have visited and cared for the sick at the Home and again Doctor Dennett has taken care of the eye cases of the members. We hope the doctors realize the happiness and comfort they have given. Doctoring is a noble profession and we are thankful and proud of our Winchester doctors.

During the year our President obtained an appraisal of the buildings of the Home for fire insurance purposes, and said appraisal was set at $25,000. During the past 12 months the house has been gone over and the rooms painted and renovated.

Besides the usual gifts of money to the Home, many of them large gifts, from friends of the Home and members of the Corporation, there were the following special gifts:

$1,000.00	Bequest from Mrs. Charles S. Doane in memory of Mrs. Mary W. Page, one of the former members of the Home.
500.00	Bequest from Mr. Daniel B. Badger
25.00	Memorial gift from the Tuesday Club of Winchester in memory of one of its much loved members, Mrs. Susan A. Nichols.
19.76	Gift proceeds from the Union Thanksgiving Service held in the First Baptist Church of Winchester

The kindness of the townspeople has been further shown by other material gifts, including food supplies and much entertainment and good cheer, that they have consistently contributed to the Home.

For the tenth year in succession, Mr. Arthur T. Downer has given the Home its winter's supply of potatoes.

Mr. Herbert Cox has been very generous in gifts of all kinds of vegetables, including rhubarb, summer squash, cucumbers, tomatoes, grapes, etc., in large quantities.

The annual Donation Day, in charge of Mrs. Harold F. Meyer, was, as usual, an entirely successful day for members and friends of the Home. Donation Day has become a custom which carries on yearly to the benefit and joy of all concerned. Like all good customs, it should be continually built up and strengthened as time goes on.

The Unitarian Primary Department
The Episcopal Sunday School
The Brownies Girl Scouts

have been very kind and thoughtful and have given canned goods, fruit and vegetables to the Home.

At Eastertime we received beautiful roses from Mrs. Mead and lilies from the churches. Mr. Eben Ramsdell sent individual boxes of candy to each member.

Mr. Ernest Dudley Chase gave the members of the Home a very enjoyable evening, showing moving pictures of his recent trip through Europe, including pictures of the countryside, and people in and around Oberammergau.

The Girl Scouts have devoted two afternoons each week to reading and entertaining "the family" which have been greatly appreciated. At Christmastime they furnished a Christmas tree, also the ornaments, and helped decorate it.

Christmas gifts to members of the Home were received from pupils of the Lincoln School, Wyman School, Noonan School, Highland School and the Junior Red Cross.

A Christmas pageant was given by the young people of the First Congregational Church and Christmas carols were sung—all of which made a very pleasant Christmas for our members.

Other occasions were:

Afternoon entertainments by the W. C. T. U.

A pageant by Miss Ella Emerson's Evening Class.

A musicale and refreshments by the Music Garden Club

A supper and musicale by the En Ka Girls' Sorority (formerly of the Winchester High School)

Attention is called to the very interesting report of our Treasurer. The following items stand out:

Total Value of the property of the Home as of April 30, 1935	$178,549.75
Compared with value a year ago of	162,879.40
An increase of	$15,670.35

Never, since the Home reached its present size, has the cost of operation been so low (the total running expenses, after deducting funeral expenses and painting, being only $6,752.54); said low cost of operation being partly due to the low cost of food and largely due to the gifts received and to the careful planning of our matron. Mrs. Belton has again this year shown herself to be an earnest and intelligent worker, has proven most efficient in conducting the Home, and has directed her small and capable staff of workers so that the members of the Home received adequate care and have been comfortable and happy.

Winchester has a right to feel proud of itself in the generous support and help it has given the Home, and we hope that the interest will continue and thus keep alive the traditions established by Mr. P. Waldmyer, Mr. Preston Pond, Judge Charles N. Harris, Alfred S. Hall and other former citizens who in their own lives have so typified Christ's teachings, looking to the care and happiness of the old and lonely members of our Winchester families.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

The housewife's job of selecting foods calls for constant alertness to today's rapid price changes. Butter is no longer the problem it has been, nor are new potatoes, cabbage, beets and spinach. Cheese is the most dependable and consistent food bargain on the list. Eggs, while slightly higher, still give excellent value for your money.

All meats have gone higher. The present price range makes veal the most reasonable meat and lamb next. New crop duckling is also moderate in price.

Pineapples are very plentiful. Bananas and citrus fruit are plentiful. Cantaloupes are high. The strawberry season is moving north into Virginia and the first blackberries, dewberries, and huckleberries have arrived.

Here are three menus made up from seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner
Corned Beef Potatoes
New Cabbage
Bread and Butter
Butterscotch Pudding or Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Roast Lamb Creamed Potatoes
Glazed Carrots
Bread and Butter
Banana Cream Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Clear Soup
Roast Beef Browned Potatoes
New Spinach Tomato Salad
Rolls and Butter Pineapple Trifle
Coffee Milk

HEART TO HEART TALKS

The Motive in Living

"Frozen assets" is a term we hear a great deal about today. An outstanding frozen asset has been that of character. As Harold R. Gustafson has truly written: "We have scorned such ideals as conscience, obligation, responsibility and duty. What we need is a fundamental sense of right and wrong. We need to set up ideals and new standards—then we need to live up to them. We need a new vision of the meaning of life."

It all simmers down to a question of Motive in Living. It is a waste of time for our preachers to keep harping on a better way of living unless people heed what is said and show by their daily living that they are on the level with the Almighty. Does any person with the sense that God gave geese believe for a moment that if the Ten Commandments were taken seriously by every member of the Christian Church we would have the present depression with 20,000,000 souls on public relief? God has been shelved in industry and the average employer of labor seems heartless at times. The amount of real suffering caused by employers of labor who make a pretense at leading respectable lives has been tremendous—God means absolutely nothing to them. When we have God in industry we will see business move upward.

We shall never have a heaven here on earth unless we start building it now. To build it we need the help of the Almighty. Man is not a mere animal—he is a spiritual being. "The things of the spirit are what men live by," and it is only as we cultivate these and educate them that we shall have happiness among all humanity. Too many of us are living on the surface of life and have yet to sound its depths.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

A simple young miss here in fair Winchester says that this (&) is nothing but an "S" sitting down.

Every wise Winchesterite pays his bills promptly as he recognizes that it is better to be credited than discredited.

Truth seems to be so heavy a great many people drop it rather than carry it.

The fellow who says something just to have something to say will never have much to say.

Some one suggests a town song for Winchester. Why not title it, "Winchester, Fairest Town in all the State?"

How many remember the old days when a Winchesterite trimmed his own corns instead of going to a chiropodist to have it done?

The worst current item of news of the month is an electric light bill.

A man here in Winchester is letting himself get rusty just because he has iron in his blood.

If any fellow in or out of Winchester wants plenty of room and a secure place to stand, let him go to the top of the ladder.

A well known citizen who has just come out of an appendicitis operation feels "sorter sew sew."

The prettiest home in fair Winchester loses its attractiveness when there is trouble and discontent within its walls.

Winchester fellow wants to start a sun bather's society. Which would throw considerable light on the matter of how to improve ones health.

The meanest of all salesmen blew into Winchester the other day. He stuck his foot in the door and insisted that the Observer must glance through the book he had to offer.

A Winchester medic says early morning rooster crowing is a menace to health. Roosters merely remind folks of the early to bed and early to rise slogan.

But there are fellows here in fair Winchester who would call that grounds for divorce. But, after all, the subject is too weak to be interesting so let's forget it.

Envy is the knock of self-confessed inferiority in the motor of the soul.

We should spend our days and nights in the upper story of our minds.

The slogan, "nothing ventured nothing gained" will not work at the railroad crossing in Winchester Square.

There are many kinds of crooks, but one who will steal milk from porches is about the meanest of the whole tribe.

The Winchesterite without a little humor in his system is like a flapjack without maple syrup.

God gave us two ears to one tongue. This meons that we should listen twice as much as we speak.

Winchester's ideal home demonstrator is a wife who knows how to bake crisp biscuits. It is a safe bet that we have more such wives in this town than in any community of like size in America. This is one reason our Winchester men seem such a contended lot of males.

One woman in Winchester is so economical that she makes coffee four times with the same set of grounds and funny to say hubby don't seem to know the difference.

If life is full of sorrowing,
And dangers clog the hours,
Oh, it is also full of peace,
And sunshine and sweet flowers.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"The Scarlet Pimpernel," with Leslie Howard and Merle Oberon, a screen version of the internationally famous novel by Baroness Orczy, will be the headline attraction on the bill opening a seven day run at the Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. Leslie Howard is seen in the title role of Sir Percy Blackney, who sacrifices the love of his wife and the respect of London society, by masquerading as a fop and a fool at home so that he may conduct the dangerous secret activities of the League of the Scarlet Pimpernel, a daring band of noblemen, pledged to snatch French aristocrats from the Tribunal during the Reign of Terror. Merle Oberon plays the wife of Leslie Howard and does not know he is "The Scarlet Pimpernel." Her brother is captured in Paris by Chauvelin who offers to set him free in return for the name of the man known as "The Scarlet Pimpernel." Determined to save her brother the wife secures information that will lead to the identification of the "Pimpernel." When she learns her own husband is the man she has betrayed she rushes to his aid. How the "Pimpernel" outwits Chauvelin and opens the way for a new life for himself and his wife makes a breath taking climax.

"Hold 'Em Yale," one of Damon Runyon's popular stories, with a great comedy cast including Patricia Ellis, Cesar Romero, William Frawley, Larry Crabbe, Andy Devine, George Barbier, Warren Hymer and George E. Stone, is the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday.

Britain's Largest Dome

The largest dome in the British empire is that of the Musta church, known as the Rotunda, in Malta. It has a diameter of 118 feet, which is six feet more than that of the dome of St. Paul's Cathedral.

ROTARY CLUB

Four members were absent from the meeting of May 9.

"Jim" Quinn made good his promise to attend this meeting. Our constant pleasure in greeting him was greatly amplified by our delight in offering congratulations for his return to health. Well done, "Jim!"

"Pat" Walsh reports that the ladies' night of Tuesday, May 7, given under the auspices of the Rotary Club of Woburn was one of the best of these functions which he ever attended. Which, indeed, is quite the thing to be expected from our good friends to the north. We would express our gratitude to Woburn for this splendid entertainment.

The Rotary Club of Stoneham reports five (5) 100 per cent meetings for the month of April. Would that this splendid record might arouse a spirit of emulation in a certain other Rotary Club whose interests we have at heart!

Between 5000 and 6000 reservations for the Convention of Rotary International in June at Mexico City are on file. Approximately 3500 will be accommodated in Pullman City. Many individuals from far distant points are already on their way to Mexico. It is not difficult, therefore, to foretell one of the really great conventions.

Never has there been greater need for international-mindedness than there is at present. For the promotion of this outstanding virue what impulse greater than this extraordinary gathering could be initiated. It will not be in vain.

Eight members of this club have registered for the spring conference at Quincy on May 15. Quincy Rotarians have been uncommonly active in preparing for this annual district gathering and many important matters of policy will be discussed as the activities of the old year are reviewed and perfected and preparations for the new year get underway. The secretary will be only too glad to care for further registrations if received at once. Get in line now!

Guest speaker at the current meeting was Brent B. Lowe of the Rotary Club of Boston. Brent was selected as an outstanding man to elucidate the principles of Rotary to the newly inducted members of our club. Events proved that no mistake was made in the choice of speaker. In the course of his remarks Brent laid especial emphasis on the sixth object of Rotary, i.e., international service. Drawing largely upon his experiences as a veteran of the World War he clearly demonstrated the need for better understanding and consequent good will among the peoples of the earth. Lest we do an injustice to our guest we heartily affirm that his remarks were by no means lost on Rotarians of longer standing who heard him. We hope for another opportunity to give him a cordial greeting.

Percentage of attendance May 2—96.67 per cent.

Average attendance for April, 1935—82.76 per cent.

STRAND THEATRE MALDEN

"The Case of the Curious Bride," with Warren William, Margaret Lindsay, Allen Jenkins, Claire Dodd and Phillip Reed, a dramatic mystery thriller, will head the double bill opening at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. Based on the popular story by Eric Stanley Gardner, which features the brilliant criminal lawyer and detective, Perry Mason, the picture carries him through a series of astounding adventures in his attempt to clear the "curious bride" of murdering one of her husbands. Perry Mason is one of the most popular of the fictional detectives and Warren William is said to do a fine piece of acting as the investigator who doesn't hesitate to break the law if it will help his client.

"I'll Love You Always" starring Nancy Carroll and George Murphy, will be the second attraction on the hill starting Saturday. George Murphy is cast as an engineer who has just been graduated from college with honors. He marrys Nancy Carroll, an actress, on the enthusiastic surmisal that he will have the world at his feet inside of six months. The wife becomes a taxi dancer and the husband a truck driver. How they work out their turn for happiness makes an interesting screen play.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN, ATTRACTIONS

The coming of the Edwin Carewe production, "Are We Civilized," to the Mystic Theatre, Malden, where it opens Saturday, is of more than ordinary interest and significance. William Farnum is in a role that is said to be as notable in dramatic values as any he has ever done on stage or screen. With Mr. Farnum in important roles are Anita Louise, LeRoy Mason, Oscar Apfel, Stuart Holmes and other fine character players. "Are We Civilized," is rated as an epic of humanity, a world-drama of man's bloody march to civilization.

Scenarist Charles Belden and Director Charles Lamont have done a most commendable job in bringing "The Dartmouth Murders," Clifford Orr's great mystery novel, to the screen. The story, one of the most thrilling and baffling murder yarns of recent years will be the second feature at the Mystic Theatre, Malden, on Saturday and next week under the title of "A Shot in the Dark."

TRAFFIC SURVEY IN PROGRESS HERE

On Monday of this week a traffic survey was begun in Winchester under the supervision of a traffic expert from the State Department of Public Works.

The survey is made possible through the employment policies of the Civil Works and Emergency Relief Administration of the Federal Government, and is being done under the general direction of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It is being carried out as an E. R. A. project under Administrator Earle E. Andrews and his assistant, Frank T. Olmstead. Town Engineer Parker Holbrook is the technical head of the survey with Albert F. Gaum as supervisor, Jerome B. Foster, in charge of engineers and draftsmen; Frank Keenan, in charge of clerks and counters; Thomas Stewart, in charge of draftsmen; the following clerks, Henry Connell, John F. Donovan, Joseph W. Callahan and Frank W. Hunt; the following counters, Burrill H. Ayer, Ralph H. Cotton, William S. Davis and Winfield H. McKown; and Mrs. Helen E. Walters, stenographer.

The objective of the survey is the reduction of accidents and the survey should not be confused with the usual traffic checks made from time to time. It is much broader in scope and approaches the problem from every angle, both theoretical and practical, providing at the conclusion of the survey a mass of clearly arranged data for the use of the town and making certain specific recommendations for traffic improvement with costs and methods of financing.

STRANGE DEVICES SALVAGE SHIPS FROM THE SEA

Under-sea stairways, mammoth "grabs," soup tubes, sand-sucking pumps, fire hose, incandescent marine lanterns, telephones, and "seven-league" boots which enable men to walk on the sea floor—these are some of the unusual devices that make modern ship salvaging a weird, dangerous, and lucrative profession, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Capsized vessels, ships wrecked on sand bars or rocks, and boats which have sunk, continue the bulletin, all require the services of trained salvage engineers as well as strange and elaborate apparatus, whether the problem be to recover gold and jewels imprisoned in Davy Jone's Locker or to put a boat back to work on the surface of the sea.

Floating Power Plants Raise Wrecks

Ships from which salvage operations are conducted must be equipped with pumping plants, air compressors electric lighting plants, drilling machines, rock-boring drills, and pneumatic hammers, all of which must be designed for use under water. Two general methods are followed in raising ships. By the first, used in relatively shallow water, air compressors force water out of the ship and air into it. The second method, employed for ships sunk at great depths, makes use of pontoons.

Some pontoons, which are a sort of flat-bottomed boat, have sufficient buoyancy to raise 1500 tons. The first step in making use of the floats is to anchor them over a wreck. Heavy steel cables or chains are drawn around the hull of the wreck at low tide and form a swing or cradle in which it can be raised. The pontoons rise with the tide, lifting the ship as high as the water level rises. The boat is then towed to shallower water where the procedure is repeated. Finally the decks emerge. Temporary repairs are made, and the ship can be towed to a repair dock.

Tunnels Dug Under Ships

Where there is no tide, flexible steel cables are run under the boat and attached to steel submersible cylinders. Compressed air is pumped into these special cylindrical pontoons, and they raise the ship. Some of these cylinders are capable of lifting 250 tons.

If the sunken vessel is covered with sand, the difficulty of getting lifting cables or chains under the wreck is greatly increased, and a tunnel must be bored either by a hose regulated by a pressure pump or a sand-sucking tube.

A fire hose was used to tunnel a way for the lifting cable for the S-51, the submarine which sank 15 miles off Block Island. This passage caved in while a diver was working in it, and he had to tunnel his way out.

Explosives Free Treasure

If the object of the salvage is the rescue of treasure and not the raising of the wreck, explosives are used. After putting the explosives in place, the divers come to the surface, touch them off electrically, and then redescend to discover what treasures have been revealed.

Great ingenuity has been shown in the equipment for marine salvage. A stairway in a tube 200 feet long and five feet in diameter, with an observation room at the bottom from which divers can go directly onto a sunken vessel, was designed for salvaging the purser's safe and other valuables from the Lusitania which now lies off the coast of Ireland. "Grabs," powerful lifting devices, act like giant hands, bringing up treasure to the greedy men on the salvage ship.

The old-time rubber diving suit has been replaced by articulated steel suits and metal observation cylinders. In these new-fashioned garments and with heavily weighted boots, men can tramp firmly on ship decks submerged in 300 feet of water. Telephones, electric lights, and cameras make all modern conveniences possible to the ocean treasure hunter.

Salvaging Lives on Submarines

Salvage is not limited to ships and cargoes, for the same devices are used in raising submarines. Following the S-4 tragedy, experiments were conducted to prevent another such disaster. Into the hull of a test submarine were built eyebolts to which could be attached chains from lifting pontoons. It was discovered that present developments had not reached a point at which a submarine could be brought to the surface before the men aboard were suffocated. Major interest, therefore, has been concentrated on methods of introducing air and food into the submarine and of getting men from the ship to the surface before raising the submarine itself.

A special diving-bell was constructed which would fit water-tight over the escape hatch on a submarine. Another device for submarine life-saving is the rescue helmet or lung. It is a face mask, attached to which is what looks like a hot water bag, but is really an air pouch. This pouch contains enough air to bring a man to the surface from a depth of 155 feet. One test submarine was equipped with special valves for hose lines through which could be sent from the rescue ship fresh air, water, or hot soup, according to the needs of the trapped crew.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Howard E. Boardman and Enna M. Boardman, his wife in her right, to Winchester Trust Company, dated September 13, 1929, recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 5396, Page 408, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described on Wednesday, June 5, 1935, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed and therein substantially described as follows: "A certain parcel of land with the buildings and improvements thereon, including all furnaces, heaters, ranges, mantels, gas and electric light fixtures, and all other fixtures of whatever kind or nature contained or hereinafter installed in said buildings, situated in Winchester, Middlesex County, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the Westerly line of Cabot Street as shown on a plan of House Lots in Winchester belonging to Wm. Boynton, J. O. "PRIVATE WORLDS" AT THE UNIVERSITY

Phyllis Bottome's widely read and engrossing story of a woman who learned to cast aside the dream of love for reality, "Private Worlds" comes Sunday for three days at the University, with Claudette Colbert in the starring role. A psychological love drama revealing the fears and inhibitions that are the true villians of romance, "Private Worlds" is set in the strange and dramatic background of a hospital for the insane.

"Traveling Saleslady," the companion picture co-starring Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell, is a hilarious comedy with snappy action, witty dialogue and a glamorous romance.

On Wednesday, Review Day, the program will include "Men in White" co-starring Clark Gable and Myrna Loy and "The Young Rajah" with Rudolph Valentino. Many patrons will recall the height of popularity reached by Rudolph Valentino some 12 to 15 years ago.

Leslie Howard and Merle Oberon are co-starred in "The Scarlet Pimpernel," which starts Thursday. Based on Baroness Orczy's famous story of Sir Percy Blakeney, the Englishman who risked the love of his beautiful young wife to play the fop and the fool, while secretly leading the fearless League of the Scarlet Pimpernel in their thrilling rescues of French aristocrats from the guillotine, this stirring filmization was made by Robert Sherwood, famous American playwright who wrote "Reunion in Vienna."

"A Night at the Ritz" the companion feature, is a sparkling comedy drama, filled with fast action, riotous laughs and a delightful romance. There is an all star cast which includes William Gargan, Patricia Ellis, Allen Jenkins, Dorothy Tree and Berton Churchill.

NORTH MANCHURIAN RAILWAY BEGINS OPERATIONS

Asia has a new railroad system embracing 1123 miles (the distance from Washington to Kansas City). It is new in name and operation, but not in trackage, being the former Chinese Eastern Railway. Since its recent transfer from Russian to Manchutikuoan hands, the Chinese Eastern is known as the "North Manchurian Railway."

Ever since it was stretched across the barren, rolling plains of northern Manchuria, a third of a century ago, this valuable railroad line has been used like a tug-o'-war rope between the Russian bear, the Chinese dragon, and the Japanese imperialist, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Built as a "Land Bridge"

Built across an alien territory by engineers of the Russian Tsar as the world's longest "land bridge," it did not begin to serve Manchuria as a railroad should until nearly 20 years after its construction.

The story of the Chinese Eastern is intertwined with the tangled threads of many important events in European and Asiatic history. England and France, in the Crimean War, thwarted Russia's attempt to gain an ice-free port, so the Slavs in 1891 turned toward the Pacific. By 1896 they had laid the tracks of the Trans-Siberian Railway as far as Chita.

At Chita they were faced with a problem. They could continue the route to the Pacific port of Vladivostok through all-Russian territory around the great bend of the Amur River border, or they could take a short-cut straight across Manchuria. A concession from China permitted the building of the cut-off, clipping nearly 600 miles from the all-Russian long route.

POLAND—A GROWING EUROPEAN POWER

Poland's strategic position between Soviet Russia and militant Germany brings this aggressive European nation more and more into the spotlight of world affairs.

Twenty years ago the name of Poland could not have been found on any map of Europe, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Today it is the sixth largest nation in Europe, with a steadily increasing population that will soon reach forty million.

When Warsaw Was Second Only to Paris

Once before Poland was a great power. In the 16th and 17th centuries its territory extended from a point within 50 miles of Berlin to the meridian of the Sea of Azov, and from the Khanate of Crimea nearly to the Gulf of Finland. In those days Warsaw, next to Paris, was the most brilliant city in Europe.

Then came weak rulers and internal dissension that paved the way for Prussian, Russian, and Austrian expansion. In the three disastrous partitions of 1772, 1793, and 1795 these powers divided Poland between them, then legalized the proceedings by the Congress of Vienna in 1815.

The State had ceased to exist but the people never lost their fierce nationalism. After a century and a half of oppression came the proud day in November 1918, when Marshal Pilsudski returned to Warsaw to be acclaimed as chief of the new, independent Polish State. The Treaty of Versailles established the western boundaries of the new nation, and after a serious struggle with Russia, the eastern border was fixed by the Riga Treaty of 1921.

Eastern Poland Lags Behind West

Under Pilsudski's leadership Poland has developed rapidly despite tremendous handicaps. Long years of fighting had devastated the land. Russia, Prussia, and Austria each left the stamp of its domination, different systems of government, education, and law. Even yet there is a sharp contrast between the low standard of living in eastern Poland and the higher standard in the more prosperous west. Minorities constitute nearly one-third of the country's population. The most restless of these are the Ukrainians in the southeast and the White Russians in the east.

The Versailles Treaty left Poland surrounded by nations jealous of land that had once been theirs. Today peaceful relations have been established, particularly with Germany and Russia. It is significant that last year these two nations, together with Great Britain, provided the best markets for Polish trade.

Pilsudski remains the arbiter and hero of his country. March 19, the day of St. Joseph, his patron saint, is a national holiday. Three times he has refused the presidency, preferring to remain behind the scenes; but the new constitution, recently adopted, may make the office more attractive. This constitution, which comes into effect early in the summer, makes Poland an autocracy, and gives to her president the powers of an absolute monarch.

Uniform Railway Gauge Adopted

Economic progress has kept step with political growth. Devastated areas have been reconstructed. From marshlands to mountains agriculture has been brought back to prewar levels. Factories idle or destroyed have been rehabilitated. The currency has been stabilized. Railway mileage has been increased, and a uniform gauge adopted so that rails bind Poland together instead of tearing it apart.

The Pole, whose horsemanship is admired throughout the world, has taken to the air with dash and spirit. Captain Orlinski linked Warsaw with Tokyo. Colonel Rayski circled Europe in the air. Captain Skarzynski and Lieutenant Markiewicz made the tour of Africa in 1931. The Polish Air Line, LOT, covers the whole of eastern Europe from Tallinn to Salonika, and there is a regular internal service between Warsaw and all important cities. In 1934 direct service was opened between London and Warsaw, and Warsaw and Moscow.

A new railway from Upper Silesia along the Polish Corridor to the new Baltic port of Gdynia assures Poland's economic freedom. In less than a decade a dowdy fishing village was turned into a modern city whose harbor can accommodate 50 vessels at a time. Although an artificial port, Gdyni is well protected and capable of almost unlimited expansion. At present it is used by 36 regular steamship lines, six of which are under the Polish flag. The volume of trade passing through Gdyni increased from 10,000 tons in 1924 to 6,100,000 tons in 1933. Exports are principally coal, lumber, sugar, rye, barley, wheat dairy produce, and pork products; imports, cotton, foodstuffs, metals, and machines. Rich coal resources are the basis of Polish industry, and textiles and sugar head the list of manufactures.

More densely populated than Pennsylvania, Poland is still an agricultural nation; and the consequent elasticity of its labor supply, the economic independence of its peasants, and the modesty of their needs give it social stability in spite of the rapid growth of urban and industrial life.

Monotony is the keynote of Polish geography. Rolling plains that connect the lowlands of Germany with the Russian plains form the main part of the country. Through the central portion flows the sluggish Vistula. Yet in the south there are idyllic mountain retreats of rare beauty. Through the unusual Krakow Protocol, Poland and Czechoslovakia agreed to turn the whole Tatry mountain region into one splendid international park—a buffer park instead of a buffer state.

HEARING ON MOTION PICTURE APPLICATIONS HELD

An attendance that must have approached the 500 mark was present at Wednesday evening's hearing in the town hall, held by the Board of Selectmen in connection with applications which the Board had received for a license to exhibit motion pictures in Winchester.

The Board, its clerk, Donald R. Waugh; and Town Counsel Addison R. Pike, were seated on the stage. Chairman of Selectmen Harold V. Farnsworth presided and opened the hearing by stating that it was not concerned with the merits of motion pictures in Winchester since that had been decided by the recently held referendum. He further stated that the responsibility for the policy which had been followed in the matter of motion pictures during the past year rests upon the 1934 Board of Selectmen who felt that nothing should be done toward granting a license until an expression of the town's pleasure had been secured.

Attorney Nathan R. Chapin of Lawrence street represented the first applicant to be heard, Albert J. Locatelli of Belmont. Mr. Chapin outlined briefly the type of threatre his client proposes to erect, at a cost of $200,000 on Main street between the river and Thompson street, and stated that Mr. Locatelli proposes to own and operate the theatre personally. In answer to the parking objection that has been raised in connection with the proposed location he introduced P. Joseph O'Connor, traffic engineer for the Boston Traffic Commission who stated that a survey he had made had convinced him that there is plenty of available parking space to care for a theatre having the seating capacity of 1000 which Mr. Locatelli proposes. He stated that the theatre would attract an average of 200 cars a performance, there being an average of five persons to a car.

The hearing then digressed to hear from Mr. Wolf, a representative of large motion picture producers, who in reply to direct questioning by Mr. Farnsworth stated that he could not say in what zone a theatre in Winchester would be placed, and that there was no particular advantage in granting a license to a chain operator as opposed to an individual theatre operator. He stated that block-booking is not the bugaboo many people have been led to believe, but is merely the wholesale buying and selling of films which is safe, sound and wholly desirable. In reply to questions by Dr. Chidley Mr. Wolf stated that block booking is often used as an alibi by an exhibitor for showing an objectionable picture, and admitted that he knew little of the legal angles that may be involved in the practice.

Reuben A. Maguire felt that the Selectmen should grant the license to a responsible party and stated that it would be necessary to have the revenue from stores, such as would be connected with his plant, to carry the large enterprise involved in the theatre Mr. Locatelli proposes to build.

Arthur T. Nelson, owner of Waterfield Building, was the next applicant heard. His proposal involved the erection of a theatre at that site and the remodelling of the present building. His theatre is also to seat 1000 and like the proposed Locatelli building is to be of Colonial design. Mr. Nelson felt that his location is especially advantageous from the standpoint of parking space there would be nearly enough space at the rear and on the railroad side of the building to care for the cars.

Mr. Nelson then introduced Edward Williams, representing Judge Jacob J. Kaplan of the M. and P. Theatres which in turn are affiliated with the New England Theatres, Inc., operators of about 100 theatres in New England, including the Metropolitan in Boston. In the event Mr. Nelson receives a license the M. & P. Theatres would operate the theatre, and this corporation was represented by Mr. Williams as a strong financially, experienced and able to hold out for the type of pictures wanted. He also assured the meeting that the organization in question is not one that "sells out."

Attorney Joseph W. Worthen of Wedgemere avenue was next heard, representing Joseph and Max Levenson of the Strand Theatre Corporation. This group, acting through real estate operator Thomas I. Freeburn of Cabot street, proposes to erect a theatre on the site of the present Whitney Machine Shop which is to be torn down together with the old buildings on the adjacent Haggerty property.

In speaking for this plan Mr. Worthen stressed the fact that under it there will be no parking problem since cars will be cared for at this location entirely off the street. He further said that the erection of the theatre at this location will beautify that part of the town and change its entire aspect. He argued that the other locations are too near schools and that in the event of an early abolition of the town's grade crossings, under either the town or Vinal plans, there would be substantial suits for damages if the theatre is located where Mr. Nelson and Mr. Locatelli propose to place their buildings. He stated that his clients, experienced theatre operators who have conducted eminently satisfactory theatres, among other places, in Brookline.

The final applicant was Lindsey Hooper of Newton representing the University Theatre interests. He stated that in the event this group secures a license it will operate in a first class manner a theatre like the University, the reputation of which, he felt, speaks for itself. He further said that in his opinion the type of pictures to be shown is important and the University group habitually buys many more pictures than it can show in order to secure the ones wanted. His group

Street Fair Raised Substantial Sum for Hospital

The annual meeting of the En Ka Society was held on Monday, opening at a luncheon at the Country Club at 1 o'clock. About 80 members were present. Before luncheon was served the members enjoyed the singing of the En Ka song by Messrs. Loring P. Gleason, T. Price Wilson and Dr. Frank W. Rounds, and this was followed by a parade on the street fair to the tune of the Flying Trapeze. Mrs. John A. Tarbell was the accompanist.

The important feature of the meeting was the announcement of the proceeds made at the Street Fair, and the enthusiasm that was unbound when President Frances Kenerson stated that present figures showed a net of $1963 cleared.

Mrs. Kenerson presided and conducted the business meeting, at which the very interesting annual reports of the various committees were read by the chairmen.

The election of new officers for the coming year resulted as follows:

President Mrs. John Kenerson (Frances C.)
Vice President Mrs. Kenneth Moffatt (Eleanor H.)
Secretary Mrs. Clifford Mason (Marjorie G.)
Treasurer Miss Barbara Pratt
Advisor Mrs. Alfred Sidney (Emma P.)
Ways and Means Committee Mrs. E. George Pierce (Marion D.)
Medicine Committee Miss Janet Grant
Hospital Committee Mrs. T. Price Wilson (Frances C.), Mrs. Stephen B. Neiley (Elizabeth D.)
Civic Committee Mrs. Guy B. Howe (Carolyn D.)
Membership Committee Mrs. Robert S. Clark (Esther C.), Chairman, Mrs. Lowell R. Smith (Hannah L.), Mrs. James F. Bushnell, Jr. (Alice E.), Mrs. Percy Blacker (Wilhelmina R.), Mrs. William N. Boggs (Elizabeth F.)
Nominating Committee Mrs. Loring P. Gleason (Helen J.), Mrs. John A. Tarbell (Gladys S.), Mrs. Gladys Marchant.
Nurses' Home Committee Mrs. Frank W. Rounds

At the close of the business meeting, Mr. Morris Kerr kindly showed moving pictures of the Street Fair, a particularly fine film depicting the event from end to end and including on exceptionally large number of prominent and well known residents. It is expected that everyone will have opportunity to view this film at a later date.

JUNIOR CIRCLE TEA AT COUNTRY CLUB

Last Sunday afternoon the Winchester Country Club was the scene of a very pretty tea given by the Winchester Junior Circle of the Florence Crittenton League to the Senior Circle, their husbands and friends.

Miss Gretchen Stone, president of the Junior Circle, wearing a full length wood-brown lace gown, headed the receiving line. Assisting Miss Stone were Mrs. Lyndon Burnham, vice-president; Miss Janet Grant, secretary and Mrs. Herbert T. Wadsworth, past-president.

Stepping in from the chilly late afternoon breezes, the writer felt a glow of comfort and cheer. Gay voices rang out from the large hall which was beautifully decorated with lilacs and apple blossoms. In the center of the room stood the long tea table which was most artistic with a large floral center piece of yellow roses and purple sweet peas. Two Juniors were pouring while others of their number were daintily serving delicious refreshments to their many guests. At one end of the hall stood the president, Miss Gretchen Stone, and her board gaily chatting with the throngs of guests who brought their greetings and congratulations. From the farther end of the room came the strains of lovely music from the trio composed of Mary Ranton Wigham, pianist; Barbara Pike, cellist and Louise Allman, violist. Suddenly all chattering ceased as Jane Hill's beautiful contralto voice was heard in "Wake Soul of Mine" and "My Shadow." Much to the joy of those present Mrs. Hill sang a solo early in the evening, "Happy Day," "On Wings of Music" and "Take Joys Home."

It was a happy and festive occasion and the seniors seemed justly proud of this junior circle who so graciously planned the affair to show their appreciation to the girls living in the home, the opportunity of sharing in the fine humanitarian piece of work which the League is doing.

The Winchester Junior Circle was organized three years ago. They have done excellent work. So deep is their interest and so genuine their purpose that they have already accomplished a definite good. They have the best wishes of all for a happy and successful future.

The pourers were: Miss Mary Reed, Miss Dorothy Friend, Miss Janet Grant, Mrs. Lyndon Burnham, Miss Betty Chadwick, Mrs. Everett Stone, Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth, Miss Constance Greco.

Tea Committee: Miss Clara Butterworth, Mrs. Daniel Barnard, Miss Flora Haley, Miss Marjorie Danforth, Miss Dorothy Parsons, Miss Marjorie Grant, Miss Elizabeth Adriance, Miss Alice Friend, Miss Harriet Keepers, Miss Elizabeth Snow, Miss Dorothy Wentworth, Miss Dorothy Drewson.

Flowers and Decorations—Miss Frances Peirce, Miss Velma Kelley, Miss Eleanor Mansfield, Miss Flora Haley.

FIRE EXAMINATION MAY 31

The date for the civil service examination for lieutenant in the Winchester Fire Department has been set for May 31, but recent developments have changed the original plans which were to establish three lieutenants in the department.

Only four men, Fireman James Callahan, Raymond Hanssom, David J. Meskell and J. Edward Noonan, have made application to take the examination and four does not constitute a sufficient number from which to choose three officers.

Interest among the firemen in the examination does not parallel that shown by the police officers in the recently held sergeant's examination which nearly all the eligible members of that department took. The position of lieutenant in the Fire Department pays roughly $7 cents more a week that that of private or approximately $45 per year with the present ten per cent pay cut.

NIELS MORTENSEN

Niels Mortensen, a well-known resident of Winchester and formerly for many years associated with the local contractor and builder, George H. Hamilton, died Wednesday night, May 22, in South Norwalk, Conn. at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. P. Hansen.

Mr. Mortensen had been ill since Christmas. He was in his 81st year and was a native of Jutland, Denmark. As a young man he came to this country and for years, made his home in Winchester.

Mr. Mortensen was a widower, his wife, Mrs. Emma Mortensen, having died four years ago. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Hansen and Miss Ebba Ruth Mortensen of New York City; three sons, Ove E., of Winchester, Astor H. of Teaneck, N. J. and Rudloph W. Mortensen of Enfield, N. H. and five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon, May 25, at 2:30 p. m. at the home of Mr. Ove Mortensen, 29 Prince avenue, with Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, officiating. Interment will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

This has become an annual event of the Men's Club and is a convincing demonstration of the versatility of its members. Mr. James S. Allen will deliver the sermon on, "The Search for the Truth." Others who will participate in the services are: John L. Tchingier, Arthur S. Harris, Samuel M. Graves and Gilman Wallace.

The Fire Department was called at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon to put out a grass fire on Stowell road.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The Fire Department answered two alarms within five minutes yesterday afternoon. Box 36 came in at 1:52 for a fire in the cellar of the house at 1 Eaton street, occupied by Mr. Charles H. Brown. At 1:55 Box 242 at the high school sounded, while at the same time there was a fire reported at Boggs & Cobb leather plant. The firemen found upon arrival at the high school that the alarm there was false, and there was no fire at Boggs & Cobb but for a few minutes there was plenty of excitement. Arlington covered in at the Central Station while the local apparatus was answering the high school alarm.

Mr. Bryant Woods formerly of Sheffield road is now a resident of Buffalo, N. Y., being employed by the Marine-Midland Trust Co. Mr. Woods will be remembered as the Winchester aviator who was forced down during the World War behind the German lines and made a prisoner of war.

FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION CAMPAIGN HEADQUARTERS TO OPEN TOMORROW

The Federal Housing Administration campaign headquarters building, which is located on land immediately opposite the postoffice and which has been so extensively improved and reconditioned during the past number of weeks, will be ready for opening tomorrow afternoon.

It is expected that the building will be entirely completed at that time and attractively furnished and decorated. All those interested in seeing how the dilapidated building which was moved to this location a few weeks ago has been transformed into one of the most attractive exhibitions imaginable are invited to inspect it at this time.

It will be interesting to note in this connection that the vast operations which have been performed to this old building could be performed to any room in any existing building.

The committee is planning, in the next number of weeks, to have displays of various building material and equipment conducted in this building, which will be open for public inspection.

The campaign of solicitation of home owners is already started with very satisfactory results in its early stages. The first week's solicitation showed a total amount of $2,650,000 worth of work started or contemplated in Winchester. It brought out many inquiries for minor improvements to residences which will receive the attention of authorized contractors immediately.

The Federal Housing Administration Committee, of which Selectman W. Allan Wilde is the chairman, wishes to express its thanks to the following individuals or organizations, who have so willingly cooperated in the finishing of the Federal Housing Administration Campaign Headquarters since the list published in the Star two weeks ago: Alfred E. Elliot was in charge of the work and finishing the interior; Bernard Eckberg for additional labor in connection with interior finish; Norval Heinlein of Stoneham for laying the oak floor; California Stucco Company for interior Craftex finish; L. Sack, Inc., of Boston for lighting fixtures; Carl Larson for exterior painting; Victor Frober for interior painting and to Boston Varnish Co. for supplying the paint for exterior of building.

It is expected that the grounds will be attractively landscaped by Snowflake Gardens of Winchester.

It is hoped that many citizens of Winchester will take advantage of seeing what a particularly attractive creation has been accomplished out of a rather discouraging object on which the work was started. It will also be interesting to note the difference in exterior appearance of that portion of the building which has been painted as compared to that portion which has not been painted.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

Reservations are now being taken for the supper to be held in conjunction with the all-day program, Saturday, June 8.

The committees under direction of Gus Pistorino have already outlined the complete schedule for the day, being as follows:

1. Band concert starts promptly at 2:30 o'clock.
2. Fancy diving exhibition will continue until 3 o'clock.
3. Shallow sports, races, and novelty canoe events, from 3 o'clock until 5:30 p. m.
4. Supper served from 6 to 7:30 p. m. in the club hall.
5. Dancing party begins at 8:30 p. m.
6. Awarding of afternoon prizes during party.
7. Elimination dance, the lucky number to receive gift.
8. Ballon dance.
9. A good time was had by all.

Regarding the water sports, the regatta committee has promised the most complete and elaborate program ever seen at the Winchester Boat Club.

The outstanding feature will be one that kept the spectators on the edge of their chairs at the Boston Guide's meet, a free for all tilt between 20 canoes. Also a number of new and tricky events have been selected that will provide sport for the canoeists and fun for the audience.

Crew practice will swing into regular session this coming week-end, and the boys are out to make a name for Winchester throughout the racing season. The new trailer makes it possible to include all the shells on the trips, even the war canoe, allowing more Winchester entrants in the meets.

The new floodlighted horse-hoe rink will be ready in a week or so, several contests being already scheduled to determine the club champion.

The floodlighted tennis court is being used far more this season than ever, while every Tuesday night volley ball again holds sway.

Some of the more adventurous members have taken a few fancy flips off the diving tower. Here again the floodlights are extensively used, for in the summer evenings there is no better opportunity for the all day workers to avail themselves of this recreation than to dive and swim at night with plenty of light and good surroundings.

In one way or another the Winchester Boat Club continues to improve its facilities, not only increasing the enjoyment of the members but to increase the returns on the small sum due for yearly membership.

Mr. Oscar Hedtler, well known automobile supply man of Church street, is driving a new Ford sedan.

LEGION ANNOUNCES MEMORIAL DAY PLANS

Comdr. John H. McCarthy of Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, announced plans for the town's observance of Memorial Day at the annual May banquet of the Legion held last evening in the Post Headquarters on Washington street.

The annual community memorial service will be held this year, upon the invitation of the pastor, Rev. Fr. Aloysius F. Malone, in St. Mary's Church on this Sunday morning at 11:30 o'clock.

Members of the Post will attend in a body with the Post and G. A. R. Colors and Color Guard, lines for the parade to the church forming at the Post Headquarters at 11:15 o'clock.

The usual Memoral Day addresses will be made by picked veterans in the schools on Wednesday, May 29, and on the morning of Memorial Day the Post Committees and volunteer workers will decorate the graves of veterans in Calvary and Wildwood Cemeteries.

The first of the two afternoon parades, that to Calvary Cemetery in East Woburn, will leave Post Headquarters at 2 o'clock Memorial Day afternoon. Exercises in the cemetery will be held at the Knights of Columbus Monument.

The Post Band and Firing Squad will escort the marchers with detachments of Spanish War Veterans, the Lawrence Light Guard and Boy Scouts.

Returning for a brief rest at the Post Headquarters, the second parade to Wildwood Cemetery will commence about 3:30 o'clock, exercises to be held at the Soldier's Monument at 4 o'clock.

This year, upon their return from Wildwood, the marchers will be reviewed at the Town Hall and will then proceed into the hall where refreshments will be served at long tables.

All veterans whether or not in uniform are urged to participate in any or all of the Memorial Day activities, and in this connection the Star is glad to reprint Commander McCarthy's message to the Post, as follows:

Comrades:

The one day in the year dedicated by the living to those countless souls who comprise the Legion of the Great Beyond is about to dawn—that day of remembrance, love and prayer—Memorial Day.

From the break of day until night spreads its mantle over all, the living will strive to repay in small measure their obligations to the dead.

Winchester Post No. 97, A. L. has the privilege of conducting the Memorial services to honor our immortal dead. This year we have accepted the kind invitation of Rev. Father Malone, Pastor of St. Mary's Church, to hold our divine Memorial service at his church on Sunday, May 26.

As a tribute to those defenders of America, whose souls have passed into immortality, but whose spirit dwells in our hearts, your Commander urges every man to make a special effort to attend these observances.

Yours in Comradeship,
John H. McCarthy,
Commander

Rev. Fr. Joseph McGoldrick of St. Mary's Parish, is leaving Monday for the West to attend the ordination of his brother, Francis McGoldrick, in Our Lady of Perpetual Help Cathedral, Oklahoma City. He will be gone about a week.

Report of the President of the Junior High School P. T. A. Organization

The President wishes to express her appreciation of the tine spirit shown throughout the year by the Executive Board. This Board is the working unit of our organization and has met once a month during the school year. Each officer and chairman is to be commended for her efficiency and interest.

At our first meeting, held in the home of Mrs. Lester Gustin, the teachers were invited and a delightful social hour enjoyed. Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles Green, three other such teas have been held this year. Here different groups of mothers have had the opportunity of meeting and serving the teachers.

The number of meetings, types of programs, and aims of the organization have been worked out by the Board. Occasionally, school problems have been brought to our attention. At such times conferences with the Principal have been held, the school policies outlined and the views of the parents presented. The tangible result to you in the instance of homework, for example, was a printed schedule from the office, distributed at our first public meeting.

At the Board's instigation, the Winchester schools were opened to the public, National Education Week through the co-operation of our Superintendent, Mr. Quinn.

We have studied the material needs of our school and in a practical way tried to help. An interest has been created in equipment for visual education, and as you have heard from our chairman of Ways and Means a beginning has been made toward "mural decorations" for our new building.

Two motion picture conferences have been attended and delegates were sent to the State Convention.

Always there has been a spirit of friendliness, eagerness to help and sincere interest in the welfare of our children.

The President wishes to thank our Principal, Mr. Dickman and the teachers for their consistant willingness to co-operate with the Board in making these meetings informative and constructive.

The President, herself, has gained a new perspective of the national, state and local Parent-Teacher organizations, of its needs and aims, and thanks you all for the privilege of serving as your President.

Anna M. Swanson,
President

"STEVE" COREY TALKS TO HIGH SCHOOL AUDIENCE

On Wednesday morning, May 22, during the regular assembly period, "Steve" Corey was introduced by Mr. Grindle, to the high school student body, as a man who could satisfy their instinctive demand for stories of action, adventure and discovery. Before actually introducing Mr. Corey, however, he called upon Miss Elaine Groves as the one best fitted to welcome the Antarctic explorer to the Winchester High School Auditorium. Elaine in a very brief and charming manner presented "Steve" to the students, and the stalky, rugged chap with the bleached hair, wind tanned face, dark, keen, agreeable eyes and determined chin, quiet but clear voice proceeded to enthrall the attention of his youthful audience as he took them with him on a two-year jaunt to Little America and back again.

Mr. Corey's very informal, conversational tone, his unexpected flashes of wit, his ability to appreciate and to understand the interests of his audience, his quiet, unassuming quality of genuineness, all combined to weave a spell of romance and frontier-fever in the imaginations of his listeners.

Studded with intensely interesting personal impressions and experiences, his talk contained some very practical and educational, scientific and geographical data presented in such a way that it was easily understood. But after having lived in Antarctica for two years with a group of reputed "scientists," Mr. Corey declared smilingly that "he was glad he wasn't a scientist."

His pictures of the routine of life in Little America, where 60 degrees below zero was an average temperature, where the N. R. A. 40-hour program would prove a sad joke at best, where hard, dry snow like sand made all locomotion a matter of extreme effort, even for the dogs; where situations that would appear insurmountable in civilization became commonplace, where every movement, every project had to be planned to the last detail with a margin for safety tacked on; all these intimate glimpses of the life in Little America kept his audience hushed for fear of losing a single item.

Mr. Corey described clearly and dramatically the establishment of Admiral Byrd's solitary advance base, paying the Admiral a genuine compliment for his unwillingness to let his men take any risks which he himself would not take. And he made clear the nature of the risk which Byrd voluntarily insisted upon assuming.

Movies, victrolas, a library of 2500 books, bridge and poker; these were the forms of indoor recreation enjoyed by the ice-bound explorers during the long winter night.

The account of the field trip of a small party to the Edsel Ford Range of mountains, a trip lasting over two months, was particularly interesting. It was on this expedition that Mr. Corey came within an ace of losing his life, and his modest, humorous account of the adventure was thoroughly appreciated. In summing up the experience, he stated that the whole adventure was one which provided not only much valuable experience but one which had a maturing effect upon those who participated in it. While he clearly had enjoyed the opportunity to meet the challenge of life in our remotest frontier, he gave the impression that perhaps one of the most satisfying things about such a deliberate departure from the refinements of civilization is the great joy in returning once more.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Corey displayed a huge knapsack full of Antarctic equipment including a wind-tattered flag, wind-proof parka, socks, pants and boots; dog harnesses and whips (John J. Parsuader) crampons, socks, boots, gloves, etc. And as he became aware of the fascination which these realities held for his audience, he was inspired to extend a general and sincere invitation to any or all in the audience to visit his home or the ship in order to see other items unsuitable for a packsack.

When Mr. Corey had finished an opportunity for questions brought forth the following answers:

In Little America the radio reception was probably on a par with reception of their broadcasts, although they were in the dark literally and figuratively on the matter.

The reason for the expedition, according to Mr. Corey was, as far as he was concerned a desire for adventure.

The lowest temperature recorded had been 72 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit) and the highest, 38 degrees above.

Mr. Corey stated that he did not believe Byrd would return to the same section of Antarctica again. At a suggestion from Miss Groves he gave an amusing account of his penguin adventures and of the penguins which were brought back.

When asked how he became connected with the expedition, he smiled and said, "Now, that a long, long story. You'll find it in Sunday's Boston Post."

The students of Winchester High School will not soon forget Mr. Corey or his splendid talk.

WINCHESTER TOPPED WOLLASTON

Winchester Country Club won its match in the Boston Four-Ball League series on its own links Tuesday afternoon, defeating Wollaston, 11½ to 3½. Despite the win the locals dropped into second place in the league standing, due to The Country Club's overwhelming victory over Oakley. Winchester is however, within easy striking distance of the leader and in fact in a mighty fine position for this season of the game.

JUNIOR FLORENCE CRITTENTON NOTES

The annual meeting of the Junior Florence Crittenton was held on Tuesday evening, May 14, at the home of Miss Constance Greco of Everett avenue and was well attended by old and new members.

Miss Gretchen Stone, president of the circle presided and after the business meeting presented Rev. John Nickel Marks, pastor of the Arlington Unitarian Church. Mr. Marks, who is well known to Winchester Groups, gave a most interesting talk which proved both entertaining and inspiring. The chairman of the Nominating Committee presented a ballot of officers for the ensuing year all of whom were elected.

President Miss Gretchen Stone
Vice-President Mrs. Lyndon Burnham
Secretary Miss Janet Grant
Treasurer Miss Dorothy Friend

A pleasant coffee hour followed the close of the meeting thus ending three successful years of Junior Florence Crittenton work in Winchester.

The annual report of the Secretary of the Junior Florence Crittenton League of Winchester for the year 1934-1935 follows:

With this the third annual report of the Winchester Junior Circle of the Florence Crittenton League before us, we look back on a year full of interest and activity. This is due in a large part to the untiring and able leadership of our president, Gretchen Stone. The Board and Committees have worked hard, too, to make this year a success. As we have had the co-operation and help of all the members, we may well feel that our aim has been attained.

The first meeting of the season was held on Oct. 9, 1934 at the home of Mrs. Nathan Reed. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Wilman Adams, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. The musical entertainment was furnished by Mrs. Benjamin Hill and Mrs. Mary Witham.

On Oct. 23, 1934, Open House was held by several members who opened their homes for bridge at 50c per person, netting $23.50 in all. Mrs. Frank Farnham, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee was in charge.

A special meeting was called on Thursday, Nov. 1, 1934 at the home of Mrs. George B. Hayward. Mrs. Vincent Clark gave us a friendly talk and Mrs. James Donovan was the speaker of the evening.

The first big activity of the season was the bazaar at the Copley Plaza on Nov. 14 and 15, 1934. The bazaar, as always, was a large and interesting undertaking and the dance in the evening attracted many. The Medford, Wellesley and Winchester Junior Circles joined in running the dance. We may well feel proud of the way our circle co-operated in making the affair a success by the sale of tickets amounting to $50.50, planned by the Social Service Committee headed by Miss Constance Greco.

The usual visit to the home was made on Dec. 21, 1934 in which several members participated. Dr. Tozier very kindly showed some of his wonderful pictures which were enjoyed by all. Crib sheets which were hemmed by the circle, clothing and small gifts for the girls were distributed. Refreshments were served and all the girls had a good time.

The second regular meeting was held on Jan. 8, at the home of Mrs. Elwell R. Butterworth. Mrs. Nichols as president of the Senior Circle spoke encouragingly of our work. Mrs. Randolph of Welcome House was the speaker of the evening.

On Feb. 19, the Senior Circle held its annual luncheon at the Congregational Church. Many of the girls acted as waitresses and 36 pounds of candy were made by our circle and donated to the candy table.

The third regular meeting was held on March 12, at the home of Mrs. Alfred Friend. Plans for the silver tea on May 19, were discussed. Mrs. Meyer and Mrs. Clark spoke to us and the evening's speaker was the Rev. Ralph Rogers of Auburndale.

In conclusion, I should like to say that the flowers sent during the year by the circle to each hostess are only slight tokens of our appreciation of their kindness and hospitality. On behalf of the board and the circle we now extend our thanks again to those who have so kindly opened their homes to us this year.

The Social Committee headed by Miss Elizabeth Chadwick has done well in providing us with attractive refreshments throughout the year.

The Membership Committee with Mrs. Everett Stone as chairman has increased the membership from 37 to 48 members.

Let us now look back on a year full of profitable activity under the capable guidance of our splendid president, and go forward with the assurance that next year will be even finer than the preceding one.

Respectfully submitted,
Janet Grant, Secretary

ANNUAL MEETING OF MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting of the Mothers' Association (Highland Chapter) was held Tuesday afternoon in the George Washington School, with a good attendance in spite of the colds and illnesses that kept many mothers at home. Favorable reports were read by the committee chairmen, showing a good year's work by the officers and advisory board. This organization seems a very important one, since it has the welfare of our children at heart. It is up to the interested mothers to give it a little more publicity among those who might become members if they knew more about the work and aims of the association. Every mother is eligible, and her help and encouragement and constructive criticisms are much needed.

The nominating committee, Mrs. Hilton, Mrs. Caldwell and Mrs. Ketchorpe presented the following slate of officers for 1935-36 and they were unanimously accepted: President, Mrs. Stanley Barnes of Forest street; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Fred Cameron; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. C. C. Zimmerman; secretary, Mrs. John Wills; treasurer, Mrs. Floyd Clement; advisory board, Mrs. Kenneth Caldwell, outgoing president and Mrs. Clarence Newton; auditor, Mrs. Mortensen.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Blaisdell had charge of the entertainment, which was a departure from the usual lecture or music. Questions and answers pertaining to child problems or rather parent problems, were distributed among the mothers, each one trying to find the correct solution to the special problem given her. It was a fine way to break the formality of such a gathering and would well bear repeating, with more time for discussion of answers and methods, etc.

A social hour followed in the kindergarten room, with Mrs. Doub, Mrs. Bonnell, Mrs. Claffie, Mrs. George Potter and Mrs. Leary as hostesses. Mrs. Frances Conlon, president of the Central Mothers Association and Mrs. Christine Thompson, vice-president, poured. The color scheme was yellow and green. Tea and tiny cakes were served.

It was announced by the president that the annual meeting of the Central Association will be held Tuesday afternoon of June 4 at the George Washington School, and the mothers of the George Washington Chapter will be the hostesses. A large attendance is expected.

Mr. and Mrs. George N. Proctor are now located in their summer home at Marblehead Neck, after spending the winter in Boston.

Thirty Million Miles of Ford Economy

MORE MILES. Faster miles. Greater economy . . . that is the story of the Ford V-8. There are conclusive figures from owners to show that it is the most economical Ford car ever built.

A particularly interesting and complete report of costs comes from a national fleet owner who has owned 854 Ford cars which have run more than thirty million miles in business use.

175 were Model T Fords which were run 5,017,075 miles. 599 were Model A Ford cars which were run 24,041,632 miles. 80 are Ford V-8 cars which have been run 2,982,886 miles.

This owner's cost records show that Ford V-8 cars cost 12% less to operate than the Model A Fords and 31% less than the Model T Fords. And they covered more miles per month! The monthly average for the Model T Fords was 1509 miles. . . . For the Model A Fords, 1866 miles. . . . And 2571 miles for the Ford V-8.

Each year the Ford car gives you more in value and performance and costs you less to operate.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOR

The fifth and last lecture sponsored by the Winchester Chapter of the Guild of the Infant Savior was held at the home of Mrs. James F. Day, 25 Ridgefield road on Friday afternoon, May 17, at 2:30 o'clock. The popularity of the speaker, Rev. Fr. Charles McInnis, professor of Dogmatic Theology at St. John's Seminary, Brighton and the fine musical program offered by Portia Di Giorgio, made the afternoon a doubly enjoyable one.

Mrs. Margaret T. Hintlian, president of the Guild, welcomed the guests and thanked the hostess of the afternoon for her graciousness in opening her home for the lecture. She then introduced Miss Portia Di Giorgio, soprano. Miss Di Giorgio disclosed to her listeners a voice of inherently beautiful quality which she uses skillfully. She has studied both in Boston and New York and in 1932 was the Atwater Kent winner. Miss Di Giorgio's charming personality and real musical talent captivated her audience. She was accompanied by Mary Ranton Witham.

Her first group of songs included:

"Vio lo sopete o Mama" . . . . Mascagni
"Songs My Mother Taught Me" . . Dvorak
"Devotion" . . . . Strauss

As her second group Miss Di Giorgia sang:

"Vio lo sopete o mama" . . . . Mascagni
"One Night of Love" . . . . . . Schertzinger
"None But the Lonely Heart" . . Tchaikowsky

A very cordial welcome was given Father McInnis. His subject for the afternoon was "Elizabeth Tudor, Queen of England." She was the daughter of Henry VIII and Anne Boleyn and was scarcely three years old when her mother was beheaded and only 13 at the death of her father. As Princess Elizabeth, she had the advantage of the best teachers and masters, especially under the supervision of Catherine Parr, the last of Henry's queens. During the reign of her half-sister, Mary, her life was in imminent danger, though she was allowed to remain in seclusion at Hatfield until her accession to the throne in 1558, at the age of 26. Elizabeth was as Protestant as Mary was Catholic and her first act as ruler was to re-establish Protestantism in England and Scotland. The same problems were in England in that day as are in Germany, Russia and Mexico today, the rights of people to worship God in their own way, or the church against the absolute power of rule. The real terror that made the block and ax rock the country, made England break with Rome in 1570.

To this reign, belongs Hawkins, Drake, Sir Walter Raleigh, Spencer, Shakespeare and Bacon. The encouragement she gave seamen and discoverers generally caused her to be called the "Restorer of the English Navy."

She died in 1603 and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

Tea was served by the hostess with Mrs. Thomas Hennessy and Mrs. W. F. Hickey pouring, and Mrs. W. T. Mulcahy, Mrs. James Carr and Mrs. W. J. Croughwell serving. The ushers were Mrs. Phillip O'Rourke and Mrs. Burke.

MISS FERGUSON ENGAGED

Mr. and Mrs. William Ferguson of Wedgemere avenue have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy May Ferguson, to Laurence Drake Sibley, son of Mrs. Arthur E. Sibley and the late Mr. Sibley of Braintree.

Miss Ferguson is a graduate of the House-in-the-Pines School and of Skidmore College. Mr. Sibley is a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"HAWAIIAN GARDENS"

On Tuesday, May 28, at 8 p. m. in Metcalf Hall, under the auspices of the "Better Homes Garden Club of Winchester," Mrs. Alice Cooper Bailey will give an illustrated lecture entitled, "In An Hawaiian Garden." Mrs. Bailey lived all her early life in Honolulu where her father, Judge Henry Cooper, was most prominent in governmental affairs. Since her marriage in 1913 to Mr. George W. Bailey she lived for several years in Winchester later moving to her present residence in Weston.

Mrs. Bailey began writing short stories while living in Winchester and her first published story came out in the Winchester Star.

Since then she has progressed rapidly in her writing and has four published books to her credit, all stories for children, "Katrina and Jan," "The Skating Gander," "Kino" and "Sun Gold." The first two are stories of Holland and the last two of her beloved Hawaii.

A few years ago she decided to lecture about Hawaii feeling she had something unusual to give an audience in experience and history as lived by her family in these beautiful Islands of the Pacific. She has had great success in this field and has lectured in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington as well as many places here in Boston and New England. Her first lecture is entitled, "Growing Up in Hawaii" and the second, "In An Hawaiaan Garden." Many of the pictures in this second lecture were taken by Mrs. Bailey on her last trip to Hawaii, beauty spots she alone could show as these gardens are not open to the public. Gardens, alone, form a small part of her lecture for her pictures show the gorgeous blooms of individual flowers, flowering trees and palms. The whole island is one beautiful garden and as such Mrs. Bailey brings it to us on May 28.

Following the lecture, Mrs. Lorna Iaukea Watson, of Milton, will have an exhibition of Hawaiian handcraft. Mrs. Watson's father and Mrs. Bailey's father each have held the position of Secretary of State under the Territorial Government, so it is quite fitting these two friends should appear on the same program to give Winchester of their store of knowledge of the "Paradise of the Pacific."

There will also be Hawaiian music before and after the lecture by native musicians.

LARGE CLASS CONFIRMED AT IMMACULATE CONCEPTION CHURCH

The Immaculate Conception Church was crowded to the doors Tuesday afternoon when a class of 136 boys and girls received the sacrament of confirmation from Bishop Francis Spellman of Newton, auxiliary Bishop of the Boston Archdiocese.

Bishop Spellman was assisted by Rev. Fr. James Fitzsimons, pastor of the church, his assistant, Rev. Fr. Charles Foley, Rev. Fr. Conrad J. Quirbach of St. Mary's Church and Rev. Fr. Bernard Winn, who came to Winchester from Newton with the Bishop.

The children made an attractive appearance, the little girls in white frocks and the boys, in their dark suits. Miss Gertrude Ball of Woburn was sponsor for the girls and Mr. Archibald McDonald of this town was sponsor for the boys. The altar of the church was prettily decorated with freshly cut flowers.

LEGION BAND HAS THREE ENGAGEMENTS

The fine military band of Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, after several most successful radio engagements during the past winter, is swinging into action for its spring and summer season Sunday, May 26, when it has been secured to play for the reunion and banquet of the Emmet Guards 101st Infantry Association at the Woburn Armory.

On Memorial Day the band, under the direction of Leader Charles E. Young, will play for the Memorial exercises in Melrose, a return engagement which takes place in the forenoon.

In the afternoon the band will play for the local parades as usual, and Manager Emanuel J. LaRue promises his many friends in town some fine new music for the occasion as well as several popular numbers proven favorites in past years.

The Winchester Post Band is composed of accomplished musicians and has never failed to give the utmost satisfaction during all its engagements here. Many are looking forward to hearing it again on Memorial Day.

Wednesday night's movie hearing re-enabled in no small degree our present New Deal. All inoffensive citizens who disagreed with acknowledged leaders, were immediately cracked down.

Perhaps it might be a good idea for one of us to get together and tie up with one of these traffic experts—then we would be sure to get a place to park within a half-mile of the center.

The prevalence of bicycle stealing is a problem which is causing the police considerable concern, and taking not a little of the officers' time and effort which might better be expended in more important police work. A little closer supervision of their machines by local youngsters would do away with much of the trouble by removing the opportunity to steal the bicycles, for it is the Star's feeling, based upon observation, that many children are very careless in the way they leave their property lying around. The desire to own and ride a bicycle is universal in youngsters, and those unable to have them are sorely tempted when they see a machine unguarded and with no one around to prevent taking it for a ride. We are not condoning the theft of bicycles and particularly the operations of the gangs of bicycle thieves, who deserve no sympathy; but we do say that those children who have machines should be a great deal more careful of them, and should not contribute to bicycle stealing by unduly placing temptation in the way of youngsters whose desire to have a "bike" is overpowering.

If the hearing of Wednesday night on the location of Winchester's movie theatre proved of any value to the Selectmen in aiding them to determine what site the Town favors, they constitute a particularly astute body, for to an unbiased observer the situation remains unchanged. The various petitioners presented their plans and desires plainly and fully, and it is presumed that these features had been previously well digested by the Selectmen. If the Selectmen, in their desire to follow the majority wishes of the Town, felt it necessary to hold a referendum to prove that the town meeting vote against movies was wrong, it might appear a good idea to hold a similar ballot vote to prove that their selection of a site is right. If movies themselves warranted a vote, surely their location cannot be sidetracked as an unimportant factor. Since no expression of public opinion was taken, that factor still remains unsolved. The fact that the Board is to move slowly in the matter and take proper deliberations was received with satisfaction, and it is to be hoped that the summer months may be used for this purpose, with a proper and representative ballot vote in the Fall. If such procedure is followed, now that the Town knows what it can obtain and where, the Board will be fully following out its announced policy of acceding to the wishes of the entire populace.

The letters printed elsewhere in this issue of the Star regarding the prospect of the elimination of our grade crossing should prove encouraging to a host of citizens who have worked for years to secure this important safeguard. It is particularly gratifying to learn that our Representative in Congress, Edith Nourse Rogers, has interested herself in the matter and is giving it her careful attention. Mrs. Rogers has proven a most able and satisfactory ambassador. If she can, through her support, aid Winchester in the elimination of this death trap, she will be instrumental in carrying through to consummation one of the most important and long-sought benefits this town has desired for many years. Our grade crossing elimination has so many times been at the point of actuality, only to be relegated into the dim and distant future, that some of its most ardent advocates have become so skeptical of its completion that they have placed it along with some other present-day heirlooms for a coming generation. Now it appears again that the project may be carried through, and if such is the case, let us hope that the Town of Winchester will present a united front as to the method and solidly stand behind a plan which will improve and not detract from the costly and well conceived development carried on since Winchester was incorpated.

Next Thursday is Memorial Day, a day that tugs the heart strings as we recall in memory loved ones who have gone from us. Especially has the occasion a deep significance for war veterans as they gather to pay reverent tribute to their comrades of all wars who made the supreme sacrifice. It is the attitude and influence of those who have served their Country in time of strife that is largely responsible for the changing attitude of the public toward Memorial Day, and each year sees the occasion more firmly established as a "holy day" and further removed from the general run of holidays given over to amusement. The veterans ask that we join with them in honoring the soldier dead. It is little to ask and we will all be spiritually richer for pausing awhile to think of those whose lives have meant so much to the Country and to every one in times of need.

While we do not know the exact number of applicants, it is reported that only six or eight men have signified their intention of taking the civil service examination for appointment to the Winchester Fire Department. In view of the sums the town is spending and has spent for unemployment relief and the numbers of able bodied men at present looking for work this seems a sorry showing. Privates in the Fire Department now start at $1500 and advance to a maximum salary of $1800. The maximum pay with the ten per cent pay cut returned is $2100. The lesser figures compare very favorably with what many trained men are now getting in business, and neither the hours nor the work is so arduous that any man in good health need hesitate to undertake them. Why have there been so few applicants? Can it be that community and government unemployment assistance have taken from our young men the desire to pay their own way?

TIME EXPLAINS

The following letter, contributed by Mr. Ernest Dudley Chase, is self explanatory as replying to his query regarding Time's article on Winchester movies.

Dear Mr. Chase:

TIME'S thanks for your comments on our recent report of Winchester and the movies.

"Snobbish" was possibly a poor word for us to use. We should have indicated more clearly our meaning that Winchester people are very proud of and interested in their town.

Sincerely yours,
I. Van Meter,
Editorial Secretary

CROSSING ELIMINATION

Winchester Included in List Submitted

Winchester apparently has an excellent chance to have its dangerous grade crossing eliminated. According to the following communications.

Congress of the United States
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C.,
May 20, 1935

Mr. Theodore P. Wilson,
Winchester Star,
Winchester, Mass.

My dear Mr. Wilson:

I have received a copy of the Winchester Star of May 10 containing your editorial concerning the elimination of the Winchester grade crossing.

I am anxious to help with this project in every way I can. In order to secure the federal money for the project, it will have to be approved by Honorable William F. Callahan, Commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Public Works at Boston. If he approves the project, it will be referred to the District Engineer of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads in Massachusetts. The Winchester people have probably taken up the matter with Commissioner Callahan. If you have suggestions at any time, I hope you will let me know. I am working on the matter and shall write to you again in a short time.

With kind regards and best wishes,
Very sincerely yours,
Edith Nourse Rogers,
(Mrs. John Jacob Rogers)

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts
Department of Public Works
Office of the Commissioner
100 Nashua St., Boston,
May 21, 1935

Honorable Edith Nourse Rogers,
Member of Congress,
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mrs. Rogers:

I have your favor of May 18 with reference to the elimination of the railroad grade crossing in Winchester, and I am writing to advise you that we have included this project in the list which has been submitted to the Government. It is one that I believe will be near the head of the list, but the Department is awaiting definite information from Washington as to the amount of money which will be available.

It is our hope that we will get a very large grant for work of this type, as it is greatly needed in Massachusetts.

Trusting that this is the information which you desired, and with kind regards, I am,

Respectfully yours,
William F. Callahan,
Commissioner

F. E. R. A.

May 22, 1935

To the Editor of the Star:

Because they do not agree with the present administration at Washington is no reason why local property owners should not heartily support, and encourage the present F. E. R. A. Better Housing Campaign just started to brighten up our town and make it an even better place in which to live. Pride in our town and its beautiful makeup should awaken loyalty to its betterment over and above all obligations to President Roosevelt's projects.

The shirking remarks flung at some of our field instructors by some of our citizens does not speak of loyalty to the town in which they own a home.

Let us push this movement on to success, now that the project is here.

It will be a source of pride to each and all to find our town near the top in new work on our homes as the campaign progresses.

Encourage our field instructors by approving the undertaking and thereby add to their enthusiasm to obtain real results rather than criticize. Winchester should head the list.

John Bellew,
Supervisor Federal Housing

To the Editor of the Star:

The following information has been sent by Arthur G. Rotch, Administrator, to each and every local Administrator within his jurisdiction:

Rural Electrification

We have received at this office many applications in person, by mail, and by telephone for employment in construction of rural electrification.

At present E. R. A. is conducting only a survey concerning possible rural electrification. No definite program for actual construction of rural extensions has yet been planned.

All those who wish to make application for work in connection with construction when, and if, it is undertaken should go to the Local Emergency Relief Administrations, and they should also register at such National Reemployment offices, or State Reemployment offices as are conveniently accessible.

(Signed) Arthur G. Rotch,
Administrator

Yours sincerely,
Earle E. Andrews,

has at present no site to offer and will be glad to operate a theatre at any site the town may believe desirable.

Mr. Farnsworth then asked Attorney Chapin to rise and answer any questions that the meeting might care to ask him. When none was forthcoming the chairman asked all those favoring Mr. Locatelli's proposed theatre to so record themselves.

Mr. Laraway objected, feeling that the matter should be debated, and Dr. Chidley felt that no vote should be taken since three of the four proposals were first heard that night and people are not yet sufficiently acquainted with what they have to offer to judge fairly of their merits.

Mr. Sherburn felt it only fair to grant the permit to Mr. Locatelli, since he had worked for more than a year to obtain it and his is the only location which will have the advantage of store trade necessary to carry the theatre.

Mr. Farnsworth replied with some emphasis that Mr. Locatelli had been told when he made his original application that the Board would do nothing until after a vote by the town and that if the town should vote for motion pictures, there would undoubtedly be other applicants, all of whom would be given equal consideration. The Board has found Mr. Locatelli strictly honorable in his dealing with it, and intends to be fair to him and to the other applicants. The Board does not feel that it or the town is under any obligation to Mr. Locatelli for any efforts he may have made in the interest of motion pictures here.

Dr. Chidley felt that the parking figures given were conflicting and Mr. Farnsworth replied that an exhaustive traffic survey now being taken will give the Board authoritative figures in this connection. Mr. McDevitt thought the character of the pictures to be shown is important and in reply Mr. Farnsworth reminded him that the Board can at any time revoke the operator's license.

Mr. Pinanski, who represented a motion picture distributor, in reply to questions stated that it is futile for any operator to agree to reject any pictures that certain persons may feel undesirable. He must make a reasonable return on his investment and must show pictures with financial possibilities. He further felt it unwise to erect in a town like Winchester a luxurious and pretentious theatre which must depend upon the revenue from seven to five. In this connection the rental from the stores in question must generally be too high for the average tenant to pay.

In this connection Mr. Worthen stated that his clients do not believe stores necessary for the support of the theatre they propose to operate.

Mr. Laraway vociferously championed Mr. Locatelli's proposed theatre as the only plan with any merit whatsoever, at the same time scathingly denouncing and holding up to ridicule all other proposals.

Mr. Baker felt that the recent referendum had indicated a preference for Mr. Locatelli's theatre, and Mr. Wagner asked for information about restricted parking. Mr. Donovan felt that some sense of the meeting vote should be taken upon the various plans, but this was not the pleasure of the Board. Mrs. Flagg of the Newton Motion Picture Council attended the hearing and offered to answer any questions that might be asked.

After the meeting had adjourned, many remained at the hall looking over the pictures of the various proposed theatres on exhibition.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Two members were absent from the meeting of May 23.

It is well and generally known that the loss of life in the United States directly chargeable to automobile accidents is appallingly and unnecessarily large. The Rotary Club of Santa Ana, Calif., is "doing something about it." Each of its 71 members has pledged himself to display on the windshield of his car a card inscribed as follows:

2805

In the interest of the general welfare; to protect and preserve life; to promote good citizenship, earnest and continuous efforts are being made to operate this automobile in strict compliance with motor traffic laws and regulations.

The number 2805 draws many questions as to its significance. It refers to the number of persons killed on the highways of California in 1934 by automobiles. A very ingenious idea to secure publicity for the movement.

James W. ("Jim") Davidson, responsible possibly more than any other individual Rotarian for the world-wide extension of Rotary and the organization of new clubs, has been honored by having his named assigned to a prominent and picturesque mountain in Western Canada. Mount Davidson, elevation 9576 feet, is situated in Banff Park to the south of the town of Banff. "Jim" has passed on to his reward. Here on earth his memory will be fittingly preserved for the inspiration of future generations.

Parker Holbrook, one of the newer members of our club presented his vocational address at the current meeting. Parker enumerated the various duties of the town engineer, stressing the fact that this official has direct contacts with practically all departments of our municipal government. In Winchester the Engineering Department was created in 1901 and the late James Hinds held the office of town engineer for 30 years. Probably no town of similar size in this Commonwealth has a more efficient Engineering Department than Winchester. The data collected and collated during all these years constitutes an invaluable asset for town officials and citizens. The speaker courteously answered various queries at the close of his address.

There will be no regular meeting of this club next week due to the holiday which falls on our regular meeting day. Members are especially invited and urged to attend the meeting of the Waltham Club on Wednesday, May 29, at the Swedish Church. Our incoming district governor, Henry P. Porter of Boston, will be present to address a joint meeting called for that date.

The next meeting of this club will be held at regular quarters on Thursday, June 6.

Percentage of attendance May 16—90.33 per cent.

MEMEL, LITHUANIA'S DOOR TO THE SEA

Strained international relations between Germany and Lithuania over Memel Territory are echoes of ancient discord, once harmoniously settled by a League of Nations Commission headed by a citizen of the United States, Norman Davis.

By the Treaty of Versailles, it was determined that Memel Territory was to be detached from Germany and governed by ambassadors of the allied and associated powers, represented by a French High Commissioner, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Lithuanians revolted in 1923, taking the rule of the country into their own hands. An ambassador's conference then handed Memel over to Lithuania, although the action was the cause of much dispute.

League Settlement in 1924

Finally the Memel question was turned over to the League of Nations for adjudication. A special commission, under the chairmanship of Norman Davis, brought about a settlement. As a result, the Memel Convention was signed in Paris in 1924 by Great Britain, France, Italy, and Japan on the one hand, and Lithuania on the other.

According to the terms of the Convention, the Territory of Memel was a part of Lithuania, but with a large measure of local rule. The port of Memel, regarded as of international importance, was to be administered by a Harbor Board of three men one from the Lithuanian Government, one from the Memel Territory, and the third appointed by the League of Nations.

The area of Memel Territory is 943 square miles, about three-fourths that of Rhode Island, and its population is approximately 146,000 persons. It constitutes Lithuania's only door to the sea.

Harbor Never Frozen Over

Its chief city, Memel (called Klaipeda by Lithuanians), is located on one of the largest and most convenient ports of the Baltic Sea. Protected by a 60-mile long spit of land, this seaport, on the mouth of the Niemen River, has an advantage over other Baltic ports in that it is never frozen over.

When Lithuania, after the World War, resumed direction of Memel affairs, it found that port facilities had been badly neglected. Breakwaters and wharves had fallen into decay and ruin. The government speedily restored the entire area. The harbor entrance was deepened, and today vessels of 10,000 tons unload cargoes from many lands at its up-to-date wharves, equipped with warehouses, oil tanks, grain elevators, and cold storage plants. Railroads link the port with the interior.

Lithuania's forests play an important part in the economic life of the city. Vast quantities of timber are floated to the seaport, via the Niemen River. As a result, Memel progress has been built upon its wood industries—saw mills, factories that manufacture cellulose, and shipbuilding yards.

Although the region surrounding Memel is largely devoted to farming, heavy rains in July and August make it better adapted to stock raising and root crops than production of grains. Hence, the number of livestock has been gradually increasing since 1920.

Amber an Unusual Industry

Because of its historic interest, the production of amber in Memel deserves special attention. All the stages by which an unattractive lump of fossil gum becomes the amber of commerce may be studied in Memel factories. Greatly valued by the ancients, Baltic amber has given historians unmistakable clues regarding the routes taken by traders in the days when Phoenicians bartered for the commercial products of the known world. Baltic amber has been found in Mycenean tombs as well as in the burial vaults of Tutankhamen. The foot prints of ancient history, it might be said, were outlined in the amber of Lithuania.

Because of its accessible harbor, Memel's importance as a Baltic seaport has increased each year. In 1921, for instance, only 669 vessels, of 146,704 tons, unloaded at its wharves. In 1932, 1113 vessels of 925,700 tons, entered and 117 vessels, of 942,100 tons, cleared the port. Memel's principal exports are railroad ties, paving blocks, staves, veneer, and wood pulp; chief imports are fertilizers, coal, cotton goods, salt, cement, herring, sugar, and beverages.

A five-day voyage from London, Memel is within easy access of several delightful summer bathing resorts, notably at Schwartzort, Sandkrug, Nidden, and Palanga. All are on the Baltic Sea, and are famous for their golden-sand beaches, and towering pine woods nearby.

Diversity of Foot Forms

Due to the mixed lineage of the average American, there is no such thing as a definite foot form. Some of our ancestors wore sabots, others moccasins, some went barefoot and others wore boots. The results of intermingling these acquired characteristics is a diversity of foot forms.

Young Columbus Made Maps

During his boyhood, Christopher Columbus was a seaman and an expert map and chart-maker. The latter qualification made him popular among sea captains and eventually led him to Isabella and Ferdinand, the Spanish sovereigns, who financed his voyages of exploration.

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 26.

The Golden Text is: "My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God" (Psalms 84:2).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The Lord upholdeth all that fall, and raiseth up all those that be bowed down. The eyes of all wait upon thee; and thou givest them their meat in due season. Thou openest thine hand, and satisfiest the desire of every living thing" (Psalms 145:14-16).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "We cannot deny that Life is self-sustained, and we should never deny the everlasting harmony of Soul, simply because, to the mortal senses, there is seeming discord. It is our ignorance of God, the divine Principle, which produces apparent discord, and the right understanding of Him restores harmony. Truth will at length compel us all to exchange the pleasures and pains of sense for the joys of Soul" (p. 390).

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

According to an appearance entered yesterday the will of the late George Harrington of this town is to be contested by Mrs. Persis Hutchins of Winchester N. H. Mrs. Hutchins claims to be a cousin of the deceased and seeks to have the court appoint a special administrator. The residue of the Harrington estate, estimated at $350,000 was left for the study of mental diseases. Papers filed with the will a few days ago stated that the names and residences of heirs-at-law and next of kin are unknown to the executor.

Stevenson Carey of Governor's avenue, recently returned with the Byrd Expedition, of which he was supply officer, is to be the guest of the Lawrence Light Guards of Medford at a banquet on Memorial Day. At this banquet "Steve" will officially return the Light Guard's guidon he took with him on his trip to "Little America."

The Police were called Wednesday evening to unravel a puzzler at the home of Mr. John Hussey at 45 Yale street. Mr. Hussey's car, parked in his closed garage suddenly started up and smashed through the doors. No one was near the machine which was found to be in reverse gear. Patrolman James P. Donaghey went to investigate and after a check-up decided the car had been started by boys.

Three Types of Hair

The structure of human hair is threefold: Short and crisp, generally termed "woolly," always jet black in color; straight, lank, long and coarse, and black almost without exception; wavy and curly or smooth and silky, mainly fair, with black, brown, red or towy varieties. The first is the hair of all the black races except the Australians and the aborigines of India. The second is the hair of the yellow races, while the third is that of Europeans. The Australian, Papuan and Dravidian types exhibit a variety of hair intermediate between one and two, which may be called "frizzy."

Town on a Glacier

The town of Wainwright, Alaska, stands on what scientists declare is a glacier that has stopped moving. The ice is covered with about two feet of soil. Every householder may have a refrigerator simply by digging down through the soil covering the ice. That the ice has been there thousands of years is proved by the fact that bodies of mammoths, a pre-historic elephant-like animal, have been found still in a perfect state of preservation. For ten weeks every summer the sun is constantly visible at Wainwright and for ten weeks every winter it is dark the full 24 hours.

Animals' Weapons

The giraffe attacks his enemy, when necessary, by clubbing him soundly with his head, which, one might imagine, would hurt the giraffe nearly as much as his enemy. The elephant stamps and crushes his enemies to death with his mighty forefeet. The llama bites and spits and kicks in a primitive sort of fashion, and the ostrich, too, fights with its feet. So does the kangaroo.

Give and Take

MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION ANNUAL MEETING IN WASHINGTON SCHOOL TUESDAY, JUNE 4

At the Washington School Tuesday, June 4, at 2 p. m. the chapters of the Mothers' Association will hold their annual joint meeting and election of officers of the Executive Board. Reports from each chapter covering the year's activities and the announcement of their newly elected officers will be given. As each chapter functions differently according to their own rulings, these reports are varied and interesting. The Executive Board will report of its meetings and the chairman of the Scholarship Fund Committee will make her report. Announcement of the scholarship award is made at the High School graduation exercises.

The association did not have a day for the children on Manchester Field this year, as has been done for several years past, when two pet shows and an athletic meet have been held. The annual tag day to raise scholarship fund money was the only united activity of the chapters this year.

Membership in the Association is cordially open to a mother in the chapter where her children attend the public grade school. Many mothers because they are new in Winchester or have never been told do not realize that the Mothers' Association has been a vital influence in Winchester for a great many years. Starting over 30 years ago as a Congregational Mothers' Club under the leadership of the late Mrs. Harrison Parker, mothers gathered at the church to sew while discussing children and school problems. It was soon evident what good might be accomplished if the club were open to all Winchester mothers. In 1911 the Mothers' Association was organized and met for many years in the High School Hall. Mrs. Parer, until her death, with Mrs. Henry Ordway, Mrs. William C. Sache, Mrs. Mary Carpenter, Mrs. Harry C. Sanborn, Mrs. Alfred Higgins, Mrs. F. Patterson Smith, the late Mrs. William A. Lefavour and Mrs. Thomas McPartlin and many others were active in the home and school work for years. Each year a luncheon was provided for the teachers the first day of school. This was held at Mrs. Parker's home until the new Mystic School was used. This very happy and social hour was discontinued two years ago, following a very successful one at the Unitarian Parish House. Due to the greatly increased faculty and the difficulty in organizing a committee who would be home to serve it, it seemed wise to substitute another plan. These last two years tea has been served to the faculty following Superintendent Quinn's meeting with the teachers, held each year the day before school opens. The original plan was a "party" on the Wyman School grounds, but weather made it necessary to use the kindergarten room. This year Mr. Quinn anticipates holding his meeting in the High School Auditorium, and if the tea is held, the cafeteria and gym can be used for this hour, which is greatly appreciated by the teachers.

Following the building of the new schools and the increased interest in each district, the Association Board established definite chapters in each elementary school, these chapters to function as they found advisable, but always with the object of encouraging acquaintance among the mothers, of promoting the welfare of the children and of co-operating with the teachers for the good of all. One common activity is the monthly teachers' luncheon, served either in the schools or nearby homes. The presidents and secretaries of the chapters constitute an Executive Board or Council, together with a president, two vice presidents, secretary, treasurer, advisor and social chairman, elected at the annual meeting from the membership at large. The chairman of the Scholarship Fund Committee is also a member of the Executive Board.

The board meetings, although not frequent, are interesting as discussions among the representatives of each district encourage a better community spirit and understanding of the schools and the mothers' relation to them.

No common activity was established until the late Mrs. Clifford Towner instituted "Dads' Night." For three years these programs were given by the children to packed halls, the most outstanding one being the Tercentenary Program which was the same in each school and which was written by Miss Edna Hatch, principal of the Washington School. This year "Dads' Night" was open house to parents to meet the teachers in their rooms, inspect the children's work and later attend an entertainment in the halls. The association would like to sponsor more evenings when the school auditoriums are open to district parents.

The decision to give a scholarship to a graduating pupil of the high school was voted three years ago following an outline of such a plan presented by Mr. Quinn the year before. Two of the schools also have a scholarship of their own. The committee on scholarship, working under the Executive Board and with the chapters, as represented on the Board by their presidents, have seen this work become of community interest. The increase in the amount of money raised and donated and the larger list of applicants each year make the Scholarship Fund Committee work one of responsibility. Richard Barsdale was the first to receive the scholarship, and at Bowdoin he has qualified each year for other funds. Last year Miss Margaret Ekern, entering Smith and Miss Esther Loftus, Radcliffe, were the winners. Each girl has been able to earn further help at her college. This year's awards are anticipated by many as the scholarship is better known.

Another united work of the chapters under their Executive Board was the raising of a memorial to Mrs. Harrison Parker. In 1932, the flag and staff, beautifully marked with a bronze tablet suitably engraved was placed on the Junior High School grounds. The town further honored Mrs. Parker by naming the playground "Parker Field." The ceremony was attended by many members of the Parker family who deeply appreciated what the association had done, and felt the honor should be shared by all the mothers who so long ago recognized the value of the organization.

The memorial to Mrs. Parker was successfully completed through the efforts of Mrs. Lucius Smith, then president of the association. Mrs. Smith was also responsible for the success of the pet shows held on Manchester Field and it was during her administration that the scholarship fund was instituted.

For the past two years the president of the Executive Board has been Mrs. Thomas W. Conlon of Canal street, whose mother, Mrs. Patrick Noonan, was an early association worker. The other members who served with her are:

1st Vice President Mrs. Albert Thompson
2nd Vice President Mrs. Wallace Murphy
Secretary Mrs. Carl Sittinger
Treasurer Mrs. Carl Eaton
Advisor Mrs. Harry Sanborn
Chairman of the Scholarship Fund Committee Mrs. William E. Spalding and the following chapter presidents:

Lincoln Chapter Mrs. John Lindsey
Mystic Chapter Mrs. Kenneth Hall
Noonan Chapter Mrs. Thomas McGowan
Washington Chapter Mrs. Kenneth Caldwell
Wyman Chapter Mrs. John H. Joy

That a large group from each chapter will attend this annual meeting and hear the reports of the association's year's work is anticipated. A social hour planned by Mrs. Harold Fifield and Mrs. Gustave Josephson will follow the business meeting and the Washington-Highland Chapter of Mothers will be hostesses.

REPORT OF JUNIOR RED CROSS CONFERENCE

Madam Chairman and Board Members:

Mystic School was pleased and honored to learn that our Junior Red Cross president was to have an opportunity to attend an annual conference at Washington. The boys and girls in our upper grades were almost as excited about the trip as "Jimmy" himself. All seemed to share in his good fortune.

Your Junior delegate has reported our trip in some detail, so I shall confine myself to a rather concise account of the meetings from an adult point of view.

The address "Our Opportunity to Serve," by Miss Anderson, high school girl of Tacoma, Wash., was so earnestly and sincerely presented that it seemed to me the most gripping one of that opening session. Her closing quotation about the Junior Red Cross was, I think, worth repeating in this report:

"It is world wide—its work never ceases—it is unbiased—it knows no limitations—its policy is the Golden Rule—its interest is the welfare of mankind—its aim the betterment of life—it is youth and the ideals of youth—it is love and the spirit of love—it is the strength of boys, the motherliness of girls—it is expressive of the beauty that reposes in the heart of every child. It is a gesture of friendliness and expression of peace—a society of which you and I and all boys and girls, as well as men and women, may well be proud. It is worthy of us: are we worthy of it?"

This certainly was a challenge to the best in every Junior present.

Except for the first and final meetings the Juniors conducted their meetings, with chairman and secretary chosen by vote from their number.

There were about 520 delegates, alert, wholesome boys and girls ranging in age from 11 to possibly 18 or 19—every one sincere in his desire to serve, enthusiastic in presenting his ideas, and extremely cooperative in helping to make the conference worthwhile. The chairman was most efficient in holding the meeting to the topic under discussion and the delegates most responsive to his suggestions. It was an encouraging sight for teacher or parent—a view of modern youth which is too little advertised.

Through the entire conference ran the idea of service beyond self—doing something for someone else—and doing that something in the most thoughtful, helpful, kindly way. The listener realized that these boys and girls were not vainly displaying their kindness and generosity but felt themselves merely good citizens sharing their opportunities and advantages because all men are one big family.

One session was assigned to the discussion of new projects. Considerable time was given to the explanation of an "Intermediate Service League" or "Graduate Group." This type of group, consisting of young men and women who have left high school and who are at work or are in college, has been formed in Boston, in Salem Teachers' College, and in Chicago where it is called "Auxiliary Circle." The purpose of these groups is to form a link between the Juniors and the Seniors and thus insure continuous interest in Red Cross work.

The afternoon spent on International Correspondence was a most helpful one, not only because of the ideas for booklets which I gleaned from the talks, but because of the value in the work for training our boys and girls. The exchange of gifts and booklets leads to acquaintance with, and understanding of children in other lands. These gifts and books are so beautifully made that our children learn respect for the skill of foreign peoples. The exchange of ideas must lead toward greater knowledge of each other, toward the removal of racial prejudices, toward increased sympathy between groups. This appreciation of the people of other lands and the friendly relations between the children are a tremendous force in establishing the ideal of human brotherhood and of world peace.

I am grateful to you for the opportunity to attend these meetings. I enjoyed them, every one, but, more than that, I came home with a strengthened conviction that we have a powerful agency for teaching ideals and an opportunity for carrying those ideals into action in our Junior Red Cross.

MRS. HANNAH A. SULLIVAN

Mrs. Hannah A. Sullivan, wife of James E. Sullivan and for many years a resident of Winchester, died Sunday morning, May 19, at her home 23 Oak street, after a long illness.

Mrs. Sullivan was the daughter of Edward and Catherine Flaherty and was born 70 years ago in Woburn. She was educated in the Woburn schools and made her home in that city until the time of her marriage when she came to Winchester.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two daughters, Mrs. Catherine Welch of Arlington and Miss Josephine Sullivan of this town; a son, John Sullivan of East Orange, N. J., and a sister, Mrs. Mary Weafer of Reading.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning from the late residence with high mass of requiem in St. Mary's Church. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL PRESENTS ANNUAL PLAY

An appreciative audience filled the Town Hall, Tuesday evening when the pupils of St. Mary's School presented their annual entertainment. The Grammar School performance was patriotic. Each child carried a flag, and by the manner in which he handled it, proved to the audience how much he loves and reveres the dear old "Stars and Stripes."

This part of the program culminated in a finale with Columbia, Eleanor Scanlon, raised on a platform surrounded by Marines, Cadets, Cowboys and girls, and "Friends from Across the Sea," the guests of Uncle Sam. It was, indeed, a colorful spectacle. During this tableau, the ensemble sang "There is no Land Like Our Own." As a fitting close for this grand finale, the children sang, the "Star Spangled Banner" while they waved their flags gracefully in the air.

The second part of the program which was a Dance Cycle, "May the Maiden," was presented by the pupils of the high school. The girls were dressed in the pastel shades which blended very beautifully as they danced around their May Queen, Miss Ruth O'Neil, who was crowned with pink roses. The singing was exceptionally good.

The performance was coached by Miss Ann M. Gurney, a teacher of elocution in St. Mary's School for the past eight years.

At the close of the entertainment, Rev. Aloysius Malone, the pastor of St. Mary's addressed the audience. He spoke of the excellent work of the children under the able direction of the Sisters, the coach, and the organist, and remarked that he would be willing to attend a repetition of the performance and still feel the same amount of interest.

The program was as follows:

Information has been received at the U. S. MISS NICHOLSON ENTERTAINS AT LADIES' NIGHT

Miss Alta Lena Nicholson furnished a delightful evening of fun and laughter at the Annual Ladies' Night of the Brotherhood at the First Baptist Church on Friday, May 17. Her character impersonations, readings of character monologues, comedy and dramatic songs, were charmingly rendered, and of a very high order, while causing laughter until tears ran down the cheeks of the audience. Miss Nicholson is wonderfully talented, and plays the 'cello and saxophone, and has a very pleasing soprano voice. Many have voiced the wish that she appear again at an early date, and that the opportunity of hearing her be given to the general public.

MR. AND MRS. FRANCES HENDERSON ENTERTAIN BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE

The Young People of the First Baptist Church, of High School age and over, will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frances Henderson, at their delightful summer home on Ridge road, on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. WINCHESTER MAN INJURED WHILE CHANGING TIRE

Frank DeLaurier of this town was painfully injured early Sunday morning when he was struck by an automobile while changing a tire on his machine which was standing on Washington street in Boston near West street.

Miss Mary Crowley of Brookline, who was with Mr. DeLaurier, was also struck by the machine, the driver of which did not stop and was, according to the Boston Police, later arrested by Patrolman Francis Connolly of Milk street station, who gave chase in a commandeered machine.

The alleged driver was taken to Station 2 where he gave his name as William J. Knapp of 195 Highland avenue, Wollaston. He was held on charges of drunkenness and driving so as to endanger.

Miss Crowley and Mr. DeLaurier were taken to the Haymarket Relief Hospital where the former was found to have sustained multiple cuts and bruises about the knees and back. She was held at the hospital for treatment. Mr. DeLaurier was able to go to his home after being treated for cuts and bruises to his knees.

WINCHESTER HORSE SHOW GALA EVENT

Winchester and West Medford Entries Won Special Awards

The usual big, colorful crowd was attracted to Harry Good's Riding School, bordering Middlesex Fells in Medford last Saturday for the annual Horse Show in aid of the Winchester Hospital, since its inception one of the gala events of the local social season.

A fine entry list, including many well known local horses, provided plenty of interest and competition was sufficiently keen in most classes to make it hard for the judges to award the prizes.

Despite the chilly weather most of those who attended the show stayed through to the end, which was about 6:15 in the evening, somewhat earlier than in previous seasons and due to the fact that this year's show commenced at 9 o'clock, a full hour earlier than usual. From the opening to the closing event there was plenty of action and thrills in the tanbark ring.

The veteran Arthur H. Lovesy again served as ringmaster with William Baker of Providence judging the saddle horses and ponies, and Charles Macomber of Framingham, the hunters and jumpers.

Much interest was aroused by the competition for the two special awards; the Lincoln Trophy, a handsome silver cup, for the saddle horse winning the most points in the show; and the trophy donated by Mrs. Ralph Burkart of Arlington for the highest point-winning jumper.

Mr. and Mrs. William K. Irving's Sportsman won the Lincoln Trophy, the handsome West Medford chestnut repeating his performance of last year when he won the Danforth Trophy. His riders this year were Mrs. Irving and the professional, Archie Simmonds.

A Winchester horse, Killarney Rose, owned by Mrs. Francis Gleason of Stowell road, the former Mary McElwain, won the Burkart Trophy with her owner up, just nosing out a local favorite. Miss Constance Greco's Greylight, who led the timber-toppers a year ago.

While Winchester horses by no means dominated the show the local mounts made a good showing, led by Mrs. Gleason's Killarney Rose with four blues in the classes for ladies' jumpers, middle and heavyweight hunters, hunt teams of three and pairs of hunters or jumpers. In the last two classes the Gleason entry was combined in the pairs with Miss Greco's Greylight and in the teams of three with Greylight and Miss Frances McElwain's Mallowtown.

Besides the blues won with Killarney Rose, Greylight picked up a red for Miss Greco in the ladies' hunters' class.

One of the busiest exhibitors in the show was Miss Helen Downer whose new mount, Dixiana Wonder, won the novice saddle horse class, took the red in the event for ladies' saddlers over 14.2 hands, placed third in the class for saddlers over 15.2 hands and fourth in the model saddle horses' class. In the class for pairs of saddle horses Miss Downer's Mahogany Lad paired with Miss Marion Atherton's Bohemian Actress II to take a fourth. Miss Downer finished fourth in the riding competition for those between 12 and 16 years of age.

Miss Gladys Marchant's Bit-O-Glory, took a third in the ladies' saddle class over 14.2, a fourth in the saddle horses' class under 15.2 hands and fourth in the open saddler's class.

Miss Joan Harding's Merrydale helped to give Winchester a near clean sweep in the ladies' hunters' class, finishing third behind the entries of Mrs. Gleason and Miss Greco. Miss Ruth Good's Socks took the red in the event for local bridle class horses and Miss Pearl Campbell's Dwight's Choice was third in the class for saddlers over 15.2 hands.

As a year ago the luncheon booth on the show grounds was thrown open to the public, a convenience that was much appreciated by all who wished to remain during the entire day at the show. Dr. Mary T. Maynard and Mrs. John Campbell were again in charge of the booth.

Mrs. Oren C. Sanborn again headed the general committee with Miss M. Alice Mason, treasurer; Dr. Mary T. Maynard, secretary; and Miss Constance Greco, assistant secretary. Others on the committee were Mr. Arthur Black, Mr. John P. Marston, Mrs. Helen Sanborn Ralls, Miss Marjorie Danforth, Miss Gladys Marchant, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph F. Burkart of Arlington, Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wesley Dennis of Cambridge and Mr. and Mrs. William K. Irving of West Medford.

WOBURN HIGH WON FROM WINCHESTER

Woburn High won the first of its two games from Winchester last Friday afternoon on Manchester Field, coming from behind to set back the locals in a well played game, 5—2.

Winchester's "Buzz" Kendrick and "Luke" Griffin, southpaw fast baller of the Tanners, hooked up in a nice pitching duel with honors pretty much even, though the visitors had the hitting edge, 11—6. The game was originally scheduled for Woburn, but was shifted over because of a carnival on Library Park. As a consequence the Tanners batted last, but did not need their final inning. Fielding gems were contributed by McDonald, big right fielder of the visitors, who robbed Gray of an extra base hit in the third when he ran over and stuck out his gloved hand to just reach the Winchester third-sacker's sock along the foul line; and by Capt. "Tom" Donaghey of the locals who raced back into deep right center field in the eighth to pull down Fitzpatrick's long belt for an even more sensational catch.

The locals went out in front in the opening frame. "Albie" MacDonnell got a life when his hard rap trickled through Sweeney's legs at first base. Gray sacrificed and "Polock" McCormack scored MacDonnell with a nice line single into left field. "Polock" stole and Donaghey drew a pass, but with one away, Provinzano hit into a double play, Carroll to Pattelena to Sweeney.

Woburn tied it in the second when Fitzpatrick singled to left, reached second while Provinzano was throwing out Kerrigan and scored on the first of "Johnnie" Pattalena's three singles this time to short right field.

From the second until the sixth, both Kendrick and Griffin went along very smoothly, but in this frame, the locals got their second run and might have had several more had the boys produced a real batting sock with men on bases.

McCormack led with a clean hit to left and every one was safe when Pattalena dropped Carroll's throw to second trying for a double play on "Tom" Donaghey's grounder. Provinzano grounded toward second and when Donaghey collided with Pattalena, trying to field the ball, McCormack scored and both "Tom" and "Frankie" were safe. MacKenzie grounded to Fitzpatrick and Provinzano was erased at second, Donaghey pulling up at third. Griffin then proceeded to pick "Sandy" off first and force Chamberland to roll to Fitzpatrick to end a promising rally.

In the seventh Kerrigan and Pattalena singled, Sweeney fanned and Griffin singled to fill the bases. On an attempted squeeze Kendrick fielded Collins bunt fast, but Provinzano, with a double play in the making, failed to tag the plate and the runner scored. McDonald grounded to McCormack who, with no one covering home, was obliged to retire the runner at first. O'Brien went out in routine fashion.

Carroll hit safely to start the Woburn eighth. Donaghey's great catch in right center retired Fitzpatrick, but Kerrigan drew a walk and both he and Carroll advanced on Pattalena's infield out. Sweeney, who had previously fanned twice, then came through with a little looper over the infield to score both runners and put the game on ice, as Griffin held Winchester safely in the ninth.

"Joe" Mathews umpired the game and except for one close one at second base was very satisfactory. Both Kendrick and Griffin worked the corners and were rightfully given strikes that most schoolboy and semi-pro arbitors would have called balls. It didn't have to be "right in the slot" for "Joe" to see it.

ODD FELLOWS' ATHLETIC NIGHT WELL ATTENDED

More than 175 persons attended the athletic night, staged by Waterfield Lodge of Odd Fellows through the courtesy of its Noble Grand, "Gus" Hakanson, at the close of the regular meeting Monday evening in Association Hall on Vine street.

The Posse Gym Team is the original Swedish gymnastic team in this country. It was named for Baron Posse of Sweden and has included many famous athletes in its ranks. Incidentally "Gus" Hakanson, former amateur middleweight wrestling champion, has been a member of the club for the past 28 years.

Following the gymnasts, two amateur wrestling bouts were staged in the welterweight class by "Jimmy" Finn, "Joe" White, "Johnny" and Henry Stenquist, all members of the Woburn Vikings Club and holders of several New England and Y. M. C. A. championships. George Smith, well known referee, was the third man in the ring. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the entertainment which was one of the best the lodge has staged for some time.

LOOKING TO GOD FOR HELP

Heart to Heart Talks by Eugene Bertram Willard

In our present life we are, to use a phrase of Wordsworth, "tutored for eternity." "The way in which man bears temptation decides his character." Many of God's servants are set in eminent places. It is in council chambers, high offices, and surroundings of power and splendor that they are trained to self-renouncement and inviolable justice. Others, as expounders of law, or caretakers of health, or as men set apart for some special honor, are proved whether they will be drudges for fees or human glory, or in their different positions stand for Right, Healing, and Equity. The preacher and scholar are tested whether fame or the sole glory of God shall become the impulse of their labors. The occupations of the merchant, the manufacturer, the employer of labor give opportunity to show whether covetousness or the great law, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," sways the transactions of life.

The world of evil hangs about all of us regardless of our position among men. The market and the law-making house, the bank and the factory, the open field and the workshop, the place of public school teacher and of pupil, the duties of masters and of servants, of buyers and of sellers—all alike make trial of man and prove what is in the Heart.

The world of cussedness which is outside a man—defiling and corrupt examples of daily living, enticing allurements, lying words; and all the cunning subtleties and formidable onsets of temptation—cannot of themselves make a man a bad man. There must be first the self betrayal. Although the senses are open to the approach of evil, the will of man has to make consent through itself. A. Kempis said: "The beginning of all evil temptations is inconstancy of mind, and small confidence in God." The spiritual writers all down through the ages have warned men to "withstand the beginnings," and that the remedy will be applied too late when the evil, through long delay, has been intensified.

But we must make sure to look to God for help. Only by doing so may we withstand against evil. It is to be noted that while "overcoming" is the word elsewhere, in that great passage in the Epistle to the Ephesians wherein the inspired writer bids a man strengthen himself in the might of the Almighty, and stand like a warrior clothed in steel, he does not speak of man putting his enemies to flight, but of simply understanding; of "having done all, to stand." And thus it is that we come to understand one of the farthest-reaching, most comprehensive, and sublimest passages of inspiration: "Blessed is the man that has a firm endurance in trial; for when, having been tested, he has been found worthy, he shall receive the crown of life which the Lord hath promised to them that love Him." (James 1. 12.)

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

Winchester fellow has just been made a foreman in a Boston cigar factory because he knows all the ropes.

How many old timers recall when dressed pork sold in Winchester for two and three cents a pound and families bought a whole hog and salted it away for the winter?

A Winchester memory jingles this one for the Star:

"Do you recall when face was all
Man's naughty eyes could see?
But now a calf just makes a fellow laugh
Since flappers bare the knee.

For ministers Monday is known as "Blue Monday." For the most of us it is the day on which we begin a new week broke again.

If you wonder about a rich Winchesterite's financial rating, ask him whether he thinks the rich will go to a hotter clime than Winchester is on an August day.

The home movie is succeeding the family album in fair Winchester.

A Winchester fellow says he wishes they would hurry up and adopt eugenics, so he will not have to be hearing so much about the subject.

One Winchester individual says he would have no objection to the stockingless fad if it were not for the ugliness of back knee tendons in action.

Nature seems to even up things. The faster a Winchesterite lives the sooner he gets to slow music.

We agree with the fellow who remarked while fixing a blow-out of his automobile tire that a blow-out is a nuisance. But Winchester's modern Romeo has no such trial as getting the rein caught under the equine's tail.

The more the literary minded of Winchester read the best books of the month selected by the clubs, the more one wonders how the others could be much worse.

And speaking of books reminds the Observer that the trouble today seems to be that the woman who reads all the household magazines has not a great deal of time left for the household and in these abnormal days not every housewife can afford hired help.

Every time we hear a fellow wondering what the girls will discard next, it is a pretty safe bet that he will be right on hand to see with his own eyes.

Sauerkraut juice seems definitely to have been proved to have had an Asiatic origin, and right here in Winchester there are some members of the Ancient and Honorable Order of Husbands, Mutual, Protective, Amalgamated, who are thinking of taking the stump to warn of the yellow peril.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Locke opened their summer home at Fernwood, Gloucester, this week.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

There are a number of early fruits in market, including peaches, watermelons, several varieties of berries and sweet cherries which are high in price. Pineapples, oranges, grapefruit, bananas and strawberries are better suited to the majority of pocketbooks. Rhubarb is very cheap.

Green peas are really low in price, spinach, cabbage and new potatoes are cheap. Onions are gradually becoming moderate in price. Cucumbers have become cheap but tomatoes are again high. Egg plant and summer squash are inexpensive.

Poultry and fish are generally more economical than meats this week. Butter prices have stayed down and may go even lower.

Here are three menus made up from seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels:

Mashed Potatoes New Spinach
Bread and Butter
Vanilla Blanc Mange with Bananas

MYSTIC THEATRE MALDEN

Heralded as one of the greatest pictures in the career of the First National Production, "Black Fury," will open on Saturday for a weeks' run at the Mystic Theatre, Malden. The picture is based on the dynamic story, "Jan Volkanik," by Judge M. A. Musmanno, and the play "Bohunk" by Harry R. Irving and is packed with tremendous scenes, a number of which were screened in the interior of a great Pennsylvania coal mine. The story is marked by heroic and death defying action which leads to a thrilling climax in which one lone man fortified by dynamite, holds a battalion of mine police at bay.

A very entertaining and laugh provoking comedy will be the second feature at the Mystic next week, "A Night at the Ritz," an excellent foil to the heavy drama of "Black Fury." "A Night at the Ritz" with a high pressure publicity man who sells a chef who couldn't cook to a fashionable hotel. The dialogue is sparkling and the action swift, while a delightful romance underlies the fun.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

Will Rogers in his latest picture, "Life Begins at 40," opens a seven day run at the big Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. Will Rogers portrays a double-fisted, tender-hearted country editor who proves that the years after 40 are the best in quest of his share of fun. Mr. Rogers' supporting cast includes Rochelle Hudson and Richard Cromwell as the romantic leads, with the comedy in the capable hands of George Barbier, Slim Summerville, Jane Darwell, Sterling Halloway and Roger Imhof.

"The Traveling Saleslady," with an all-star cast including Joan Blondell, Glenda Farrell, William Gargan, Hugh Herbert, Grant Mitchell, Ruth Donnolly and Bert Roach, will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. Miss Blondell plays the daughter of a toothpaste manufacturer who has grown too conservative. The girl wants to enter the business but her father tells her a girl's place is in the home. She steals her father's customers from his star salesman in a series of the most amusing episodes imaginable. But after the day's work the rival sales makers fall in love.

"GO INTO YOUR DANCE" AT THE UNIVERSITY

"Go Into Your Dance," co-starring Al Johnson and his wife, Ruby Keeler, opens Sunday for three days at the University Theatre. This is the first time Jolson, and Miss Keeler, one time musical comedy star who rose to fame in two years on the screen, have ever played together. Their team work is said to be remarkable. The picture is based on a story by Bradford Ropes, author of "42nd Street." It is intensely dramatic in spots, with hilarious comedy situations and a glowing romance. Spectacular dance numbers in which scores of Hollywood's most beautiful chorus girls take part, were created and staged by Bobby Connolly, noted Broadway musical comedy director.

A new Philo Vance comes to the screen in "The Casino Murder Case," the companion film, with Paul Lukas playing the famous detective role created by D. S. Van Dine.

On Wednesday, Review Day, the program will include "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" with Norma Shearer, Fredric March and Charles Laughton and "Crime Without Passion" with Claude Rain and Margo.

"Black Fury" heralded as the one picture which Paul Muni has made which is comparable to his notable success in "I'm a Fugitive From a Chain Gang," will open on Thursday. Based on the story, "Jan Volkanik" and the play, "Bohunk," "Black Fury" brings back action to the screen as it outlines the loves and hates, the sorrows and joys, the hope and despair of those men and women whose lives are devoted to bringing forth fuel from the earth.

Rollicking humor, pathos, fast and intense dramatic action, romance—all are said to be contained in "Mary Jane's Pa," the companion feature, with that inimitable team of screen players, Aline MacMahon and Guy Kibbie.

QUICK WORK!

That is undoubtedly what John Zerpolo of Woburn thought Monday morning when he was leaving the District Court in that city not long after 9 o'clock and five dollars poorer than when he passed through the courthouse door a few minutes previous. Patrolman John H. Boyle, the complainant against the Woburn man, also felt that things had moved along satisfactory lines with most commendable speed.

Officer Boyle had occasion to stop Zerpolo in the vicinity of Symmes corner before 8 o'clock Monday morning when he felt that the Willys Knight sedan the Woburn man was driving was proceeding altogether too fast along the town's highways.

A checkup at the car disclosed the fact that Zerpolo had neither license to drive nor registration for the car he was piloting. He was able to write his name for Officer Boyle, but was unable to tell the latter on what street in Woburn he made his home.

He and the sedan were taken to Headquarters just in time for Zerpolo to make the regular morning trip to court. Charges were speeding and driving without license or registration. Justice Jesse W. Morton found the defendent guilty and assessed a five dollar fine on the speeding charge. The other two counts were filed.

NOTES FROM WASHINGTON

In a letter to President Roosevelt this week, Congressman Edith Nourse Rogers urged upon him strongly to issue regulations and orders providing that preference shall be given, wherever possible, to local products in the purchase of materials for projects in New England under the Work Relief Program. She pointed out that these regulations and orders seem advisable and will be of great benefit to the industries and the employees.

On Thursday, at the annual White House Garden Party, given by the President for the disabled veterans, Mrs. Rogers was escorted by General John J. Pershing. Since the war the General has been much interested in the welfare of disabled veterans and has helped Congressman Rogers in her work for the ex-service men.

Last Saturday morning, Congressman Rogers attended the requiem high mass at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Washington, D. C., which was held for the late General Joseph Pilsudski, Marshal of Poland. The services were attended by most of the Diplocatic Corps and many officials in Washington.

MALDEN STRAND THEATRE

The sensation of the year in the film world is the teaming of Al Jolson, famous singer and Ruby Keeler, his wife, in what is said to be the greatest of the musical spectacles, "Go Into Your Dance" which opens a seven day run at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. While the picture is a mammoth screen spectacle, it carries a well defined plot and a fascinating romance with tense emotional scenes interspersed with hilarious comedy relief. There is a talented supporting cast which includes Helen Morgan, Patsy Kelly, Sharon Lynne, Benny Rubin, Gordon Westcott, William Davidson and Joyce Compton.

"Two Heads on a Pillow," with Neil Hamilton and Miriam Jordan as the featured players, will be the second attraction on the bill for Saturday. Hamilton is cast as a struggling young lawyer who marries a society girl. The girl's mother feels her daughter has married below her social station and finally parts the young couple. Years later, the wife now an attorney, meets her husband in a court battle which closely parallels their own marriage. "Two Heads on a Pillow" is filled with good clean fun and many of the laughs are provided by Henry Armetta, who just about steals the production.

Last Saturday evening shortly after 8:30 a lady who had left her automobile parked on Thompson street was badly frightened when she attempted to start her car by the explosion of a "whiz-bang" which some practical joker attached to the motor. She reported the matter to the police.

WINCHESTER WON FROM READING

Winchester High reversed its early season defeat at the hands of Reading by taking Coach Harry Downes' boys into camp on their own diamond Tuesday afternoon, 6—3.

"Lefty" McTague pitched good ball for Winchester following a rather wobbly start, and after the third inning, when Reading scored its final run, was invincible. "Polock" McCormack, "Frankie" Provinzano and McTague got six of Winchester's seven safeties.

McTague was accorded errorless support by his mates, and Provinzano, besides fielding well, cracked out a triple to aid the local cause.

In an effort to get his charges once more victory-minded Coach Mansfield juggled his lineup, sending Provinzano to second base, bringing in "Tom" Donaghey from right field to shortstop and inserting red headed "Brother" Donaghey into the lineup again as catcher. Apparently the change worked out well at Reading.

Fellsland Council Issues Training Course Certificates to 59 Men

At the third and last session of the Training Course on Troop Program Building, conducted by Fellsland Council at Cousens Gymnasium, Medford, 59 men were qualified and received certificates from the hands of President Oxnard, of Fellsland Council. There were approximately 90 men present at last night's session, but only these 59 men received certificates, as it was necessary to attend all three sessions to receive one of these certificates.

The Patrol Contest that has been in force these three weeks finished up in a blaze of glory for the Bear Cats Patrol from Medford East, by amassing a total of 75 points for the evening, and a grand total of 203 points for the full course. The Sphinx Patrol of Stoneham ran up a total of 70 points, at last nights session, and a grand total of 183 points. The Eagle Patrol of Winchester had 68 points for last night's session, and 178 points for the grand total. The Pace Makers' Patrol from Medford South had 56 points, and a grand total of 163 points. The Jumbo Patrol from Medford South had 50 points and a total of 144 points. The Sagamore Patrol of West Medford had 59 points, and a grand total of 119. The Handicraft project contest was won by the Eagle Patrol of Winchester, and the individual prize was awarded to Raymond Bohannon of the Eagle Patrol.

The dramatization at last night's session for the various patrols was quite an improvement over last week's dramatization. A better balance was noted, and far better ideas were brought forward by the various patrols in their dramatization.

The Sphinx Patrol of Stoneham presented a very fine setup on selecting a Jamboree Scout. A bit of comedy was injected into this selection of Jamboree Scout when their patrol was gradually whittled away on various technicalities such as being First Class Scouts, in Scouting a year, etc., until only three members remained in the patrol, and then three Scouts that were under 15 years of age were asked to drop out, and Mr. Henry D. Strail, who is Scoutmaster of Troop 1, Stoneham, was affected by this ruling, and had to drop out. The point to this setup is that Mr. Strail himself has a son who is about this age.

The Investiture Ceremony put on by the Beaver Patrol of Woburn was very effective as the boy that was presented his Tenderfoot Badge was an actual candidate in one of the Woburn troops, and his mother was present to witness this ceremony.

One of the sessions that showed the progress at this course became evident when the group constructed an actual week's program in very short order without much, if any, argument.

It is hoped that every one of the men who completed this course will put into effect a good yearly program setup.

A short session on a drill setup under Major Bogrette, showed very graphically to the men the necessary precautions needed in drilling a group of boys. This particular session will be of great help to the leaders in preparation of Memorial Day.

The certificates issued last night were as follows: The Sagamore Patrol of West Medford—Milton A. Smith, Kirk Marsh, Prof. Crosby F. Baker, Hubert C. Shedd and George Thompson; The Beaver Patrol of Woburn—Elmer Waters, E. Andrew Peterson, Arthur R. Nelson and George L. Nelson; The Jumbo Patrol of Medford South—Arthur Davidson, Paul Drauschke, William Lewis, Ernest Mander, John MacIntosh, Edward Means, Clarence Thompson and Horace H. Walker; Bear Cats Patrol of East Medford—William O. Jones, John Towers, Gordon Macpherson, Richard T. Smith, Robert E. Prannin, P. Charles Wood, DeMelle Garey, Norman L. Gay and Chester George; The Pace Makers of South Medford—Edward Holland, Ove A. Enemark, Walter Ardini, Walter L. Hannan, Roger Hamilton, Alfred Pompeo and Edward A. Zink; The Sphinx Patrol of Stoneham—J. Carroll Tucker, Melvin Atherton, Henry D. Strail, Winston K. Newman, George Panosian, Sumner B. Thompson, Ralph T. Stetson, Horace D. Manning, Franklin T. Shay; The Flying Eagle Patrol of Winchester—Philip R. Hartson, F. H. Butterworth, Dexter Oliver, C. H. Slack, A. O. Weld, Raymond Bohannon, J. Andrew Millican and Whitelaw Wright; Officers' Group—Leon Davis, Major Bogrette, Albert Moore and Francis H. McCall.

Announcement was made at last night's meeting to the effect that the merit training course for Fellsland Scouters will be held at Camp Fellsland in Amesbury on Saturday and Sunday, June 8 and 9. This course, known as "Troop Camping" will be conducted under the leadership of the Council Training Committee, and will start promptly at 5 o'clock on Saturday and close at 3 o'clock on Sunday. There will be a small nominal charge and special books on Troop Camping can be bought at the camp. Personal equipment including mess gear, blankets and food, must be brought by each individual and hot coffee will be furnished by the camp staff. Those wishing to attend should notify the Scout Office by Wednesday, June 5, at the latest.

Outdoor Court of Honor

The first outdoor Court of Honor for the season will be held on Saturday, May 25, at 3 p. m. at Manchester Field, Winchester. In addition to the regular routine of advancement awards, including Tenderfoot, Second and First Class, Star, Life and Eagle badges, there will be a series of competitive events. Some of the events of interest are as follows: Water Boiling, String Burning, Scout Pace Contest, Tent Pitching Contest, Relay Races and Undressing and Redressing Race, which will inject much comedy into the events of the day. Parents and friends of all Winchester Boy Scouts are cordially invited to attend this Public Court of Honor.

Winchester Boy Scouts at Horse Show

A representative group of uniformed Scouts from Troops 1, 2 and 3, assembled at Good's Riding School on Saturday morning, May 18 at 8:30 o'clock, and reported to Mr. John Campbell, under the leadership of Mr. Edward W. Nelson, the new Scout Executive of Fellsland Council. The Scouters were immediately put to work on automobile parking, guides, messenger service and general policing. District Commissioner T. Parker Clarke relieved Mr. Nelson at 10:30 a. m. and took complete charge from then on for the rest of the day. The Scouts were extremely useful to the general committee and to the Metropolitan Police who were on duty. There were no accidents reported and the automobile traffic was so well taken care of that no confusion or tie-up was recorded at the automobile park. The Scouts were guests of Mr. John Campbell for luncheon, but the parking space was covered at all times, necessitating a staggered luncheon period. Mr. John Campbell, who was in charge of the Horse Show, is a past president of the local Boy Scout organization, and he expresses through the various Scout leaders the thanks of the General Committee for the very fine work that the following Winchester Boy Scouts performed:

Scouts Robert Ferney, Richard Morten and Carl Fynn from Troop 1, Scouts Hartylyn Hotie, George Manning and Robert Savage of Troop 2, Scouts Peter Collins, Allen Grant and George Huckins of Troop 3. All of these Scouts were in full uniform and in addition some three or four Scouts were present without uniform.

HIGH SCHOOL AT MAYNARD

Winchester Plays Woburn Tomorrow

Winchester High journeys to Maynard this afternoon to play a Middlesex League baseball game with Maynard High School, now leading the circuit. The locals lost their first game to Maynard, but feel that they can take the boys from the mill town, and if "Lefty" McTague has another game like the one he pitched at Reading in his system, the Orange will have its troubles.

Winchester has had plenty of tough breaks this season, having at one time or another such players as "Albie" MacDonnell, "Slicker" Coss, "Ref" Provinzano and "Bill" Smith out of the lineup through illness or injuries. "Buz" Kendrick, star pitcher, has been handicapped with a bad hip, Coss is still nursing a bad knee and MacDonnell's arm is far from right since his collision with Kerrigan in the first Woburn game.

The locals have looked right along like the best club on the Middlesex circuit and this year's team is potentially the best to represent the school for several seasons. That its record is not more impressive has been largely due to some bad breaks that were pretty much unavoidable and all part of the game.

Saturday afternoon Woburn High School comes to Manchester Field for its return game with Winchester, having won the first contest between the two schools, 5–2. That was any one's ball game, and as the Star saw the two teams play it, there was little to choose between the nines.

Kendrick will work against the Tanners Saturday and if this loose-jointed youngster has one of his good days and doesn't work too quickly, Winchester has a good chance of winning.

HOLIDAY DINNER DANCE AT COUNTRY CLUB

The Winchester Country Club held its monthly dinner-dance Wednesday evening before the holiday. A warm and summery night brought forth many lovely gowns of crisp organdy, lace and smart cottons, while the informality of the dance gave the male element opportunity to turn out in white flannels and linen. MRS. MARY IRENE DAIGNAULT

Mrs. Mary Irene (Boule) Daignault, wife of Paul Daignault who is known to all local tennis players as a member of the Park Department, died suddenly of an acute heart attack Wednesday morning at her home 18 Winchester place.

Mrs. Daignault was stricken ill shortly before 10 o'clock. A neighbor, Mrs. Rena M. Sullivan, noticed the police desk officer John Hogan sending Sergt. Charles A. Harrold and Patrolman James E. Farrell immediately to the home and also sent in an emergency call for Dr. Philip J. McManus. Patrolman Hogan then went to the Palmer street tennis courts where he picked up Mr. Daignault, a short him to his home where Dr. McManus pronounced Mrs. Daignault dead. The last rites of the Roman Catholic Church were administered by Rev. Fr. Aloysius F. Malone, pastor of St. Marys Church. Medical Examiner William Kelliher of Woburn was notified and viewed the remains.

Mrs. Daignault had been in her usual good health previous to being stricken, her sudden passing coming as a severe shock to her husband and family and to her neighbors and friends. She was 47 years old, a native of Nashua, N. H. and had made her home in Winchester for about 20 years, coming to this town from Lowell. She was a member of St. Marys Church and of its Married Ladies' Sodality.

Surviving, besides her husband, are a daughter, Doris, a son, Emile, both of Winchester; her mother and a sister, living in Cambridge; and a sister, in Lowell.

The funeral will be held from the late residence Saturday morning with high mass of requiem in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery.

TOWN TREASURER ATTENDED REUNION

Town Treasurer Harrie Y. Nutter was among those who attended the 150th anniversary celebration of the Second Corps of Cadets, M. V. M., last Saturday at Salem.

Dr. Nutter enlisted in the corps in 1891 and went to his first camp at Centennial Grove in Essex. The company is now the 102nd Field Artillery, M. V. M., and as such served overseas in the World War.

It is of interest that three of the four men in Dr. Nutter's tent in 1891 attended the reunion last Saturday, reporting for duty in full dress uniform, red coats and side arms for the parade of two and one-half miles. Incidentally "Harrie" was one of some 25 out of about 200 men who were able to get into their red coats and still breath normally.

LEGION TO SPONSOR COREY LECTURE

Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, is to sponsor a public lecture by Stevenson Corey of Governor's avenue, to be given on the evening of Wednesday, June 12, in the High School Assembly Hall.

"Steve" Corey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Corey, has recently returned from Little America where he served as Admiral Byrd's supply officer during his latest trip to Antarctica. His adventures in the frozen South were particularly thrilling and constitute a gripping story no one will care to miss. At an appearance before the high school student body last week Mr. Corey held the young people enthralled, and it is in response to a popular demand that the Legion is arranging an opportunity for all interested to hear him.

TEA FOR MRS. STANLEY BARNES

A lovely party was tendered Mrs. Stanley Barnes, the newly-elected president of the George Washington School Mothers' Association, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Caldwell of 2 Bushcliff road. Mrs. Caldwell is the retiring president, and it was a pretty gesture to entertain as she did the outgoing and incoming boards of the association, together with all the teachers from that school. Her charming home was very attractive in its woodsy setting, making a delightful place for such a gathering. The rooms were gay and hospitable with tulips, valley lilies and flowering dogwood most effectively arranged. On the first sultry afternoon of the season, the tinkle of ice in a punch bowl was very alluring and refreshing. Mrs. Browning presided at the bowl, and was assisted by Mrs. Clement, Mrs. Wills and Mrs. Huckins. They were kept busy making the rounds with the delicious cakes and candies that disappeared so rapidly. It was a most delightful occasion. Mrs. Barnes herself was very easy to look at, dressed in a lilac suit with hat of deeper violet. The best wishes of the association were expressed most warmly to her, and we feel sure that she has some interesting and profitable programs in store for the Highland mothers in the fall.

INTERESTING PARKING FIGURES

The following parking figures, compiled by the E. R. A. Group engaged in making a local traffic survey, are especially interesting in view of the proposed plans to erect motion picture theatres at three locations, in or near the business center of the town.

At the recently held "movie" hearing a traffic expert from Boston who took a survey of the parked cars on Saturday evening, May 18, stated that on that occasion he found only 88 automobiles parked on most of the streets around the center, including the parking space in the rear of the Town Hall and fire station.

The town's survey was much more exhaustive than that of the traffic expert, figures being compiled between the hours of 2 to 9 p. m. on last Wednesday and Saturday.

On Wednesday afternoon and evening 770 cars parked in neighborhood of the proposed Locatelli Theatre, in the Petrie Block, including Winchester and Converse places, Railroad avenue, Main street to the Parkway, Thompson street, Waterfield road and Mt. Vernon street to the Fire Station. On Saturday afternoon and evening the figure for the same district was 1959 cars.

On Wednesday in the neighborhood of the proposed Nelson Theatre in Waterfield Building there were 237 cars parked between 2 and 9 p. m. and on Saturday, 403. This neighborhood included Common street and Church street from the center to Rangely.

In the neighborhood of the proposed Levenson Brothers' Theatre at the Whitney property on upper Main street 182 cars parked between 2 and 9 p. m. on Wednesday and 387 on Saturday. This neighborhood included Main street from the Center to the Wedge Pond bridge and portions of Park street, Elmwood avenue and Vine street.

In all these locations on Wednesday 1189 cars parked between 2 and 9 p. m. and on Saturday the combined total was 2749. Figures for all sites in this connection are not available, but it was found that on Wednesday in the neighborhood of the proposed Locatelli theatre that 83 per cent of the cars that parked remained for one-half hour or less.

TO GIVE TEA FOR EPIPHANY CHURCH

The Wildwood and Cabot street groups of the Parish of the Epiphany are sponsoring a garden tea at the home of Mrs. Henry B. Assisting the group will be Miss Martha Kimball, Miss Henrietta Garner, Miss Eleanor Lambee and the Misses Madeline and Elizabeth Sawyer.

MRS. NEWTON SHULTIS DEAD

Mrs. Newton Shultis, a resident of Winchester for many years previous to moving to South Newbury, N. H., and widely known to a host of friends, died on Wednesday.

Mrs. Newton Shultis 1876-1935

Blanche Van De Bogert Shultis, daughter of Henry P. and Mary Longyear Van De Bogert was born in Shandaken, N. Y., Sept. 26, 1876. She attended Kingston Academy after which she taught in a school in the township of Woodstock to which the family had moved. In 1899 Blanche Van De Bogert married Newton Shultis of Medford and Woodstock. They established their home in Winchester where they lived for 30 years. Mr. Shultis was a devoted member of the First Baptist Church. Her lovable personality and high personal character made for her friends in every walk in life. She did committee work so faithfully and joyously. Her contribution to every organization with which she was connected was noteworthy. She was a member of the Fortnightly Club of Winchester for years, of the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts, of the Florence Crittenton Circle, of the New England Board of the Baptist Foreign Mission Society. And how Mrs. Shultis did appreciate children and how they did love her. She was the favorite aunt of many nephews and nieces.

Mrs. Shultis never did have a rugged constitution and this winter while visiting her cousin, Mrs. John Finger of Mystic avenue, she was confined to her bed for several weeks with a severe heart attack. Her death on Wednesday, May 29, was caused by a similar attack at her home in South Newbury, N. H. She leaves her husband, Newton Shultis, one son, Mark Shultis, two daughters, Mrs. Walter Wurth of Cranford, N. J. and Katharine of Concord; one granddaughter, four sisters and one brother. Services are to be held at Mt. Auburn Crematory Chapel at 2 o'clock, Saturday. Relatives and friends are invited.

TWO ALARMS THURSDAY MORNING

The first of two alarms answered by the Fire Department on the morning of Memorial Day came in at 3:18 a. m. from Woburn Box 83.

Engine 1 responded and found that the fire was in the Union School building on Union street. The Woburn Department was out answering another alarm and only the chief's car with hand chemicals was available for duty.

The local apparatus quickly put out the fire which the men were told had been set, the man having been seen running away by a neighboring householder. The damage done was not extensive, and after the blaze had been extinguished Engine 1 went to Woburn Headquarters to "cover in" until the return of the Woburn apparatus.

At 9:15 o'clock the Central Station was notified by Motorcycle Officer Winthrop Palmer of the Police Department of a dump fire in the rear of the Winn Watch-hand Factory on Washington street.

PRESENTED BOUQUET

Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, especially regretted the fact that Police Lieutenant John A. Harrold was prevented by serious illness from leading the afternoon parade to Wildwood Cemetery for the first time in 33 years. As a mark of respect and affection for the veteran officer, Post Commander John H. McCarthy presented to his family a handsome bouquet of flowers and all music was hushed as the line of march swung by Myrtle street, on which the Lieutenant's home is located.

THE BIRTHPLACE OF A NATION

Last Friday evening at 8:15 p. m. in the Town Hall, Dr. Chas. H. Tozier, noted traveler and color photographer of this town, gave another of his delightful lectures before a large audience on, "Mexico, Land of the Aztecs."

Recent excavations around Monte Alban have revealed archaeological relics of an ancient civilization so important as to classify this region along with the Mayan ruins in Guatemala and Yucatan as the "Egypt of America." With the aid of the Mexican Government and the Rotary International, Dr. Tozier was allowed for the first time to take color photographs of the priceless treasures which have thus far been unearthed. These included magnificent specimens of ceramics, weird statues of forgotten Gods chipped out of solid rocks, ornaments of 24 carat gold, the remains of former mighty pyramids and altars on which high priests offered human sacrifices to the sun, and last, but not least, the invaluable Monte Alban crown jewels and necklaces of pearls, jade and turquois.

Diego Rivera's frescoes depicting the history of Mexico in the stirring days of Cortez and Montezuma were of great interest, as were also his novel ideas in paint concerning the solution of present day economic and political difficulties. They reminded one strongly of the Orsozco murals at Dartmouth College and their critics. Present day native life was featured in motion pictures, perhaps the most spectacular "shot" being a bull fight in which a ring attendant is thrown over an enraged animal's head. Although "la corrida" is regarded as the national sport of both Mexico and Spain, Dr. Tozier looks upon it as an uncivilized and one-sided gladitorial contest between man and beast, unworthy even to be called a sport. As usual, color slides of botanical specimens and gardens were shown at intervals; and these, together with a series of close up views of Mrs. Daniels, wife of the American Ambassador, attired in picturesque Mexican costume, were of especial interest to the ladies.

The lecture was for the benefit of the First Baptist Church and was sponsored by a committee composed of Rev. R. Mitchell Rushton, Nathan R. Chapin, H. Wadsworth Hight, Harry T. Winn and John Casler.

FLOWER MISSION

For many years Winchester has shared its flowers with those needing cheer and brightness during the hot summer months in Boston.

This year the work begins next Tuesday, June 4. The hamper will be ready at Winchester station for your flowers. It is closed in time to be sent in on the 9 o'clock train. From Boston it is taken to the South Bay Union where the flowers are arranged in bouquets and distributed through the neighborhood.

South Bay Union needs help in handling the flowers and a volunteer will greatly enjoy the contact.

Let us fill the first basket in and every other one this summer.

JEREMIAH BREEN

Jeremiah Breen, one of Winchester's oldest and most respected citizens died suddenly Sunday evening, May 26, at his home, 3 Dunham street.

Mr. Breen was 87 years of age and a native of Ireland, the son of Maurice and Ellen (Courtney) Breen. He came to this country as a youth and for the past 70 years had been a resident of Winchester, being for many years, until his retirement eight years ago, in the employ of the town's Highway Department. His long residence and his employment brought him in contact with many citizens of all walks in life and he was held in esteem by all who knew him.

Mr. Breen was a faithful member of St. Mary's Church and had been a member of its Holy Name Society since its inception. He is survived by his wife, Catherine Keegan Breen, and by several nieces and nephews.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning from the late residence with solemn requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

W. C. T. U. MEETING

At the May meeting of the Winchester W. C. T. U. held at the First Congregational Church, Mrs. George Hamilton, county president, spoke on "Dark Clouds With Silver Linings."

The first year of repeal has brought many discouraging things. The saloon is back, relief rolls are bigger, revenue is far below that promised by the repealists, bootlegging is more prevalent than ever and extra money has had to be appropriated in an effort to control it. Young people are drinking openly, liquor laws are not enforced and auto accidents due to drunken driving are on the increase. The very loveliest things in room decorations and furnishings, clothing and glassware are used as a lure to make drinking "stylish" and fashionable and so increase the consumption of liquor.

But there are bright linings to these dark clouds. Senator Shepard's speech in the Senate on the anniversary of repeal in 1934 was greeted with hisses and catcalls. His 1935 speech on the same subject was received with respectful attention and discussed at length afterwards.

The brewers, if one may judge from their own publications and utterances, are worried. Their own trade journals openly admit that unless they get more customers and teach the youth of our land to drink their business is doomed. Rather inconsistent after their arguments that there was more drinking under prohibition than before it.

Prosperity is not back, and the people who voted for repeal solely because they were persuaded it would end "the depression" are disgusted with the whole situation and wishing fervently they had not been so misguided.

Repeal leaders themselves are not quite so sure now just where they stand as witness their contradictory statements and their attempts to justify and, where that fails, modify present conditions.

The brewers are frankly worried about the campaign of alcohol education now being launched in our schools and have openly inquired as to how far this education is to be extended.

Another bright spot in the lining is the fact that 36,000 new members have been added to the W. C. T. U. in the U. S. in 1934.

Mrs. Hamilton left as a slogan, that of Frances Willard, "We must agitate, educate and legislate."

Because the June meeting date comes so late in the month when practically all organizations have suspended activities for the summer it was voted to omit the June meeting.

At the close of this season the W. C. T. U. wishes to express its appreciation of the courtesies, in both time and space, shown them by Mr. Wilson and the Star.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Woolley of Fells road are entertaining a week-end house party at their summer home at South Harpswell, Me. Their guests include Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Neiley and Mr. and Mrs. Loring P. Gleason.

ELY TO HANDLE $100,000 WILL

Former Governor Ely was named by Judge Joseph W. Monahan of the Middlesex Probate Court on Tuesday, to be special administrator of the $100,000 estate of the late George Harrington. The will has become the center of a looming court battle.

The appointment was made on the petition of Julius A. Ulman of Swampscott, who appears on the petition as an heir-at-law. The Swampscott man is the second person to come forward as a possible claimant since the filing of the will a few days ago.

No heirs-at-law were listed on the papers filed with the will, officials reporting they were unable to locate any.

The Winchester man left the residue of his estate, about $350,000, for the study of nervous diseases. He also made a substantial bequest to his housekeeper and directed that the family heirlooms should be destroyed because he was "the last of the family."

CAMP MERRILAND PREPARING FOR ANNUAL OPENING

Camp Merriland, the Southern Middlesex Health Association Camp, on Lake Massapoag, Sharon, is preparing for its eleventh season. Men are cleaning around the camp, boats are being painted and playground equipment is being set up.

All of the boys and girls have been selected from the communities in the Southern Middlesex district. Parents are most co-operative and eager to have their children go to Camp Merriland because of its successful operation, Camp staff, and unusual program which considers the personality of the individual child as well as the happy, wholesome and healthful experiences of the group.

The program is under the direction of Miss Margaret Conoboy of the Smith College day school. She is assisted by counsellors selected from our best colleges. Each counsellor is responsible for a small group of about seven or eight children.

The program includes swimming, rowing, camp craft, dancing, corrective posture, handicrafts and nature study. This year through the generosity of former campers it has been possible to add archery and loom weaving to the program of camp activities.

The campers are divided into age groups with routine and program adapted to the ages of each group. Small, attractive, screened bungalows equipped with toilets, running water and wash rooms are the sleeping quarters of the groups.

The happiness, development in initiative and good leadership, as well as the physical development of each camper, is the basis around which the camp life is planned and developed.

Were it not for the funds derived from the Christmas Seal sale and the generosity of the clubs and individuals it would not be possible for us to carry on this type of camp which has such a high rating.

Dr. and Mrs. Hollister K. Olmsted are spending the holiday week-end at Martha's Vineyard, as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cutler B. Downer.

Friday, May 24, 78 members and out-of-town guests made the Pilgrimage to the Wayside Inn, Sudbury, and Time Stone Farm, Marlboro. Members enjoyed old fashioned hospitality of Time Stone Farm, the home of Mrs. Edna Little, one of the countries foremost antique collectors.

Assisting Mrs. Little, were Mrs. Alton Jackson of Winchester, Mrs. Hollis Webster of New Hampshire, Mrs. Kimball of the famous Red Feather Candles, Bedford, and Mrs. Earle Andrews, chairman of the Antiques Group.

Mrs. Little explained the history of the house and told of her efforts to restore it. Like many houses of its time, it grew from a one room building in 1702 built by John Goodale of Salem. This one room house was in a hollow near its present location, and moved the following year to where it now stands. In 1706 another room was added and in 1800 the house carried its present outline.

In restoring much pulling was done. Mrs. Little checked back to early methods in order to find out why certain things were done at the time the house was built. For instance, seven fireplaces were torn out to get to the original. The flight of Puncheon Stairs leading from the main hall to the second floor are are the only example of this type of stairs known to exist above the ground floor.

Mrs. Little has specialized in early pine furniture of the 17th and 18th century of which she has some splendid examples. There are many fine pieces of early pottery, lighting devices, pewter, lustre made in copper, canary, silver and ruinderland. Also many hour-shold implements common to the 17th and 18th century. The bed rooms are filled with canopied beds with all the early toilet accessories, while the wall decorations retain the original standing. It was here we were met by Mrs. Kimball.

There is an additional building known as the Book House. This was built in 1688, in what is now Malden, Mass. cemetery and was moved by Mrs. Little to Marlboro. The two upper rooms contain a valuable collection of books while below on one side is a living room and on the other a school room with old fashioned desks and benches. Fire in the open fireplaces made this a delightful spot.

Mrs. Alton Jackson of Winchester welcomed the guests in this building.

Mrs. Hollis Webster of New Hampshire, noted garden authority was in the herb garden describing the peculiarities of the different herbs, explaining how in the olden days, some of them under peculiar circumstances were used as charms against fatigue and illness.

This Pilgrimage which afforded an unusual opportunity for the study of Pilgrim Century Antiques is one long to be remembered by our group.

WINCHESTER MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION ANNUAL MEETING

On Tuesday afternoon, June 4, at 2 o'clock the Mothers' Association annual meeting will be held in the Washington School Assembly Hall.

Last week the Star very kindly printed an article containing a brief history of the association, in which the names of a few of the early association workers appeared. During the week the names of many other mothers who carried on the organization have come to light. Through no intentional oversight was anyone omitted, but in the rush of getting the matter ready for printing, it was possible to use only a few names, suggested without reference to actual records.

The committee in charge of the annual meeting extends a most cordial invitation to all former members to attend the annual meeting next Tuesday, as the speakers will include past presidents of the association.

STOLEN CAR RECOVERED

Monday night shortly before 10 o'clock Ralph Bonnell of the Bonnell Motors, local Ford distributors, phoned Police Headquarters, reporting that a Chevrolet coach, without number plates, had been stolen from the driveway north of Sylvester's Garage on upper Main street.

The machine had been taken sometime between 8 and 9 o'clock. Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy had the theft sent out over the Police radio at Arlington and notified all local officers. The car was found Tuesday morning in the rear of the gas station at the corner of Main and Clark streets by Patrolman John H. Boyle and returned to its owner.

WINCHESTER WON FROM BELMONT

Continuing the good baseball shown against Reading, Winchester High outclassed Belmont High in a Middlesex League game on Manchester Field last Friday afternoon, 8—1.

Kendrick pitched good steady ball for Winchester, and except for the fifth frame when a hit or two was combined with some loose baseball, was always master of the situation. Twice he pitched himself out of bad holes, once fanning big Saratian with the sacks loaded, after which little "Sandy" MacKenzie made a corking running catch of Johnson's short fly in right field to retire the side.

Winchester was still without the services of "Slicker" Coss, out with a bad knee, and "Albie" MacDonnell, hurt in the Woburn game when he was bumped hard by Kerrigan, was unable to start.

"Albie" went in to bat for "Cheeka" Chamberland in the fourth and drove a fine triple to deep center with two men on. On a short passed ball, MacDonnell also counted, but was declared out after he had returned to the Winchester bench when Umpire Sanborn ruled that he had only come up to the plate and had not tagged it.

The locals missed a fast double play in the third when Gray came up with a viciously hit grounder with first and second occupied. He threw to Provinzano who completed the play to McCormick, but Umpire Sanborn ruled that Provinzano was not on second base when he caught the ball and that the runner beat his peg to first.

The crowd didn't like this decision or the one at the plate and were more or less "on" the arbiter during the remainder of the game. Both decisions appeared to be correct, though the decision at first on the double play was very very close and could have been called either way.

Neither decision meant anything, for Winchester was too good for Belmont, particularly after Johnson commenced to weaken toward the end of the road.

"Frankie" Provinzano was the hitting hero of the matinee with a fine home run drive.

WINCHESTER YOUNGSTERS AT LONGWOOD

Winchester was well represented among the 140 boys and girls who competed last Saturday at the Longwood Cricket Club in Mrs. George W. Wightman's annual spring tennis tournament for children under 15 years of age.

The local youngsters had to be satisfied by one runner-up in the tourney though Winchester entrants reached the semi-finals in both boys' and girls' singles.

The surprise of the tournament was the showing made by Winchester's Ray Bancroft who paired with Dorothy Wightman, daughter of the tourney's sponsor, in the mixed doubles. Playing some consistently good tennis this combination swept its way through the preliminary rounds to win its quarter-final match from a good Winchester pair, Suzanne Reed and Harrison Lyman.

In the semi-finals, Dorothy and Ray won from the well known "Cissy" Madden, new girls' champion, and Gordon Griscom, 6—1, but lost in the championship round to Baba Madden, defending champion, and Albert Evarts of Newton, winner on the boys' side, a much more experienced team than the Winchester-Chestnut Hill combination.

Frances Keyes, Lois Ladd, Suzanne Reed, Kay Snow and Madeline Cushman reached the third round on the girls' side, but only Suzanne Reed went on to the quarter-finals where she defeated Kate Loring, 6—1. In the semi-finals the Winchester girl fell before the defending champion, Baba Madden, 6—2. Baba in turn was defeated by her little sister, "Cissy," in the finals, 6—2.

In the girls' consolation singles, Jean Drake reached the semi-final round, losing to Georgina Green, 6—4.

Russell Ellis, Douglas Graham and "Joe" Burton reached the third round of boys' singles, Graham and Ellis going on to the quarter-finals. Douglas was eliminated in the semi-finals by "Bill" Washburn, but Ellis won from Arthur Nelson, 6—1, to go on to the "semis" where he was defeated by Gordon Griscom in a love set. Griscom was defeated in the championship round by Albert P. Evarts, Jr. of Newton, 6—3.

Peter Scully reached the semi-final round of the boys' consolation, being defeated there by Ward Tucker of Belmont, 6—2.

In mixed doubles, besides Bancroft and Miss Wightman and Lyman and Miss Reed, the Winchester team of Ellis and Lois Ladd reached the quarter finals.

Among those from Winchester who participated in the tournament were Dorothy Bruno, Suzanne Reed, Lois Ladd, Frances Keyes, Priscilla Jones, Louise Barr, Madeline Cushman, Ann Downer, Jean Drake, Carol Grant, Peggy Greene, Margaret Hall, Barbara Kelley, Jean McKenzie, Shirley Smith, Kay Snow, Ethel Tobin, Shirley Wood and Jean Roberts; Russell Ellis, Harrison Lyman, Jr., Ray Bancroft, Peter Scully, Richard Bugbee, Bennett Wightman, Philip Cabot, Joe Burton, Douglas Graham, Hartland Horie, Wendell Irving, Kenneth Leghorn, Harry McGrath, Joe Russo, David Riley, Harold Salzman, John Tobin, Gray Twombly, Palmer Worthen, Tom Worthen, Edward Scully and Harold Fuller.

Two of Winchester's best young players, Shirley White and Ruth Bernnard were unable to compete, the former because of recent illness and the latter because of being just over the age limit.

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION WON

The Immaculate Conception baseball team opened their home season last Friday evening on the Loring avenue playgrounds, defeating the Melrose City Club by a 6 to 1 score. "Bobby" Callahan, local favorite was on the mound for the church team and let the visitors down with five hits while he struck out nine. Keating and Duran starred for the home team. O'Neil and E. Buchee, played well for the losers.

PREDICTS FINE TENNIS FUTURE FOR WINCHESTER GIRL

No less a person than Mrs. George W. Wightman of the Longwood Cricket Club has taken a strong fancy to the tennis game of Winchester's youthful Frances Keyes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Keyes of Lloyd street. Frances played last Saturday in the boys' and girls tournament at Longwood and though she failed to reach the important rounds, showed Mrs. Wightman enough tennis to make her join with Rev. William S. Packer, father of Winchester tennis, in predicting a real future for the local youngster. Mrs. Wightman has seen and developed many fine players, among them the former Sarah Palfrey, hero of last year's Wightman Cup international team. It therefore means plenty to have her take such an interest in the game of a beginner.

ANNUAL MEETING OF WINCHESTER BADMINTON CLUB

The annual meeting of the Winchester Badminton Club was held May 24 for the election of the officers and a governing committee for the coming year. R. Gilman Wallace was re-elected president, and Dwight Cabot and Mrs. Henry N. Wheeler were elected treasurer and secretary respectively. There were also elected to the Governing Committee, which consists of seven members including the three officers, Nancy Bradlee, Gerald Y. Hills, Lawrence Palmer and Harry W. Wood.

The events of the past season were reviewed and plans were made for an active fall season. It is expected to open the courts as soon as there is sufficient demand from the members probably not later than Nov. 1. The past season was the most successful since the club was organized and a large number of new members were obtained.

It is expected that a team will again be entered in the Boston Suburban League and that matches will be arranged with other clubs in suburban Boston.

WINCHESTER WON FROM CONCORD

Winchester High continued to play good ball Tuesday afternoon, defeating Concord High in a Middlesex League game on Manchester Field, 7—2. It was the third straight win for the locals in the league race.

"Buz" Kendrick went the route for Winchester and held Concord to four hits. Neither of the visitors runs was earned, the first riding in on a wild pitch and the second on an outfield error. Meanwhile the locals fell upon the slants of Tompkins, big Concord right hander, in the very first inning, mixing three hits with two passes, a sacrifice hit and two errors to tally four big runs, plenty to win as things turned out. Tompkins was relieved by Push in the fifth, the latter allowing two runs in the first inning he worked.

Gray opened the game with a walk and was sacrificed to second by MacDonnell, Tompkins getting the assist. McCormick skied to Mara, but "Tom" Donaghey hit to right to score Gray and reached third on Macone's error. Provinzano walked and reached third while Donaghey was scoring on Nelson's error which permitted MacKenzie to reach first. "Brother" Donaghey's first of three hits, into right field, scored Provinzano and sent MacKenzie to third. Kendrick's hit to right sent in "Sandy." Cullinane threw out Coss.

Concord's first run came in the fourth when Macone hit into right, stole second and scored on a wild pitch. Kendrick then fanned Laughlin and Williams while Gray threw out Nelson.

Winchester scored in its half of the fourth, Gray drawing his second free ticket and reaching second on a wild pitch, subsequently scoring on MacDonnell's single to center.

In Concord's half of the fifth, with two away, Mara singled to left, stole second and reached third on Tompkins' single to left. On MacDonnell's error Mara scored. Provinzano took Lennon's fly to end the inning.

The locals added two in the fifth. MacKenzie rolled out to Nelson, but "Brother" Donaghey swiped out a homer into the river. Kendrick singled to left and "Slicker" Coss, to right, Kendrick reaching third. Gray walked and on MacDonnell's fly to Williams, Kendrick came in. McCormick hoisted to Mara for the third out.

Neither team was able to score after the fifth. Winchester being able to nick Push for only two hits in the last four frames while Concord got but one.

REV. FR. JOSEPH M. FITZGIBBONS
Pastor of St. Jerome's Parish, Arlington

ST. JEROME'S DEDICATED

Former Winchester Priest Pastor of Arlington-Belmont Parish

Many in Winchester were much interested in the dedication last Sunday of St. Jerome's Church in Arlington which is to serve the Arlington-Belmont Parish of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Boston, established by His Eminence, William Cardinal O'Connell only seven months ago.

The church was dedicated by the pastor, Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons, who formerly served for several years as assistant pastor of St. Mary's Church of this town and who numbers many friends among local citizens of all creeds.

Special permission was given Father Fitzgibbons to dedicate the church by the Cardinal who was unable to be present. It is largely due to the pastor's untiring zeal and ability as an organizer that the new church is ready for use so soon, and in great measure to his vision and attention to detail that the building is so attractive.

The edifice is skilfully designed architecturally and the appointments are in excellent taste, altar, pews, stations of the cross and fixtures blending into a harmonious whole that is very pleasing. Mr. Thomas F. McDonough is the architect, and has received hearty congratulations upon his success with the new church structure.

After the dedication the first mass in the church was celebrated by Father Fitzgibbons, assisted by Rev. Father Daley of Maryclif Academy.

There was a large congregation and throughout the day many hundreds visited the church which is located on Lake street in Arlington at the junction of the new Concord Boulevard, taking in a part of St. Agnes Parish in Arlington and of St. Joseph's Parish in Belmont.

Masses at St. Jerome's are to be celebrated on Sundays at 8:10 and 11:30 a. m., and on week days at 7:30 a. m.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOR

June Festival

The beautiful estate of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Downes on High street will be the scene of the June Festival sponsored by the Boston Guild of the Infant Savior, on Saturday, June 15. Among the lengthy list of patrons and patronesses are people prominent throughout Boston and vicinity whose interest and help assures the success of this undertaking. It is through the untiring work of the women in the Guild of the Infant Savior that destitute mothers and infants are taken care of in the Boston diocese.

Beginning at noon and ending with the tea dansant, the intervening hours will be crowded with activities for the whole family. There will be a puppet show early in the afternoon for the smaller children, after which pony rides will amuse them. Bridge will be available for those who enjoy it, with prizes. Well—after that last decision, the Supreme Court now seems to have found out what it's all about—or possibly received added information regarding the U. S. Constitution. The NRA at last appears to be getting down to earth. Now the Administration, so we hear, is to re-draft the Soviet Duck and paint it another color. Who got the millions that have been spent on this farce? Our own code director, so we hear, is out about $1500 to date. Noble effort unrewarded.

And another New Deal thought of great brilliance is the effort to induce the President to change Thanksgiving from the last Thursday to the last Tuesday, the idea, so we read, being to induce the greater use of fish! We, being still confused over these rapid administration changes, wonder what Tuesday has to do with fish, but we hope the proposed contribution of $500,000 to educate the people in the use of fish, will at least explain this innovation. Of course our present population care little if anything about the old New England Thanksgiving, and possibly in Russia fish is the height of an up-to-date menu. New England appears to be relegated to the discard anyway, but none of the old and waning native stock can by the greatest of stretch of imagination associate turkey with clam-.

And the next time you meet that fellow who claims that Winchester is not growing; just call his attention to our center and let him look at our fine new traffic box.

Then he will probably come back with reports of our 1850 gateman's villa.

If we were allowed a word regarding the spending of just a tiny bit of these millions now being scattered about, we should certainly use it for the suppression of tree insects. Everywhere you go the tent caterpillar is eating and flourishing. This is only a portion of what we are allowing to kill our greenery, although just at this season the most important an evidence as it will be later. Winchester made a big mistake when it abandoned its old system of caring for its trees. It is pretty tough for a householder, with empty Bank property on either side of him, to keep ahead or even hold his own in beautifying his estate. Under our previous method of entering all property and exterminating these insect pests, the fellow who doesn't care a rap how his place looks is eliminated from spreading his crop to his neighbor who does. This situation should be remedied at our next town meeting. Beautiful Myopia Hill provides a concrete example of what our present situation is.

All those who are at all acquainted with the local welfare situation will welcome the formation of an organization to act as a permanent clearing house for the several groups who are now concerned with assisting the town's needy. In the past, despite every effort to the contrary, it has been possible for unscrupulous people to get aid from several sources, beyond their actual needs, and of course in the end, at the expense of some other needy family who because of duplication in the first case received no assistance at all. No one can question such duplication and no one can question the desirability of obviating it. An associated charities group should be able to evenly distribute the town's welfare resources in the best possible manner and so should have the heartiest co-operation of the groups now engaged in charitable work. Of necessity certain cards must be placed on the table and specific information given the associated charities group. That this information will not become public property goes without saying, and if properly given, will undoubtedly result in fairness and assistance to all in need. The caliber of the people interested in the associated charities group guarantees this.

We recommend again to those interested in our grade crossing elimination the reading of a letter from our Representative in Congress relative to this important measure. It now appears that Winchester has no chance of securing this important safeguard. It is the same old story which has dogged the so-called "Selectmen's Plan" or the "Town Plan"—too big a cost. If someone could realize this, and give the Kellaway Plan a chance, we would have come in under the wire. The Kellaway Plan has been presented as the cheapest plan yet devised, and we have never had occasion to question the claim. The next thing Winchester will awake up to will be an elevated track through our valley and center—a method of elimination which will be anything but satisfactory and do anything but improve present conditions. However, another apparent opportunity to secure the elimination has gone into the discard.

GRADE CROSSING RECEIVES A SET BACK

My dear Mr. Wilson:

I am forwarding a copy of a letter which I have received from the Boston & Maine Railroad president, Mr. French. If you have suggestions do not hesitate to write to me.

With kind regards and best wishes, I am

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mrs. Rogers:

I have your letter of May 20th in relation to the elimination of the railroad grade crossing at Winchester, Mass., and the program for the elimination of grade crossings on the Boston & Maine Railroad.

There have been many conferences between representatives of the Railroad and representatives of the State and Federal governments as a result of which a list of projects has been tentatively agreed upon. I enclose copy of that list for what it may be worth, although you realize that it may be greatly changed before the work is actually done. The expenditure necessary for these projects would exceed the amount so far allotted for work of this nature.

You will note that Winchester is not on this list. The reasons why it is not included at this time are, mainly, two: first, the heavy cost involved, estimated at over $1,000,000; and second, the fact that it would be nine months to a year before engineering plans could be prepared. It is also a fact that the citizens of Winchester have always desired to have the highways carried over the railroad, and the State authorities have recently been considering elevating the railroad. As you know, the Federal authorities have indicated that they want prompt action. Furthermore, it would seem to be desirable that the total amount which may be allotted for Boston and Maine grade crossing eliminations should be utilized to eliminate a number of crossings rather than concentrated in two or three large expenditures. Winchester has been included in certain lists made public by the State authorities, together with Worcester and Salem, when it was anticipated that many millions of dollars would be made available. We, of course, recognize the importance of the Winchester crossing, and hope that sufficient money may be provided so that it can be eliminated in the near future.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) E. S. French,
President

MORE ON THE GRADE CROSSING

May 28, 1935

To the Editor of the Star:

After writing to, and forwarding copies of the Star of May 10 to influential people who are in a position to forward the interests of Winchester's grade crossing elimination, in addition to the favorable responses of Hon. Edith Nourse Rogers, Hon. Marcus A. Coolidge, Mr. W. F. Callahan, Public Works Commissioner, Boston, and Mr. Frank E. Lyman, Associate Commissioner with Mr. Callahan, a letter from the White House is received in which Mr. Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to the President, acknowledges receipt of the "Star" and my letter accompanying same, and stating that "By direction of the President, it is being referred to the Division of Applications and Information of the National Emergency Council, which has been set up to receive and consider all suggested plans for the useful expenditure of Work Relief Funds."

I have heard no dissenting voice as to the desirability of grade crossing elimination and by the depression of the tracks, so that they may go completely under the square, men and women alike (perhaps more especially the latter) favor this method as not only eliminating all danger there, ridding the atmosphere of grief whirling debris, dust and smoke. The criticisms of track depression consist mainly of four, viz:

First: That the necessary gradient would be too difficult of attainment. Engineer Graustein states this at not over 34 feet to the mile, which with surface elevations of three or four feet at Common street and the square, would mean 17 to 18 feet head room for Pullman or big freight automobile cars. The Boston & Albany has grades even of 50 feet to the mile.

Secondly: That Engineer Graustein's inclusion of electric pumping in his diagnosis, shows that the water danger is recognized by him. Mr. Graustein says that he had nothing but "rain water" in mind. Does it not indeed stand to reason that if watertight tunnels can be run under the Hudson and East Rivers, and beneath Boston Harbor, a little impervious artificial passageway beneath a small body of water such as the Aberjona is no problem to a modern engineer.

Thirdly: That the Woburn branch, bearing off northwesterdly in close juxtaposition to the square, could not be essayed by the trains as the grade would be prohibitive, the answer to this criticism is that the Woburn branch tracks would be relocated to run along the northerly shore of so-called "Black Ball Pond" (instead of the southerly edge as at present) and then the grade would be nearly equalized with the existing one.

Fourth: Mr. Frank E. Lyman, Associate Commissioner of Massachusetts Department of Public Works, speaks of "land damage costs," "which the town might be called upon to pay."

In this connection it is difficult to see where anything prohibitive in the way of land damages could lie against the town in event of the method of track depression being adopted (where the construction would not impinge on real estate outside the railroad's right of ways). It is not unlikely that with a rough stone bastion built along the north edge of "Black Ball" pond, with the earth dug from the culverts as the filling, would build a right of way of A-1 quality for the Woburn tracks with no land takings from local owners.

To decline the tracks so that trains would enter subways at the Station and the Square would mean absolute surface safety and in no way impair the topography of the town but would annihilate the offensive railway installations now existent immensely to the favorable contingency of Winchester's beautification and evaluation as the perfect residential surburb.

Very faithfully,
E. Langworthy Burwell

WINCHESTER "MOVIES" IN CALIFORNIA

In view of the "movie" agitation in our town this extract from the Los Angeles Examiner, May 15, 1935 might be interesting. It was sent by Mrs. Rony Snyder of 59 Highland avenue who is at present in Long Beach, California, to her mother, Mrs. A. C. Winn of this town.

Reine Davies, who writes the "Hollywood Parade" column says:

"Al Green tells me that in the Town of Winchester, Mass., it was, until recently, unlawful to exhibit motion pictures, and that the recent election which repealed the antiquated law precipitated an exciting battle.

"It sounds like a skit from light opera," said the Warner Brothers' director, 'but the Winchester folk were in dead earnest.'

"On the grounds that children might be in the streets for admission money, that undesirables might come from neighboring towns, and that motion pictures would be harmful to villagers, the electioneering grew so intense that news of it spread to eBston, where I chanced to be visiting, and the screen's adherents to Winchester to watch the fun.

"Both sides staged parades of children carrying banners, hired soap-box orators to harangue the citizens and maintained fleets of cars and buses to take their adherents to the polls.

"When the smoke of battle had cleared away, the movies had won—2455 for repeal, while 1717 villagers still shook their heads and predicted moral ruin for Winchester."

SELECTMEN'S NOTES

Winthrop A. Palmer has been appointed a permanent patrolman on the police force, his six months' probationary period having expired on May 20.

The Board has requested the Edison Company to install a street light on Dothan street.

The Board will hold a public hearing on June 10 at 8 p. m. on the petition of the Edison Company for joint location with the N. E. Tel. Co. of a pole on Chisholm road at Forest street.

Permission for joint location has been granted to the Edison and Telephone Companies for 51 poles on Forest street between Washington street and the Stoneham line.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

Never has such enthusiasm been shown by the committees in charge of June 8, as during the past week. A record breaking attendance is expected to witness the afternoon water sports, while reservations for the supper and dance are near capacity figures.

In keeping with the crew's promise, no beans will be served. Instead an apetizing lamb stew is the selected menu, and this seems to meet with most everyone's approval, being a welcome change from the Saturday evening standby.

To make their "grudge tilt" more spectacular, "Ted" Bissel and Junior Gustin have agreed to combat each other from two fast moving aquaplanes. Just keep your eyes on these two lads.

New members continue to sign up at a rapid rate. Over 33 applications have been accepted thus far, and from indications, last year's quota will be greatly exceeded. During the 1934 season 50 new members joined.

The Membership Committee chairman is Dan Barnard, who is to be congratulated. Members having prospects in mind may obtain circulars at the club, outlining the activities and attractively illustrated.

Sailboating is very much on the increase. Every Sunday morning the lake is dotted with sails.

Practically every junior member has acquired a kyak, scooting over the bay like water bugs.

Great fun for the kids! Good place to be, and not very expensive. Parents, attention!

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVED

seem natural without Lieut. John A. Harrold leading the Police escort. The veteran is seriously ill at his home on Myrtle street missing his first parade in more than 30 years.

The policemen in line included, besides Sergeants Cassidy and O'Connell, Patrolmen James E. Farrell, James P. Donaghey, Clarence E. Dunbury, John J. Dolan, D. Irving Reardon, Archie T. O'Connell and John F. Murray. Chief William H. Rogers and Sergt. Charles J. Harrold were in one cruising car with Patrolman John H. Boyle, in the other. Patrolman James Noonan and John Hanlon were on duty at the Town Hall.

Traffic Officer John Regan had a busy time keeping motor traffic moving just before the parade got into the square. It is the Star's opinion that he did a first rate job.

The Grand Army men in line were Comrades David Storey, 92, of 62 Church street and Joseph A. Moulton 88, of 29 Highland avenue. They were escorted by the Boy Scouts, who literally surrounded their car and their Guidon Bearers were Vincent P. Clarke and Harry Dodge.

The disabled veterans' group from Bedford was driven by Clifford Towner, Reveley Smith and Kenneth Hall.

There was a large detachment of Legionnaires, more and more of whom are wearing the regulation blue Legion uniform.

The Post's fine military band under Bandmaster Charles E. Young and Manager Emanuel J. LaRue, played its usual satisfactory job, providing good music and plenty of it. We especially appreciated "Dem Basses" which "Bill" LaRue put on while the bandsmen swung by the Star Office.

The Lawrence Light Guards, in their colorful uniforms, dressed up the parade to Wildwood and gave their usual excellent exhibition of marching and gun handling. A Winchester boy, "Gerry" Bovard, former high school basketball manager, was marching with them.

We still miss "Ned" Shea and his police horse. The cars may be more utilitarian, but they lack the appeal of a handsome mount.

"Tony" Cullen and George Donaghey carried the Legion flags and "Squire" Henry F. Lunt, the G. A. R. Flag. The color guards were Theodore Lawson and George Joyce.

Among those seated at the head table in the Town Hall after the parades was Senator Charles T. Daly of Medford. It was a familiar stamping ground for "Charlie" who has long covered Memorial Day doings in Winchester for the Boston Globe.

There was nothing wrong with the marchers appetites but those Auxiliary ladies took care of every one. Headed by President Annie M. Hanlon they included Mrs. Elizabeth Mitchell, Mrs. Mary Carroll, Mrs. Elizabeth Moynihan, Mrs. Ruth Nelson, Mrs. Josephine Meskell, Mrs. Mabel Larson, Mrs. Blanche Bennett, Mrs. Mae Fitzgerald, Mrs. Doris Fitzgerald, Miss Elizabeth Fitzgerald, Mrs. Mary DeMorris, Mrs. Nora O'Melia and Mrs. Esther Lawson.

"Jack" Moynihan was in general charge of the collation and the Legion men assisting him were G. Warren Johnston, Conrad S. Larson, Hector Cyr, Frederick S. Mitchell, William Rogers, George Joyce, Clifford Towner and John F. Fitzgerald.

There were a few Girl Scouts at the end of the parade. The girls do not parade any more officially, but those who want to march, are welcomed.

Supt. "Tom" Macksey had Wildwood Cemetery spic and span for the Memorial Day exercises and all who visited it remarked upon its appearance and natural beauty.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN ATTRACTIONS

Presenting William Powell and Ginger Rogers, two of the screen's outstanding favorites, and telling a story replete with mystery, suspense, romance and comedy, "Star of Midnight," which will be the feature attraction at the Mystic Theatre, Malden, starting Saturday, is a delightfully entertaining and completely absorbing picture. As a modern Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson combination, they work to solve a murder mystery. Their detective teamwork is unique, to say the least, with the delectable Miss Rogers providing more laughs and heart throbs than clues, although she does inadvertently manage to provide Powell with the key to the whole mystery. "Star of Midnight" presents Powell and Miss Rogers at their best in a really outstanding story, and, as anyone knows, that means brilliant entertainment. Supporting performances by Ralph Morgan, Gene Lockhart, Leslie Fenton, Paul Kelly, J. Farrell MacDonald are excellent, Morgan and Lockhart being particularly entertaining.

Rollicking humor, pathos, fast and intense dramatic action, romance—all are said to be contained in the Warner Bros. production of "Mary Jane's Pa" the second feature at the Mystic Theatre, Malden, starting Saturday, which has that inimitable team of comedians, Aline MacMahon and Guy Kibbee in the stellar roles. Kibbee plays the part of a tramp printer born with wanderlust in his heart, who abandons his wife and two children and hops a freight for parts unknown. He finally returns to find his wife running another newspaper and interested in another man and in politics. Following many intensely dramatic situations, the story closes in a most touching and surprising climax.

BETHANY NEWS

A dainty, appetizing luncheon was served last Wednesday afternoon to 85 ladies and three brave men of the community, who pronounced the service and the menu excellent, in spite of the fact that nearly everything served came "out of a can." It surely begins to look as though the old-fashioned art of real home cooking is doomed. However, we're about ready to guarantee that even hubby himself couldn't have told the difference. The tables were lovely with purple violets and pink apple blossoms and the whole affair was very festive and also profitable.

The postponed tea that the Finance Committee has been struggling so long to put over was finally held Tuesday afternoon of this week, and it proved to be not only a tea but a surprise party as well. Your humble scribe for once was speechless with something apparently wrong with her knee action and lacrimal glands—and she failed miserably to rise to the occasion when Mrs. Saunders, the president of the society, very graciously presented her with a beautiful silver friendship circlet and a Waterman pen. She wishes now to take the opportunity to express the thanks and deep appreciation she was then unable to voice, to every loving, loyal member of this Bethany Society who have shown such friendliness. Words fail at such a time of parting, but the heart responds and remembers. The following lines found on a sampler recently packed away for moving somehow keep repeating themselves, and are submitted to you as an attempt to say just how much this unity of ladies has meant and will always mean to your "News" reporter:

What's friendship but the sweetness
Of an olden, golden song?
A fondness that remembers
A little kindness long.
What's life without a friendship
That your heart can cling to,
And all the cheer and comfort
You've found in each of you?

Two dates for next week to remember. June , Bethany luncheon, and Friday morning breakfast, from 5:30 to 9 a. m. in the assembly hall. Then comes vacation!

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 2.

The Golden Text is: "When the wicked spring as the grass, and when all the workers of inquity do flourish; it is that they shall be destroyed for ever" (Psalms 92:7).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. . . . Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand" (Ephesians 6:10, 11, 13).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "We should become more familiar with good than with evil, and guard against false beliefs as watchfully as we bar our doors against the approach of thieves and murderers. . . . Evil thoughts and aims reach no farther and do no more harm than one's belief permits. Evil thoughts, lusts, and malicious purposes cannot go forth, like wandering pollen, from one human mind to another, finding unsuspected lodgment, if virtue and truth build a strong defence" (p. 234).

FOR STRATOSPHERE FLIGHT RADIO EQUIPMENT INSTALLED

Radio equipment which will make it possible for two men to converse with friends on earth while floating in a closed airtight ball more than 13 miles above sea level has just been installed in the big black and white gondola that will be taken from South Dakota in June on the stratosphere expedition at the National Geographic Society and the U. S. Army Air Corps, according to an announcement from the headquarters of the Society here. The installation was made at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, under the supervision of Captain Albert W. Stevens, who will be in command of the flight.

The 46-pound radio transmitter, little larger than a miniature home-receiving set, was especially designed for the flight by Robert M. Morris, development engineer of the National Broadcasting Company, and the Radio Corporation of America. It has an energy output of only 8 watts but its short-wave broadcasts can be received directly more than a thousands miles away. During the stratosphere flight, however, the conversation and comments of the balloonist will be picked up and rebroadcast over a nation-wide network of the National Broadcasting Company, so that the flight can be followed by millions of radio listeners.

The tiny short-wave receiver for the gondola was also designed by Mr. Morris. It is a singled-controlled, superheterodyne set, weighing only 15 pounds. It is about ten times more sensitive than the dual-control set used in the 1934 flight.

In addition to the radio sets for sending and receiving voice signals, the expedition will carry two ultra-high frequency sets which will send out continuous waves. It is desired to find out just how these waves behave. It is thought that they can not be detected very far beyond the horizon theoretically visible from the balloon—that, in other words, they will behave more or less like light waves, and will be lost to the earth's surface beyond the horizon.

One of the ultra-short wave sets will send out energy on a frequency of 56,000 kiloycles (5½-meter waves). The other will transmit on a frequency of 112,000 kiloycles (2.7-meter waves). Both of the out-going signals will be modulate. The two ultra-high frequency transmitters will be self-contained and will be suspended about 100 feet below the gondola.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Winchester District Court of Honor and Field Day

On Saturday, May 25, the Winchester District of the Fellsland Council, Inc., Boy Scouts of America held their first outdoor Court of Honor and field day of the season. Members of the Winchester committee were very encouraged by the good turn out of Scout parents and friends at this public court of honor.

The program commenced at 3 p. m. with a series of contests, as follows: Relay race, tent pitching, water boiling contest, Scout pace, dressing and undressing race, signalling and baseball throw for distance. Troop 2 won first place in the water boiling contest, with Scouts William Allen and William Spaulding bringing the water boiling over the top in the shortest length of time. Scout Peter Sibley of Troop 2 won first place in the Scout pace contest, figuring very closely 3264 feet, out of the 3300 feet. This was a remarkable score, the nearest any Winchester Scout has ever figured for such a pace. The tent pitching contest was won by Troop 2, as was the relay race. In the dressing and undressing contest there was a good crowd of boys participating and furnishing the audience a good many laughs.

The new Scout Executive, Edward W. Nelson of Fellsland Council, presented the awards of badges to the Scouts earning them at the Court of Honor ceremony following the contests. Scouts in the various troops are looking forward with eagerness to the next Court.

Ohio, the Buckeye State

The buckeye tree was very abundant in early Ohio, getting its name from the resemblance of its nut or fruit to the eye of a buck. At the first court conducted by the Ohio settlers at Marietta in 1788, the leader of the judges' parade was a very tall man, Colonel Sproat, who so impressed a group of Indians that they shouted "Hetuck," meaning "Big Buckeye."

REPORT OF JUNIOR RED CROSS CONFERENCE AT WASHINGTON, D. C., 1935

By James Coon, President of Junior Red Cross of Mystic School, Winchester, Mass.

To the Chairman and Members of the Red Cross Board:

On Sunday morning, the seventh of April, Mrs. Dresser rolled up to my door in her car, collected me from the midst of my proud family, and we proceeded to South Station, where we met Mrs. Smith, the senior Red Cross delegate from Winchester.

We left South Station at 9 o'clock on the Colonial Express.

The first thing of special interest we saw after leaving Boston was the capitol of Rhode Island at Providence. We had an especially good view of this from three sides as we drew into the station, since the building is situated on a hill with the track curving slightly around it.

We saw but little of New Haven, but as we came into New York over the Hell Gate Bridge, the tracks were elevated and we had a good view of the city. In the distance we saw many sky-scrapers, but the only one we could recognize was the Empire State Building. We noticed blocks of houses in the form of hollow squares, with open spaces in the center for play and clothes yards.

In Philadelphia we saw the National League ball park which is quite near the station. Many of the houses here had overhanging balconies.

In Baltimore we were amused by the queerly shaped chimneys.

Three quarters of an hour after leaving Baltimore we reached Washington and went at once to our hotel, the Powhatan, where we found our rooms and retired.

On Monday morning we went to National Headquarters of the Red Cross and registered. We received an envelope containing a note book, program and our badges.

The Junior Red Cross delegates met for the first session in the Building of the Daughters of the American Revolution just across from National Headquarters.

Dr. Cary T. Grayson presided. A letter of regret from President Roosevelt, who was unable to attend the meeting, was read.

Judge John Barton Payne, who had been chairman of the central committee, was very feelingly spoken of and a talk in memory of him was given by the Rev. James E. Freeman of Washington.

To me the most enjoyable address of the morning was the one given by Miss Lunnea Anderson, spokesman for the Junior Red Cross. Miss Anderson was the Junior delegate from Tacoma, Washington. She spoke of the aims of our Junior Red Cross and our desire to be friendly and helpful to children everywhere.

Monday afternoon we went to the first real Junior meeting. There were over 500 delegates from all parts of the United States. Dr. Gosling greeted us and then turned the meeting over to a temporary chairman, Francis Greenspan, a delegate from New Jersey. The topic was the Junior Council and the more effective use of our Red Cross Magazine.

Some schools save the magazines as we do in our school, others spoke of cutting out interesting and important articles to use for study in geography, in history, and in science. A delegate from Indiana told of saving the covers for art classes and for decoration of the classroom. A New Jersey school suggested cutting our clippings to use for bulletin boards. But of all the suggestions, I liked the one given by a boy from New Orleans who said his school bound the magazines in attractive covers and placed them in the library for reference.

Congressional Library

Tuesday morning, before the meeting, we visited the Congressional Library where we saw some beautiful Corinthian columns at the entrance.

We first took an elevator to the third floor where we saw the very beautiful mosaic of Minerva. A guard standing nearby said that every day as he looked at it he could see something new, and pointed out to us a slight bend in the staff on which she leaned. We then went into a gallery, that looked down into the reading room, which amazed us by its vast size.

We next went into a large room which contained some exhibits of clay tablets with cuneiform writing, also the smallest book in the world, which is the size of a postage stamp and contains Lincoln's addresses. It is opened to the Gettysburg address.

Returning to the main hall, we looked upon the shrine of the Declaration of Independence, which was elevated in a case with gold plated doors. The Constitution was in a glass case beneath it and on this we saw the signature of George Washington, in which I first thought he had used an "f" for the "s," but I learned it was the old fashioned shaping of "s."

We crossed the hall and saw the Gutenberg Bible which was the first book printed in Europe—in Germany in 1454. It is made of vellum with beautiful illuminated capitals. Its value is nearly a million dollars and the government was severely criticised for buying this because of the expense. Naturally several other countries wanted it.

The last thing of special interest that we saw here was the original of the "Star Spangled Banner." From this we hurried to our morning meeting.

Our new Red Cross chairman, a high school boy, David Macarov from Atlanta, Ga., presided at our meeting on Tuesday and for the remainder of the session. He handled our meetings very well, kept us to the point and within our time limit. We discussed how to build a good local program. The main thought was the need to help in the right way, in such a manner that no one's feelings would be hurt. Delegates from many states reported on the work they were doing in hospitals, in children's homes, for crippled children, for the blind, for shut-ins, for infantile paralysis victims, and for disabled veterans.

Tuesday afternoon I learned how the National Children's Fund is used. This money is used for furnishing libraries for small schools, for children in stricken parts of our country, and for children in countries of Europe who need help. The Junior Red Cross ties in friendship the children of 51 nations and the National Children's fund is for all. When the time came for contributing to this fund, I was pretty proud to place Winchester's check for $25 on the chairman's desk.

The total amount of the fund this year was $1795.20.

Admiral Grayson, escorted by two delegates, came to our Wednesday meeting. He made an inspiring address in which he told us the Red Cross wants to knit together all citizens of the world in neighborly goodwill.

The topic which we discussed at this session was "What shall we put into School Correspondence?" Scrapbooks of school work, of our local geography, of local history, of birds, of flowers, of our games and interests, and of the work of our parents were suggested as good topics. A delegate from New York brought out a very good point. He said that people abroad are receiving wrong impressions of our life from the movies and that we should, by sending the right kind of booklets, correct these false ideas.

Westfield, N. J., told of an exhibition of their foreign correspondence held in a central place in the town which aroused considerable interest in the Red Cross.

Every speaker brought out the idea that by learning to know children of other countries we would come to respect them and regard them as our friends.

In the Red Cross Museum I saw a splendid exhibit of foreign correspondence and of articles showing the life of other countries. From these Mrs. Dresser and I got many ideas through which we hope to improve our own correspondence.

Visit to Capitol

One afternoon we visited the Capitol. Congress was in session, and we went in to view the procedure.

In front there was a very high desk at which sat the Speaker of the House, with a desk in front for the chairman, some lower desks for the clerks and others for reporters, etc. The seats were in a semi-circle.

Pages were running back and forth to the Speaker and the chairman carrying messages, and a bill was being discussed which was finally passed, but we could not hear the discussion from the balcony where we were sitting. We could see our representative, Mrs. Edith N. Rogers, talking with another Congressman.

From Congress we crossed to the Senate wing, hoping that the Senate would be in session, but it was not. However, Vice President Garner passed us talking with a Senator. There is little difference in the two chambers, except that each Senator has a desk. We saw pages inserting leaves in large books on each desk.

We left the Senate Chamber and saw various rooms; the one which impressed me most being the huge room under the dome, in which we could see the stairway winding up into the dome.

The Pan-American Building

After one of our meetings, we visited the Pan-American Building, which, as its name indicates, includes objects of interest from all the Americas.

The room most interesting to us was the first room we entered, where we were so fortunate as to join a party of people who had a guide. He showed us different trees, including coffee, cocoa, rubber, palm, cocoanut, and other tropical trees, also a pair of tropical birds, which differ from humans in that the male does all the talking, and the female allows him to.

We could not stay very long, but did see the large Pan-American meeting room, where people from all the Americas meet and where the flag of each of these countries is shown.

Our Trip to Mt. Vernon

On Wednesday noon all the delegates met at headquarters and took busses to Mt. Vernon.

We saw various rooms of the mansion and were especially interested in the bed rooms on the second floor, of which the principal ones opened from a large circular hall. Some of these were: George Washington's bedroom, in which he died; Martha Washington's room; Nellie Custis' room; and the so-called Lafayette room, which was evidently the main guest room.

From the main house we visited the adjoining kitchen with its huge fireplace and many copper kettles and cooking utensils, and then on to the different houses used in conducting the many activities of the plantation. There were several which were not open to the public, including the butler's house, the dairy and smoke houses, the storehouses, wash and icehouses. The one in which I was most interested was the coach house where there were two of the coaches of Washington's period which he may have used.

We walked down a small hill to the tomb where the bodies of Martha and George Washington lie. The tomb had been opened so that a wreath from the Junior Red Cross could be laid at the foot of his grave. We had a feeling of awe as we stood looking in, to think that the body of the Father of our Country was lying there.

It was then time to return to our busses, and we had just time to visit the conservatory before leaving for our hotel.

On Thursday we met again with the Seniors for our final meeting. We marched into the hall in a body to seats reserved for us. We were thrilled by the praise of the chairman who complimented us on our attendance and left us with the thought that our generation is the hope of all for world friendship and world peace.

Our recommendations, in which we asked for the formation of graduate groups and for chances for closer cooperation with the Seniors, were read by a Junior delegate.

The convention was over at noon on Thursday. I knew I had had an experience I shall never forget.

The White House Tea

One of the greatest thrills of the trip was the visit to the White House.

We entered the East Wing and checked our coats; then were taken up to the East Room where we formed in line. Our line was taken through the Green Room into the Blue Room, where we shook hands with Mrs. Roosevelt, Admiral Grayson, and Mrs. Mabel Boardman. Then we went to the State Dining Room where we were served sandwiches, cookies and lemonade.

We saw the room in which some of the china service of all the Presidents is kept. There were pictures of many of the wives of the Presidents including one of Mrs. Coolidge and her famous white collie, Laddie.

Washington Monument

Friday morning, before leaving for the station, we walked to Washington Monument, and took an elevator to the top.

Looking east from the top of the monument we had a good view of the basin, while to the south was the Reflecting Pool, bordered by cherry trees and the Lincoln Memorial, and Arlington Memorial Bridge. From the western side the uptown district could be seen, with hotels and the Union Station standing out. Walking around to the north, we viewed the government buildings and the White House.

The Monument dominates the city and can be seen from practically every point. It is 555 feet high and contains marble from every state in the Union.

I enjoyed my trip, the Junior Conference and the sight-seeing in Washington very much and am thankful to you who made all possible.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

All meats but pork are somewhat cheaper this week with lamb still the best value. Broiling and frying chickens are comparatively inexpensive. Eggs are moderate in price and continued cool weather has kept their quality unusually fine. Summer sausages are in season.

There are many excellent values available in vegetables including spinach, string beans, carrots, beets, new potatoes, cucumbers, white turnips, summer squash, and asparagus. Cabbage and onions are again a bit higher, lettuce and tomatoes are rather high.

Cantaloupe and watermelons are cheaper. A watermelon is just the thing for a holiday picnic. Blackberries and cultivated huckleberries are in market, supplementing the supply of strawberries. Lemons are cheap. Peaches are in market but are expensive and not yet really good.

Here are three menus made up from seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner
Roast Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb
Browned Potatoes Carrots and Peas
Bread and Butter
Banana Tapioca Cream
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Baked Broiling Chickens
Creamed Potatoes Green Beans
Bread and Butter
Strawberry Shortcake
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Jellied Bouillon
Roast Beef or Roast Turkey
Parsley Potatoes
Buttered Asparagus
Grapefruit Salad
Rolls and Butter
Strawberry Ice Cream Sponge Cake
Coffee Milk

HEART TO HEART TALKS

The Secret of Spiritual Heroism

We need spiritual heroes. The world is full of all kinds of other heroes. We need men and women whose knowledge of God is such that they live Christ in their daily lives and not during the few hours they spend in a church pew. This would be a better world were all of us to know the Ten Commandments by heart and practice the Golden Rule but so few do this that the Ten Commandments have become quite obsolete so far as the brotherhood of man is concerned.

How many today would gladly bind persecution like a wreath about their brows as did Irenaeus of Lyons, Wycliffe, Huss, Jerome of Prague, Luther, Melanychthon, Zwingle, Knox, Latimer, Ridley, Bunyan, Baxter, the Wesleys, Howe, the Albigenses, the Huguenots, the Lollards, and many more? How many men and women in and out of Winchester are prepared this very moment to suffer for Christ if need be, to be ennobled by the accolade of suffering to the peerage of the skies?

"They climbed the steep ascent of heaven.
Through peril, toil and pain;
O God, to us may grace be given
To follow in their train."

As the soldiers of Napoleon were standing on an eminence gazing upon the pyramids of Egypt, just before he made his descent upon the Mamelukes, he cried out, "Soldiers! from the summit of yonder pyramids 40 ages survey your conduct; act like heroes." So, from the summits of yonder everlasting hills of heaven, from the blazing thrones of eternity, the eyes of 10,000 heroes and martyrs of past ages hold us in survey. Quit ourselves like men. Let us be valiant for Christ. As men who do know their God, let us be strong, and do exploits. Let us be spiritual heroes.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

Jean Harlow and William Powell in "Reckless," and "Stolen Harmony," with George Raft and Ben Bernie, is the attractive double bill opening at the Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "Reckless" introduces Jean Harlow and William Powell in their first co-starring role. The glamorous platinum star is seen as Mona Leslie, a back-country carnival dancer who becomes a dazzling Broadway star who rises to great social and professional heights, only to be plunged into the depths of scandal and disgrace by the mad act of her millionaire play-boy husband. Such ace entertainers as Carl Randall, sensational dancing star, and Nina May McKinny, noted colored blues singer, appear as the musical numbers unfold. Others in the supporting company are Mae Robson, Henry Stephenson, Ted Healey and Nat Pendelton and little Mickey Rooney.

"Stolen Harmony" is an adroit blend of comedy, melody and drama with Ben Bernie and all his lads offering some new Gordon and Revel tunes. Raft is cast as a saxaphone player and dancer in Bernie's band. Only Bernie knows that Raft is an ex-convict and has taken this job to go straight. In the company is Grace Bradley who furnishes the romantic interest for Raft. Money is missed and Raft is suspected. Then, in a thrilling climax, the entire band is kidnapped by a gang of desperadoes and forced to play for their lives.

"STAR OF MIDNIGHT" AT THE UNIVERSITY

William Powell encounters the most baffling mystery of his career in "Star of Midnight," a glamorous romance with a modern New York setting, which opens Sunday for three days at the University Theatre. As compensation for the difficulty of the case, he has peppery, titian tressed Ginger Rogers as his assistant in clue tracing. Based on a magazine story by the late Arthur Somers Roche, the sophisticated mystery drama united Powell and Miss Rogers on the screen for the first time. The plot centers about the weird disappearance of a beautiful woman, and the mysterious murder of a newspaper columnist which ensues. Romance and subtle comedy combined with the mystery element is said to make the story one of absorbing interest and varied appeal.

Adapted from Damon Runyon's widely read short story of the same title, "Hold 'Em Yale," the companion picture, features Patricia Ellis, Cesar Romero and Larry Crabbe in the leading roles.

Wednesday, Review Day, the program will include "The Gay Divorcee" with Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire and "The Man of Aran," a picture already acclaimed by critics as one of the outstanding films of the year.

Cardinal Richelieu, the red-robed prelate who became the power behind the throne of France 200 years ago, is one of the most fascinating of the countless colorful figures that parade through history's romance-filled pages. Some of the greatest minds of the literary world have tussled with the riddle of this baffling man who seemed a saint one moment and a devil the next. And now this many-sided character is brought again into the public focus as the subject of George Arliss' latest and greatest screen portrait in "Cardinal Richelieu" which starts Thursday.

"One New York Night," the companion feature, is a mystery story replete with suspense, loaded with laughs and sprinkled with a delightful romance. Introducing a new team to the public, Franchot Tone, romantic leading man and light comic, and Una Merkel, pretty comedienne, are co-featured in this film.

MUTILATED TREE

Last Saturday evening a resident of Lebanon street notified Police Headquarters that a tree on her property had been badly mutilated.

Motorcycle Officer Winthrop Palmer went to investigate, and found that a young tree had been badly damaged, its branches having been stripped and strewn about the ground. It is thought that the damage may have been done by boys who have not been permitted to play ball upon an adjacent vacant lot.

"HAWAIIAN GARDENS"

On Tuesday evening, May 28, Metcalf Hall was filled with a most enthusiastic audience to hear Mrs. Alice Cooper Bailey give her lecture, "In An Hawaiian Garden" under the auspices of the Better Homes Garden Club.

Mrs. Alonzo Woodside, President of the Club, extended a welcome to all present, and described the purpose of the Club to be for every home in Winchester a garden, and every home gardener in Winchester a member of the Better Homes Garden Club. She then introduced Mrs. Bailey, who once lived in Winchester, as a woman with a genius for friendship, and through this friendship for Winchester people she was willing to come to us. Mrs. Bailey lived all her early life in Honolulu and is well qualified to lecture about the Hawaiian Islands as well as write of the people. She has published four books for children, and her first published story came out in the Winchester Star during her residence here.

The lecture was illustrated with slides of many beautiful little intimate gardens of Mrs. Bailey's friends not open to the general public, as well as many pictures of public grounds and buildings covered with such a wealth of bloom and color that it made one feel Hawaii was one vast garden, especially when she showed a hedge of night blooming cerus a mile and a half long literally covered with blossoms. The slides of individual flowers were very lovely. The hibiscus is the official flower of the Islands. One does not wonder that the Hawaiians live in their gardens.

The lecture was interspersed with Hawaiian music provided by native musicians, one of whom, Mr. Peter Kaha, sang with the "Bird of Paradise" which ran for many years on Broadway. The music was greatly enjoyed and they received many encores.

At the close of the lecture, Mrs. Lorna Iaukea Watson of Milton exhibited many varieties of Hawaiian handicraft including a large table cover of Tapa cloth from the home of Robert Louis Stevenson occupied while doing much of his writing in that country.

The close of the lecture left all present with a great desire to visit this "Paradise of the Pacific." Mrs. Bailey says that although most of our American tourists visit the country in winter, to see them at their best May, June and July is the lovliest time.

The committee consisting of Mesdames Alfred Radley, Howard A. Morrison, Elisha Goodwin, Harry C. Goodwin, Chester F. Wolfe, Daniel West, Clifton S. Hall and Michael H. Hintlian with Mrs. Dwight B. Hill as chairman are to be congratulated for providing Winchester people with such an entertaining and profitable evening.

Announcement was made of the first annual meeting of the club to be held at the Public Library Wednesday, June 19, at 2:30 p. m. for the election of officers and the adoption of a constitution and by-laws. This business meeting is for members only. Following the business meeting, Mrs. George L. Hull a deaf mute of Arlington will show with moving pictures how she developed a most successful vegetable and flower garden in a rocky dump in Arlington.

WINCHESTER S. P. C. A. AUXILIARY NOTES

A letter received from Mr. Albert A. Pollard, who spoke so acceptably at our last meeting, contained the following information:

"For 67 years the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has followed a careful and wise policy in order to attain a definite objective—the prevention of cruelty to all animals, the enforcement of the anti-cruelty laws of the Commonwealth, the maintenance of the Angell Memorial Animal Hospital and the sponsoring and teaching of Humane Education in the schools of the United States.

"We believe that we have the hearty approval of the general public in our work, judging from the support rendered us by the press, the radio, and all socially minded people.

"There are some, of course, who wonder what we have to do now that the horses are so few in number. They perhaps little realize that there are still 40,000 horses in Massachusetts and their number is on the increase, and that the interest in small animals has greatly increased in recent years.

"The shipment of cattle, sheep, swine and poultry; the inspection of these as they arrive at the stockyards, slaughter houses and markets; and the complaints of cruelty, both in the country and in the city, call for the active and continuous service of our ten agents in all sections of Massachusetts. With the granting of licenses to permit horse and dog racing, our present force will be busier than ever making sure that no forms of cruelty are permitted either in the training of the dog or in the racing.

"Yes, there is more to be done, rather than less, as the pages of Our Dumb Animals will testify from month to month."

Should others wish to add to our shelter fund, kindly send contributions to Miss Bessie M. Small, 51 Myrtle terrace, treasurer, who will gladly send receipt for same.

Class Holds Town Meeting—Lester Gustin, Moderator

On Thursday and Friday, last week, one of the high school Senior English classes which is studying parliamentary law conducted two sessions of a town meeting. During the previous week articles for the Town Warrant had been submitted by each member of the class. Only those which bore the required number of signatures were included in the final copy of the Warrant. The minimum requirement was set at 12 signatures, and no memer of the group could sign more than five different motions.

During the two sessions, Lester Gustin served by appointment as Moderator and Pearl Campbell as secretary, Ernest Thompson as chairman of the Board of Selectmen and Martin Hanley as chairman of the Finance Committee presented reports at the opening session and were very active throughout the two sessions.

During the two sessions only eight of the ten articles were dealt with. Every article brought forth a lively debate, and considerable evidence that in the near future the town will be represented by more than one keen and alert citizen eager to safeguard the welfare of the community.

"Military Training" Wins—"Joe" McNally Convincing Speaker

In the fifth period weekly debate of the English 1-5 group last Monday the affirmative side of "Joe" McNally, Fred Schell and Mary McManus defeated the negative team of Lyman Matthews, "Joe" Cassidy and "Tom" Donaghey. The proposition was Resolved: That compulsory military training be substituted in this school for our present system of physical training, while the affirmative argument was well presented in the main debate, it was in the rebuttal speech that McNally by the use of three specific rhetorical questions really decided the debate for his side.

The judges: Avellino, Offutt and Collins were unanimous, while the class voted 12 to 3 for the affirmative team.

Important Class Tennis

The second round of the class tournament ended with the sophomores and freshmen winning, ts they did in the first round. "Dot" Fitts, sophomore, began it by beating Priscilla Blaisdell, junior, 6—7, Jackson gave the juniors a point by beating Kimball; but Harwood and Spencer lost to Kelly and Ekman, and Pullman beat Dickson, giving the sophomores two valuable points. Fuller, captain of the juniors, paired with Ghirardini to beat Hickey and Armstrong 6—4; and the final score stood: sophomores 3, juniors 2.

In the freshmen-senior matches, McHugh went down in front of Priscilla Jones, 7—5; but Sharon beat Tarbell, making it 1—1. The freshmen won two more matches by default; then Dorothy Glidden rallied for the seniors, by beating her sister, 6—2. The final score: freshmen 3 seniors 2.

High School Elects Red Cross Officers

Last Monday's high school students elected the officers to carry on the work of the Red Cross next year.

Out of ten candidates for the offices, the four winners were John Downs, president; William Smith, vice-president; Frances Hayden, secretary; and Russell Ellis, treasurer. Two of these elections were by a small margin of half a hundred votes.

Although John Downs is a sophomore, he will undoubtedly make a splendid leader to carry on the work of David Grosvenor. He is an honor student and has been active around school this year.

William Smith, another sophomore, needs no introduction. Already he has made his stamp in the school as a leader. He has played baseball both this year and last and has served as president of the sophomore class.

In spite of the fact that Frances Jane Hayden has not been thrust into the center of activities during her two years in high school, she has proved to those who know her capable of handling work which carries responsibility.

Russell Ellis, a freshman, was honored by a position as treasurer. This is unusual for a lower classman, but if he carries into his work the skill he has shown in tennis, there can be no doubt of his success.

Harvard Summer School Conducts High School Classes

During the regular session of the Harvard Summer School, demonstration classes in high school English will be conducted by expert teachers of national reputation. These classes are open to high school students in good standing and are composed almost wholly of juniors and seniors from schools in and about Boston.

A full year's plan in minimized form will be covered with the idea of helping high school pupils to approach two major goals in their study of English—the more sensitive appreciation of literature and a greater facility in oral and written expression. No pupils will be accepted who are not capable of doing satisfactory work in English in the high school.

The class this summer will be conducted by Mr. Irvin C. Poley of the Germantown Friend School, Philadelphia, under the supervision of Prof. Charles Swain Thomas of Harvard.

The first meeting of the class will be held July 2 at 11 a. m. and five days each week until Aug. 10.

Pupils who do the work of this class satisfactorily should be equipped for leadership in their work in English for the ensuing year.

Further details in regard to the plan may be secured from the Winchester High School office or from Mr. Hayward at the high school.

Miss Loysen, who has been at the local high school for the past three years, has accepted a position in the physical education department at Newton High School and will commence her new duties in the fall.

An excellent athlete and All America hockey player herself, her varsity teams have been well coached and especially in field hockey and tennis have made good records.

TOWN TO GREET STEVENSON COREY

Winchester Post, No. 97, The American Legion, with the co-operation of the Board of Selectmen will hold a public reception to Stevenson Corey who was the official supply officer with Admiral Byrd on his recent Antarctic Expedition on next Wednesday evening in the High School Auditorium at 8:15 o'clock.

Mr. Corey has been a resident of Winchester for some years making his home with his parents on Governor's avenue. He was the first member of the Byrd party to arrive in Boston, flying here from Washington to make arrangements for the landing and unloading of the two ships.

He has been particularly honored by Admiral Byrd in being selected as one of only five members of his entire party who are authorized to make public appearances or to speak publicly of the interesting experiences which were encountered. His message bristles with hair-raising, amusing and interesting anecdotes of Admiral Byrd and of many others of the nationally famous members of the expedition. Many press comments seem to indicate that our "Steve" Corey has the most interesting lecture of any of those authorized to talk and one that is said to hold his audiences spell bound as he talks of one almost unbelievable experience after another.

Mr. Corey has been enthusiastically received at each of his many appearances and Winchester is fortunate not only to secure this engagement but to have a chance to welcome one of its "sons" who has distinguished himself to such an extent.

Tickets are on sale at the Star Office, Hevey's Pharmacy and Winchester News Store, from any member of the Legion or may be purchased at the door. Adults 50c, children through high school age 25c. No seats are to be reserved so get there early and enjoy a trip in imagination to "Little America."

An unusual motor accident took place at Symmes corner shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning when the body of a two ton Chevrolet truck parted company with the chassis of the machine while headed south on Main street and making a left turn at the rotary traffic circle.

The truck was loaded with 15 bales of cotton waste, each weighing from 450 to 500 pounds, and when the machine attempted to turn around the island the weight of the load pulled the body off the chassis and dumped it on its right side on the road, spilling the load on the street.

The driver of the truck, Charles Smith of 469 Broadway, Chelsea, was uninjured, and phoned for assistance from the owners of the truck, the Cotton Waste Transportation Company of Mattapan. Meanwhile the body of the truck was left lying in the road while the chassis was pulled over out of the line of traffic.

CAR STRUCK POLE ON WILDWOOD STREET

Shortly after midnight yesterday morning Police Headquarters was notified that an automobile had struck a pole at the corner of Wildwood street and Wildwood terrace.

Patrolmen John Murray and Irving Reardon were sent to investigate, but found that the machine had left after damaging the pole, a town grass plot and about 30 feet of hedge on the property of Mr. Ralph Joslin. The registration of the car was secured and the owner, a Woburn man, stated that a friend had the machine.

Later Patrolman Murray and Reardon met a Chevrolet coach proceeding without lights on Bacon street. They stopped the machine and learned that it was the car involved in the crash on Wildwood street.

The car was being driven by Bernard Curtin of Border street, Woburn, and riding with him were Miss Elizabeth Clark of 157 Grant avenue, Medford, and Robert Connors of 20 Chestnut street, Woburn. All three had sustained injuries and Connor's face was covered with blood from a cut over the right eye.

MEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB IN DRIVE

Local Organization Campaigns to Increase Membership

During the next week or ten days, every male Republican voter of the Town of Winchester will personally be afforded an opportunity to join the new Men's Republican Club of this town according to plans revealed on Wednesday by Ralph Sparks, Chairman of the Membership Committee of that organization. According to the scheme devised by Mr. Sparks, captains in each precinct will direct the activities of ten or twelve minute-men who between them will personally meet every eligible citizen and explain to him the purposes of the organization. The goal is 2000 members, of which 500 have been enrolled before the campaign starts.

The Winchester Men's Republican Club is a unique organization; unique in that it is founded in a town where Republican sentiment has always run high, in fact the strongest Republican town in the Commonwealth today, unique in the fact that it is preparing in an off year when all too frequently citizens pay no attention to political issues; and unique in that it seeks to build not a partisan club but an organization of intelligent voters, who believing alike about certain fundamental principles are willing and eager to band together in furtherance of these principles.

Thus this Club seeks to crystallize a sentiment, which is known to be strong in Winchester, and which it believes to be strong in the Commonwealth and even in the nation. It hopes through its endeavors to spread its ideas and methods into fields where they may be politically effective. It would not be necessary to have such an organization if only Winchester were involved in the issues. For its larger national purposes the club therefore regards its local beginning as only a start.

In a statement of principles printed elsewhere in the Star the Winchester Men's Republican Club lays down a program to which every citizen who believes in its regardless of his party is invited to subscribe. Through three key committees the Club hopes to spread its beliefs; a membership comittee, whose serious effort begins this week, is to demonstrate the true strength of sentiment in favor of these ideas by obtaining an overwhelmingly large membership; a publicity committee is to make the sentiment vocal through publicity channels; and an activities committee is to furnish the membership with stimulating meetings at which both sides of some of the leading issues will be presented. It is believed that with the expected membership attained and with the known standing of the Town of Winchester there is no upper limit to the calibre of speakers and debaters to whom the Club may aspire.

Favorable results in the membership campaign will result in unquestioned prestige for the town. It is rare to find a community of a definite political unity which also brings enthusiasm to its politics. Convinced that many things are wrong in the United States today, the Winchester Men's Republican Club seeks now by weight of its energy, the talent it can command, and the force of its numbers to focus attention of the public on these issues not as has been usual just before the campaign, but in time to permit this focussed attention to bring about some tangible results.

Although the Club bears the name Republican and in fact does espouse the fundamental principles for which the Repulican Party has stood over a long history, will not be hampered thereby in its efforts to seek the truth in a non-partisan and patriotic way; it therefore welcomes to its ranks any male voter of the town who believes with it that the political times are out of joint, and that the Constitution of the United States as slowly amended is a living and not a dead document—a solemn pact of the citizens and not a scrap of paper. Any eligible person who wishes to join and is not met by one of the "shock troops" may do so on application to Mr. Sparks or to any of the precinct chairmen, who are:

1. Harold A. Smith, 9 Orient street, 1211-M
2. James W. Russell, 1 Walcott road, 0078
3. Warren Jenney, 22 Jefferson road, 1010
4. Theodore R. Godwin, 6 Mystic Valley Parkway, 1580
5. William J. Speers, Jr., 61 Wedgemere avenue, 1640
6. James D. Halwartz, 13 Russell road, 1297-W

The Club is governed by an executive committee headed by Theodore von Rosenvinge as President: Earle Spencer as Treasurer, Ralph Hatch as Secretary, Herman Pike as Auditor, and a number of Vice-Presidents, some representing precincts and some at large as follows: Harrison Lyman, James Halwartz, James Russell, John Cassidy, William I. Kneeland, William Parsons, Herbert K. Miller, Salvatore DeTeso, Harry C. Goodwin and Harris Richardson.

Miss Downs, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Downs of Dartmouth street, is a member of this year's graduating class at Bradford, and in the music department has specialized in the study of the pipe organ. At the concert Saturday evening she will play Chopin's Waltz in F Minor. She is to enter Trinity College in the fall, having recently passed her college entrance examinations with honors.

CHURCH OF THE EPIPHANY GROUP OPEN SEVERAL GARDENS

Tea Served at Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer's

On Thursday afternoon, June 6, a group of the Parish of the Epiphany entertained at a garden tea at the home of Mrs. Henry Sawyer on Cabot street. Assisting this large group were the Hospitality Committee of the church. They were Mrs. William Sache, Mrs. Donald Heath, Mrs. Frederic Abbott, Mrs. Robert Davis, Mrs. Charles Werly and Mrs. George Osborne. They greeted the visitors and directed them to the gardens of Mrs. William Gilpatric, entering through a gate on the terrace where tulips are in bloom. Stepping down there is a beautiful formal garden surrounded by a hemlock hedge, gay with iris and other early spring flowers. On the right through an opening in the hedge one enters another garden with a pool in the center surrounded by Siberian iris are in bloom. The rock garden with its wild flowers was very interesting. At the back of the garden the tall evergreens made a beautiful setting.

Across Lawrence street, Mrs. Thomas Freeburn's formal garden, with its bird bath and garden trellis seats, oriental poppies and iris made a pretty picture. At the back a very pretty outdoor living room was featured with its garden furniture and here one could enjoy to the fullest the beauty of the surroundings.

At Mrs. William Edlefson's several unusual flowers, the yellow, white and purple columbine, iris and pansies were admired. The window boxes filled with purple and pink petunias on the upper windows were beautiful.

In Mrs. Sawyer's garden, where tea was served, there were unusual trees and shrubs and the garden was very colorful. Here were two beautiful native azaleas, iris and garden heliotrope, making a pretty setting for the tea and punch tables. Serving at the punch table which was decorated with garden flowers were Mrs. William Wightman, Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. James Cleaves, Mrs. Fred Aseltine, Mrs. Alfred Sweet, Mrs. Everett Ginn and Mrs. Malcolm Nichols.

Pouring at the tea tables during the afternoon were Mrs. Dwight W. Hadley, Mrs. Marcus B. May and Mrs. Edward F. Boyd. Assisting in serving were some of the younger group, including Miss Martha Kimball, Miss Henrietta Garner, Miss Eleanor Lampee and the Misses Madeline Sawyer and Elizabeth Sawyer.

"AS YOU LIKE IT" AT "GREY ROCKS," WINCHESTER

A gala production of Shakespeare's "As You Like It," will be given on the edge of the woods at the Chidley's house, on the evening of Friday, June 21. It will be played by a talented group of boys and girls from Lincoln House, a Boston settlement, whose director, Miss Grace Wills, and director of boys' work, Mr. John Kingman, are both residents of Winchester.

The young actors have been working for many months in diction and dancing, besides the regular rehearsals—under the direction of Miss Ruth Elder, of this town, and it is believed by friends who have already seen them, that they have an interesting and charming production to offer.

The famous and beautiful old songs —"Under the Greenwood Tree," and "It Was a Lover and His Lass," will be sung by a former player, now at Tufts College, who is to do the solos at Symphony Hall on Tufts night. The incidental music will be played by members of the Lincoln House Orchestra. Mr. George Noxon, of Boston, is in charge of lighting; the costumes are under the direction of Mrs. William Henry Smith of this town; Mrs. Samuel J. Elder is chairman of the committee on arrangements, and Mrs. Samuel Graves is chairman of the ticket committee.

CHANCEL CHOIR ENJOYED PARTY

The Chancel Choir of the First Congregational Church enjoyed its annual party Monday evening at the Old Mill Dam Inn in Concord, the entertainment taking the form of an amateur radio night with William Harris as master of ceremonies.

There were solos by Walker Chamberlin, followed by an amusing skit by Betty Perry and Priscilla Moses. Doris Perry contributed a vocal solo which was followed with a Scotch dialect song by William Hodge. Margaret Randall and Dr. F. Milne Blanchard appeared in a "brief" piano duet and as an encore Dr. Blanchard sang an original "topical" song, accompanied by Miss Randall.

Perhaps the hit of the show was the Irish skit, written by Dorothy Marston, in which she appeared with T. Parker Clarke. The director of the choir, J. Albert Wilson, acted as accompanist for several of the numbers. The committee in charge of arrangements included Margaret Randall, Parker Clarke and William Harris. Supper was served previous to the entertainment.

RESERVOIR VISITATION

Winchester residents will be given their usual spring opportunity to visit the reservoirs in the Fells again this year. On Saturday, June 22, the beautiful woods roads in the Fells will be opened to them, affording opportunity to drive over the winding paths around our three reservoirs.

At this time of the year, the Fells are particularly beautiful, with trees and shrubs at their height, and adding to the interest of being afforded a chance to see some of these woods, Winchester people may see the three reservoirs from whence their water supply originates, together with the extensive forestation work being carried on about their shores.

On June 22 the reservoir roads in the Fells will be opened from 1 to 6 in the afternoon. The entrance will be at the head of the Parkway at Mt. Vernon street off Border road. During this period special officers will be stationed at various places to direct traffic, and the exit will be at the North Reservoir onto Highland avenue.

LARGE CROWD EXPECTED FOR BOAT CLUB PROGRAM ON JUNE 8

Water sports from 3 to 5:30. Supper served in the club hall from 6 to 7:30. A gala dance will be held in the evening with various specialties arranged.

The membership committee is soon to close a successful drive for new members and they strongly urge upon any of Winchester residents interested to take advantage of this day and drive down to the club and join in on the activity. GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOR

"Lives of great men, all remind us
We can live our lives sublime,
And departing, leave behind us,
Footsteps in the sands of time."

A pageant of famous characters of history, will be one of the most colorful and spectacular events at the June Festival, sponsored by the Guild of the Infant Savior of Boston, at "Angremont" the beautiful High street estate of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Downes on June 15. The tableau, "Landing of Columbus" will depict the scene on that eventful day in 1492 when Columbus and his Spanish sailors landed on our shores. The tribes of Indians will be featured with a forest background. Then will come America, with all its beloved characters Uncle Sam, Columbia, George and Martha Washington, Lincoln, the Negroes down to the present day with President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

England with her King George and Queen Mary will have their triumphant jubilee and will be supported by the Guild Glee Club.

Irish and Scotch dances will not be forgotten and many excellent numbers are being rehearsed.

Armenia with a full Armenian choir and soloist will be quite a high light in the program.

Holland, Egypt, China and Italy all have excellent talent in their cast. Jeanne D'Arc will be one of the most important characters in France's part of the pageant. A beautiful thoroughbred Arabian horse will take part. This same horse was in a Jeanne D'Arc performance four years ago at the Statler Hotel. His intelligence and ability is amazing and the Guild is most fortunate in securing this trained performer.

The music is under professional supervision and in all, the pageant will be one of the biggest of its kinds to ever have been undertaken. Over 100 people will take part, mostly all members of the Guild and their husbands.

Mrs. J. Edward Downes, is general chairman of the day, assisted by Mrs. William V. McDermott, president of the Boston Guild. Mrs. Virgil Ghirardini, is the pageant chairman; Mrs. Anita McGaragle, the director and are being assisted by Mrs. M. H. Hintlian, president of the Winchester Chapter, Mrs. Earl M. Wood and Miss Mary A. Lyons.

For the children, 13 and under, there is a special fee and for their amusement there will be special attractions among them pony rides.

Bridge will be played from 2 o'clock until 4, followed by the pageant at 4:30. Beano and other social features will take place throughout the day.

The tea dansant will be for many the most interesting event with tables grouped cabaret style around the garden and pergola.

There will be special parking space for all machines within the grounds.

The program for the pageant is as follows:

NO ONE INJURED AS FOUR CARS COLLIDE

During the rain storm of last Friday evening shortly after 8 o'clock, four automobiles were in collision on Washington street at the junction of Harvard street, the machines involved being damaged but no injuries being reported.

According to the Police account of the affair, Thomas F. Cassidy, Jr. of 38 Lebanon street was driving a Chevrolet coach, owned by his father, south on Washington street. As he approached Harvard street he thought a Chevrolet coach, owned by Walter Barstow of 20 Pond street and parked on Washington street at Harvard street, facing south, in charge of Thomas J. Murphy of 107 Sylvester avenue, was going to pull away from the curb.

Cassidy applied his brakes and as he did so his car skidded on the wet road, colliding with Barstow's machine. After striking this car, Cassidy's machine swerved to the left and struck two machines, both of which were headed north; a Ford cabriolet, owned and driven by Barbara F. Watters of 49 Wildwood street, and a LaSalle sedan owned and operated by Harry C. Winton of 86 Tudor street, Chelsea. All the machines were damaged, but were able to leave the scene of the accident under their own power.

TO GRADUATE FROM MT. HOLYOKE

Miss Elizabeth N. Mead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gurdon I. Mead of Wildwood street, is one of several Massachusetts girls who will be graduated from Mt. Holyoke College at the annual commencement exercises on Monday, June 10.

Miss Mead prepared for college at Winchester High, has majored at Mt. Holyoke in the department of English Literature and Drama. She has been active outside her classrooms, having served as literary editor of the Llamarada, the senior yearbook, and participated in numerous dramatic productions, including the May Day pageants, her class junior show and the French plays given last year.

UNINJURED IN FALL FROM CAR

Little John Kelley, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Kelley of 39 Middlesex street, had a narrow escape from serious injury last Sunday evening when he fell from an automobile, driven by his father and turning left on Main street at the traffic beacon near Knight's corner.

As the machine turned, the door opened and the little boy pitched out to the street. He was rushed to the office of Dr. Philip J. McManus who was unable to find any injury after a thorough examination.

PAST NOBLE GRANDS SERVICE CLUB

A good attendance of the club was held at Mable Larsen's home, Maxwell road and many things were talked over.

After a lengthy discussion, officers were chosen to put on the degree for Victoria Lodge in September.

Plans are underway whereby all club members can attend our next assembly banquet.

Very dainty refreshments were served by our hostess and at a late hour the members left for home, looking forward to our next meeting, June 25.

WATERFIELD LODGE, NO. 231, I. O. O. F. LADIES' NIGHT

Last Friday evening at Association Hall on Vine street, Waterfield Lodge No. 231, I. O. O. F. held a ladies' night program.

The entertainment for the evening consisted of the minstrel show recently put on at the Second Congregational Church by the Young People's Group led by Howard E. Chase.

This minstrel show was excellently produced to the complete satisfaction of the large and most appreciative audience.

Miss Helen Saunders acted as interlocutor in her tall silk hat.

The end men were Betty Kendrick, Margery Carruthers, Ralph Colliander and Seron Boodakian and their jokes and snappy singing proved very good. The inner circle was made up of Jane Armstrong, Florence Baron, Eleanor Thompson and Evelyn Carruthers and there also was a large chorus. There were several specialty dancing numbers by Fred Baker and Glen Potter, also acrobatic dancing by Eunice Giles and tap dancing by Norma Higgins, Dorothy Chase sang "Won't You Come Over to My House" and received several encores while Dorothy Thompson's solo was also well received.

The hit of the show proved to be the two pickininies, Helen Chase and Marjorie Colliander, who sang "On the Good Shin Lollipop," and had to repeat it several times. Fred Baker proved quite a success as a magician.

After the show punch and cookies were served and Howard Chase's orchestra assisted by Joseph McNally at the drums played for general dancing.

WYMAN SCHOOL NEWS

The Memorial Day program of the Wyman School was carried out with sincere homage on the day before the holiday. Every part of the program in which even the youngest children in the grades shared paid an unmistakable tribute to our heroes and revered ones.

The children marched around the yard of the school in response to the cornet of Richard Morrow, the bugle of Anne Downer, and the drum of Miriam Welsh. Zoe Tibbetts of Miss Rix's sixth grade, opened the school assembly by repeating from memory a composition of her own on the deeper meanings of Memorial Day. Mr. McCarthy, one of Winchester's fine representatives in the World War, gave a talk, which will long inspire the children on the reverence and thankfulness of Memorial Day. Surely his son at the Wyman School must have been more glad even than all the other children to have Mr. McCarthy speak.

Miss Hackett's and Miss Woodbury's first grades gave a flag song and poem charmingly earnest. Children from Miss Howard's fourth grade recited a patriotic poem. There was a Memorial Day song from Miss Lowry's and Miss Titcomb's third grades. Children from Miss Moffett's fourth grade gave a poem of the tribute of flowers, holding the flowers as they spoke. There was one Memorial Day singing from Miss Bowie's fifth grade and from Miss Wallace's sixth grade as they sang a medley of patriotic songs. Robert Merrison played patriotic songs of very early days on his banjo and Jean Rooney, also representing Miss Rix's sixth grade, accompanied him. Children from Miss Crossley's and Miss Jepson's second grades presented a Memorial Day acrostic, each repeating a little verse to go with the large initial letter held forward. The school hall was made lovely with many garden flowers brought by the children and afterward sent to the Winchester Hospital.

The spring issue of the "Wyman Messenger" was also given to the children on May 30. Its fine tulip-yellow cover designed by Howard Grant, bore two spring robins crayoned orange breasted by the school children. The lettering was crayoned in green. Beside news from every class room, news of Red Cross work and original stories and poems every page had several tiny crayoned illustrations chosen to be printed from the children's contributions.

MAYNARD SET BACK WINCHESTER

Maynard High snapped Winchester's winning streak at Maynard Monday afternoon, winning its second Middlesex League baseball game from the local boys, 6 to 2, the defeat removed Winchester's mathematical chance for the circuit title.

Once again Winchester outhit the opposition, 7 to 5, but Jordan fanned 14 Winchester batters and kept the local hits well scattered, except in the sixth.

Errors by "Tom" Donaghey and McCormick, followed by singles by Labrowicz and Jorden, and a second error by McCormick, gave Maynard four in the first. Brayden's triple to right, Labrowicz's single and two infield outs gave the Orange two in the fifth.

Frazer's error gave Provinzano a life in the sixth. MacKenzie fanned, but "Brother" Donaghey's second bingle sent "Frankie" to third. Donaghey went right down and both he and Provinzano rode home on Coss's one-shot to left. Kendrick singled to right, but Humphrey, batting for Gray, fanned and MacDonnell hoisted to Duggan in center.

WOBURN HIGH WON FROM WINCHESTER ON TRACK

Led by its sterling sprinter, Austin Garvey, Woburn High turned back Winchester High in a set of track and field games on the Woburn High track last Friday afternoon, 43—34. Garvey accounted for both sprints and the broad jump, also taking second in the shot to tally 17 points.

Blonde "Larry" Bairstow took a brace of seconds in the sprints and uncorked a fine kick on the anchor leg of the relay to erase an Orange 15 yard lead, giving the race to Winchester by five yards.

From the local angle "Ray" Underwood's victory in the mile was outstanding, and if the time given out, 4 min. 35 secs., is correct the Winchester youngster ran one of the fastest schoolboy miles hereabouts this year. It is reported the fastest mile run by a schoolboy on the Woburn track.

Underwood, running his first competitive mile, pulled away to an early lead, and managed to stave off the last ditch challenge of Woburn's "Jimmy" McCafferty. The latter was close to the Winchester boy's figures and both runners turned in fine performances.

"Eddie" Batson annexed Winchester's other first place, copping the half mile in front of Underwood and McCafferty, both of whom were doubling.

The quarter mile was an exciting battle between Kee of Woburn and "Bob" Graham of Winchester. The Tanner got the jump at the gun, but Graham passed him at the half way mark, only to lose the lead on the home stretch as Kee came fast into the tape.

"Jimmy" Pattie of Woburn turned in a 5 ft. 8¾ in. performance in the high jump and the Tanners' "Bob" Corry got the shot out 43 ft. 1¼ in. These performances with Underwood's fine mile were outstanding.

Following is the summary:

100 Yard Dash Won by Garvey, Woburn; 2nd, Bairstow, Winchester; 3rd, Lockhart, Winchester. Time 10.2 seconds.

220 Yard Dash Won by Garvey, Woburn; 2nd, Bairstow, Winchester; 3rd, Lockhart, Winchester. Time 24 seconds.

440 Yard Run Won by Kee, Woburn; 2nd, Graham, Winchester; 3rd, Baker, Woburn. Time 57.2 seconds.

880 Yard Run Won by Batson, Winchester; 2nd, Underwood, Winchester; 3rd, McCafferty, Woburn. Time 2 min. 18 secs.

One Mile Run Won by Underwood, Winchester; 2nd, McCafferty, Woburn; 3rd, Garney, Winchester. Time 4 min. 35 2-5 secs.

High Jump Won by Pattie, Woburn; 2nd, Downes, Winchester; 3rd, Mawn, Woburn. Height 5 ft. 8¾ in.

Shot Put Won by Corry, Woburn; 2nd, Garvey, Woburn; 3rd, Gardner, Winchester. Distance 43 ft. 1¼ in.

Broad Jump Won by Garvey, Woburn; 2nd, McDonald, Woburn; 3rd, Pattie, Woburn. Distance 19 ft. 6 in.

Relay Won by Winchester, (Lockhart, Munroe, Graham, Bairstow).

WINCHESTER WON FROM STONEHAM

Winchester High, with "Lefty" McTague up, won from Stoneham High, 10 to 5, in a Middlesex League baseball game Tuesday afternoon on Manchester Field. The locals hit McKinnon and Buckley hard and pretty consistently while McTague went along nicely after the first and second frames. Errorless ball would have prevented the visiting runs in the seventh.

Savelo hit to left to open the game, stole second, reached third on a passed ball and scored while Provinzano was tossing out Hurley. Smith opened the second with a single to left, but was caught at third on McKinnon's single to the same pasture, MacDonnell to Gray. "Rollie" went down on the throw-in and scored ahead of Howes when the latter's drive proved good for the circuit.

Winchester got a couple back in its half of the second on "Brother" Donaghey's single to left, MacKenzie's triple to right and a passed ball. Provinzano's homer into the river, "Brother" Donaghey's second hit, a fielder's choice, two errors and a pass, added two in the third.

Smith's error in left gave McCormack a life in the fourth. "Tom" Donaghey hoisted to Smith and Provinzano fouled to Truesdale, but "Brother" Donaghey drew a pass and Coss's double to left sent in McCormick, Donaghey being out at the plate on a relay throw, McKinnon to Downes to Truesdale.

Five big runs went over in the sixth which opened with Buckley passing McCormick and "Tom" Donaghey. Provinzano's double, MacKenzie's triple and singles by McTague, Gray and MacDonnell provided the big punch which Buckley's balk helped along.

Stoneham's final runs came over in the seventh. Hurley fouled out to Gray, but Truesdale hit to left and reached second when Provinzano lost the throw on an attempted double play, following Buckley's grounder. "Brother" Donaghey took Smith's fly, but McKinnon's hit to right scored Petroni who ran for Truesdale and Buckley. Thompson, batting for Fortini, fouled to Donaghey.

MUSSER—WILLETT

There is Winchester interest in the marriage which took place in Lesley Lindsay Memorial Chapel, Boston, on Saturday afternoon, June 1, when Miss Elizabeth Willett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour B. Willett of Chestnut Hill, formerly of this town, became the bride of John Miller Musser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton R. Musser of Muscatine, Ia. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, rector of Trinity Church, Boston, and the ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Willett had two honor attendants, Miss Marion Musser of Muscatine, Ia., sister of the bridegroom and Mrs. Timothy W. Goodrich, 2nd, of Boston. Miss Virginia Prout of Chestnut Hill, cousin of the bride; Miss Nancy Brigham of Newton Center, Mrs. Herbert S. MacDonald of New Haven, Conn.; and Miss Barbara Bailey of Boston were bridesmaids.

Dr. Charles A. Janeway of Boston was Mr. Musser's best man and the corps of ushers comprised Arthur E. Palmer, Jr. of Morristown, N. J.; Joseph G. Hodges of Denver, Col.; Thomas E. Moore, also of Denver and William Ward Willett of Chestnut Hill, brother of the bride.

Mr. Musser and his bride are to spend the next three months honeymooning in Europe. Upon their return they are to make their home in St. Paul, Minn.

MISS GRECO TO COMPETE AT MILLWOOD HUNT

Miss Constance Greco, Winchester's popular horsewoman, who last year won a leg on the challenge trophy master's cup for ladies' qualified hunters with her inseparable Greylight, again will be in the field with her crack jumper in an endeavor to hang up her second straight victory in this feature event of the 13th annual Millwood Hunt horse show at Waveney Farm, Framingham Centre, Saturday and Sunday.

That Miss Greco's path to a triumph will not be too easy is indicated by the fact that several of the outstanding hunters of the season already have entered, with the probability strong that Mrs. Gardiner H. Fiske, 1933 winner, will enter the lists again with one of the stars of her stable. In addition there will be such early season standouts as Mrs. Francis H. Gleason's Killarney Rose, another Winchester entrant and the hunter standout at Newton and Winchester, as well as one of Dedham's strong point getters last week. Then there will be still another Winchester girl, Joan Harding, with her Merrydale. Dr. F. L. Good's Ritzlite, Josiah H. Child's Parity, Herbert B. Shaw's Mallow, Frances McElwain's Wonderbar and Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, Jr.'s Blue Skies, all tested mounts and highly capable of winning at Waveney farm.

The trophy, presented by George H. D. Lamson, M. F. H., must be won three times by the same exhibitor but not necessarily by the same horse permanently to be possessed. The outside course at Framingham is difficult and calculated to test the many entries and to make difficult the attempts of Miss Greco and Mrs. Fiske to gain a second leg on the cup.

MISS ROGERS SHOWERED

Miss Helen Rogers, daughter of Police Chief and Mrs. William H. Rogers of Grayson road, was given a shower Tuesday evening by the young women's club of which she is a member at "Trail Inn," Littleton.

After the bride-to-be had opened her many attractive gifts and expressed her thanks, supper was served and dancing enjoyed until midnight.

Among the guests were Mrs. Henry Haley, Mrs. John Murray, Mrs. John Boyle, Mrs. Charles Harrold, Mrs. Joseph Callahan, Mrs. Manuel Ferry, Miss Mary Boyle, Miss Alice T. Brine, Miss Margaret McCarron and Miss Isabella Rogers.

WINCHESTER WON 11 INNING GAME FROM WOBURN

Winchester High concluded an in and out baseball season in glorious fashion Wednesday afternoon by defeating its ancient rival, Woburn, on Manchester Field, after 11 hectic innings, 9 to 8.

"Luke" Griffin, southpaw, fastballer, started for Woburn, but gave way to Sawyer midway through the third inning, after some pretty harsh treatment. "Buz" Kendrick, Winchester's mound ace, went the distance and pitched good ball, keeping the tanner's 12 hits scattered except for the third and eighth frames. Good baseball would have retired the visitors scoreless in the second when three runs went over.

Winchester went right to work in its half of the first. MacDonnell popped to Sweeney, but Gray hit to left center and reached third when Collins failed to field his drive cleanly. "Brother" Donaghey brought Gray in with a long drive to Collins. Provinzano got a life on Sweeney's error, stole second and scored on "Tom" Donaghey's single past Fitzpatrick. Donaghey reached second on the throw in, went to third on Coss's single to left and scored when Kerrigan lost O'Brien's throw home. O'Brien backed up against the foul post for MacKenzie's well-hit liner.

Carroll got to second when Gray threw over McCormick's head after fielding his easy grounder. Fitzpatrick's single to left moved up the runner. Kerrigan rapped to Donaghey who threw home too quickly, permitting Carroll to get back to third. Pattelena fanned but Sweeney's hit to left brought in Carroll and Fitzpatrick. Kendrick cut off MacDonnell's throw to the plate and threw wildly to second trying to get Sweeney. Provinzano backed up nicely, but his throw home was late and off center, Kerrigan scoring. Griffin flied to MacDonnell and Collins popped to Provinzano to end the inning.

Woburn added three in the third. McDonald fanned, but O'Brien and Carroll singled with Fitzpatrick clearing the sacks with a homer into the river. "Tom" Donaghey tossed out Kerrigan and Kendrick threw out Pattelena.

The locals went into the lead in their half of the third. "Brother" Donaghey hit to left and both he and Provinzano were safe when Pattelena erred on an attempted force play at second. "Tom" Donaghey's hit to left filled the bases, after which singles by Coss and MacKenzie, followed by McCormick's sharp double, accounted for five runs. "Polock" was caught at third on Kendrick's rap to Sawyer, who had replaced Griffin, and Pattelana threw out MacDonnell.

Woburn tied it in the eighth. Fitzpatrick and errigan singled, but Kerdrick bore down, forcing Pattelena to pop to R. Donaghey and Sweeney foul to McCormick. Successive singles by Sawyer, Collins and McDonald brought in Fitzpatrick and Kerrigan and there were three on when Kendrick forced the dangerous "Danno" O'Brien to hoist to Provinzano.

Neither team was able to score in the ninth or tenth. Woburn's hopes ran high when McDonald opened the eleventh with a hit to right and reached second on a passed ball. Kendrick, pitching his second game in three days, put on pressure and fanned O'Brien, forcing Carroll to fly to Chamberland in right and Fitzpatrick to foul to R. Donaghey. It was a fine exhibition of pitching in a pinch

In the Winchester eleventh Fitzpatrick tossed out R. Donaghey, but "Fitzie's" error gave Provinzano a life, and Sawyer's balk sent him to second. Capt. "Tom" Donaghey then proceeded to end his high school baseball career in fine fashion by punching out a clean hit to left, scoring "Ref" with the winning run.

The elder of the House of Donaghey divided the hitting honors of the game with "Albie" MacDonnell, each getting four out of six, and both of these boys sparkled afield. Fitzpatrick got three out of five for Woburn including his homer.

We must confess a feeling of pride in noting that no less than five of the honor graduates at the High School this year are likewise graduates of our old Alma Mater—The Highland School. We believe that fully as many more are in the graduating class. Perhaps the School Committee did not do such a bad job after all when it finally decided to keep the old "Highland" open some years ago. Mrs. Joseph H. Hefflon, by the way, principal of this school, is retiring this year, and was recently tendered an appreciative tea, attended by many of her former scholars.

THE SUPER-ABUNDANT LIFE

Some five or six years ago, when we were enjoying the abundant life —Republican pattern and not the Reigning President's 1935 model— the Town of Winchester, along with other Massachusetts communities, enjoyed the height of good living. Unlike other places however, Winchester was able to hold its head and common sense, and while enjoying prosperity to the full, was not carried away by civic expenditure and needless waste resulting in saddling itself with future costs now so burdensome to almost every community. During these prosperous years our tax rate hung at a very moderate figure. In fact it was even lowered appreciably, until in 1930 and 1931 we ran an even $24 a thousand. Now, in the abundant year of 1935, our last rate had risen to only $28. Contrasting our figures with those now being turned in by surrounding places we have much food for thankfulness in digesting the temperate ways of our town advisors. We have brought to mind in this connection a Massachusetts town which it is said today numbers more of its citizens on its welfare rolls than those left to pay for their keep. In this particular place the two factions, for such they have developed into, are known as the "Property Owners" and the "Alphabets." In a recent town controversy the Alphabets voted some session for a project over the heads of the Property Owners. The project had been planned and would have been carried out practically and economically in the ordinary course of events. Holding the whip hand under the New Deal, the Alphabets forced the Property Owners to shell out. Truly this is the super-abundant life. You support me and I will tell you how and why you will spend your money! It's nothing out of my pocket! Just how far this situation may develop throughout the country is debatable. Everyone has a vote whether he pays a poll tax or not. The time may not be far distant when we all as Property Owners may find it more expedient to become Alphabets and step up this really superabundant life.

WILL ARRANGE MEETING ON GRADE CROSSING

Boston, Mass.
June 5, 1935

To the Editor of the Star:

In matter of grade crossing elimination I am sending you a copy of the favorable comment on the situation I have received from Hon. Joseph B. Eastman, Federal Co-ordinator of Transportation.

It is now my endeavor to have the Hon. Edith Nourse Rogers (who is ever active in any matter concerning the welfare of Winchester) arrange for a meeting at the Washington office of Hon. Thomas H. MacDonald (see Mr. Eastman's letter), of herself the Hon. Marcus A. Coolidge, and also a Representative of the "Division of Application and Information of the National Emergency Council" (to which a former communication was referred by President Roosevelt) and the Hon. Joseph B. Eastman, in the hope that at such a meeting a special adequate appropriation for the lifting of our Grade Crossing problem, may be put into effect.

Very faithfully,

Boston, Mass.

My dear Mr. Burwell:

This will acknowledge your letter of May 20 in regard to the possible elimination of the grade crossing of the Boston & Maine Railroad at Winchester. My understanding is that the use of Federal funds for the elimination of grade crossings will be in charge of Hon. Thomas H. MacDonald, Chief of the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture. I have forwarded to Mr. MacDonald the letter which you wrote me and have told him that you are quite correct in believing that this is a very dangerous grade crossing which ought by all means to be eliminated. As a former resident of Winchester I know this to be the fact.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Burwell:

At the direction of President Roosevelt, I am acknowledging your letter of May 14, with its enclosure of a copy of "The Star" setting forth an example of a dangerous railroad grade crossing in your vicinity.

In accordance with approved procedure, we are immediately transmitting your letter and this copy of the newspaper to Mr. Fred P. Bartlett, Works Application Adviser of the Division of Grade Crossing Elimination, Bureau of Public Roads, Washington, D. C.

In the event that the project in which you are interested is found eligible, you will be advised promptly. In any event, it might be well to keep in touch with this agency.

TOBACCO AND TAXES

——"Farmers in Housatonic valley who normally raise 1000 acres of tobacco, are raising no tobacco at all this year but will receive $141 per acre from the government for the tobacco they did not raise."—News item.

This leads us to ask a question. How much should the government pay to a taxpayer for not paying his taxes?

For the best answer to this question we offer a prize of one box of cigars made of the Housatonic valley tobacco which the farmers didn't raise.—[From the Bridgeport Post.

THANK YOU!

I wish to express the appreciation and gratitude felt by my mother and family toward our Honorable Board of Selectmen, Chief of Police William H. Rogers and the American Legion, in endeavoring to make Decoration Day the happiest my father has yet experienced.

Such co-operation, in respect to a man critically ill, calls for the highest tribute towards his benefactors, and we feel unable to truly express our sincere thanks.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out; . . . For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever" (Romans 11:33, 36).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The conceptions of mortal, erring thought must give way to the ideal of all that is perfect and eternal. Through many generations human beliefs will be attaining diviner conceptions, and the immortal and perfect model of God's creation will finally be seen as the only true conception of being. . . . Spiritually to understand that there is but one creator, God, unfolds all creation, confirms the Scriptures, brings the sweet assurance of no parting, no pain, and of man deathless and perfect and eternal" (pp. 260, 69).

A TRIP ON THE NORMANDIE

Ernest Dudley Chase Describes Voyage on Giant French Liner

Perhaps Star readers would like to read a layman's story of the maiden voyage of the great super-ship, "Normandie."

It was my privilege to make the crossing, in company with professional newspapermen, broadcasters, and camera men, and while much has already appeared in the press concerning this amazing and incredible vessel, possibly I may be excused for adding my impressions.

Previous to the sailing, a taxi had transported me to a point of vantage nearly a mile across the harbor, where even at that distance it was impossible to make a film without panoraming, due to the tremendous length of the ship. Men still working on the hull were hardly visible, and a boat tied up alongside only accentuated the great distance from stem to stern and height from waterline to tip-top of those three huge red funnels. What a sight she would be as she passed out from the harbor mouth!

Back to the brand new dock and railway station, never before used, we watched and photographed as the second and third long boat-trains pulled in, to spill hundreds of passengers who, added to porters and friends should have packed an ordinary train-shed, but here was each perfect system that they were quickly swallowed up into the boat, only to reappear to line the decks as we sailed on this remarkable voyage.

In the meantime, those who had come by automobile drove up ramps direct to the gangplank, where they embarked, their cars to be in a few moments swung aboard as if they were toys from Germany or Japan.

Now the whistle blows, broadcasters talked into their "mikes," that all the world might know the largest vessel afloat was off, cameramen snapped endless shots, and the movie operators ground thousands of feet of film, to shortly appear in newsreels all over the globe. What a thrill, what an moment in one's life to feel that here were we present when marine history was being made!

Small as pygmies were the countless thousands covering every vantage point along the mile-long docks, the jetties, the quays, and even down on the beach at the Frenchman Bend. Each steamer, as we passed out, saluted with roaring blasts from their sirens or whistles, to each of which the Normandie responded from her own noise makers.

And this our voyage commenced.

As for the Normandie itself—this greatest of all marine wonders is more than a ship, it is more than a floating palace; it is, as the Governor General of the French Line said, an expression of good will and friendship toward the United States, a ship that will bind the two nations more closely together.

Any and all descriptions of this great liner, must of necessity fall far short, for its vast interior must be seen to be appreciated. Her cabins, from the most luxurious suites down to the single rooms, are exquisitely decorated, and have all the modern gadgets imaginable, for one's comfort and enjoyment. Not finished in any one style the rooms are done tastefully in a great variety of materials; some in leather, tapestries, decorated woods, parchment, paper, and even metal; their shape and design vary, too.

Naturally the public rooms are more lavishly decorated, each by noted artists and designers, the main salon, for instance, has for its wall coverings sheets of plate glass, which some talented artist has painted on the reverse side with massive drawings of ships and figures in gold, grays, and black, all blending in with the gold columns, wood work, modernistic lighting fixtures, deep crimson hangings, and the furniture of special design and coloring. Smoking room walls are of metal, with great bas-relief figures, wrought in and colored with lacquers in pale gold and tints. A long staircase leads from this room to the grill room towards the stern, which is practically all windows. Beside these three big rooms there is a theatre, a lobby where four large elevators take folks to all decks, a conservatory, library, and other smaller rooms, all on the promenade deck. Beneath all this is a 400-foot long dining room, with many small private dining rooms along either side, the kitchens being on the deck below. Under a beautiful chapel is a huge swimming pool, all of which is done in tile, even the ceiling. Then there are gymnasiums, playrooms for kiddies (one of which is in the forward smoke stack), shops, music rooms and numerous other places for the convenience and whims of travelers.

Before reaching Southampton, the whirl of social life had commenced, for following that first exciting dinner, served shortly after leaving Havre, music and dancing in the grand salon attracted many; and late as it was when we came to the English harbor, hundreds were up and out to see and welcome the hundred or more who came aboard. Fog in the channel slowed up the first few hours, but from Sunday noon to Monday noon a new world's record for a day's run was radioed everywhere. We then concluded the Captain would go out for a record crossing, but he would not admit it, although he was questioned at the daily press conferences.

Inasmuch as not a few notables were aboard, there soon took place many tea-time, dinner and after-dinner parties in the Grand Salon, in the great dining room, and the private dining rooms. What with distinguished officials of the French Line, including the President and the Director General, a Maharaja or two (Counts and Barons and famous authors, couteriers, a dozen pretty manikins, say nothing of the near-famous, well-known newspaper men and women and others, we were witnesses of many gay parties. Usually dawn was breaking when the dancing ceased in the grill at the stern of the ship.

At noon each day there was suppressed excitement when the mileage for the previous day's run was announced, and happiness prevailed everywhere as daily records were broken.

Saturday night brought the Gala Captain's Dinner, but neither of the two Captains put in an appearance, for we were rushing through thick fog, with no abatement of speed, as no other steamers were in our lane of travel; nevertheless the fog horn kept up its minute-by-minute tooting. All through the night lasted the entertainment and the dancing, and I'm afraid there was many a big head the following day, which brought our only really sunshiny weather of the voyage, except the final day as we came into New York.

Nantucket Lightship was passed Monday morning about 5:30 and by 7:30 two planes from news reel companies were circling round us, having bright sunshine to help them in getting fine film. What a sight the great ship must have been, as she cut through a sea, calm as a mill pond! An hour later, and from then on until docking, the air was filled with air craft.

Exactly at 11 o'clock we passed Ambrose Lightship, more than two hours ahead of any previous record, and what a shout went up from the hundreds gathered all around the bridge. Almost immediately there was unfurled from the stern mast a blue pennant, symbolic of the fact that here was the speed master of the Atlantic, and deck stewards were pinning on each passenger silver medals with blue ribbons attached. Shortly we all received a copy of the record-breaking log and a certificate, properly filled out with names and signatures, saying that we had made the maiden voyage.

Before reaching Quarantine, speedboats had joined the airplanes in greeting us, and then at that first stopping place four huge excursion steamers, each packed to the rails with cheering and waving people, as well as dozens of tugs, and all sorts of craft were crowded about us, their whistles blowing, their bands playing, all in the way of greeting a new Queen of the Sea. Among all these greeters was one that particularly interested the writer, for it bore a large banner reading: "The Port of Boston Greets the Normandie," so high were the ship's decks from the water that none of the upturned faces were recognizable, but my lusty shout of "Hellow, Boston!" brought forth a cheer and frantic waving of arms from one greeter who later turned out to be Winchester's well-known banker, Herbert E. Stone, who, through glasses had recognized the returning traveler.

Now, the 1000 bags of mail being taken off, and other port formalities being completed, anchor was up and we slowly steamed up to the berth, accompanied by a flotilla of excursion boats, tugs, and planes, while every steamer noisily greeted us with whistles and sirens, fire boats threw tons of water into the air, and more than a million people from all sorts of vantage points waved, cheered, or watched, entranced the record breaker on her triumphant entry into the world's largest city.

It was a joy to see the effect on all the French passengers' faces, from Madame Le Brun's down to the poorest steerage voyager; they were surely literally amazed at this sincere tribute to the prowess of the great liner and no doubt the French press will play up this phase of the arrival more than any other.

REVISED TELEPHONE RATES

Revised toll rate schedules filed by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company during May, and effective June 1, advance to 7 p. m. the time at which night rates on station-to-station calls become effective. The change, which eliminates the so-called "evening rate period" formerly in effect from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m., applies on all station-to-station calls. Within the territory comprising Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island, night rates are lower than day rates where the latter are more than 25 cents. Outside this area, the corresponding figure is 35 cents.

A station-to-station call, explains the telephone company is one on which, as in a local call, the caller is willing to start conversation with anyone who answers at the distant end.

The new schedule will give the customers the advantage of night rates on such calls made during the evening hours after 7 o'clock, and is expected to result, to some extent, the traffic congestion which sometimes happened shortly after 8:30 as customers waited for that time to get the lowest rate.

Previous to the institution of the 8:30 night rate, some years ago, evening rates were in effect until midnight.

Also filed during May was a revised schedule of charges on handsets, which eliminates the present rate of 15 cents a month if the instrument has been in service for 36 months.

In a statement sent with bills to all customers this month, the Telephone Company says, "Where continuity of hand-set service has been broken we cannot, without your help, piece together periods of service at the same or different locations. Please take up such cases with your Service Representative, located in the Telephone Business Office which serves you. To her, also, any request for further information should be addressed.

"Please note that hand-set charges do not appear as a separate item on your telephone bill, but are combined with other 'Local Service' items. As hand-set charges disappear, this 'Local Service' item will be correspondingly less."

Know Not of War

Despite the fact that war dominates the pages of history and is still today one of the chief topics of the press of the world, there are existing races of people, such as the Eskimos, who never have indulged in warfare and who know nothing about it.—Collier's Weekly.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

The Stern Discipline of Life

Men are reapers—are reapers that they may be sowers. The glory of human life is not in receiving but in giving. "The glory that thou gavest me I have given unto them." We are to lead others into the same spacious inheritance. We must be prepared to cast our small streams of life into the wider, deeper river that is all the time renewing the earth. The precise results we may never see; the harvest will be reaped by those who succeed us. Such is the very stern discipline of life upon the earth. It is the trial of many of us. We may consider the visible results of no particular consequence, but let us not forget that we may be greater than we believe ourselves to be. Purify one stream of life, and it may be in future years a whole river.

The possibilities of our influence are boundless. "Freely ye have received, freely give." Let us quit this very moment being parasites living on the past—let us be patriots enriching the future.

"Others shall sing the song, others shall right the wrong,
Finish what we begin and all we fail to win.
What matter, we or they, ours or another's day
So the right word be said and life be sweeter made."

Speaking of the astronomers of ancient times, Ball says no idea could be more fundamentally wrong than to think astronomical discovery is a purely modern product. While we appreciate the brilliant achievements of the period in which we now live, we should do full justice to the labors of the astronomers of antiquity, men who without instruments yet mapped out the heavens and named the constellations thousands of years ago. So it is in every sphere the great and the good, known and unknown who labored, and we have entered into their labors. Our Lord remembered these who prepared the way for Him, who showed before He came that the men who most enrich the race were men of sorrows. The great doxologies and litanies of psalmist and prophet were born of deep and tragic experiences.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

The list of available summer fruits is longer each week and more of them are available to the average consumer. Cherries and peaches are lower as are cantaloupes and watermelons. Excellent values are to be found in oranges and bananas. Lemons are somewhat higher. Raspberries, blackberries and huckleberries are fairly high.

New potatoes are the outstanding vegetable value though spinach, peas and cabbage are also cheap. Also in the low-priced group are green beans, beets, carrots, white turnips and summer squash. Tomatoes are much lower though not yet cheap. Boston type lettuce offers better value than Iceberg.

Butter and eggs are moderate in price. Forequarter cuts of beef, veal and lamb are the best meat values obtainable.

Here are three menus made up from seasonable foods adpated to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner
Cold Cuts Potato Salad
Pickled Beets
Bread and Butter
Hot Gingerbread Lemon Sauce
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Corned Beef New Potatoes
New Cabbage
Bread and Butter
Banana Cream Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Roast Spring Lamb or Beef
Browned New Potatoes Green Peas

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

Yes, 'tis a sad thought; the undeveloped peoples are those that still have faith in humanity.

One Winchester mother is proud of her birthday present—a vacuum sweeper—but she says she would have preferred something nifty to wear.

According to one Winchester man who has traveled all over America there are not enough pretty words in the English language to describe a full moon rising over the woods of our Middlesex Fells.

One Winchester husband whose bridge-playing wife insists that she plays by rule insists that it is too much like real work.

How many old timers here in Winchester remember when women hung certain items of their clothing to dry in the kitchen instead of putting them on the line out in the yard?

Is that one reason why kitchens were so much bigger in the old days?

A man does not reap what he sows unless he works the crop.

About the most expensive thing on this earth is money.

According to one Winchester philosopher the objection to inalienable rights is that one must fight hard to keep them.

When a Winchester woman is lonely, and wants the doorbell to ring, she takes a bath, or rather tries to do so.

How time flies—and it is now fly time in Winchester.

Once upon a time there lived right here in Winchester a woman who wasn't indignant when a horn tooted to make her move faster.

Mosquitoes are trimming their bills for a lot of boarders in Winchester and vicinity this coming summer.

"G MEN" AT THE UNIVERSITY

"G Men," the sensational picture written about the heroic deeds of the Secret Service men in the United States Department of Justice, opens Sunday for three days at the University. The picture is said to be one of the most thrilling and dramatic pictures ever presented, based on sensational newspaper headlines which have covered the front pages of all the dailies of the country. The production is enacted by an all star cast headed by James Cagney as the leading "G" man and Margaret Lindsay, in the leading feminine role.

"Let's Live Tonight," the companion picture, features Lilian Harvey, Tullio Carminati, Tala Birell, Janet Beecher and Hugh Williams. It is a delightful romance-drama of the Riveria.

On Wednesday, Review Day, the program will include George Arliss in "The House of Rothschild" and "We're Not Dressing" with Carole Lombard and Bing Crosby.

Drama, romance, thrills and the gorgeous music of Victor Herbert's greatest operetta are blended in "Naughty Marietta," which starts Thursday. This spectacular romance of Creole days in New Orleans, brings to the screen Jeanette MacDonald, glamorous heroine of "The Merry Widow" and Nelson Eddy, eminent American operatic baritone. The picture tells a graphic story of the settlement of New Orleans by the French in the days of Louis XV and of the love of a disguised French princess, seeking escape from a marriage of state, and an English officer.

Uproarious situations that include hog-calling, a burlesque duel and the tribulations of a hard-hitting country editor, appear in Will Rogers latest clowning triumph, "Life Begins at 40" the companion picture.

The latest edition of "The March of Time" will be shown for the entire week.

GRANADA THEATRE, MALDEN

"G-Men" with James Cagney, Margaret Lindsay, Ann Dvorak and Robert Armstrong as the stars, one of the important pictures of the year, will open a seven day engagement at the Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. James Cagney is cast as a young man who joins the "G-Men" when his pal is bumped off by a gangster. He goes through his six months training period after many battles with his superior, Robert Armstrong. He falls for Ann Dvorak, a cabaret girl, with gangster connections, which results in him being put on the spot and shot. In the hospital he meets a nurse, Margaret Lindsay and falls in love with her. When he leaves the hospital he tracks down Public Enemy No. 1 and shoots it out single handed, holding Miss Lindsay as a hostage, in a bullet-pumping windup which is thrilling to the marrow. "G-Men" is an outstanding film and has already been selected as the best picture of the month.

"Let's Live Tonight" with Lillian Harvey, Tullio Carminati, Janet Beecher, Tala Birell and Hugh Williams, will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. The story concerns Lillian Harvey, a young American girl vacationing on the Riveria, who falls in love with Tullio Carminati.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

"Four Hours to Kill," with Richard Barthelmess, Helen Mack, Gertrude Michael, Dorothy Tree and Roscoe Karns, will head the double bill opening at the Mystic Theatre in Malden on Saturday. The action of the story takes place almost entirely in the lounge of a Broadway theatre, and depicts the unusual drama which occurs in the lives of a group of people in the space of four hours. "Four Hours to Kill" is a screen version of the successful Broadway stage hit, "Small Miracle," written by Norman Krasna.

"The Unfinished Symphony" with Helen Chandler, and a supporting company of Continental favorites including Marta Eggerth and Hans Jaray, will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. "The Unfinished Symphony" is the story of Franz Shubert and the women who loved him and inspired him. Against the background of the famous musical compositions of the immortal Shubert the film presents scenes of lavish Court Musicales with beautiful costumes and settings. There is the glorious music of "Ave Maria," "The B Minor Symphony" and other Shubert melodies played by the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra. Other musical highlights of the film are the internationally famous Boy's Choir of Vienna, singing the melody "Rose Among the Heather," and the Continental favorite, Marta Eggerth singing Shubert's beautiful "Serenade." Aside from its delightful music "The Unfinished Symphony" has a charming love story, with plenty of dramatic suspense.

LARGE AREA MAPPED BY NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC EXPEDITION

The first report from Bradford Washburn, leader of the National Geographic Society's Yukon Expedition, since he joined his party by plane nearly a month ago, in a wilderness of peaks and glaciers near the Canada-Alaska boundary, has been received at the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the Society. The report announces the successful completion of the last of the series of aerial surveys over the region. This magnificent mountain country is one of the last unexplored areas in North America.

Mr. Washburn's photographic work was held up by continued storms. At one time the wind was so strong that when his plane landed at an altitude of nearly 5,000 feet, it stopped moving at 50 feet. Several times, photography was impossible despite perfect weather, on account of extreme temperatures.

Made Network of Oblique Photographs

In the most recent flight, lasting four hours, Mr. Washburn and his pilot flew over the whole length of the Hubbard Glacier, which they have found to be nearly twice as long as was supposed, then around Mt. Logan, over to Mt. St. Elias, and about Mt. Lucania—all more than 17,000 feet high. Perfect weather prevailed and they succeeded in making a comprehensive network of oblique photographs over a mass of unmapped territory.

The flight was made from the expedition's base camp east of Mt. Hubbard. Mr. Washburn and his party, who have already spent over 50 days on the ice, report a perfect health record despite half a dozen big blizzards in the last three weeks. The expedition consists of Mr. Washburn of Cambridge, Mass.; Robert H. Bates of Philadelphia; Adams Carter of Boston, a Harvard undergraduate; Hartness Beardsley, undergraduate of Dartmouth and member of the Dartmouth Outing Club; "Andy" Taylor, "sourdough" guide and snow expert of Alaska, who has traversed many of the Territory's little-known areas and climbed a number of its high peaks; and Ome Daiber of Seattle, an experienced skier and climber.

Their camp on a glacier is comfortable, and a small ply-wood hut, six feet by six by six provides a warm shelter for the work of computing surveys and drawing maps, Mr. Washburn reported. Now that the aerial surveys are completed, most of the expedition's work in the future will consist of mapping and ground work.

In making the ground surveys a novel method is used. A team of six dogs, hitched to a rope, pulls men and instruments over the glaciers, enabling them to cover as much as 25 miles in a single day. The dogs were flown in by plane from an Indian settlement at the south end of Kluane Lake.

The remaining survey work by the expedition will be done from the surface. The ground survey has been pushed rapidly from the Alsek River towards Mt. Hubbard, and only 20 miles remain to be mapped before the international boundary south of Mt. Seattle is reached.

FIVE MILE HIGH BALLOON FLIGHTS TEST FOR STRATOSPHERE ASCENT

Problems that will be faced in June in the stratosphere flight of the National Geographic Society and the Army Air Corps, in handling the largest balloon ever built—the 3,700,000 cubic-foot Explorer II have been attacked by two test flights in an 80,000 cubic-foot balloon to heights five miles above the earth. The small balloon was taken up from Scott Field, Illinois near St. Louis by Captain Orvil A. Anderson, who will pilot the giant stratosphere balloon, and by Captain Randolph P. Williams, who is in charge of ground operations for the expedition.

One of the purposes of the tests was to observe the behavior of a balloon when only the necessary helium is admitted into the bag and the lower fabric is left empty; and when air is admitted below the helium to fill out the lower fabric. It was found that the admission of air—which was pushed out at higher altitudes by the expanding helium — materially reduced the height that the balloon could reach with use of a given amount of ballast. It is probable, therefore, that the Explorer II will be sent up with only helium in the bag.

Instrument Shows Electrical Conductivity of Air

The two test flights also served to try out a newly invented instrument for finding the electrical conductivity of the air. The apparatus to be carried on the outside of the gondola during the flight into the stratosphere was designed by O. H. Gish of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. The instrument functioned perfectly and showed that at 26,000 feet the conductivity of the air for positive electricity was 22 times as great as at the earth's surface. The conductivity of the air for negative electricity was 25 per cent greater than for positive electricity.

Air near the earth's surface is a relatively poor conductor of electricity. This is because very few ions or electrically charged molecules, of the air gases exist near the ground. The number of ions increases with increasing altitudes, and therefore the electrical conductivity becomes greater.

It is known that far above the earth there are layers of ions. The development of the great radio industry has been dependent on the existence of these layers. If they did not exist, radio waves that travel along the earth would be quickly absorbed and those that go upward would continue into outer space. As it is, the upward-faring waves are turned back earthward by the ionized layers and so reach radio recievers at a distance.

The electrical conductivity instrument designed by Mr. Gish may be taken as high as 13 or 14 miles above the earth by the National Geographic Army stratosphere expedition. No observations of the electrical conductivity of the air at such great altitudes have been made, up to the present time and few have been made even in the lower reaches of the atmosphere from 6 to 10 miles above the earth.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATED LARGEST CLASS

125 Received Diplomas Tuesday Evening

One hundred and twenty-five members of the Class of 1935, the largest out-going class in the history of Winchester High School, received their diplomas Tuesday evening at the annual graduation exercises in the school auditorium. Principal Wade L. Grindle and Mrs. Henry K. Spencer, chairman of the School Committee, were seated with the graduates on the stage, which was decorated with cut flowers, potted plants and tall green palms. There was a capacity attendance of parents and friends of the young people.

The invocation was made by Rev. Fr. Aloysius F. Malone, pastor of St. Mary's Church, and was followed by the salutatory address, "Science in Education," delivered by Richard Leghorn, second ranking scholar in the graduating class.

The school chorus, under the direction of J. Albert Wilson, sang two hymns, Walton's "Faith of Our Fathers" and the familiar "Now the Day Is Over." The first of two graduation addresses, "Women in Industry," was next delivered by Miss Susan McGonigle.

President Joseph Cassidy of the Class of 1935 presented the graduates' gift to the school, a Speedograph machine for use in the principal's office. The gift was accepted for the school by Frank Provinzano, president of the Junior Class.

The chorus singing of a Czecho-Slovakian Dance Song preceded the second of the graduation addresses, "Transportation's Contribution to Education," delivered by Robert Winton.

Principal Grindle made the presentation of awards to the graduates, these including the Washington and Franklin History Medal and Science Prize to Richard Leghorn, Mothers' Association Scholarships to Miss Su-

Their tone and attention to their leader's baton were very creditable Tuesday evening and there was a noticeable balance in the voices. The pianists were Miss Mary Worthen and Miss Dorothy Kleeb.

Miss Nancy Hall, ranking student of the graduating class, delivered the Valedictory, her subject being "Three Hundred Years in the Home."

Mrs. Spencer, in her canacity of Chairman of the School Committee, presented the diplomas, which were tied with yellow and black ribbons, the class colors. LOCAL REPUBLICAN CLUB GAINS

As a result of its campaign to increase membership, instituted the first of the week by a committee on membership headed by Ralph Sparks, the Winchester Men's Republican Club is able to announce an increase in memership of over 150 in the first few days. The Club has set forth the following credo:

In a general way it can be said that a good citizen should be an active member of a major political party. He should do this to interest himself more actively in the affairs of government. His choice of party should be the basis for his participation in the proper conduct of the Public business in Town, City, State and Nation.

For the reasons listed below the Winchester Men's Republican Club is opposed to the present administration:

1. We are opposed to a regimented life under a bureaucratic government.—We believe that individual initiative, under fair governmental regulations, will best develop our National welfare.

2. We are opposed to the government engaging in business that competes with private enterprise.—We believe that Government governs best which governs least. The function of government is to regulate and not to compete.

3. We are opposed to the attempt to spend our way back to prosperity. —We believe that we must protect our National Credit for this and future generations. The road to prosperity is through the restoration of confidence to the millions of thrifty Americans.

4. We are opposed to the practice of indiscriminate dole and relief.—We believe that no man should go without food, clothing or shelter because of circumstances beyond his control, but the employed of today and tomorrow should not be burdened with the support of those who refuse to work.

5. We are opposed to the principle of free trade.—We believe that American working men are entitled to protection against the competition of low-priced foreign labor with its low scale of living standards.

6. We are opposed to unreasonable taxation sectionally applied which is causing wides-spread unemployment in our New England Textile centers.—We believe that New England must be relieved from the unjust tax burden that has been unfairly imposed upon it solely for the benefit of others.

7. We are opposed to the destruction and limitation of crops and livestock with the resulting increase in our food and living costs.—We believe that fundamental economic laws cannot be controlled by legislation.

8. We are opposed to using the National Treasury as a campaign fund.—We believe that public funds are a public trust.

Our organization solicits members who are in accord with our above stated principles.

All men voters of Winchester who believe in those principles can become members of the club on application to Mr. Sparks or to any of the following precinct chairmen:

1. Harold A. Smith, 9 Orient street, 1211-M
2. James W. Russell, Military Academy, 0978
3. Warren Jenney, 22 Jefferson road, 1410
4. Theodore Godwin, 6 Mystic Valley Parkway, 1289
5. William J. Speers, Jr., 61 Weigemere avenue, 1610
6. James D Halwarts, 13 Russell road, 1297-W

WINCHESTER BOY WON TENNIS CUP

Paul H. Gale, a well known Winchester boy who learned his first tennis at Palmer street under the guidance of Rev. William S. Packer, has been awarded the coveted Gen. Milton F. Davis Cup as the 1935 winner of the senior tennis tournament at New York Military Academy, Cornwall-on-Hudson, New York. The cup was presented by General Davis at the distribution of medals and awards during the final exercises of the school year at the Academy on June 7.

Paul played number one singles on the Academy tennis team which was undefeated this season and has been elected captain for next year. In addition he won his major letter as a member of the undefeated swimming team, participating in the 100 yard sprint and relays.

In addition to his tennis and swimming, Paul made a fine record at the Academy scholastically, and in military and athletic assignments, receiving the silver stars which attest his position in the honor roll and six proficiency bars.

Paul is to spend the summer with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burton L. Gale of Yale street, at their summer home in Nahant.

TO PREACH AT EPIPHANY

Rev. John F. Kolb, who has been assisting at the Epiphany Church School during the past two years, will be the preacher at the 11 o'clock service of morning prayer in that church on Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Kolb was ordained to the Episcopal Diaconate on Wednesday, June 12, by Bishop Henry K. Sherrill in St. John's Memorial Chapel, Cambridge, making it possible for him to preach his first Sunday sermon here, following his ordination.

Those who have been associated with Mr. Kolb in his work at the Epiphany will welcome the opportunity to hear him preach and a cordial invitation is extended the public to attend the service.

INTERESTING LECTURE BY STEVENSON COREY

About 300 gathered in the high school auditorium Wednesday evening for the public reception to, and lecture by Stevenson Corey, supply officer of the Second Byrd Expedition to Antarctica and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Corey of Governor's avenue.

The affair had been sponsored and arranged by Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, the Post Commander John H. McCarthy and Post Vice Commander, Stafford Rogers, being seated on the stage with Mr. Corey and members of the Board of Selectmen, including Chairman Harold V. Farnsworth, James J. Fitzgerald, Jr. and W. Allan Wilde.

Commander McCarthy presided and spoke of the pleasure the Post had experienced in arranging the reception for "Steve," and in making it possible for the townspeople to hear his story of life in the Antarctic.

At the conclusion of his brief address, Commander McCarthy introduced Chairman Farnsworth of the Selectmen, who officially greeted Mr. Corey on behalf of the town, extending to the young supply officer the community's official "welcome home."

Mr. Corey's address was just the sort one would expect of a young man speaking to famous folks and friends—intimate, more or less off the record and intensely interesting because of its lack of formality. Those who heard it were delighted, and those who failed to attend the reception missed one of the most absorbing talks given in Winchester for some years.

Modestly, yet with gripping realism, "Steve" told the story of the expedition to Little America, chronologically covering the entire trip, yet emphasizing those events which to him were the more interesting highlights. Especially absorbing was his account of Admiral Byrd's solo trip and long eight months alone in his advance station, an experience which has undoubtedly taken heavy toll of the leader's health and strength.

Mr. Corey had with him many articles of equipment which proved most interesting and also his sled dog, "Cindy," bred at the famous Chinook Kennels at Wonnalancet, N. H., and a cross between an Alaskan Malemute and a wolf.

At the conclusion of his talk the young adventurer answered questions for nearly an hour, this part of the evening being held by many to be the most interesting of all. An informal reception was held at the back of the stage, many of the young man's friends taking the opportunity to greet him and express the pleasure occasioned by his address.

TO ENLARGE SAVINGS BANK

Bids are now being made by contractors for the job of building the 15-foot addition which is to be erected adjoining the rear of the Savings Bank building on Mt. Vernon street.

The addition will double the working space of the banking rooms, and will include the installation of a strictly modern vault. The old vault is to be made into an office for the treasurer of the bank, Mr. William E. Priest, and a new heating system is to be installed.

Hutchins & French are the architects for the addition, they having planned the extensive remodeling of the banking rooms several years ago. It is of interest that the late Mr. Arthur E. French was then a member of the firm of architects, and now his son, Mr. Evander French, is associated with the firm and actively interested in the savings bank addition.

Bids for the construction will be opened the 20th of this month, and it is expected that work will be started on the addition immediately.

INTER-PARK BASEBALL LEAGUE ORGANIZED

After several previously held preliminary meetings, the Metropolitan Inter-Park Baseball League was organized Monday evening at the office of the Stoneham Selectmen. The league is to include teams from Winchester, Wakefield, Woburn, Stoneham, Reading and Melrose. Most of the games will be twilight engagements and the league schedule will be divided in halves of 10 games each, with championship playoffs at the end of the season.

Nicholas E. Apalakis, Stoneham Chief of Police, has been chosen to open the season officially, meeting the Woburn Cubs in the first game of the schedule next Monday evening at Woburn.

Nicholas E. Apalakis, Stoneham Park Commissioner, was elected president; Allan Drugan of the Wakefield Recreation Commission, vice president; and Newell Morton, Reading Selectman, secretary-treasurer. These three are also to serve on the league's executive board with Joseph J. Tansey, Winchester's Playground Supervisor; George Rogers, Supervisor of Parks and Playgrounds in Melrose; and Alderman Charles J. Riley of Woburn.

MRS. AMERICA GOODE

Mrs. America Goode, 74, who will be remembered by older citizens as a former resident of Winchester, died May 22 at Medford after a long illness. Mrs. Goode was a native of Virginia. During her long residence in this town she made her home in the Highlands section, on Cross street, her husband, the late Thomas Goode, being for many years in the employ of Parker & Lane Company as a teamster. Mrs. Goode's funeral was held at Medford and the interment was in the cemetery at that place.

The Water Department has installed a new pump underground in High street for the West Side high service which will double the capacity of the pumps.

During last year's dry spell the use of the West Side high service had to be limited and the pump is expected to obviate this condition.

The pump house was designed by Chairman E. C. Sanderson of the Water and Sewer Board and erected by the department's crew. The men who brought the pump to Winchester praised its design and construction highly.

There is at present plenty of water available for all purposes, nearly three inches of water having fallen during the last wet spell.

IRELAND—FRIEND

Miss Alice Friend, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Friend of Wildwood street, was married last Saturday evening, June 8, at 8:30 o'clock in the First Baptist Church, to Russell S. Ireland, son of Mrs. R. S. Ireland of Collingswood, N. J. A single vase of white gladioli, placed in the baptistry with a background of evergreen, and large vases of peonies at the edge of the platform made a most attractive setting for the ceremony which was performed by Rev. Harold C. Whitmarsh of St. Paul's Church in Pawtucket, R. I., and the pastor of the church, Rev. R. Mitchell Rushton. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Fred MacDonald, organist.

Miss Friend was given in marriage by her father, and had for her honor attendant, her sister, Miss Elizabeth Friend. Another sister, Miss Dorothy Friend, was one of the bridesmaids, the others being Miss Anna Lee Pinkham and Miss Mildred Johnson, both of Winchester; Miss Betty Willis of Brookline, Mrs. John MacKinnon of Concord and Mrs. C. Turner Foster of Miami, Fla.

Mr. Foster acted as best man for Mr. Ireland, and the corps of ushers included J. Franklin Bostock of Arlington, N. J.; Theodore Giles of Melrose, Lee A. Worrell of Providence, R. I.; Ernest T. Andrews, Jr. of West Hartford, Conn.; Reuben Babcock, 3rd of Absecon, N. J. and William Dorland Rouse of Williamsport, Pa.

The bride wore a gown of white satin trimmed with lace and carried gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her attendants wore gowns of taffeta, the maid of honor wearing peach, and the bridesmaids, periwinkle. All carried Colonial bouquets.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents where the decorations were freshly cut spring flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Friend assisted in receiving with the mother of the bridegroom.

Mr. Ireland and his bride are to spend their honeymoon in the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania, and upon their return will make their home in Atlantic City, N. J. The bride is a graduate of Wheaton College and Mr. Ireland, of Duke, where he was a member of the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity.

Mrs. Agnes Lee Nichols Court of 24 Clewley road, West Medford, who died Saturday, June 7, in the Glenside Hospital, Jamaica Plain, was a former well known resident of Winchester.

Mrs. Court was 60 years old and the wife of Ormsby A. Court, theatrical publicity man and playwright. Besides her husband she leaves two daughters, Dorothy and Agnes Lee Court, and three sons, Ormsby L. Court, Jr. of the Boston Daily Record staff, Elliott and Lee W. Court.

She is survived also by a brother, Charles Nichols, secretary of the Republican State Committee, and a sister, Mrs. Henrietta Skelton of Bourne.

ENTERTAINED BASEBALL TEAM

"Buz" Kendrick to Lead Nine Next Year

Couch and Mrs. Wendell D. Mansfield entertained the members of this year's Winchester High School baseball team at their home on Stone avenue last Friday evening.

The evening was entirely informal and was largely devoted to a general discussion of the past season and plans for next year. Only Capt. "Tom" Donaghey, shortstop, and pitcher "Lefty" McTague will be lost to the 1936 club, and visions of a championship to come were seen by all present as plans were made to keep the present team together through the summer, playing two games of ball a week, for experience and the fun of the thing.

Charles "Buz" Kendrick, star right hand pitcher for the past two seasons, was elected to captain next year's nine and will also act as leader and manager of the club during the summer. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Mansfield after the election.

MISS SIMPSON GRADUATES FROM PINES SCHOOL

Miss Anne P. Simpson, daughter of Mrs. Nellie P. Simpson, of Wedgemere avenue, was graduated from House in the Pines School, Norton, at the annual Commencement exercises on Tuesday.

Miss Simpson has been president of the Athletic Association, business manager of the year book, a member of the Student Council, and captain of the riding team—having been one of the school's most accomplished riders and winning many honors while at House in the Pines. She has also taken a prominent part in social activities. She was a member of the cast of "As You Like It" presented last Saturday as one of the first events on the program of Commencement festivities. She has been a student at House in the Pines for the past six years.

TO READ TUFTS SENIOR POEM

Arthur Razee son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Razee of 306 Washington street, read the Class Poem at the Seniors' Last Chapel and public exercises, held this morning in Goddard Chapel at Tufts College.

Razee is graduating from Tufts this year after an outstanding career as a student. In addition to winning his Phi Beta Kappa key for scholastic excellence, he has contributed many articles to the Tuftonian, college literary publication, and has had the distinction of having several of his plays produced by the college dramatic group. He is to receive his bachelor's degree from the college of liberal arts and has majored in English.

WINS GERMAN SCHOLARSHIP

Eugene Cooper, former Winchester High track star, now a sophomore at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been awarded a scholarship for the study of German and will spend six weeks this summer as an exchange student at the University of Munich.

Cooper, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Cooper of Myrtle terrace, has had an excellent scholastic record during his first two years at the Institute, having been one of two students on the dean's list during all of that time. In addition he has participated actively in track, captaining his freshman team and running the mile and half-mile this year on the varsity.

GAVE MUSICALE AND TEA

Mrs. Lillian Alexander gave a musicale and tea for a group of music lovers and friends last Friday afternoon at her home on Wyman court.

Miss Jane Alfieo, a pupil of Mrs. Alexander, presented a varied program of piano music including selections by Dvorak, Schubert, Nevins and Kreisler. Interesting arrangements of Irish folk tunes were offered by Harrison Neil. Both performers gave much pleasure and the entire afternoon was most enjoyable.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS HELD CLASS NIGHT

The Winchester High School Class of 1935 held its last gathering as undergraduates last Saturday evening when its members held their class night in the school gymnasium. Attractive decorations in two tones of green, with tall palms, made a festive setting for the formal reception which opened the program, and for which the receiving line included Principal and Mrs. Wade L. Grindle, Superintendent of Schools and Mrs. James J. Quinn, Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Stacy, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond V. Hayward, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Keeney, Miss Eva M. Palmer and Miss Florence M. Parker.

Members of the class and their guests were seated at bridge tables extending in two long rows at the side of the gymnasium or in chairs placed at the rear. The Class President, Joseph Cassidy, welcomed the guests and called first upon [illegible] Goodhue who read the cla[illegible] The class oration was del[illegible] Albert Gaum and the class [illegible] was made by Elizabeth [illegible] and Robert Dotten. Geraldine Taylor gave the class statistics and the class will was read by Henrietta Garner.

President Cassidy then introduced John Hanlon who presented the class gifts, the presentation being novel in that those who received gifts first received numbers, which they matched to those on the packages, all of which contained gifts of a humorous nature.

The entertainment took the form of an amateur radio night, a platform and microphone lending atmosphere. John Haulon acted as master of ceremonies, and the program opened with the vocal solo, "Mitzie," sung by Lester Gustin. Phyllis Hartwell followed with imitations of radio celebrities and also vocal solos. Joseph Cassidy's solo, "Lookie, Here Comes Cookie" got the gong, and was followed by Ewart Bairstow whose comedy chatter and "Advice to the Lovelorn" was mirthfully received. Evelyn Corey presented monologues, and Betty Hayes and Colette Gaffney, a sketch, "The Chicken Sisters," which incidentally got the gong.

During the intermission, while the judges went into solemn conclave to determine the winner, Stanwood Piper, a past graduate student, played George Gershwin's composition, "Rhapsody in Blue," a performance which merited and received enthusiastic applause.

Joseph Cassidy was announced as the winner of the contest and his prize, a box of candy, was not long in disappearing, reputable witnesses affirming that he was able to secure one of the pieces himself.

Refreshments were then served under the direction of Elizabeth Chamberlin, there being ice cream and cake and punch, the latter being dipped from an intriguing well in the corner of the gym.

Colette Gaffney and Betty Hayes were in charge of the punch, which it is said was made by Lawrence Bairstow. Those who served were Lester Gustin, Gerard Gaffney, Joseph Cassidy Ewart Bairstow, William Burtt, Thomas Donaghey, Lawrence Bairstow, Charles Davis and George Billman.

General dancing concluded the evening, music being furnished by Howard Cutler's Orchestra. Mr. Raymond V. Hayward was faculty supervisor of the affair, and the committee included John Hanlon, chairman; Elizabeth Chamberlin, Janet Spencer, Helen Reeves, Lawrence Bairstow, Ewart Bairstow, Walter Josephson, Phyllis Hartwell, Pearl Campbell, Richard Elliott and Frank Porter.

Cline, son of Major and Mrs. Edward Cline of Fort Banks, Winthrop. Rev. Fr. Charles Foley performed the marriage ceremony, and the bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hanley of Main street, wore a princess style gown of white satin with a white crepe turban and shoulder veil. Her arm bouquet was of old fashioned flowers.

The maid of honor wore periwinkle blue mousseline de soie with a white picture hat and slippers, and like the bride, carried old fashioned flowers. Mr. Cline had for his best man Richard J. McQuillan of Winthrop.

A largely attended reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Cline and his bride are to make their home in Brookline upon their return from a Southern wedding journey which includes stops in Virginia, Maryland and at Washington.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School, class of 1926, and has been employed as a secretary by a Boston business house. THE WINCHESTER GARDEN CLUB

The Winchester Garden Club held its Annual Flower Show in the home of Mrs. R. T. Damon, Everett avenue, Mrs. Helen Winn Smith of Wakefield, judging. There were three classes.

Class 1. Table decoration for hall or living room.

Class 2. Tables set for one or two for breakfast, lunch or dinner.

Class 3. Miniatures.

The judging was done from four standpoints: suitability 25 per cent, color harmony 25 per cent, arrangement 25 per cent, originality 25 per cent.

Mrs. Florence I. Cross won the first prize in Class 1, for which Mrs. Anna DeWolf, a club member, gave the prize, a beautiful Tiffany vase on a Japanese teakwood stand. Mrs. Cross' bouquet was of single white peonies and fringe bush in a glazed steel color pottery vase, on a black and white silk scarf. Mrs. Dorothy M. Wills won honorable mention, azaleas ranging from yellow to flame in a yellow pottery bowl, on a brown velvet cover.

Mrs. Fanny Damon won first prize in Class 2. Her breakfast table was set for two. Flowered china and varicolored flowers in a white center-piece. Mrs. Marguerite Jones won honorable mention. A breakfast table set for one, and most original as to color scheme, which was red and white, and in using things from the 5 and 10 Cent Store.

Mrs. Dorah Hadley won first prize in Class 3, Miniatures. A tiny antique blue glass boot with the tiniest bouquet of various flowers in it. Mrs. Mary Davis won honorable mention. A small English Lynmouth pottery pitcher filled with vari-colored flowers.

The winners of first prize in Classes 2 and 3 will receive a hook on Flower Arrangement.

Everyone of the entries had fine distinction, but space forbids description of all. The enthusiasm of the members made the show a great success. Those exhibiting were Pauline Hudson, Anna Pitman, Blanche Warren, Blanche Eaton, Gladys Lyon, Beatrice Russell, Ethel Wyman, Mary Davis, Amy Orpin, Gretchen West, Winnifrede Meyer, Mary Alice Fitch, Marguerite Jones, Florence Cross, Fanny Damon, Dorah Hadley, Mary Linton, Elizabeth Freeburn, Carolyn Gilmatric, Jane Robinson, Dorothy Wills and Anna WeWolf.

WINCHESTER GARDEN CLUB WAR ON BUGS

The leaders of three Winchester garden groups, including Mrs. Bratt of the Fortnightly, Mrs. Robinson of the Winchester Garden Club and Mrs. Woodside of the Better Homes Garden Club, together with many other interested citizens including both men and women, met at the regular session of the Selectmen Monday evening, asking as the spokesman of the delegation put it, "for information regarding what has been done, what is being done to save Winchester trees from the ravages of insect pests and diseases?" It was brought out at the hearing that one pump and three men had been doing all they could do on bright days, but were necessarily inactive on rainy days. The town regulations not permitting them to work overtime on suitable days. The town has two spray pumps, the second of which will be put to work with a crew enlarged to eight men, at once.

The condition is particularly serious this year, not only in Winchester, but everywhere in New England, and Winchester citizens in general are aroused to a high pitch watching the devastating progress of our many pests, and asking what can be done to eliminate them. While the tent caterpillar will probably be "on the wing" within a few days many other pests will continue their ravages and require drastic action.

Miss Dorothy Osborne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman V. Osborne of 1 Cliff street, was one of those to receive a degree from Boston University on Monday, June 10. Miss Osborne was active in the French Club, Forum, and Glee Club of the College of Practical Arts and Letters. She was also active in sports, winning her B. U. monogram last year for gaining 1000 points in all sports.

TO REBUILD WINTHROP STREET IN MEDFORD

The Medford Board of Aldermen, in special session Monday evening, voted the sum of $31,000 to be added to $25,000 appropriated by the County and $47,500 appropriated by the State for the rebuilding of Winthrop street from a point at the Winchester line near Oak Grove Cemetery to Playstead road in Medford.

The job is to include the widening of the street, removing of car tracks and general rebuilding, completing the job done by Winchester on Main street. In addition to the Winthrop street job, Medford is also to install a traffic circle at Winthrop Square and widen Winthrop street from the square to the Mystic Valley Parkway.

The present street at this point, now 30 feet wide, is to be made a 60 foot, two way street with trees and grass plot in the center.

Senator Charles T. Daly of Medford, working in his Senatorial capacity and also through the Medford Chamber of Commerce and his connection with the Medford City Government, was largely instrumental in bringing about this traffic improvement which will be much appreciated by Winchester motorists.

HIGH SCHOOL GOLF

Winchester High held its first open handicap golf tourney last week Wednesday afternoon at the Sagamore Golf Club, Lynnfield, under the direction of Coach Wendell D. Mansfield.

A field of 20 participated, Harry Eaton '36, winning first prize in Class A, with Harry McGrath, '38, second; and Lucius Smith, '37, winning top honors in Class B, with Herbert Wood, '37, second. Harry McGrath's 87 on the par 72 course was best gross and Harry Eaton's 67, best net.

Principal Wade Grindle led the faculty field of Arthur Butters, Wendell Mansfield and Dana Cotton with a net of 84. Intensive work on the part of the ground keepers had the course ready for play again by the middle of this week, but all are just a bit solicitous about the date for the next W. H. S. tournament. Mr. Cotton positively denies that he used the sword he carried in "Spread Eagle" in place of a niblick but the looks of the course made the inference a natural one. "Herb" Wood's use of trees on the fairways is a departure from ordinary golfing tactics which leading pros are looking into and which "Herb" himself insists is very helpful.

Principal Grindle finished in fine fettle with a score somewhat lower than usual, and the added satisfaction that comes with knowing his card was correct. He still feels that it's a bit difficult to lose seven balls in a water hole and finish with a six for the hole! but refused to amplify his statement to this effect.

Long "Eddie" Hitchborn, who this year won numerals as a regular member of the freshman football, basketball and track teams at Purdue, is planning to transfer next year to University of Maine at Orono for a course in forestry.

WINCHESTER TENNIS ASSOCIATION

First match in Old Colony Tennis League for the season of 1935 was played at West Medford last Saturday. The summary:

Singles

Fellsland Council Conducts Week-end Camping Course

A group of 40 hardy backwoodsmen ventured out into the wilds of Amesbury over the week-end to participate in the first outdoor Troop Camping Course. Although the course started with fairly decent weather on Saturday afternoon, the spirit of the pioneers was somewhat damaged by the constant pitter patter of rain during Saturday evening and all day Sunday. A number of the special features that were scheduled for Sunday afternoon had to be postponed and indoor activities substituted. The course was conducted by a staff consisting of Prof. Crosby F. Baker, chairman of the Camping Committee, Sumner R. Thompson, District Commissioner of Stoneham, and Francis H. McCall, District Commissioner of Winchester, and Edward W. Nelson, Scout Executive of Fellsland Council. The men who completed this course are now eligible to take their Scouts out into the open without any fear of a broken down program, but in place will have a well balanced daily and weekly program at their finger tips. Many humorous situations arose during the week-end and will be relived many times during the coming season by these men. The following men were presented Specialization Certificates in Troop Camping: Franklin Shay and Robert E. Thompson of Stoneham; William O. Jones, Walter Ardini, Norman L. C. Gay and Chester E. George of Medford; Whitelaw Wright, C. H. Slack and Philip R. Hartson of Winchester; and George L. Nelson of Woburn. The following received Advanced Certificates, as they had previously had this course, and served as instructors: Sumner R. Thompson of Stoneham, Francis H. McCall of Winchester and Professor Crosby F. Baker of Medford.

Camp Fellsland Opens for 10th Season

The Boy Scout Camp of the Fellsland Council will open again for its 10th season at Amesbury on Sunday, June 30, and continue for the next six weeks. There are many new innovations to interest the Scouts and Leaders at this year's camp. A majority of last year's leaders will return, and quite a number of new leaders have been appointed. The Camp Committee composed of Whitelaw Wright of Winchester, Hubert Shedd and George W. Pingree of Medford, William C. Gibbons of Stoneham, and Dr. John Wilcox of Woburn, have left no stone unturned in order to have a real model camp for the boys of Fellsland Council. The procedure for enrolment is the same as in previous years, but special emphasis is being placed on troops sending a full patrol of eight boys at a time to encourage the troop and patrol activities at camp, as well as at home in the troop. The staff at the present time consists of the following: Sumner Thompson, George Werner, Robert E. Thompson, Franklin T. Shay and Carl L. Tolman, all of Stoneham; Marc Cassey of Cambridge; Gordon MacPherson, George Largess, Robert P. Allen, Carleton Spinney, Walter Ardini, John Donlan, Joseph Mobilia and Ralph T. Sherry, all of Medford; Albert Gaum and Ernest Tompson of Winchester; George L. Nelson of Woburn.

BASEBALL HERE NEXT WEEK

The Lord Tanning baseball team will play two twilight baseball games on Manchester Field next week Tuesday and Thursday evenings, playing the Dillon Club of Cambridge Tuesday and the Finast Nine of the Suburban Twilight League Thursday. Both games will start at 6:15, and as both visiting clubs are good attractions, some fast baseball should result.

Mrs. George Pierce, Mrs. Percy Bughee and Mrs. Clifford Mason enjoyed the rain at the Cape the first of the week as the guests of Mrs. T. Price Wilson at Waquoit.

FORMER RESIDENTS OBSERVED GOLDEN WEDDING

There is Winchester interest in the golden wedding anniversary, observed Tuesday afternoon and evening in the Waltham Congregational Church by Rev. and Mrs. Frederick Harlan Page of that city. Rev. Mr. Page, who is head of the Massachusetts Congregational Conference and Missionary Society in Boston, and his wife, the former Grace Wallace Conant of this town, were married June 11, 1885, in the Winchester First Congregational Church by their pastor, Rev. Charles R. Seymour. They made their home in Winchester for some time and will be remembered by many older residents of the town. Rev. Mr. Page was a newspaperman on the Haverhill Gazette and later with two Boston newspapers before his ordination to the Congregational Ministry in 1895. He served for 19 years as pastor of the First Congregational Church in Waltham, resigning in 1925 to assume his present position.

COMMISSIONED ENSIGN

Kenneth West of Mason street, a graduate of Winchester High School, was one of those recently graduated from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis and commissioned an Ensign in the Navy. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. West, attended the June commencement festivities at the academy and are now back in town with their son, who is entertaining a group of his fellow graduates, all newly commissioned ensigns.

Ensign West and his friends will be in Winchester until June 25 when they will go by plane to Los Angeles, Calif., where they will join the Pacific fleet. The young officers have been assigned to the fleet flagship, the U. S. S. Pennsylvania, which it is expected they will serve for the next two years.

WINCHESTER MAN SENT MESSAGE

There is Winchester interest in the recent scrapping of the Cunard liner, Mauretania, because of the fact that it was a resident of this town who relayed to her the message from the British cruiser, Essex, warning of danger from persuing German warships on a trans-Atlantic voyage in 1914.

It was on Aug. 1, of that year that the Mauretania with many extra passengers left Liverpool for New York in the early days of the war between Austria and Serbia.

While the Mauretania was on the high seas, Great Britain declared war on Germany and the liner proceeded forward without lights and at high speed, changing her course to head for Halifax, N. S. The reason for this change was the receipt of a Marconi wireless message sent out by H. M. S. Essex, warning the Mauretania that the German ship, Kronprintz Wilhelm, with guns aboard had left New York and was likely to meet the Cunarder.

The message was taken by Mr. Paul G. Eberle of Stevens street, then Marconi operator on the S.S. Stephano, en route from New York to Halifax, who relayed it to the Mauretania. Mr. Eberle, upon the entrance of the United States into the World War, enlisted in the Navy as a radio operator, being promoted to chief radio electrician and assigned to one of the big naval transports, on which he made several trips overseas.

The Stephano was destroyed by a German torpedo off Nantucket at the beginning of the World War, after an eventful career, which included several voyages north as a sealer.

Selectman and Mrs. Raymond S. Wilkins, Attorney and Mrs. Francis R. Mullin and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Downes and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. O'Leary and Miss Agatha Shinnick were among the residents of Winchester who attended the marriage of the Governor's daughter, Miss Mary Curley last Saturday. Sergt. Arthur T. O'Leary of the State Police, a Winchester young man and Governor Curley's bodyguard, was also at the ceremony and accompanied the bridal party to New York.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SCHOOL NOTES

Several events worthy of note marked the close of the school year at the George Washington School. On May 19, occurred the annual rose planting. At this time rose bushes are given the school through the generosity of the Highland-Washington Chapter of the Mother's Club. Mrs. Kenneth Caldwell, president of the club, in a few gracious words presented the bushes which were accepted by Howard Swanson of the sixth grade. Howard, with the assistance of James Grimes planted them and then presented the spade used to Wilbur Callanan of grade five who will represent the school at next year's ceremony. Preceding the outdoor exercises, Miss Meeker's sixth grade told of the various kinds of trees to be found in New England and something of their characteristics.

The original spring poems written by members of this group were very charming.

Miss Hatch's sixth grade prepared illustrated talks on our wild flowers which are being exterminated. They asked the audience to refrain from picking the wild Columbine, Jack-in-the-Pulpit, Trailing Arbutus, Lady's Slipper and Trillium. To this program Patsy Pierson contributed a very graceful spring dance, and Herbert Clement, two violin solos. Herbert received very hearty and well-deserved applause for he shows an accuracy and clarity of tone, a sense of rhythm and a precision of bowing, unusual in an eight year old violinist.

Miss Hornibrook's class recently presented a Citizenship program. Their dramatization of stories from their reading books was particularly pleasing because it showed unstudied originality.

Grade five prepared the program for Memorial Day. Mr. Kingman Cass of the Legion was the guest of honor. He spoke to the school of the plans of the Legion for Memorial Day and on the proper observance of the day, the respect to be paid the flag, and the type of courteous behavior our boys and girls should show at the cemetery. The program given by the children consisted of two plays entitled, "The Birth of the Star Spangled Banner" and "A Memorial Day Wreath." Several patriotic exercises were given and songs were sung by the class.

Grade 6, Miss Meeker's group were delighted to have loaned to them for one day, through the courtesy of one of the parents of the district, a real microphone, and loud speaker. The microphone, placed in Room 7 became the headquarters of Station G. W. S. Winchester, Mass., and a typical radio program was broadcast from there to Room 5 where the loud speaker was plugged in. Hartley Ralston was the announcer. Brooks Jakeman gave the news broadcast, including items of international, national and purely local school interest in quite the manner of Edwin C. Hill. The Health Crusaders consisting of Claudia Robinson, Barbara Waugh, Norma Paradis, Barbara Callahan and "Dr." Robert Harris had a theme song to introduce and conclude their number. Ruth Elliott gave a very professional Book Talk. According to the announcer, "In the absence of Edgar Guest, Claudia Robinson, the famous poet," read several original poems. Members of the class as a whole represented a Glee Club. Irma and Herman Provost, "the twin singers" sang "Isle of Capri." A safety play, "Beware of the Blasting Cap," taken from Safety Magazine was dramatically given by Howard Swanson, Robert Griffiths, Fred Courtney, Constance Blaisdell, and Elizabeth Story. Cosimo Simonetta gave an accordian solo, "Over the Waves."

Those who were privileged to listen to this broadcast were sorry to have it end.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Marketing is pleasanter these days when so many foods are again reasonable in price. Meats while not appreciably lower, have apparently reached their peak for the time being. Most vegetables are cheap, some are moderate, very few high. Butter is one-third cheaper than it was a few weeks ago. Eggs have maintained price and quality but are reasonable. Seafood and fish of many kinds are plentiful and cheap.

A wide choice is possible in fruits as winter fruits linger and summer fruits are in market, including peaches, melons and berries, all reasonably priced.

Here are three menus made up from seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels.

Low Cost Dinner

Roast Shoulder Spring Lamb
Browned Potatoes Creamed Carrots
Bread and Butter
Strawberry Tarts
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Chicken Pie New Potatoes
Green Peas
Bread and Butter
Tapioca Cream with Oranges
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Bouillon
Roast Beef Mashed Potatoes
Buttered Asparagus
Tomato Salad
Rolls and Butter
Strawberry Whip Soft Custard
Coffee Milk

Nothing New to Them

To the ancient Egyptian of about 4,000 years ago our modern civilization could teach nothing either in design or in execution, so far, at least, as the artistic crafts which minister to the love of beauty and luxury are concerned.

A SCHOOL OF NOTE

On June 21 the Bryant & Stratton Commercial School of Boston will present diplomas to about 200 young men and women who have completed their diploma requirements during the preceding year. Because of the school's system of individual advancement, students graduate all during the year and their diplomas are formally presented in June, at the commencement exercises.

At these graduation exercises, the class and their friends will be welcomed by Mr. L. O. White, Principal. Mr. J. W. Blaisdell, President, will introduce the guest speaker, the Rev. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, pastor of Trinity Church, Boston, who will address the graduates on a timely topic.

After the exercises, the 1935 class will hold a dance in Brown Hall, the orchestra music by Ranny Weeks, famous movie, radio, stage and night club entertainer.

This will terminate the activities of the regular Day Session. Many of the present undergraduates will, after a week's vacation, continue their studies in the Summer Session, which starts July 1.

There, they will be joined by other high school graduates who do not want to wait until September to start their courses, and by many college men and women who take advantage of the six weeks' Summer Session to acquire such subjects as Shorthand, Typewriting and Accounting, or to take finishing courses in these and kindred subjects.

Between the Summer Session and the Fall Session which opens Sept. 3, there will be a three weeks' vacation.

Students who have attended previous Summer Sessions have been particularly enthusiastic over the progress they could make, due to small classes, intensive instruction, and an uninterrupted period of instruction, from 9 to 1 o'clock, the cooler part of the day.

Share your NEWS and Double your PLEASURE

Has baby cut a tooth? Has daughter graduated with honors? Has Junior been elected captain of his team? That's news!

Uncles and aunts, grandparents, even family friends, who live too far away to share such joys in person, still want to hear about them.

Pick up your telephone and tell them. In the telling, we'll wager that you'll find your own pleasure doubled.

In such cases, a telephone call may be valueless from the dollars-and-cents angle, yet priceless for the lift it gives the spirit.

Night Rates Now Begin at 7 P. M.

To enable greater social use of the telephone is one reason for advancing the night rate period for toll calls to 7 o'clock (it formerly began at 8:30).

Night Rates apply only to station-to-station calls—that is, calls by number, or for "anyone". If you do not know the number, call "Information."

To show the low cost of toll calls, during the night rate period, the following typical rates are cited for a 3-minute station-to-station call after 7 P. M.

Uruguay Bristles With Energy

Uruguay has an area of only 72,153 square miles, or about the area of Nebraska. But its natural advantages have been developed by the aggressive enterprise of its inhabitants. The Charruas its original inhabitants were remarkably virile and advanced. Its present inhabitants, largely of Spanish and Italian origin, are no less energetic.

Ranking as the world's second largest exporter of beef and beef products, Uruguay knows practically no poverty. Its dollar is worth more than that of the United States. In 1930, there were about seven head of cattle and twenty sheep to each inhabitant. The republic's paved roads, radiating from Montevideo, are among the best in South America. In the famous Solis Theatre in Montevideo, men, correct in kid gloves, and hand-some women attired in Paris fashions, listen to musical celebrities brought from Europe.

Progressive to the nth degree, almost treeless Uruguay is planting thousands of trees annually. It has engaged foreign experts to aid in developing its neglected fishing industry. It even maintains a trained corps called the Detensa Agricola, to fight crop-menacing locusts.

Country of Beefsteaks and Mutton Chops

It is appropriate that Uruguay's coat of arms should bear, among other figures, a steer, for animal products form over 90% of the country's exports. Uruguay's prosperity originated when the cattle of massacred early settlers ran wild and multiplied. Later immigrants found a free life in the saddle, rounding up these cattle, more pleasing than one of tedious farming, made difficult by beast and other insect plagues. Uruguay is literally one huge pasture. Its grassey, gently rolling land provides ample forage for thou-ands of sheep and cattle. Small hills protect them from winds, and because of the equable climate, few barns are needed.

Live stock was once raised in an extravagant manner. For almost three hundred years, the cattle, allowed to roam at large, were hunted by "gauchos" solely for their hides and tallow. Dogs and other scavengers ate the meat, for which there was no near market. Sheep were wasted equally recklessly. Flocks were driven to brick kilns and slaughtered for their hides. Their carcasses were burned as fuel in the kilns.

Gradually, improvement of transportation to markets and rise ot the preserved beef industry called for utilization of cattle as salted and canned beef. How important these exports became is shown by the fact that the four largest Uruguayan meat packing establishments can each slaughter 4,000 cattle daily during the season. Although mutton is consumed and exported, its amount is limited by the profitable trade in wool, which constitutes Uruguay's most valuable source of income. "Not quantity but quality" might be Uruguay's motto. Having reached the saturation point in producing cattle and sheep, the country is now seeking to raise fewer and finer ones by introducing superior breeds, chiefly from England and Argentina. Economists predict that eventually, with the rise of agriculture, grazing will give way to grain production.

Montevideo Contains Animal Cemetery

Montevideo, Uruguay's capital and site for the new airport, has been likened to "a giant head on a dwarf's body", since it contains more than one-fourth of the country's population and handles 90 percent of its exports and imports. Built on a well-drained rocky peninsula jutting into the water where Rio la Plata meets the sea, Montevideo is considered one of the healthiest cities in the world. Delightful climate and nearby beaches make this commercial port also a popular seaside resort.

Montevideo's growth has been that of a prodigy. Less than fifty years ago, two-wheeled mule carts, with wheels eight feet high, humped over its cobblestones. Wealthy residents of marble homes ate dinner in fur coats because they had no furnaces. On the beaches, mules drew bathhouses resembling "enormous dog kennels on wheels" to the water's edge so that the occupants, though well clothed, could enter the water without offending propriety.

Today, Montevideo is a brisk, modern city with about three hundred wide, well-paved, and splendidly lighted avenues, flanked by theatres, shops and many beautiful squares. Because one of its parks, the Prado, is said to contain eight hundred varieties of roses, Montevideo has been dubbed the "City of Roses." Another garden embraces a famous zoo which is unique in that it contains an animal cemetery, with epitaphs and statues to monkeys, tigers and other quadrupeds.

The "Bermuda Hundred"

A tract of land in Chesterfield county, Virginia, once belonged to Bermuda. The "Bermuda Hundred," as it is still known, was given to the men who bought the Islands from Virginia.

CITY OF ROSES TO BUILD LARGEST SOUTH AMERICAN AIRPORT

Montevideo, capital of Uruguay, and since 1930, southern terminus of an airline from New York, is planning further to improve its already efficient air service by constructing in the next two years what will be South America's largest airport. Beginning November first, Libertad Island, seventeen acres in extent, in the middle of Montevideo's large harbor will be converted into an ideal airport by the erection of hangers, customs and telegraph offices, and breakwaters to shelter seaplanes from storms.

That South America's smallest republic should build that continent's greatest airport is not wondered at, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. Headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The country has long been noted for its progressive outlook.

ST. JEROME'S PARISH GARDEN PARTY TO BE JUNE 21, 22

The largest attended meeting in the history of St. Jerome's new Arlington-Belmont parish was held on the church grounds Tuesday evening, June 11 at which time complete plans were formulated for the first annual parish Garden party. Rev. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons, the popular pastor, whose work of building the new church within seven months after the establishment of the parish speaks for itself, confidently expects this to be the most successful parish event to date. The party is to open Friday evening, June 21, and to extend throughout Saturday afternoon and evening of the 22nd. An elaborate program of events is scheduled among which are Arbel (alias Beano), Darto, African Dodgers and Horse Racing, as well as dancing, foot races and field events, the latter two by special arrangement being in charge of Johnny Kelley, recent marathon Winner. Special attractions have been arranged to insure a good time for the youngsters, among which are pony rides, grab bag, doll carriage parade, etc.

The aggregate membership of the various committees totals over 100 people. The following comprise the more important committees: General Chairman, Mr. Olof Olson; General Secretary, Mrs. J. C. Shea; Treasurer, Mr. Daniel Mahoney; Booth Committee, Mr. Vincent Ruth, chairman; General Refreshment Booth, Mr. J. C. Shea, chairman. The doll carriage parade is in charge of Mrs. J. Considine and pony rides in charge of Mrs. J. Gleason. Publicity Committee: Mr. J. C. Shea and Mr. Clifford Shaw. Arbel in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Shaw. Dance Committee, Mr. Joseph Hallisey.

General sandwich table in charge of Mrs. E. Gowans. Grab bag in charge of Mrs. D. Mahoney. The Donations Committee is in charge of Mr. W. Hearn, chairman. The Grounds Committee is in charge of Mr. J. C. Shea, chairman. Decorations Committee, Mr. Andrew O'Connor, chairman.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Three members were absent from the meeting of June 6. Three make-ups by these members would give the club a good start in the attendance contest for this month. Surely we do not want a repetition of the weak showing exhibited in April.

It is our pleasure to announce that by far the greater number of club members have paid the semi-annual dues which became payable as of May 1. As this is the season at which the largest of the current obligations of the club are presented, there should be no lagging if the credit of the club is to be maintained at its customary high level. It is evident that members realize the force of this basic principle.

It is anticipated that new song books will be in the possession of the club within a few days, in fact they were expected to arrive in time for use at this meeting. We have been carrying on in rather a make-shift manner in this respect and no doubt the new equipment will afford the desired stimulation in our department of song.

Rev. John Nicol Mark of the Rotary Club of Arlington was guest speaker at this meeting. John, who is one of the best known after-dinner speakers in this section, officiated as such last month at the Charter Night of the Rotary Club of Cranston, R. I. Today he brought to us a charming discourse on "Scotch Wit and Philosophy." We who have listened to him on previous occasions are acquainted with his habit of fixing the attention of his audience with a series of rapid-fire humorous anecdotes, blending quickly into an extremely effective treatment of eternal verities. Seldom has he been in happier vein than he was today. As is invariably the case when John speaks we were refreshed and inspired. We hasten to acknowledge our obligations for this service.

It is highly desirable that during this, the last month before the vacation season, the club should submit the best possible attendance record. Yours for a jubilant June!

Percentage of attendance May 23—93.33 per cent.

Average attendance for May—94.17 per cent.

PUBLIC DEMONSTRATION

The Elite Beauty and Barber Shoppe will sponsor a demonstration of the new machineless method of permanent waving in its display window Saturday evening, June 15, commencing at 7:30 o'clock.

EPIPHANY BOY SCOUT TROOP HOLD ENTERTAINMENT AND DANCE

A very delightful entertainment and dance sponsored by Troop 2, Boy Scouts, was given Friday evening, June 7, in the parish hall at the Church of the Epiphany. Mr. Charles Hart, Scoutmaster, assisted by Mr. Charles Werly, supervised the entertainment and dance.

The stage was decorated with pine boughs, birch trees and ferns. Around the hall were tall vases filled with iris, hawthorn and daisies. These decorations, which were very attractive, were in charge of William Allen.

At 8:30 a short entertainment was given, the program opening with a magician act, put on by "Pete" Sibley and "Ben" Schneider, which was cleverly done and caused much amusement. Next on the program was a short skit, "All Because of an Omelet," given by Byron Horie, Joseph Burton, Hartlyn Horie, Malcolm Roberts and Fred Abbott with George Manning, director. These boys deserve a lot of credit for their acting.

Robert Harkins had charge of the refreshments, assisted by Donald Cass, Stanley Puffer, Carl Bolter, Jr., Francis Farley, Norman Thornton, Robert Savage and John O'Neill.

Raymond Brown's orchestra furnished the music for dancing.

The patrons and patronesses were Lieut-Commander and Mrs. George Manning, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sibley, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Schneider, Rev. and Mrs. Dwight W. Hadley, Mrs. Charles Hart and Mrs. Charles Werly and Mr. and Mrs. Kingman Cass.

EMBLEM CLUB AFFAIRS

The last club social is scheduled for Wednesday evening, June 26, in Lyceum Hall at 8 o'clock. Members are urged to attend and bring along all their friends. The usual games will be on the program and prizes are requested by the chairman of entertainment, Mrs. Esther C. McCarthy.

At the regular meeting Wednesday evening, plans were formulated for the annual club outing in July. The members will go to Hampton Beach by bus and weather permitting, enjoy the pleasures of a real beach picnic.

About 15 delegates and members of the local club attended the Massachusetts State convention of Emblem Clubs at the Hotel Westminster last month. Haverhill Emblem Club won the ritualistic contest and according to all reports, well deserved the prize. There will be a meeting of the State Association on Thursday, June 20 at 2 p. m. at the Hotel Westminster, Boston, to make arrangements for the annual outing. Mrs. George H. Lochman is still serving out her term as a five year trustee.

A meeting of the Supreme Emblem Club, U. S. A., is called for June 17, at the Hotel Westminster. The session will start promptly at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. Fred H. Scholl is serving on the Supreme Staff as assistant Marshal.

CAN YOU SWIM?

If not, or if you would like to improve your present ability, why not take advantage of the lessons being offered at Wedge Pond and Leonard Field beaches this summer?

The Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross is again engaging George P. Carnie, Red Cross instructor and examiner, for a nine-weeks' course in swimming and life saving beginning June 24.

All residents of Winchester, children and adults, novices and swimmers of experience, are urged to avail themselves of this splendid opportunity, to come experts to the individual or learn correct strokes under expert supervision.

The course in life saving, if properly studied and practised should enable swimmers of ordinary ability to be prepared in case of necessity to rescue those in peril of drowning with the least possible risk to the rescuer.

If you enjoy water activities, present yourself on June 24, or any week day following, at one of the aforenamed beaches and see what pleasure and profit you shall find.

Schedules allotting time to each of the beaches will be in readiness by the opening date.

Ethel C. Goodwin.
Chairman Life Saving, Winchester Red Cross

MORE ON GRADE CROSSING

Mr. Burwell Submits Letters Written President and Representative

The following letters, self explanatory, have been sent by Mr. E. Langworthy Burwell of Winslow road to President Roosevelt and Representative Edith Nourse Rogers in Washington. Mr. Burwell is deeply interested in the elimination of Winchester's grade crossing and is lending his whole-hearted assistance to that end.

LaFrance, Ind.
94 Portland Street,
Boston, June 10, 1935

His Excellency Franklin Delano Roosevelt, President of the U. S. of America, Washington, D. C.

My President:

Will you graciously allow me to bring to your attention, once again, our crying need of grade crossing abolishment at Winchester, Mass.

I certainly loathe to bother you with this matter at a time when you are possibly sore beset with troublesome burdens not to say impositions.

Our problem has been agitated for a score of years. With the Railroad never ready to co-operate, crying "poor" and otherwise standing pat, while half-mile freight trains roar through our civic center—a standing menace and obstacle to lives, business pursuits and the mobility of our Fire Department.

A highly competent Engineer, Mr. Edward A. Granstein, Harvard and M. I. T. graduate, has figured that track depression is what Winchester requires, running the Boston & Maine trains through a declining open culvert with subways at a highway, also under the town square.

On account of the Aberjona (a small river) crossing the railroad right of way, there is a complication, which can be readily solved, and Mr. Granstein's careful estimate of the entire expense of the grade crossing elimination, here sums up $1,200,000.

Now, Mr. President, Winchester is a self-supporting town and takes care of its indigent dependents, not calling for any outside aid, but in this emergency (and just at this time) may I not entreat your influence and command that a sufficiency be provided by either the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture or the Division of Grade Crossing Elimination, Bureau of Public Roads. For it appears to be a question of relief now—or never.

With utmost respect and esteem, and thanking you for your former action in these businesses.

I remain very faithfully yours,
16 Winslow road,
Winchester, Mass.

Boston, Mass.
June 10, 1935

Hon. Edith Nourse Rogers,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mrs. Rogers:

I know you are not only willing but anxious to do all in your power that may redound to the well being of Winchester, Mass. Herewith please find copies of letters from Hon. Joseph B. Eastman, Federal Coordinator of Transportation and from Mr. A. R. Forbush, Special Assistant to the Executive Director of the National Emergency Council.

Mr. Eastman's letter is distinctly favorable and helpful towards the problem of grade crossing elemination and his judgment in the matter should have a great deal of weight with President E. S. French of the Boston & Maine Railroad.

Mr. Forbush particularly mentions the kind gesture of President Roosevelt in forwarding to him my letter of May 14 and copy of "Star" and in turn he transmitted them to Mr. Fred P. Bartlett, Works Application Adviser of the Division of Grade Crossing Elimination, Bureau of Public Roads.

Mr. Eastman mentions Hon. Thomas H. MacDonald, Chief of the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture saying that in his understanding Mr. MacDonald is in charge of Federal Funds for the elimination of grade crossings.

Now in his letter to you President French of the B. & M. seems not at all unfavorable to the ideas both of grade crossing elimination, and depression of the tracks—the cost of the Winchester problem seems, from his point of view to be the main deterrent.

It appears that the solution of the vexing question depends on a special allocation of Federal funds—and this is the time for action to secure same.

Right here, dear Representative, is where your aid must prove invaluable for aiding this particular section of Middlesex. May I not ask you to arrange a conference at the office of Hon. Thomas H. MacDonald of all those in Washington who are favoring this project and otherwise are influential? viz:

Hon. Marcus A. Coolidge,—Senator
Hon. Joseph B. Eastman—Federal Coordinator of Transportation
Mr. A. R. Forbush—Special Assistant to the Executive Director of The National Emergency Council 14th and G streets, N. W.
Mr. Fred P. Bartlett—Works Application Advisor of the Division of Grade Crossing Elimination, Bureau of Public Roads
Mr. George H. Andrews—Staff Engineer of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, 1734 New York avenue, N. W.
Mr. Louis McH. Howe, Secretary to President Roosevelt.
Hon. Harold L. Ickes—Secretary Department of the Interior
Mr. William F. Calluhan—Commissioner Department of Public Works, 100 Nashua street, Boston, Mass.
Mr. Harry L. Hopkins, c/o The Advisory Board, Washington, D. C.
Division of Applications and Information of the National Emergency Council, Washington, D. C.

These are all well advised of the very dangerous grade crossing at Winchester, Mass., and if you will kindly use your utmost endeavor to have them all meet together either at the office of Hon. Thomas H. MacDonald or at your office, or at the office of Senator Coolidge, it is altogether or likely that a special allocation of the necessary funds may be effected (Engineer Edward A. Graustein carefully estimated this amount to be $1,900,000, there being a small but readily surmountable water complication where the little Aberjona river runs beneath the R. R.)

President Roosevelt, as per the letter of Mr. A. R. Forbush, most graciously took cognizance of my communication, to him, with enclosure of a May 10 Winchester Star and is doubtless in receipt of the further literature on this subject matter—Also I am sending his Excellency another communication along the same lines, and respectfully submit a copy of same to you.

I believe if you will personally confer with the President on this subject—the interview is more than likely to be crowned with success.

With kindest regards,
Very faithfully,
E. Langworthy Burwell,
16 Winslow Road,
Winchester, Mass.

NEVER A PROPHET IN HIS NATIVE LAND

June 13, 1935

To the Editor of the Star:

The writer was one of several townspeople who enthusiastically responded to the recent announcement of the town's intention of extending its welcome to a fellow townsman recently returned to our midst from the Antarctic regions where he served in the important capacity of supply officer.

All those present were very fortunate in hearing a most interesting talk on the experiences and thrilling adventures encountered on the occasion of the expedition from which this fine young man returned. I am certain that we would be required to travel a great deal and pay a large price to hear such an interesting talk elsewhere. At this point I extend my sincere compliments and congratulations to the young man for the able manner in which he presented his subject and held the intense interest of his audience.

While I am satisfied that this young man is deserving of all the honors the town can bestow upon him, it was most discouraging to witness the apparent apathy on the part of the town citizenry which was greatly denoted by the conspicuousness of the absentees who are still in town.

Winchester has ever been noted for being quite different from other communities in many respects, but up till now I have never been quite convinced that Winchester is totally indifferent. Wednesday night's turnout of the townspeople clearly indicates that the youth of Winchester need never go forth to conquer the world and expect to return to this hamlet and be received with open arms and joyous welcome acclaim.

Winchester is apparently ultra-conservative in this respect, or else it prefers to lend added belief to the axiom that a man is never a "Prophet" in his native land, or to use the vernacular of a famous Broadway performer "You never go big in your own home town."

I could continue to relate uncomplimentary remarks prompted by the town's traditional indifference to the accomplishments of home talent, and not necessarily be expressing my own views. There are a number who feel, no doubt, as I am expressing myself at this time. At the same time I hasten to state that I am expressing my own singular and personal views and not speaking for any group or organization. If there is any criticism of what I have to say, I will appreciate it very much if it is directed entirely to me and not elsewhere.

While this occasion was primarily the town's official welcome to the young man to whom I have reference, it was sponsored by the American Legion. In view of the latter, may I direct my personal attitude toward a number of the members of the Legion Post who apparently are afflicted by an abnormal degree of numbness from the neck up, or, in lieu thereof, are purposely uncooperative with the activities the Post has attempted to sponsor. To those who fit this category I challenge to offer one sound reason for their failure to respond on Wednesday night's occasion.

Yours very truly,
Richard W. MacAdams

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Two members were absent from the meeting of June 3.

As predicted in the last letter the new song books were distributed by Charlie Downer at this meeting. These books are fresh from the press having been published under the sponsorship of Rotary International at Chicago. This is the most comprehensive and best edited collection of Rotary songs yet brought to our notice and is bound to be of immense assistance in a highly important department of club activities.

Again we are reminded that our good friend "Pat" has small sympathy with the laggard. All persons interested in achieving quick results in growing rock-gardens should, by all means consult "Pat." We can guarantee that all such will be highly entertained even if they find it inexpedient to comply with all of "Pat's" recommendations.

Before another issue of this letter appears the Convention of Rotary International at Mexico City will have passed into history. This convention, held at a point farther south than any previous convention, still further demonstrates the vigorous growth of the Rotary idea on a world-wide scale. It is now possible to state that it will be highly successful, both in point of attendance and in the significance of business matters considered and passed upon. We regret that no member of our own club has found it possible to go to Mexico, for we are sure that many local Rotarians have been keenly desirous of making this journey. We shall all await the reports of convention proceedings with uncommon interest.

George Reed announces that he is about to depart to enjoy his annual summer recess. Fortunately for us "Billy" Beggs took immediate action on hearing this announcement, the result being that George delivered one of his always popular addresses at the current meeting of the club. In the course of his remarks George touched on various lessons to be learned from a study of the life of Henry H. Rogers, late Standard Oil magnate and vice president of the corporation. For seven years the speaker was minister in charge of the beautiful Rogers Memorial Church and parish at Fairhaven, thus being in an especially favorable position to interpret the character of one of America's truly great "captains of industry." Club members are keenly appreciative of their obligation to George for this splendid address and unite in wishing for him a most pleasant and restful vacation.

By all means let us maintain the good work already done for a high attendance percentage in June.

Percentage of attendance June 6—96.67 per cent.

The Golden Text is: "The Lord giveth wisdom: . . . He keepeth the paths of judgment, and preserveth the way of his saints" (Proverbs 2:6, 8).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "But when ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking. Be not ye therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him" (Matthew 6:7, 8).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is not moved by the breath of praise to do more than He has already done, nor can the infinite do less than bestow all good, since He is unchanging wisdom and Love. We can do more for ourselves by humble fervent petitions, but the All-loving does not grant them simply on the ground of lip-service, for He already knows all. Prayer cannot change the Science of being, but it tends to bring us into harmony with it" (p. 2).

STOCKHOLM: PICTURE PUZZLE CAPITAL OF SWEDEN

Sweden's Parliament celebrates its 500th birthday this month. During the week of May 27th, pageants, fetes and ceremonies wil be held throughout the nation, especially in Stockholm, and in the little village of Arboga, a few hours distant, at the western end of Lake Malaren.

The first Riksdag (Parliament) was convened in 1435 by Engelbrekt Engelbrektsson, leader of the national movement against union with Denmark and Norway, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the national Geographic Society. A new monument to this great Swedish patriot will be unveiled at Arboga on the first day of the celebrations.

Stockholm is Built on Islands

The modern Riksdag, whose power is greater than that of the King, now meets in the low, square House of Parliament, set on one of the many islands that make up Stockholm, a city that offers a beautiful background for pageantry, and where the greatest celebration will take place. Blue waterways and graceful, arched bridges, lace the city's many "parts."

The oldest part of Stockholm is on the Island of Staden, where Birger Jarl, traditional founder of Stockholm, built his fortress in 1255. Here are narrow, winding streets, high gabled houses, an ancient church, and the great square block of the Royal Palace. Nearby rises the slender spire of Riddarholms Church, burial place of Sweden's kings and heroes.

Every citizen in Stockholm points with pride to the new Town Hall, completed only 12 years ago. The copper roof was financed by popular subscription, and on each six dollar plate is engraved the name of a separate donor. Built of red brick, in a style at once medieval and modern, the straight, severe walls and tall square tower are mirrored in the waters of Lake Malaren.

All Stockholm is waterfront. Not dingy, crowded wharfs, but endless miles of clean, granite quays, where hundreds of boats dock daily—giant ocean liners, fleets of little steamers and ferries bringing commutors from green, island suberbs; trim, private yachts and motor boats, and little white sailboats loaded with cargoes of birch logs for city fireplaces. In summer, when the long northern twilight has faded, myriad lights are reflected in the dark waters of the lake. Even in winter the harbor is kept open by ice-breakers though it is in the same lattitude as southern Greenland.

Swedish food is world famous, and Stockholm cooks live up to their reputation. The city is rich in restaurants—smart scintillating establishments, and queer, Bohemian cellars. The most distinctive feature of a Swedish repast is the smorgas-bord or table of hors d'oeuvres. There are salads, cold meats, cheeses, pickled herrings, caviar, anchovies, sausages, baked mushrooms, dark breads, and the grayish-brown, unleavened cracker called knackebrod. Heap your plate with these and help yourself to some good Danish beer and forget that a full-course meal is to follow.

WHEN ANIMALS NEED THE DOCTOR

One of the most peculiar bears ever born in captivity put in a brief appearance recently at the National Zoological Park in Washington, D. C. A cross between a polar bear and a brown kadiak bear, the tiny silver-gray cub aroused the interest of scientists. Hopes of studying it were dashed, when, after two weeks of apparently normal development, the cub mysteriously died.

Bear Cubs Get Mumps

If it were not for the careful attention of the zoo doctor, zoos would soon be full of empty cages, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. For captive animals although given the finest food and surroundings, suffer from all the illnesses in a patent medicine pamphlet. Bear cubs get mumps, and monkeys get toothache. Pneumonia, distemper, and parasites wipe out large numbers of animals. Bronchitis and digestive troubles affect others. Monkeys are especially susceptible to tuberculosis.

Many of the illnesses are natural to the animal in a wild state. Change of climate accounts for others. Elephants, upon first being brought from the Tropics to more temperate regions, often roll on the ground with stomach ache. The usual remedy is a blanket-size mustard poultice and a stiff dose of gin and ginger. Elephants become so pleased with the tonic that they frequently stage an illness merely to be dosed.

Many animals, however, quickly become acclimated. Lions and ostriches learn to live outdoors in snow, while the Brazilian tapir revels in it from choice long after animals from colder climates have sought shelter. Similarly, polar bears do not seem to be affected adversely by the summer heat of temperate regions.

Companionship Essential to Animals

One of the most amazing adaptations to changed environment was made by chinchillas. These small rodents, from which valuable fur is obtained, normally live on the frigid heights of the Andes. How they were successfully transferred from there to fur farms of Southern California is a monument to patience. A dozen captured at high altitudes were carefully nurtured for two years at 11,000 feet, brought down to 9000 feet, kept there for a year, and then, after almost six years of successive descents and stops, they were taken on a 40 day sea voyage from Iquique, Chile, to Los Angeles. In ice-cooled cages they passed safely through the Tropics, and are now thriving by thousands in their new environment.

Confined surroundings account for several diseases affecting animals. When captive animals lapped in comfort, become too lazy to do much more than eat and sleep, they frequently fall victims to "cage paralysis." Trained animals, forced daily to jump through hoops and race around arenas, keep in beter condition than most zoo animals. One reason why certain animals are confined together is because chasing each other around the cage gives them exercise as well as diversion.

It is well known that companionship is an aid to the good health of the animals. Many animals, if kept alone, are apt to fall sick. Hatred of solitude probably accounts for many strange friendships between animals, not only between those of the same species, but between the those of far different, and often hostile species.
ferent, and often hostile species.

Between acts of trained animal shows, visitors may be surprised to see a tiger, a panther, and a fox terrier rolling over each other in friendly play, or a bantam rooster crowing from the vantage point of a giraffe's neck. Such friendships sometimes terminate abruptly. Sea lions may live peaceably with penguins for years, and then suddenly turn and devour them.

Zoo Doctor's Work Is Varied

Not only do zoo doctors have to contend with ordinary illnesses of animals, but anacondas must be helped out of the skins they are shedding, and overly pugnacious alligators must have their teeth sawed off. Elephants charge iron framework and splinter their tusks. Hippopotamuses break their teeth by biting out pieces of concrete. Leaping chimpanzees fall and fracture their limbs; birds break their wings, and storks and gazelles, their slim legs.

One of the most interesting places in every large zoo is its hospital, where operations are performed and post-mortems held. From cages and crates of every size peer invalids amusing and pathetic. In one limps a deer with a bandaged foot. In another, a sad-faced monkey wears a big wooden collar around its neck to keep it from tearing the plaster cast from a broken arm. A giraffe with a sore throat looks down on them, its long neck wound in bandages.

EIGHTY DEGREES BELOW OVER NEBRASKA ON HOTTEST SUMMER DAY

It's just as cold in America's prairie States on the hottest summer day as in the Antarctic—if one goes high enough into the air.

Admiral Richard E. Byrd, returning from his Antarctic expedition, reported finding a temperature of 80 degrees below zero Fahrenheit at the advanced base where he made weather observations.

But when the crew of the Explorer II of the National Geographic Society and the Army Air Corps soars into the stratosphere in June it can expect to find a similar temperature only about 12 miles above the western plains. Last year on the stratosphere flight of the balloon Explorer II, Captain Albert W. Stevens reported a temperature of nearly 80 below at a height of a little less than 12 miles.

On the hottest summer day anywhere in the United States one could easily cool off by rising into the air only a short distance. Strangely enough it is colder in the stratosphere above the Equator than farther north or south near either of the poles.

Food for Raisin Bugs

Mulberries are manna to the raisin bug, an insect that each year destroys thousands of dollars worth of fruit for the dried fruit packers.

TOWN OF WINCHESTER

SECOND DOG CLINIC

TO DOG OWNERS—

At the request of many persons who were unable to have their dogs vaccinated at the first clinic, the Board of Selectmen has arranged to have Dr. William Buckley, Inspector of Animals, conduct a second clinic for the inoculation of dogs against rabies.

This will be held in the basement of the Town Hall on June 18, 19 and 20 from 1 to 4 p. m. for the nominal sum of 50c per dog to cover the cost of vaccine.

Owners of dogs which have been inoculated against rabies at any time in this year other than at the town's April clinic should notify the Board of Selectmen without delay so that a complete record may be had of all dogs in town which have been inoculated.

At the clinic all dogs must be on a leash.

By order of the Board of Selectmen.

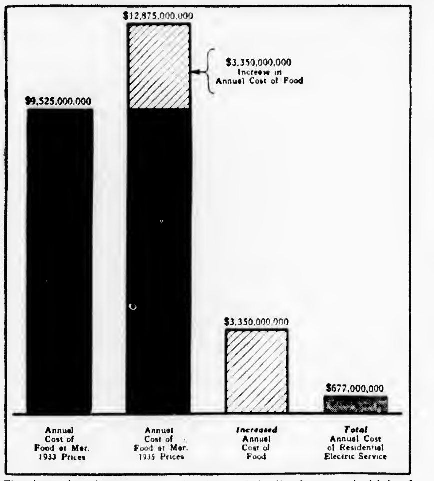
Food Costs Up 3 Billion Dollars; Electric Costs Steadily Decline



The above chart is based upon estimates made by the American Institute of Food Distribution and upon indexes of food costs published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and upon information obtained from the Edison Electric Institute.

Annual food costs have risen more than 3 billion dollars, according to information compiled and announced recently.

March, 1935, compared with March, 1933, shows a $3,350,000,000 increase in the annual cost of food.

The increase alone in the annual cost of food is five times the total annual cost of domestic electric service in the United States. The total annual bill for all electric uses in the home is $677,000,000.

In this connection it was brought out recently by national business leaders that more attention should be given by Washington to cutting food costs instead of haranguing and harassing business. This fear instilled in business, these leaders stated, is retarding recovery and keeping people on the dole.

The Nation would save the amount of its entire bill for residential electric service if its food costs could be reduced approximately 5¼%.

AIR-CONDITIONED BALLOON GONDOLA ASSURES COMFORT FOR NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC-ARMY STRATOSPHERE FLYERS

A special kind of "artificial air," double-rich in life-giving oxygen but more rarified than sea-level air, and as invigorating as the atmosphere of a mountain resort, will sustain life in the stratosphere for the crew of the National Geographic-Army Air Corps balloon, Explorer II, on the flight scheduled for early June.

This special air, containing about twice the proportion of oxygen found in the ordinary air of the out-of-doors will be fed continuously to the balloonists, Capt. Albert W. Stevens and Capt. Orvil A. Anderson, during the many hours they will be sealed in the air-tight gondola on their second stratosphere flight.

An artificial suppiy of air is as necessary in the stratosphere as in a submarine in the depths of the sea, for the balloon is expected to reach heights where the air is only from one twenty-fifth to one thirty-fifth as dense as at the surface of the earth, far too little air for a man to breathe and live. Moreover, the atmospheric pressure in the stratosphere is so much less than on earth that it would have a disastrous effect on the human body. A man suddenly placed in such air would tend to expand somewhat as do certain fish that are drawn up from the great pressures of the deep sea to the much lower pressure at the ocean surface.

Will Seal Gondola at About 12,000 Feet

The balloonists will keep the hatches of their gondola open during approximately the first two miles of ascent after the take-off from the natural "bowl" in the Black Hills near Rapid City, South Dakota. Then at a height of about 12,000 feet the gondola will be hermetically sealed and the "artificial air" will go into action. As a result of leaving the gondola open until this height is reached, the atmospheric pressure within the ball will be a little less than at sea level, more like that on top of a mountain such as the Jungfrau in the Alps or Mt. Rainier in the State of Washington.

The gondola will be "air-conditioned" by an apparatus resembling a small refrigerator. A mixture of liquid aid and liquid oxygen, (about 45 per cent liquid oxygen and 55 per cent liquid air) carried in flasks, will be evaporated in the top of the air-conditioner and spread through the gondola by a small electrically-driven fan. The extra orygen supply will be slightly stimulating to the crew, helping to provide needed energy for their many duties and to stave off drowsiness.

Even with the large oxygen supply, however, the balloonists might suffocate from the carbon dioxide discharged during their own breathing, were it not tor an ingenious chemical "watchman." This consists of cloth bags filled with sodium hydroxide pellets. As a sponge absorbs water, these pellets soak up both the carbon dioxide gas and the water vapor thrown off by the balloonists' lungs. If the water vapor were not absorbed, the walls, clothing, instruments and electrical connections in the gondola would become saturated, interfering with both comfort and efficiency. A surplus supply of bags of pellets will be carried to replace the spent bags as needed.

Gondola Will Never Become "Stuffy"

The small fan which spreads the evaporated liquid air and oxygen through the gondola will at the same time draw in the used air, through the air-conditioning cabinet, removing its poisons and moisture and making it again fit to breathe. Hence, although the gondola is on larger than a small room, it never will become "stuffy," and will be almost as comfortable from the standpoint of ventilation as the most modern air-conditioned building or even the out-of-doors itself.

Although the evaporation of the liquid and and oxygen will gradually increase the atmospheric pressure inside the gondola, the crew will be able to lower it again to the desired point simply by opening a valve to the outside when the pressure is lower.

As a further aid to comfort inside the gondola, its exterior will be painted white on the upper half and black on the lower half. The white section will reflect enough of the sun's rays so that the interior will not become too hot, while the black half will absorb enough heat to prevent the crew from suffering from the Arctic cold that prevails in the stratosphere.

ZONING LAW

The Board of Appeal will give a hearing to Mr. Herbert E. Gleason Tuesday Evening, June 18, 1935 at 8 o'clock P. M. at the Building Commissioner's office, 9 Mount Vernon Street.

Mr. Gleason has made application for a permit to build a single residence building on lot 102 Brantwood Road, corner Wickford Road, located in a single residence district.

The Commissioner denied the permit on the grounds that it would violate Section 8A of the Zoning Law which requires an area of 10,000 square feet per lot.

All persons interested are invited to attend.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

What might have been a costly fire at Purtle's Pharmacy on Washington street at the corner of Swanton street was prevented by Patrolman Clarence E. Dunbury, who smelled smoke while trying the doors of the business block there. He notified Headquarters where Officer Archie O'Connell relayed the call to the Fire Department. The firemen found a small fire started in the basement of the pharmacy.

While putting out the church sign on Sheridan circle shortly before 5:30 last Sunday morning, Patrolman James P. Donaghey of the Police Department noticed an automobile proceeding in an uncertain manner along Main street going toward the center. He overtook the machine at Hemingway street and placed the driver and his companion under arrest. The driver gave his name as Adrian Biselx of 6 Crawford street, Arlington. He was held for appearance in court on charges of drunkenness and operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. In court Monday morning his case was continued until next Tuesday.

Miss Jane Adriance, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adriance of Maplewood, N. J., and granddaughter of Rev. S. Winchester Adriance of this town, is among the graduates of Oberlin College in Ohio this June.

One of Winchester Boat Club's leading paddlers, "Jim" Fitch, winner of Winchester's canoe marathon last Fourth of July, has been elected vice commodore of the New England Canoe Racing Association.

Three Hundred Years In the Home

The past 300 years have changed the home as radically as they have changed the high school. Science, industry, and improved methods of transportation have all aided in emancipating the home, and high school education has been a material factor in raising the plane of home life. We have progressed from crude cabins and rough farms to comfortable houses and apartments; from days of drudgery and servitude to times of labor-saving devices and opportunities for leisure and recreation; from the days when women were submerged and had few rights to these days of emancipation and equality.

The earliest homes of settlers in America were rough log cabins which were soon superseded by small frame houses. Most of the colonial population lived in small farming communities and each farm was a self-dependent unit. The farmer did his own carpentry, blacksmithing, and tanning, while his wife spun, wove, and made all the family clothes and also soap and candles. The main room of the house was the kitchen with its huge fireplace for cooking and warmth, the Dutch baking oven, the sanded clapboard floor, guns hung over the mantel, a spinning wheel, a loom, cooking utensils, and so forth. Here the mother and daughters, spun, wove, sewed, and cooked, and here also the father and sons made tools and utensils. The whole family kept busy at various tasks all day long. Even the little children worked at planting and chores; they could sow seed, weed the flax fields, hetchel the flax, and comb wool. Girls of six could spin. Boys had to rise early and do the chores before school; after studying diligently all day, they had more chores in the evening. All the time out of school was occupied with bringing in fuel, cutting feed, feeding the pigs, watering the horses, picking berries, gathering vegetables, spooling yarn, sawing, wood-chopping, and making brooms, which they were able to sell for six cents apiece.

The father was the undisputed head of every New England Colonial family; women worked as hard as the servants and slaves. On them rested the burden of endless childbearing; for large families were the rule; ten to twelve children in a family were common, and families of 20 to 25 were not unusual. As soon as one wife was dead of hard work, the husband married another to look after his family. Some women had servants, either neighbor girls or poor children bound out for service, and "old maid" relatives who lived with the family helped out; but in spite of such assistance a woman's life in those days was one of perpetual drudgery and hardship.

Children were well-loved but strictly brought up; family discipline was whole-hearted but firm and severe. They were trained to obey their parents implicity, and all offenses and infractions were sternly punished. Within the home the father and mother provided their offspring with industrial training and developed in them that most valuable habit—work. The youngsters had few idle hours and but little play time.

Women in Colonial times had small opportunity for education. Every town of 50 families was required by law to maintain a primary school, and every town of 100 families was required to provide a grammar school to prepare boys for college. Girls were not sent to school to be educated. Occasionally they attended dame schools, where they were taught to read, to spin, to sew, and to knit, but they rarely learned to write. They were sometimes allowed to go to the town school, but only in the summer and then in the early morning and late afternoon hours when the boys were not using it. Education for women was deprecated because men feared it would make them less capable housewives and mothers.

Nearly all Colonial industry was carried on in the home. There were a few flour-mills, but otherwise the people themselves produced what they needed. All cotton, linen, and woolen goods were made in the home. The wool was carded, combed and spun by hand and woven on a hand loom; the father was usually the weaver, and the mother, unmarried daughters, and female dependents were kept busy spinning yarn for him to weave into cloth. In the middle of the 18th century John Kay invented the "fly shuttle," which eliminated the labor of throwing the shuttle from side to side of the loom by hand. This innovation speeded up weaving so that a spinning machine was a necessity; James Hargreaves in 1760 invented the "spinning jenny," and further inventions brought greater speed to spinning. The invention of the power loom by Edmund Cartwright in 1797 finally removed spinning and weaving from the sphere of the home.

In Colonial days families who dwelt in towns were accustomed to pursue one industry, such as shoemaking, from generation to generation. The industrial revolution of the early 19th century drove families to the factories, and trades could no longer be handed down from father to son. The revolution in the textile industry, which began in England, spread quickly to America, and when the New England mills were opened, the first operatives were girls and unmarried women to whom the chance of earning money and at the same time of escaping the drudgery of farm work seemed an opportunity rather than a misfortune. The industrial revolution gave much more scope to women, and thus in turn led to the rise of the factories.

In the cities there were many [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and to the thousands employed in commercial laboratories, testing products or researching for new ones, or to a simple technician. They are all scientists. Remember science is the discovery and study of classified knowledge.

Treating scientists in a biological way we might say there are several families, physicists, botanists, chemists, mathematicians, and so on. But there are two orders of science, between which it is very necessary to distinguish. First, there is pure science; second, applied science.

As the name suggests, pure science is free from all contamination of money and is fundamental because it has to do with the basic truths. In this field America has been disgracefully lacking. Only Russia has contributed less to scientific knowledge, on the basis of population. Not until the last five or ten years has the United States begun any real scientific study. But pure science is laying the foundations for future civilizations with no other aim than to contribute its little bit toward the progress of mankind.

Einstein is a wonderful example of a pure science man. All his theories are of no practical value, as you know if you have read any of them. But they are the Mt. Everest in intellectual value. Statisticians believe that only one person in a hundred is capable of understanding him. The general idea behind Einstein's theory of relativity and all his theoretical calculations, is interesting.

His relativity we may illustrate simply. Imagine that an airplane flying in a horizontal plane has a long hollow glass tube hanging perpendicularly from it. And suppose that a black ball is dropped down the tube while the plane is in full flight. Now to the observer in the plane, the ball appears to be traveling in a straight line—down. But to an observer on the ground, that ball seems to travel forward in a curve that arcs downward. That is, relative to the ground man it travels in a curved line. Well, we say, the ground man is more right than the other for he is observing the course of the ball from a fixed point, and its path is really how it appears relative to such a point. But here's where Einstein originates his basic principle. We are standing on the earth, the earth is rotating on its axis, the earth is revolving about the sun, the solar system is moving toward the star Vega, and the Milky Way, of which it is a member, is flying from the rest of the thousands of galaxies at over 10,000 miles per second. Who can say, reasons Einstein, what course that ball took? Certainly none of us can. The only judgment we have, then, is relative to something else. One color is certainly relative to another; time is relative to the motion of something, a clock's hand, the earth's rotation or revolution about the sun; velocity, therefore, is also relative; and so on with everything. That's relativity. But don't mistake me in believing this to be the Einstein Theory of Relativity. It would be a similar case if the construction and function of an automobile motor were to be described merely by saying it ran on gasoline. What is really Einstein's theory, you and I will probably never know.

But perhaps this serves to illustrate what is meant by pure research. It has no connection with monetary gain, but is more like an intellectual study such as the classics, or art, or music.

There is one more point, however, which must be brought out in connection with pure science. Every practical device today is possible only because of the discovery some true scientist made yesterday.

Well over a century ago, Faraday discovered that if the lines of force set up by a magnet are cut by a wire, a current is established in that wire. That is, if we have a magnet and pass a wire by it, an electric current flows in that wire. By passing this wire, Faraday turned mechanical energy into electrical energy; and by reversing the process, he was able to turn electrical energy into mechanical energy. Little did Faraday dream then, however, that this basic truth he had discovered would soon become the foundation of an entire electrical civilization. For it is a fact that every generator, every motor, every induction coil, every electrical device exists only because of this discovery.

And thus, a ridiculed man may work alone in his laboratory on a principle that has no apparent connection with the world and yet his discoveries may lead to a practical application in the hands of others. These other men are of that order of scientists known as applied scientists.

Applied science is industrial science, for it is primarily concerned with turning scientific discoveries into profitable channels. America is far ahead in this science which is transforming the world. All the work of peaceful industry, the horrors of war, the conquest of disease, and advances in education, morality, and religion are the result of perpetual application of scientific facts. In the application of scientific facts. In the World War the German cause would most certainly have failed very early if it had not been for Haber, who perfected a process whereby nitrates, necessary to all explosives, could be synthesized from the air.

The treatment of cancer by radium was an important discovery, but now Dr. Coolidge of the General Electrical Laboratories, after much research, has perfected a simple tube which will produce as many electrons per second as a ton of radium, worth at the present price one hundred billion dollars. The reclamation of bromine from the sea is another example of applied science. This is the substance used in the manufacture of the ethyl gasolines we are using in our motor cars today.

It is interesting to note how modern research work is conducted. For instance, the order given to the chemical department of the Dupont organization a few years ago ran in this vein:

"What is wanted is a paint to protect cars, furniture, and other finely finished objects. The paint must be as handsome when it is applied as the finest finish ordinarily used. Yet it must be capable of much more rapid application. It must be capable of carrying color pigments or other coloring matter, so that various shades may be readily obtained —and these colors must not fade. When dry, the desired product must be hard, so that it will not scratch, mar—in this particular—be similar to glass. Yet it must not have the other properties of glass, lest it crack too easily. Therefore, with its hardness it must be tough. Furthermore, it must be proof against the action of water, oil, grease, and such acids with which it might come in contact. It must not deteriorate under the action of sunlight, hot sun, snow, sunlight, dust, mud must leave no mark at all. And of course the product must be able to compete in price with the compounds now on the market."

Confronted with such a problem, most of us would certainly become immediately discouraged and despondent. But these men were accustomed to puzzles like this. And they were scientists. As a result of months of labor, and a period that is end of failure, where yesterday it required 336 hours to paint an automobile, it now takes 12. There can be no question of the benefits of such labor. And such is the story of applied science.

Today some people are ridiculing the blowing up of the atom. Without going into the details of the process, let me say that when the energy in the atom is released and harnessed, one gram of matter—a nickel weighs five grams—one gram will give energy equivalent to 21 million horse power. The only thing separating us at present from the moon is fuel. Therefore think twice before saying that this bombardment of the atom is a waste of money.

Thus we see that science stirs the imagination. And lastly Science may well develop our philosophic thought. For instance, during the study of science, we learn that the chance of there being another planet in the universe which will support life is one in millions and millions, and we learn that the chance of life, as we know it, existing on such a planet, is also one in many millions. As Sir James Jeans remarked, in view of the fact that life is so limited and scarce, and that magnetism, radioactivity, or energy-matter changes of every-where occurring throughout the universe, the universe may have been created for one of those to function in.

Life may be an accident, a by-product of the creation of the universe. Or as all life contains the element carbon, it may be just a peculiarity of the carbon atom. Faced with these discouraging facts and theories, we wonder, despondently and despairingly, if anything we do is significant or of importance. At this stage in our thought, we suddenly have the ambition to make life mean something in the universe; that is, we wish to make life of more importance, raise it to a higher standing. Now, all that becomes important is that which increases man's power and betters his position. Our individual victories are petty and of no consequence, but the victories of man over fire, sea, air, and next, perhaps, atomic energy—that type of victory is the only important and worthwhile type. Our aims should be to better life, and such accomplishments, however small, are the important ones.

That is a conclusion we reach by an association with the facts of science. Our thoughts are bigger, they encompass more and give depth to the picture because we see it at another angle also. This should be the real ideal of scientific study and should be begun early in life.

Educators all over the world admit that it is extremely difficult to keep abreast of the times. At present, education is far behind science. But the answer is quite simple. Begin the teaching of science in the primary grades when a pupil's curiosity is at its greatest height. That is the time to develop this inquisitiveness which makes life interesting. It is also the time for an explanatory course; that is, a course to discover for which studies a student is best fitted. Then, those who are apt and like the subject for itself, find their life's work early before entering college. And yet they will not have to specialize as they will have ample time to acquire a liberal, well-rounded education.

If we are ever to prepare students correctly for the world, that time will come when, and only when, science is incorporated in their early study. Let them have this chance to become interested in the subject offering the greatest opportunity today. Allow them a true viewpoint, gained through a lens which shows everything in the light of truth and relative impartiality. Drive home the fact that future wars will not be fought at the front alone, that the future crops will not be harvested by the farmer alone, but that the scientist will be the supreme worker. Give all students the opportunity to become a part of this business of organized changemaking. Only then will educational supply meet the demands of the world.

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

Women in Industry

Through the entire history of working humanity, from the time of the cliff-dweller to the present day, women have played an important role in industry. But until the opening of the 19th century, it was in the domestic sense, to provide food, clothing and shelter, that the majority of women labored.

During the Colonial days, women received no recognition as an economic factor in industry, arts, or literature. They had little opportunity for educational development, and their interests did not extend beyond the duties of household life. The women of this early period spun, wove, and bleached, made all the linen and clothes, boiled soap, made butter, cheese, candles, and countless other articles necessary for everyday use. Generally speaking, these tasks were considered a part of their duties, and not a remunerative occupation, for the greater portion of the products was consumed usually by the family in which it was made.

During the early stages of industry in America, few women were employed, for the work necessitated too heavy labor. With the furtherance of education and invention in the late 18th and early 19th centuries, women made their entrance into spheres previously unknown to them. Men with sufficient capital for investment began machine production. The result was that, from a narrow, unwholesome life of field drudgery, of grinding flour, of spinning and weaving cloth in the "front room," women turned to spinning, weaving, and sewing in the mills.

At the beginning, in many industries, only a few processes of the work were done in the factories; the rest of the product was made by hand in the homes. Thus the change from the home to the factory was neither sudden nor complete. It often afforded women an opportunity to combine the household tasks with working for pay. Yet the individual opportunities for women were quite limited; needle-work, typesetting, book-binding, household service, teaching, and working in mills were the principal occupations open to them by the middle of the 19th century.

As the establishment of the factory system became more complete, and the invention of machines increased, work became concentrated in the factories, and the old household industries rapidly disappeared. In growing numbers women turned to factory work as it became possible to acquire a greater variety of possessions by working for wages than by producing articles by hand. As the factories grew, they showed that goods could be turned out with greater rapidity, cheapness, and efficiency in mass production. Housewives found it more economical and convenient to buy factory-made wares than to spend hours making the same articles at home. The amount of work necessary in the home decreased but in the factories there was a growing demand for labor to produce food, clothing, etc. in increased quantities.

Many women became surplus labor in relation to the family. To them the factory offered means of supporting themselves and of contributing toward the family income. Often, the wages of the men were not adequate to meet the needs of the family, and the earnings of women became a necessity.

Steam, and later electricity, replaced water as the source of power. New machines were invented and new products created. The factories developed towns and cities, and these drew workers in the various lines from the outlying country. Girls and young women came to the factory towns from farms, many of them for the sake of being near libraries and schools where there were better opportunities for self-culture.

Up to the time of the Civil War, aside from factory employment, the positions open to women were restricted. With the departure of men for the front, and with the economic conditions brought about at this time, a new industry for women were thrown upon their own resources, and they flocked into trades for which they had little or no training—trades which previously had been considered the exclusive property of men. This stampede of women into various branches of industry not only revolutionized their place in society, but it made striking changes in their social status. Customs of the old days had declared women's work to be that of providing clothing, food, and shelter for the family within the home. For these duties an education was not considered necessary. As wage-earning women became a necessary part of the country's industrial life, the more intelligent and ambitious of them were attracted toward the specialized work, the professions, and they realized the need of educational opportunities equal to the facilities provided for men. A large number of women, who were not wage earners, but who had been freed by machine production from long hours of work within the home, were, in their leisure, becoming vitally interested in the events of the day.

Tradition and prejudice, however, denied them a place in public life, in college, on the lecture platform, in competition with men. During the latter half of the 18th century, women struggled to break down the bars of higher educational prejudice. Now the days of the dame school, when teaching on a very limited scale, mainly in sewing and reading, was opened to women, they had made little advancement in the educational world. Exceptional schools did not open to them until the late 18th century, and then for but a few hours, at an inconvenient time when the boys did not occupy the master's attention.

Women educated in this manner found themselves unable to compete with men. None of the colleges opened their doors to women. In fact, the ability of women to succeed in the studies of the college curriculum was doubted. But the founders of Oberlin College believed that women should have the same opportunities as men, and in 1837 admitted both on the same terms.

Gradually, with the rise of the movement for universal education, came the expansion of educational opportunities for women, by the establishment of secondary schools and seminaries. Of the latter the most famous were the Mt. Holyoke Female Seminary, established by Mary Lyon at South Hadley, Mass., and the Troy Female Seminary established by Emma Willard at Troy, N. Y.

As democratic ideas made headway, there came a demand for a type of secondary school for girls which should be supported by public funds and should come wholly under public control. The secondary or high school spread rapidly and grew in public favor after the Civil War. These common schools carried a demand for teachers, and women came to be regarded in a new light.

Aided in their fight by economic conditions, and by the breakdown of old customs, women began to adjust public opinion to their changing economic status. Establishment of higher institutions of learning for women found advocates in the 19th century. Vassar, chartered in 1861, and opened in 1865, was a pioneer in collegiate education of women. It raised the standards of academic and physical training, of college equipment and the ability of its instructors, so that it became a model for women's colleges that were established later.

The fight went on, centering around the right to vote, as this would help in the adjustment of other wrongs. The success of the suffrage movement may be measured by the immediate opening of higher educational opportunities to women and in their occupational advancement into the professions, into medicine, law, design, journalism, art, sculpture, secretarial work—into every field of industry.

The same necessity for a sound education in the case of women as of men in relation to economic and social advancement began to be perceived.

The World War, with its unusual development and specialization of industry in America, created opportunities for women to enter new trades and occupations. Over the period of a few months, the nation's industrial organization was wrenched, and in the rapid shift women were absorbed by the iron and steel mills, metal foundries, munition factories, chemical and research laboratories, and the other war-supply units. Aerial warfare created a new industry for women, and it expanded those divisions of industry that produced the materials necessary for aircraft manufacture. In addition, an army of four million men had to be fed and clothed, and industry had to continue to supply the needs of those at home.

This large number of women in industry was not limited to the factory. Women school teachers increased by one third; thousands more women became nurses. Women's entrance into office work, as secretaries, managers, stenographers, typists, clerks, and bookkeepers, was rapid. Even the men who were killed or incapacitated by the war left permanent gaps to be filled by women. Further restriction of immigration shut off the continuously fresh supply of workers that had previously been available, thus offering increased opportunities for women.

Although many of the dramatic features of women's war activities have disappeared, the range of their employment has permanently and tremendously increased. Overall-clad women turning out shells and guns are gone, but the number of women operatives in electrical, chemical, and automobile plants has increased about 35,000 during the past decade.

The individuality of women's work, formerly expressed in strongly-made clothing, home-cooked food, and delicately-fashioned quilts, has now been lost in industry by machine labor. Women have proved they can do work that no one had ever believed they could do, and they have become a permanent part of our industrial life, with ability rivaling the determining factor in their competition with men.

The history of women in industry has been darkened considerably by long working hours, low wages, and unsanitary conditions. Where manufacturing profits depended upon low cost production, employers have paid the lowest wages for which it was possible to obtain workers. In the early period of their entrance into industry, women became active in a fight to better their working conditions. Except for limited organization in factory work, they made little progress until the World War, when the nation sensed the need of protective labor legislation for women workers. This movement was aided by the fact that many progressive employers, by running their plants short hours, paying wages higher than those paid by competitors, and by establishing high standards of safety and sanitation, proved that with proper management these steps were a definite aid to production.

State labor departments, legislative committees for the study of labor conditions, social and civil groups familiar with the problems of women in industry—all, have been instrumental in the passage of laws dealing with hours of labor, night work, minimum wages, and improvement of working conditions.

With the severe depression of the past few years, problems that women workers have always faced have been intensified. Many of the gains obtained in good working conditions have been lost. Low-paid home work and sweat-shop work have increased. In order to meet keen competition in falling markets, manufacturers have tried to cut wages, lengthen hours, decrease industrial sanitation and safety, and employ workers on a part-time scale. Thus workers have been compelled to accept increasingly lower standards of living. Besides, realizing the ills caused by wages at starvation levels, have instituted minimum-wage laws.

Women, often untrained for the work, thrown out of other employment, have turned to domestic and personal service. In this division of industry, standards have always been low, and the rush of competition has forced working conditions even lower.

The right of married women to work has been challenged, frequently resulting in their dismissal. To many of them, this is especially hard at this time when they have assumed the burden of family support, and their wages have become a more necessary part of life. The older woman has been the victim of increased competition, and in many factories, when lay-offs occur, they fall most heavily on her. Even in the professions, where her value is increased with experience and she is not worn out like a piece of machinery, employment has become insecure. Girls leaving high school and college find that any existing openings can be filled by more experienced workers.

During this period of economic upheaval no present standards have remained secure. In an effort to prevent the wage slashing and sweat-shop employment, and to restore both industry and workers from the ravages of the depression, the National Recovery Act was passed. States, sensing the necessity of preserving women's place in industry, have added to the strictness of their labor laws.

While the right of women to enter into almost every branch of industry has been definitely accepted and while they have won their fight for equal educational opportunities with men, there has yet to be a readjustment that will guarantee social and economic security to every woman.

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

Transportation's Contribution to Education

Modern transportation is an essential factor in the 20th century; for without this neoteric feature we would still be primitive, and progress would be much retarded. Transportation is also an important contribution to advanced education, for without convenient traveling facilities our students, who live many miles from any school house, would be unable to attend any institution of learning. This would cause illiteracy and would be a detriment to our social order.

With private transportation we are all familiar, but about public transportation for pupils, financed by tax appropriations, the majority of us know little.

Public transportation for pupils was effected in our New England States about the middle of the 19th century. At this early date, our ancestors were not so fortunate as to possess streamlined trains; but rather they had to be content with an ox cart driven by five horse power.

This ox cart was not so comfortable as is our modern car. Also roads were anything but roads as we know them today. In fact, we would call a rural road of 1850 but an abandoned lumber trail. In the rainy season, these antique wagons were unable to attempt any journey for fear of sinking wheel deep into the mire. Communication at this early period was indeed a matter of asking for a number. In fact it took weeks or even months for news to reach the scattered settlements. Also inhabitants of the early towns were very conservative; therefore the progress of the somewhat radical idea of public transportation of school children was very much retarded.

The principle of transporting pupils was brought about rather incidentally; for at this early period our forefathers had the foresight to see that scattered rural schools were only the first step towards civilization. After much deliberation they decided, in order to better educational advantages, to consolidate rural schools. When consolidation took place, two or more district schools combined into one central school. These men knew that the pupils living in the closed districts would be forced to walk, perhaps many miles; and the result would be loss of interest. Even though transportation was in its embryo state, the value of elevating educational standards out-weighed, at first, such trivial problems as transportation. However, with increased education, science was destined to advance means of traveling. Consolidation was inevitable; for the rural school housed pupils ranging from eight to eighteen years of age in the same room. The education of the teachers in such schools was often limited, else they would not be likely to occupy such positions. Under such conditions the improvement of learning was impossible.

The centralized school possesses superior grading in the eyes of higher institutions, the subjects are tangible and rich in value, and the pupils are confronted with life problems and reality. This means that they receive a thorough elementary education from well trained advisors and are better able to enter the next step in learning.

The methods of early transportation were, of course, slow and crude, but time crept onward, bringing with it advancement in this field. The transportation problem seemed at first insignificant; but ever new problems came to the surface and aroused a great deal of public discussion. Laws had to be passed pertaining to the methods of transportation. The latter were very unsatisfactory and even new debative subjects. In the early days only those pupils whose families were financially able to contribute their share towards the cost of transportation, traveled in wagons; while the less fortunate ones traveled by the means given to them by their Creator.

In the year 1869 a New England State passed a law stating that 25 per cent of the school budget might be used to defray transportation expenses; other states soon followed this precedent provided that adequate appropriations could be raised for such an end. In a few years improved modes of traveling were perfected, and substantial records prove that consolidation was a step towards modern civilization. This policy became in effect in other states, although each locality found that the transportation problem was one not to be weighed lightly. Soon various laws governing methods of transportation and covering transportation expenses were one file.

As time passed on, science made possible various types of conveyances convenient for the transportation of pupils. The horse and wagon slowly moved into the background, and other vehicles took their place; and not until recent years have wagons been discarded. Even now, in some regions, during the rainy season and winter months the horse and wagon is necessary to overcome existing conditions. Science in the latter half of the 19th century made possible trolley cars and railroads as a means of transporting pupils. By the year 1920 an entirely different aspect was evident in education. True, there were, and still are, scattered rural schools, but methods of transportation had developed from the horse and wagon to mechanically driven vehicles. We were headed in the right direction and progress was our chief thought. States were now beginning to realize the value of transportation, and many contributed annually to their towns a sum which aided transportation expenses. In some cases where pupils lived higher than our eighth grade existed, the town contributed to the student, who was eager to attend higher institutions, the sum of money required to send that student to the nearest high school.

Many large towns, especially in the West, are able to purchase fleets of motor buses, because mass production has made the cost of these vehicles comparatively low. Whether there is one bus, or several buses, there is a fixed route for each. In few cases the bus is compelled to visit each house; while in the majority of cases, it travels a main route and stops at specified places for pupils who have the opportunity to travel at public expense. For each town designates the mileage that a student shall walk. At the present day, the cost of transporting each pupil is approximately 15 cents per day, although this amount may be reduced. As in some western towns, the teachers themselves act as drivers. The drivers must follow set regulations, and the vehicle is required by law to be inspected regularly and to be kept clean at all times. Although there are many instances in the "far away" place where pupils are forced to ride as much as one hour each day, they have the benefit of being protected from the weather and are properly supervised.

Three hundred years ago we were a nation floundering for democracy. Educational opportunity for all was impossible; but education for anyone was unusual. After our liberty War, a few people began to realize that education must be included in our new program. "Little red schoolhouses" started after our Civil War, and soon wagons, heated in the winter months by soapstones, transported pupils. Years slipped by, and educational means for everyone was at hand. Educated men gave us modern safety vehicles in which our pupils might be transported. Now in the present year, we are not surprised to see airplanes, streamlined trains, and even up-to-date ocean liners transporting pupils to various centers of education. In retrospect, the years now seem very short, but they represent toil and human sacrifice. Because we belong to this period of transportation civilization, we wish to do all in our power to carry out the policy of equal opportunity for each individual. This is only possible by education. In order to increase intellectual attainment, and to see as many as possible a liberal education, it is essential to provide means of transportation to those who otherwise would be unable to receive this wonderful opportunity. Although we realize that each dollar spent for this end lessens the amount to be spent for instruction, for transportation has no direct educational return, we must, in order to be a progressive community, view expenditure, not from the economic standpoint but from its educational value. We must produce pupils who will be loyal and understand our Constitution; and our motto should be "Equalization of educational opportunity."

"RECKLESS" AT THE UNIVERSITY THEATRE

Jean Harlow and William Powell, two of screendom's most popular stars, become a co-starring team for the first time in "Reckless," which opens Sunday for three days at the University Theatre. The union of the two starts takes place in a lavish musical production against a dazzling background of theatrical Broadway. It introduces many new song hits and dance ensembles. Miss Harlow is cast as the bewitching star who introduces the new songs and dances in the production, and Powell appears as the front page promoter of everything from flagpole sitters to trained fleas. Franchot Tone plays the reckless socialite son of a grumpy millionaire and falls in love with the dancer.

In "The Unwelcome Stranger," the companion picture, Jack Holt is starred as the owner of a stock farm where fine horses are bred and trained.

On Wednesday, Review Day, the program will include Helen Hayes and Clark Gable in "The White Sister" and Kay Francis and Ricardo Cortez in "The House on 56th Street."

Frederic March and Charles Laughton play fugitive and pursuer in the most celebrated of all fictional manhunts in Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," which starts Thursday. The role of Jean Valjean, celebrated convict hero who spends five years in the galleys of a French prison ship for the theft of a loaf of bread and finds his whole future life darkened by the petty crime, is the greatest undertaking of March's brilliant career. Laughton, as the fanatical detective, Javort, who has dedicated his life to the liberal interpretation of the law, offers a characterization which affords a psychological glimpse into the strange workings of the mind of a man-hunter. The story reveals vividly the social conditions in the France of Hugo's day, against which his stirring novel was a dramatic protest.

"Dinky," the campanion picture featuring Jackie Cooper and Mary Astor, is a story of military school life. It is filled with comedy, heartbreaks and intense drama.

GRANADA THEATRE, MALDEN

Mr. George Arliss in "Cardinal Richelieu," a film said to be on a par with this star's success, "The House of Rothschild," will be the special attraction opening a seven day run at the Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. The cast supporting Mr. Arliss in his new film reads like the Blue Book of Hollywood, the 25 principles including Maureen O'Sullivan, Edward Arnold, Cesar Romero, Francis Lister, Violet Heming Cooper, Kathryn Alexander, Lumsden Hare and Halliwell Hobbs. "Cardinal Richelieu" centers its drama around a great historical controversy, depicting the stormy times of King Louis XIII of France when Church and State were contending for power and the great political prelate, Richelieu, was the real power behind the throne.

"It's A Small World," with Spencer Tracy and Wendy Barrie as the stars, will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. This is a comedy drama which concerns a lawyer and a pretty girl who leave the wreckage of their cars after a collision on a Louisiana road.

READING THEATRE

An unexpected honor came to Will Rogers, on completing the Fox Film picture, "Life Begins at 40."

The Los Angeles Realty Board named him the most useful citizen of the community. The award is annually made to the citizen who, in the committee's opinion, has rendered the most valuable and unselfish service to the community.

"Life Begins at 40," will come next Sunday, Monday, Tuesday to the Reading Theatre. It is a mirthful comedy, suggested by the Walter B. Pitkin best seller, of a country editor who goes out to prove that the best years of life, and the funniest, are after 40.

It is said to hold wide appeal for young and old. A beautiful romance runs through it.

On the same bill for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday will be "Hold 'Em Yale" and the entire bill is one that is sure to please the adults as well as the youngsters. The performance every Sunday is continuous from 3.

The program for this week Friday and Saturday includes Paul Muni in "Black Fury" and Florence Rice in "Fugitive Lady."

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

"The Informer," one of the important pictures of the year with a cast including Victor McLaglen, Heather Angel, Preston Foster, Margot Grahame, Wallace Ford, Una O'Connor and J. M. Kerrigan, will open a seven day engagement at the Mystic Theatre in Malden on Saturday. Against the colorful backgrounds of Dublin, Ireland, the picture has the troubled years just after the World War for its period. With the desire to get money for his sweetheart, McLaglen in the role of Gypo Nolan, a human derelict with the body of a giant and the brain of a child, "Informs" on his pal, Wallace Ford, for a price. All of the story takes place in one action-packed night, giving the story a suspense seldom attained. There is comedy relief to lighten the stark drama of the story which mounts steadily to a terrific climax. The romance is carried by Heather Angel and Preston Foster and affords a strong contrast to the sordid affair between McLaglen and Miss Grahame.

"Dinky," with Jackie Cooper, Mary Astor, Roger Pryor, Henry Armetta and Henry O'Neill as the stars, will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. The story opens with Jackie a cadet at boarding school. His mother's boss runs away with the firm's money and Jackie's mother is sent to jail for two years. He thinks his mother is in Chicago and does not know she is in prison. Eventually, Jackie finds out and insists the lawyer's use his tuition money in an effort to free his mother. Jackie is placed in an orphanage near the boarding school. Jackie arranges a football game between the cadets and the kids from the orphanage. On the day of the big game Jackie's mother, pardoned by the Governor, arrives just in time to see her boy make the winning touchdown.

CANADA'S MOUNTIES 60 YEARS OLD

Canada's romantic and efficient police force—the Royal Canadian Mounted Police—is observing this year, its sixtieth anniversary. A band of men, small in number, but strong in courage, experience, and hard training, have maintained law and order over a vast territory, reaching from the great plains north into the Yukon, and across the Arctic to Hudson Bay and Baffin Island.

In 1870, when the government of Canada gained control over the unexplored lands of the great Northwest, it was confronted with the problem of protecting pioneers, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Warfare between powerful Indian tribes roaming the plains, discouraged the westward march of the white man. Whiskey runners whose concoctions crazed the Indians also disturbed peaceful progress of intrepid pioneers. Two tin cups full of firewater bought a buffalo robe, and three gallons a good horse.

Covered Vast Unexplored Territory

It was in answer to the need for curbing these unruly elements that the North West Mounted Police was organized in 1873 at Stone Fort, just south of Lake Winnipeg. An offical bulletin issued to the first recruits tersely stated that the government will make use of any person connected with the Force at any work that may be considered desirable. The government has kept this promise through the years.

After only a year's training 300 members of the Police marched over 2,000 miles of unknown territory, restoring law and order from the Red River to the Rocky Mountains. Treaties were made with the Indians, horse stealers and murderers brought to swift justice and Fort Whoop-Up, stronghold of whisky traders, raided. Winter caught the Mounties before they could make a return march, so a permanent camp was set up at MacLeod, oldest town in southern Alberta. Calgary, another fort which they founded that year, has grown to be one of the most important towns of western Canada.

New Stations Established

As the work of the Force increased it became evident that a central station was a necessity. An uninhabited strip of praise along Pile o' Bones Creek was selected and inappropriately named Regina. For over half a century Regina served as headquarters for the North West Mounted Police. It was also for years the capital of the North West Territories; and today, as the capital of Saskatchewan, is one of the most important industrial centers of middle western Canada, with a population of over 40,000.

The Klondike Gold Rush of '98 brought a new emergency. Dawson grew up over night, a stampede town with the usual number of saloons, dance halls, and gambling houses. It promised soon to rival Skagway then controlled by Soapy Smith and his gang, who robbed incoming tenderfeet and departing miners with equal success.

A Yukon post was promptly established by the North West Mounted Police, and Dawson speedily transformed into a respectable and law-abiding town. A detachment was stationed at Shilkoot Pass and White Pass, two main gateways through which prospectors thronged, and the lawless soon learned to leave their revolvers behind. Month after month millions in gold were convoyed and never a dollor lost.

Served in Boer War

The Force was knighted in 1904 in recognition of its services in the Boer War, becoming the Royal North West Mounted Police. In 1920, when its jurisdiction was widened to cover enforcement of federal authority throughout the Dominion, and all laws in the Yukon, North West Territory, and Dominion Parks, the title was changed to Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Today the Mounted Police Patrol Canada's last great frontier the chain of islands stretching from Greenland to Alaska. There are posts on such isolated islands as Ellesmere, North Devon, Baffin, and Victoria. The station on Boche peninsula is within 11 degrees of the North Pole. At Herschel Island Post was held the first court in the Artic, when an Eskimo was sentenced for the murder of a Constable.

Although they have been given little notice in the daily news, the long winter patrols performed by these officers deserve a high rating in the record of Artic exploration. In 1929, for instance, one Inspector with a Constable, one Eskimo, and two dog teams traveled 1,700 miles in 81 days, and considered it only an ordinary part of the year's work. From Devon Island to Ellesmere Island the Inspector covered the entire northern part of the Canadian Artic archipelago. His matter-of-fact diary tells briefly of glaciers descended with ropes, miles of rough sea ice, and soft snow where man must tramp a trail for dogs. Carins of the Franklin Expedition of '45 were found, and Stefansson's cache of 1917. Careful notes were made on animal and mineral resources, topography, and weather conditions.

Equally varied are the duties facing officers in more populated districts. They may be called upon to outwit a narcotic ring, or to escort the Prince of Wales; to track down a gang of smugglers, or to stand guard at the Canadian Legation in Washington.

There is one rule inflexibly obeyed by every Mountie. Whether he is protecting the rights of the migratory duck, the Blackfoot Indian, or the Eskimo trapper, he shoots only as a last resort—the real secret of the success of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

VOL. LIV NO. 47 — WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JUNE 21, 1935 — PRICE SEVEN CENTS

MRS. MARY W. CALLAHAN

Mrs. Mary W. Callahan, wife of John E. Callahan and for more than 50 years a resident of Winchester, died Sunday afternoon, June 16, at her home, 188 Washington street, after a two years' illness.

Mrs. Callahan was the daughter of William and Katherine (Whalen) Hargrove, and was born 72 years ago in Lexington. As a young woman of 19 she came to Winchester, and had since made her home here, marrying Mr. Callahan in January of 1886. They would have observed their golden wedding anniversary next year.

Her long residence brought her in contact with many residents of the town, and she was held in esteem by all who knew her. She was chiefly concerned with the affairs of her home and family and had no outside connections excepting those of her church.

Besides her husand, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Daniel Murray, with whom she made her home; three sons, Edward J. Callahan, custodian of the Town Hall; William P. Callahan, former Selectman, both of Winchester; Christopher L. Callahan of Medford; and four grandchildren.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning from the late residence with solemn requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church. Rev. Fr. Aloysius F. Malone, pastor of the church, was celebrant, Rev. Fr. Joseph McGoldrick, deacon; and Rev. Fr. Samuel Mathews of Washington, D. C., subdeacon. Seated in the sanctuary were Rev. Fr. James Lynch of Weymouth, former acting pastor of St. Mary's Church; Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons of Arlington, formerly assistant pastor of the local parish; and the Rev. Fr. Murray of Gloucester. Bearers were Charles Hargrove of Medford, Harold Hargrove of Salem, John Hargrove of Lexington, Frank Callahan of Arlington, Patrick O'Keefe of Dorchester and Joseph Callahan of Winchester. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery, where the committal prayers were read by Father McGoldrick, Father Fitzgibbons and Father Lynch.

ENTERTAINED INFANT SAVIOUR BOARD

Mrs. Michael Hintlian, president of the Winchester Chapter, Guild of the Infant Saviour entertained her board members Wednesday at her summer home in Rockport. It was the final meeting of the board for the year and after summarizing the past season's accomplishments plans for next year were outlined and discussed. A delicious lobster dinner was served by the hostess.

Among those present were Mrs. Virgil Ghirardini, Mrs. James Carr, Mrs. Joseph McGaragle, Mrs. Thomas Hennessy, Mrs. Earl Wood, Mrs. Franklin Evans, Mrs. James Gaffney, Mrs. Jonathan Felt, Mrs. James Day, Mrs. Daniel Kelly, Mrs. Edward Russell, Mrs. Edward McDevitt, Mrs. James Haley, Mrs. John O'Leary, Mrs. Thomas Feeney and Mrs. Thomas Caulfield, both of Woburn.

RECEIVED LIEUTENANT'S COMMISSION

J. Edward Downes, Jr., of this town was one of the members of the Harvard R. O. T. C., commissioned a second lieutenant in the Officers' Reserve Corps, the presentation of commissions being made Monday morning at Harvard Hall in the yard by Gen. Fox Conner, commanding the First Corps Area. The new officers were sworn in by Lieut. Charles D. Palmer of the Harvard R. O. T. C.

Lieutenant Downes, a Harvard senior this year, received his degree at the commencement exercises yesterday. He prepared for college at Newton Country Day School and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. CUBS WON

"Paysan" Marrone's Winchester Cubs made it 10 wins in 11 starts Wednesday evening, defeating St. Joseph's of Medford, 8 to 7, on the Junior High School playground. DiMinico twirled for the Cubs, hanging up his fifth straight victory. Manager Marrone is having trouble booking games with teams in his own class as the reputation of the Cubs is making most clubs of their age fight shy of taking on the local boys.

CUMMINGS—DINNEEN

The wedding of Miss Ethel Barbara Dinneen, daughter of Mr. Maurice Dinneen of Winchester, and Richard Morgan Cummings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Cummings of Jamaica Plain and Situate, was solemnized at a nuptial mass at 10 o'clock on Monday morning, June 17, at St. Mary's Church, Winchester. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John A. Cummings of Biddeford, Me., brother of the groom.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She was lovely in a gown of creamy satin and lace with long-sleeved redingote and a sweeping train of the satin and lace. Tiny sprigs of lilies-of-the-valley were sewn on her long tulle veil which fell from a cap of matching lace. Her bouquet was of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The wedding procession made a beautiful picture with all the bridal attendants attired in white. The maid-of-honor, Miss Frances Theresa Dinneen, sister of the bride, wore a white crepe gown with matching jacket, peplum style, and small white tricorn. She carried talisman roses. The four bridesmaids were in gowns of crisp white organza and flattering picture hats, and carried bouquets of deep red roses. In the group of bridesmaids were Miss Clare E. Dinneen, Miss Cornelia M. Dinneen and Miss Muriel E. Dinneen of Malden and Miss Mary J. Curley of Woburn, cousins of the bride.

Mr. Joseph Cummings of Waltham, brother of the groom, was best man and the ushers included Walter Kirley of Roslindale, Edmund Coughlin of Dorchester and Maurice Dinneen and Edward Haigney of Malden.

After the ceremony, a reception for the family and intimate friends was held at the Commander Hotel in Cambridge.

The bride is a graduate of Leslie School in Cambridge and has been teaching in the Winchester schools.

Mr. Cummings attended St. Joseph's College, New Jersey, and is Suffolk Law School of Boston, and is now employed in the Court House, Boston.

After a wedding trip to Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Cummings will be at home at 21 Trapelo street, Brighton.

EARTH TURNED FOR MODEL HOUSE ON STOWELL ROAD

Representatives of Jordan Marsh Company and of the Federal Housing Administration, with members of the Board of Selectmen and interested citizens gathered on Stowell road last Saturday morning for the turning of the sod on the lot where Jordan Marsh plans to erect one of its seven model houses to be built in Greater Boston.

Selectman W. Allan Wilde turned the sod with a silver spade, later presented to him by A. E. Phinney of Jordan Marsh Company, at the same time that preliminary steps were being taken toward the erection of the model houses in several other communities. Mr. Wilde, who is at the head of the Winchester F. H. A., paid tribute to Jordan Marsh for choosing Winchester as a place in which to erect one of its "better homes," and James A. McLaughlin of Woburn, Mass., executive assistant of the F. H. A., also spoke in praise of the Boston Department store's undertaking.

Previous to the activities at Stowell road the Winchester F. H. A.'s "Little House," on Manchester Field was dedicated and inspected by citizens and visiting officials. Headed by the Military Band of Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, an automobile parade formed and proceeded to Stowell road by way of Thompson street, Main street, Mt. Vernon street and Washington street. It had begun to rain when the parade swung through the center.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR GARDEN FETE AT DOWNE'S ESTATE

The most spectacular and successful affair ever sponsored by the Guild of the Infant Saviour was the June Festival held at "Airgremont," the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Downes on High street, on Saturday, June 15. Even the frequent showers could not dampen the spirits of this energetic group of women, when their pet charity was involved. A very substantial sum was realized which made it a success financially as well as socially. The graciousness with which Mr. and Mrs. Downes and their family received their guests insured all of a hearty welcome. The Guild wishes to thank them for their generosity which made the event possible.

Without a doubt, the pageant which was the Winchester Chapter's contribution to the day, was very outstanding. Much time and effort was put into it and special acknowledgement should be given to Mrs. M. Hintlian, president of Winchester Chapter; Mrs. Virgil Ghirardini, program chairman and Mrs. Joseph McGaragle, director, as well as to the 165 members who skillfully represented the various characters. It would be impossible to go into detail regarding the characters, but each was a near perfection as costumes and make-up experts could make them. Many hours were put in in assembling the costumes and they were worthy reproductions of each period. The Quakers and pickaninny costumes were the work of the Sisters of St. Mary's School. The children in these parts were also trained by the sisters.

From the many characters Mr. Thomas Caulfield, Jr. as President Roosevelt, Mrs. A. Whitney as Queen Mary and Mrs. D. Kelly as Chinese Empress were perhaps the most outstanding.

Miss Dorothea Ferguson and Miss Jean Winchester gave exceptionally clever dance interpretations, and special mention might be made of the singing of Mr. Fitzpatrick, and the minuet, danced by Miss Welch and Mr. Kelly.

The music meant so much and was in the capable hands of Mary Ranton Witham, Miss Florence Fisher, Mrs. Helena Stedzinska Sibley, Mrs. Vera Rohde and Mr. Guido Talone.

The pony rides, beano games, in charge of our own Mary A. Lyons, bridge games and refreshments served around the pergola were some of the other attractions.

A large and attractive marquee was erected for the tea dansant which closed the day.

Following is the pageant program:

For the past year besides serving as president of her class she was a member of the college glee club and the Athletic Coaches' Club, the members of which work with the Athletic Association in furthering and coaching the college sports program.

TANNERS LIST TWO

Lord Tanning Company will play two twilight games on Manchester Field next week, meeting Watertown Tuesday evening and a team yet to be selected on Thursday evening. Sunday the Red Devils will play Hall's All Stars at Hall's Field, Medford.

The Tanners lost a 5 to 3 decision to the Finast nine last evening, the visitors' big southpaw, "Bob" Duffy, proving much too good for the Woburn boys with the exception of the seventh when three runs were scored on a single hit, a wild pitch and some loose work afield. Howell turned in two sparkling catches in left field, and Duffy drove out a terrific triple to far right field his first time at bat.

LEONARD FIELD BEACH CLOSED

Sewer Conditions Here to be Investigated

The Leonard Field bathing beach was closed this week for an indefinite period, the State Board of Health notifying the local Park Board that owing to the overflow of the sewer from manholes, owing to the present high water caused by the excessive rain, the river water at the beach is contaminated.

Through the efforts of Chairman Senderson of the Winchester Water and Sewer Board an inspection was made this week by engineers of the State Board of Health and the Sewage Division of the Metropolitan District Commission. These engineers viewed the situation on Tuesday, and on Wednesday a committee from the Legislature, piloted by Representative William E. Ramsdell, also visited Winchester and looked over the sewage conditions. They express the opinion that the condition should be remedied immediately. State departments are now actively engaged in surveying the situation and planning relief.

The recent wet spell has caused the trunk sewer to overflow at various places, especially in the vicinity of Cross street. All of this sewage flows into the river. At the present time it is reported that the sewer is carrying 40 per cent more load than when constructed. The general consensus of opinion is that a new and larger sewer must be built. Until that time temporary measures for relief must be found.

Over ten years ago the basement of the Star Building, one of the largest and most modern structures in the center of the town, was ruined by the overflow of this sewer, causing thousands of dollars damage, and up to the present time there has been no relief from this constant damage and nuisance. Building owners in the center have absolutely no redress for this damage from sewage.

The first annual meeting of the Better Homes Garden Club was held at the Public Library Wednesday afternoon, June 19. The president, Mrs. Alonzo F. Woodside, presided and gave a resume of the year's activities which have been very interesting to the garden lover. At the close of the business meeting, Mrs. George L. Her pictures showed the progress of its construction and were an inspiration to the person who feels a garden is not possible unless they have all the most favorable conditions on which to build. Mrs. Hull extended to members of the club a most cordial invitation to visit her garden at any time.

ENTERTAINED AFTER GARDEN FETE

Mr. and Mrs. C. Philip O'Rourke entertained a group of friends after the garden fete at the Downes estate last Saturday at a buffet supper served on the lawn at their home on Symmes road.

The guests included Col. and Mrs. William Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reilly, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sheehan, Dr. and Mrs. Herman Craig, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Green, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lyons, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Higgins and Mr. and Mrs. William Norton. It is of interest that Mrs. Reilly is a former president of the Infant Saviour Guild (Boston Chapter), for the benefit of which the garden fete was held.

CAR RAMMED POLE

Monday morning shortly after 4:30 Police Headquarters was notified of an automobile accident on Pond street.

Patrolman James P. Donaghey went to investigate and found a Ford roadster smashed against a pole on the right side of the road in front of the residence of Mr. Burton Coldwell. The operator of the machine, John Murphy of 215 Summer street, Somerville, told Officer Donaghey that in turning out of the Parkway onto Pond street his lack of knowledge of the road caused him to make too wide a turn, his machine striking the pole. One of the passengers in the car, Robert Fleming of 8 Bratton avenue, Somerville, was treated at Headquarters for injuries to his arm. The car was towed to Conlon's Garage.

MRS. BOWE WILL CHAPERONE ROTARY GIRLS

Mrs. William H. Bowe of this town will be one of four ladies to chaperone a party of girls through Europe sailing from New York July 5 on the S.S. Caledonia and returning Aug. 28 on the S.S. Majestic. The group of girls will be those selected by the Boston Rotary Club under the invitation of the Chairman of the International Service Committee of Rotary International of Great Britain, who has extended the invitation to Boston Rotary to select a representative group of girls to live as guests in the homes of members of the London Rotary Club.

This is the first time they have extended such an invitation to this country, although groups of boys have been exchanged between the United States and Europe for several years.

CONCLAVE WINCHESTER COFFEE CLUB

The 262nd annual Spring Conclave of the Winchester Coffee Club was held last week-end at "Ye Kuffee Kan," the summer estate of Vice President Dr. Charles H. Tozier at Lake Winnepesaukee, Wolfeboro, N. H. The meeting was attended by 12 of the Vice-Presidents of the Club. Two new members were admitted to the society after submitting to the secret ritual of Kuffee baptism and other undisclosed mysteries.

Those present were Vice President Dr. Charles H. Tozier, nationally known traveler and lecturer, an eminent authority on medical, x-ray and color photography; Vice President Clinton E. Farnham, banker and educator; Vice President John W. Downs lawyer and legislative counsellor; Vice President Ralph T. Hale, author and publisher; Vice President Maurice C. Bird, banker and financier; Vice President Waldo L. Hart, leather merchant and prominent Democrat; Vice President Kenneth F. Caldwell, banker and Russian theatre patron; Vice President Alton B. Atwood, manufacturer and sportsman; Vice President Donald Heath, telephone magnate and influential Episcopal layman; Vice President Henry W. Hildreth, banker and labor agitator; Vice President Clarence P. Whorf, infant clothing manufacturer and roustabout; and R. Gilman Wallace, lawyer and radical advocate. Several other well known Vice Presidents were unfortunately unable to attend. Vice President Harold V. Farnsworth's absence was regretted and the legal close harmony duo of Vice Presidents William L. Parsons and Alfred H. Hildreth was greatly missed. "Ye Kuffee Kan," however, was filled to capacity and "standing room only" was available as the lights were dimmed and the "Serenade of the Servers" rose from pianissimo to forte and fortissimo.

Except when the various committees were in executive session the members joined in fish hunting expeditions to remote regions of the lake. It was affirmed by one of the Vice Presidents that there were millions of horn-pout in a certain spot but indications were that a tragic epidemic had reduced their numbers to an elusive minimum. As the season was closed on bass fishing every possible effort was taken to avoid a strike of this kind. After it had been convincingly demonstrated that all the trout in the lake had either been mounted in the local museum or had become hopelessly paralytic the more impressible fishermen gracefully condescended to content themselves with the lowly perch. It was rumored that several boats had recently been chased off the lake by large schools of perch so the more intrepid members met with reasonable success in keeping a supply of them on hand.

It should be duly recorded that Vice President Hale won the admiration and respect of his fellow Vice-Presidents by his matchless display of piscatorial prowess in furnishing the party with brook trout for breakfast. It was caught after a most exhaustive search and expenditure of illimitable energy on the part of the determined and fearless fisherman. Presumably in its innocense it had been mislead by the khaki shorts of the piscator and his crimson knees—Harvard style. It was with grave disappointment and chagrin that it was discovered that the victim of the infanticide had lost much of its identity by too close association with the bacon in the Doctor's frying pan.

Tribute should be paid to the host for his overwhelming and convincing display of culinary accomplishments. By unanimous acclaim he was accorded the honorary degree of D. C. A.—Doctor of the Culinary Arts.

It was announced at frequent intervals by Vice President Whorf that he was about to attend his 30th reunion at Harvard. He trained with moderation and restraint for the event but it was expected that he would lead the hand as usual.

Vice President Farnham being the only Yale representative present confirmed with reluctance the rumor that men will soon be admitted to the college. This was conceded to be a startling innovation but was to be regarded only as a noble experiment.

Mermaid's Bird, Heath and Hale were noticed to have the habit of dashing off for a romp in the lapping waters of the lake whenever it was necessary to build a fire in the kitchen stove or to open a can or to dispose of the family refuse.

Vice President Downs, the Poet Laureate of the Club, was constantly reminded of "Another One" and it is hoped that an autographed edition of his various selections will be published and made available for confidential distribution at an early date.

It is anticipated that the next annual conclave will be held at "Ye Kuffee Kan" about a year hence. Reservations are now being taken and a capacity attendance is assured. In the meantime the members will continue their daily meetings, spin their coins, drink their coffee and be assured of the loyalty and friendship of their brothers good and true.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL

An old-fashioned Strawberry Festival will be held tomorrow night, June 22, on the lawn of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church, from 8 until 10 o'clock. There the townspeople will gather under the Japanese lanterns to consume strawberries and ice cream, punch, cakes, cookies, and candy. The hurdy-gurdy man will doubtless be more than popular with the younger set, and the balloon man should come in for his share of attention. And what would a day in June be without a red rose in your lapel? In case of rain (unhappy thought) the Strawberry Festival will be held in the social hall of the church.

Mr. George H. L. Smith of this town was among the students in the Harvard Graduate School to share recently in the award of 59 fellowships and scholarships, totaling $30,270.

Miss Mabel Tompkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Tompkins of Glengarry who graduated this week from Wheaton College with honor, was voted by the seniors the most tactful member of the class and also the most popular and most apt to succeed. Miss Tompkins was president of the senior class, captain of the field hockey team and also a member of the tennis team, in addition to other student activities.

Mr. Robert Friery of Arlington, Winchester High School's track coach was one of the ushers at the marriage of his sister, Miss Dorothy Evelyn Friery, to Charles M. Buxton of Worcester at the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour in Arlington last Saturday.

HIGH SCHOOL COMMERCIAL GRADUATES SECURED POSITIONS

School Service Has Placed Many in Jobs

Winchester is a college town. There are few communities of its size in which there are located more college people, or from which more boys and girls go yearly to the higher educational institutions.

MARY DONOVAN
Placed with John Hancock

Perhaps for this reason one hears most often of the work our high school is doing in the field of college preparation and is likely to overlook the excellent Commercial Department which is yearly preparing boys and girls to take positions in the world of business. Preparing them to fill positions and, in many instances, securing jobs for them, which is worthy of especial note, since jobs nowadays are mighty hard to find.

Seven members of this year's graduating class have already been placed by Miss Helen Bronson, who is at the head of the school's Commercial Department, but this is by no means the whole story. Since last September nine members of last year's commercial group have been placed in jobs by the school's placement service, which constitutes a record of which any high school might well be proud.

Of this year's graduates, Frances O'Neil has been placed with Beggs & Cobb leather manufacturers, in Winchester; Virginia Carlson, Mary Donovan and June Eaton, with the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company, Boston; Lorraine Dewar, with the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company; Dorothy Goodhue, with the Retail Credit Company, Boston; and Ruth Rennert, with Wayne Davis Service in Boston.

Last year's group includes Betty Bellew, placed with the Boston Transcript; Betty Barnard, with Mrs. E. C. Mason, Winchester; Kenneth Smith, with National Shawmut Bank, Boston; Margaret Powers, with Retail Credit, Boston; Virginia Danforth, Consumer Surveys, Boston; Frances Guild, John Hancock, Boston; Peter Doherty, clerical assistant at C. C. C. Camp; Clara Horn, J. F. Winn & Co., Winchester; and Ruth Morrow, American Mutual Liability Insurance Company, Boston.

Like most progressive schools,

FRANCES O'NEIL
Placed with Beggs & Cobb

Winchester High has for years maintained a Commercial Department, and the school has always attempted to assist its graduates to secure positions. Its efforts were, however, never systematized until Miss Eleanor P. Gould assumed the direction of the department and established in 1921-22, the placement service which she and her then assistant Miss Bronson, brought to a high degree of perfection during 1928-29.

DOROTHY GOODHUE
Placed with Retail Credit Co.

During the boom days enjoyed at that time it was not exceptional for the school to place all its qualified graduates in positions, and even after business commenced to slump, the success of Winchester High graduates in their jobs made it possible to place an unusually large number of them.

RUTH RENNERT
Placed with Wayne Davis Service

Naturally this was not done without considerable effort on the part of Miss Gould, and, after she left the local school, Miss Bronson. Employment managers and individual employers had to be seen, during afternoons and in vacations, in addition to the actual preparation of the boys and girls to fill the positions in question.

VIRGINIA CARLSON
Placed with John Hancock

The interest of the school placement service in its pupils does not stop with their entrance into business. A close contact is kept with each boy or girl, and the scope of the Commercial Department is constantly being altered to meet the ever changing business demands.

For instance, Miss Bronson now finds that the old days of specialization in business offices is giving way, and that more and more office managers are demanding generally efficient clerks who can do any of the work necessary to be done.

Naturally these days of business curtailment make it increasingly difficult to place pupils, and Miss Bronson harks back longingly to the days of '29 when firms like Stone & Webster would often take as many as ten young graduates at a time.

JUNE EATON
Placed with John Hancock

Now it is impossible to secure places for all those who want and are qualified to hold positions, but Miss Bronson, with quiet perseverance is pegging away and getting results which should make the entire community proud of the work its Commercial Department is doing in school and of the ability its graduates are showing in the workaday life of the world.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

The Shuh Shuh Gah Trophy contest held on June 17 attracted 13 contestants, non-members, as well as members.

The competition was so close that first place was won by "Jimmy" Gustin by a pluarity of only two points, while Norman Clark won second and Cabot, third.

Herman Dudley Murphy awarded the prizes which were a traveling bag, an electric clock and a swimming suit.

This annual contest has done much to educate the young people of Winchester in the proper handling of canoes and to promote caution and safety.

On Sunday last the "Four Marx" Brothers, Junior Gustin, Leghorn, Grosvenor and Thwing, nattily attired in peth helmets paddled the four boat down to Boston Harbor. Wonder if the salt water made them sea sick?

On June 22, there will be a club dance, free to members, with music by Roy Nelson and his orchestra. This is the last dance of the season and all are urged to attend.

SWIMMING!

Monday, June 24, the season for Red Cross swimming and life saving instruction opens at Wedge Pond at Palmer street beach.

All residents of Winchester and their children are invited to join these classes, free of charge.

George Carnie, who has been our instructor and examiner for the past four summers will again conduct the courses.

Although tests taken of the water at Leonard Field beach are very favorable, it is deemed wise by the Park Department to postpone the opening of this beach for a week or so, until certain conditions which have aroused much criticism have been remedied.

Ten o'clock is the time to report Monday morning at Palmer street beach.

WINCHESTER DROPPED FIRST INTER-PARK GAME

The Winchester Town Team and the Woburn Cubs officially opened the newly organized Middlesex Inter-Park Baseball League Monday afternoon on Library Park, Woburn, the tanning city entrant blanking the locals, 3 to 0.

The veteran, "Lefty" Flaherty, was on the mound for the Cubs and proved way too good for the "Townies," holding them to four hits, while fanning eight.

"Groucho" DiMambro, former high school right hander, also pitched fine ball for Winchester, allowing but eight hits, which except for the first and eighth innings, were well scattered.

Woburn scored in the opener when Garrity singled and rode home on "Eddie" Desmond's long triple to center. Desmond then scored on a wild pitch.

In the eighth Doherty drove a triple to center with Flaherty on, but DiMambro tightened up and prevented further trouble.

Winchester had two on and none away in the sixth, but Flaherty forced three hard hitters, Harry Chefalo, "Hokie" Procopio and "Indian" DiApella to pop up and nothing came of it.

GRADE CROSSING ABOLITION PROGRESS

The following letters referring to the abolition of Winchester's grade crossing are furnished for the information of Star readers by Mr. Edward L. Burwell:

Boston & Maine Railroad
Boston, Mass.
June 12, 1935

Mr. Edward L. Burwell,
LaFrance Industries,
94 Porgland Street,
Boston, Mass.

Dear Mr. Burwell:

Thank you for your letter of June 10 in regard to the Winchester grade crossing.

I can say to you without any hesitation whatever, that the people of Winchester can count on the hearty co-operation of the Boston & Maine Railroad in the matter of the elimination of this crossing, if and when Federal funds are allocated for the purpose, in an amount sufficient to cover the necessary costs.

Yours very truly,
E. S. French,
President

U. S. Department of Agriculture
Bureau of Public Roads
Washington, D. C.
June 14, 1935

Mr. Edward L. Burwell
18 Winslow road,
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Mr. Burwell:

Receipt is acknowledged of your letter of June 11, 1935, in regard to the use of federal funds for the elimination of grade crossings of the Boston & Maine Railroad in Winchester, Mass. We are also in receipt of your letter of the same date and attached newspaper clipping relative to the same subject, addressed to Mr. Fred P. Bartlett, Works Application Advisor, which letter has been referred to this Bureau for reply.

Under date of June 10, 1935, we replied to similar letters which you had addressed on this subject to the President and to Mr. Joseph B. Eastman, Federal Co-ordinator of Transportation. In our letter of June 10, we advised you that the sum of $4,210,833 of the funds authorized by the Work Relief Act for the elimination of hazards at railroad grade crossings had been apportioned to the Massachusetts Department of Public Works to be expended by that Department under the provisions of the Federal Highway Act and that programs of projects would be initiated by the Department of Public Works.

There is nothing which we can add to our letter of June 10, except to say that in view of the limited funds available to the State for this purpose and the further fact that this project is estimated to cost $1,900,000 it is doubtful that it would be advisable to concentrate such a large proportion of the State's total apportionment on one project, even if it were possible to do so under the provisions of the Act.

Very truly yours,
P. St. J. Nelson,
Chief Engineer

SELECTMEN'S NOTES

The Board held a hearing on the subject of locating two poles on Yale street, on the petition of the Edison Company. The hearing was continued to June 24 at 8:30 p. m. in the Selectmen's office.

The first two days of the second clinic for the inoculation of dogs against rabies saw only 30 dogs treated, with the third day still to be heard from. It it is unfortunate that so many people have not considered the matter seriously enough to take advantage of the opportunities afforded to guard against this dangerous disease, so often prevalent during hot weather. People whose dogs have not been inoculated are strongly urged to take preventive measures at once.

INTER-PARK LEAGUE NOTES

A meeting of the Middlesex Inter-Park Baseball League has been called for Monday evening, June 24, in the Stoneham Selectmen's room at 8 o'clock.

The league has been officially opened and the games thus far played have been interesting and close enough to be worth-while. Woburn, at present leads the league with one win and no losses, Winchester has a win and a loss and Melrose, one loss. Reading, Stoneham and Wakefield hadn't played when the Star went to press.

The locals broke into the win column Wednesday evening when they defeated the Melrose Town Team on Leonard Field, 3 to 2. Amico won his own game for Winchester by hitting a home run over the fence in the seventh frame.

TO PRESENT RECITAL

The pupils of Miss Hattie E. Snow will hold a recital in Fortnightly Hall, Thursday evening, June 27 at 8 p. m. The public is cordially invited.

ROTARY CLUB

Three members were absent from the meeting of June 20.

At this time we were privileged to entertain visitors from four different Rotary Clubs, a wider representation than is common with us except on stated occasions.

The special committee on Inspection of the Rotary Club Garden submitted a full and convincing report at this meeting. There is strong evidence that the club is receiving ample support from Dame Nature in its efforts to exhibit a beauty spot in the northern reaches of our fair town. No argument in rebuttal having been presented we shall, for the time being, be content with the progress reported.

The Rotary Club of Hingham will be active in the Tercentenary celebration of that town which will be held on the 27th, 28th and 29th of this month (June). Appropriate exercises will be held at the regular meeting of the Hingham Club on Friday, June 28, featuring an address by ex-Governor Joseph B. Ely of this Commonwealth. After luncheon cars will be available for transporting guests and visitors to places of historic interest in Hingham. Rotary Anns will be welcomed on this occasion. Rotarians who plan to attend the Hingham meeting should notify the secretary on or before June 25.

It is well known that our good friend and fellow citizen Ernest Dudley Chase was a passenger on the maiden voyage of the great French liner, "Normandie." It seems that his trusty camera also contributed to the success of the occasion. Mr. Chase most kindly consented to exhibit at our current meeting the beautiful and extremely interesting motion pictures which resulted from the collaboration between himself and his camera. This was the first time that Mr. Chase has shown these pictures and it is indeed gratifying to local Rotarians that they could be favored with this initial presentation of scenes at the departure, en route and arrival of this newest queen of the seas. There was also a reel of handsome colored photographs including views of Winchester's recent street fair and carnival. The present instance completely corroborates the statement that Mr. Chase never fails to entertain when he appears with his always noteworthy art productions.

Our next meeting, June 27 will be the last meeting of the present Rotary year. At that time the incoming officers for 1935-36 will be introduced and the annual reports of the Secretary and the Treasurer presented. This anticipates by one week the stated time for these events due to the fact that our first scheduled meeting of the new Rotary year would fall on a legal holiday and has therefore been omitted. A full attendance at the home meeting of the 27th is in order. Do not fail us.

Percentage of Attendance June 13—96.67 per cent.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Whittaker of Highland avenue will spend the summer at Grey Ledges, Portsmouth, N. H.

Mrs. A. C. Smalley, who has been spending the winter in Boston, is at East Boothbay, Me. for the summer.

Mrs. Mary A. Lyons with her daughters, Miss Mary A. Lyons and Miss Emily L. Lyons of Everett avenue, have opened their summer home at North Scituate.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Murray and daughter, Elsie, are at Clifton for the summer months.

Miss Mary Hanley, R.N., a graduate of the Winchester Hospital Training School, who has just finished a four months' special course at Johns Hopkins Hospital, N. Y., is in town visiting friends before assuming her new duties as head nurse at this latter hospital.

Dr. George A. Barron of Winthrop street spent the past week-end in Southbridge, visiting his nephew, Mr. Willard E. Munday and family. On the holiday he was one of the members of the Massachusetts Optical Society who were guests of the American Optical Company at the Cohasset Golf Club, those who so desired being privileged to inspect the entire optical company plant.

Miss Mary Cutter, ranking woman tennis player of Winchester and former girls' intercollegiate title holder, is seeded No. 1 in this year's college net tourney and has won her preliminary matches, being placed in the semi-final bracket. "Susie" did not play in the tournament last year, but was the winner in 1933. She is representing Jackson and is favored to regain her crown.

Hemingway street was a busy place last Sunday, many residents of Winchester as well as visitors from out-of-town going to witness the fine display of flowers at the residence of Mr. Thomas F. Higgins on that street. Members of the Better Homes and Gardens Club were interested visitors and all were delighted with the display. Especially beautiful were the peonies, the growing of which is a specialty with Mr. Higgins, and many envious glances were attracted by his stunning blooms.

READING THEATRE

Jean Harlow has found herself on the threshold of a new career.

Her career thus far has been decidedly metamorphic, carrying her through a series of definite cycles that continue to change the course of her professional life.

First, she was a comedienne in short comedies. From comedies she progressed to exotic, dramatic roles, thence through a cycle of satire, evident in her dynamic performance in "Blonde Bombshell."

New Transformation

And now the platinum star reaches the newest character transformation in the course of her career as a singing and dancing star in her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Reckless," in which she is co-starred with William Powell and which opens Sunday at the Reading Theatre.

On the same bill for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday will be "Straight from the Heart" with "Baby Jane" the wonderful child star and a cast of stars. The double feature program for today and tomorrow includes Glenda Farrell and Joan Blondell in, "The Traveling Saleslady" and Norman Foster and Sheila Manners in, "Behind the Evidence." The performance Sunday is continuous starting at 3 o'clock.

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 23. The Golden Text is: "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created" (Revelation 4:11).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. . . . All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made" (John 1:1, 3).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The great I AM made all that was made." Hence man and the spiritual universe coexist with God. . . . God creates and governs the universe, including man. The universe is filled with spiritual ideas, which He creates, and they are obedient to the Mind that makes them" (pp. 265, 296).

SAFETY DEVICES WILL PROTECT STRATOSPHERE FLYERS AND WORLD'S LARGEST BALLOON

Two big stratosphere flight risks—rarified air above and a crash on the earth below—will be guarded against by all manner of safety devices on the flight of the National Geographic Army balloon Explorer II.

When the big bag takes off from the Black Hills near Rapid City, South Dakota, on the first day of favorable weather this month, she will carry everything from parachutes to shock absorbers to make her return to earth a gentle one. Artificial air manufactured within the air-tight gondola will enable the crew to breathe.

Huge Parachute for Gondola

Capt. Albert W. Stevens, commander and scientific observer, and Capt. Orvil A. Anderson, pilot, both will carry individual parachutes. The nine-foot gondola, with its precious load of scientific instruments, also will have its own para hute—a huge 80-foot one, designed to ease the gondola's fall should it break away from the balloon. This parachute can be released either from inside or outside the gondola.

Even so large a parachute probably would not ease the gondola to the ground any too gently, however, so the big metal ball also will be equipped with two dough-nut shaped shock absorbers of rubberized fabric attached underneath, one above the other.

These will be inflated at a pressure of four pounds to the square inch, and the lower one will be fitted with half a dozen "blowout tubes" extending outward. If the gondola strikes the ground with much force, the air in the lower shock absorber will blow out slowly through these tubes and the upper shock absorber will be protected from disruption.

Helium for Inflation

If the balloon starts falling too fast on the trip back to earth, its weight can be lightened and its speed checked by dumping almost the entire load of ballast in a few seconds. Most of the ballast consists of tiny lead shot in bags hung outside the gondola, with a dynamite cap in each bag. If necessary all these caps can be exploded at almost the same instant by an electric firing device inside the gondola, blowing the bottoms of the bags open and releasing the ballast immediately.

Most of the electric batteries that operate the scientific instruments also are hung outside the gondola to serve as additional ballast. They can be quickly released by pulling a few metal pins inside the sphere, and each will float harmlessly to earth with its own small parachute.

Helium gas, used this year to inflate the balloon, is another safety factor, for unlike hydrogen, used in the Explorer I, last year, it cannot burn or explode.

For emergency purposes in the rarified upper air the flyers are taking a special flask containing a mixture of 75 per cent oxygen and 25 per cent nitrogen. If the gondola should begin to leak badly, thus losing its air supply, the rich oxygen mixture can be released, keeping the crew alive until they can descend to a level where the outside air is breathable.

Greatly improved valves, invented by Captain Stevens, and operated by pressure for releasing gas from the top of the balloon when necessary, also will be a safety factor in that they will make it easier to handle the balloon.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

Ministering Our Gifts

We think very little indeed of a man, however brilliant he may be, who lives to serve himself alone. But we do have the greatest admiration for those who live to serve their generation. When Victor Hugo passed away in France, the Continent was stripped of flowers to lay on his tomb. Was that magnificent demonstration in honor of a brilliant poet? No. The world never buries a mere poet like that. It was the spontaneous national recognition of the sentiments of humanity. Not long ago we buried Calvin Coolidge. Was the outburst of eloquent panegyric provoked by the knowledge that a brilliant man had passed from the American scene? No. We did honor to a man whose life was consecrated to the cause of truth and justice, who lived to serve his fellowmen well. In all ages, in all countries, we reverence sympathy, sacrifice, service.

Does some one say, "Yes, if I were a Victor Hugo or a Calvin Coolidge, I would rejoice to serve my generation; but my talent is small. I am only one of the many million." But let us ever bear in mind that the ability of the field is one of a million, but it makes the summer air a good deal sweeter for all that; the star of the sky is one of a million, but it is not less a thing of glory for that; the dewdrop of the morning is one of a million, yet it leaves a spot of fresh beauty as it exhales into the light. The Oriental have a very wise saying: "A little stone in its place weighs a hundredweight." The most inconsiderable people are valuable in their place.

Let us know our place, keep it, and although we may seem only a cherry-stone to ourselves and to society, we shall be known by the Almighty as a foundation stone, a corner stone, a top stone, elect, precious. Take the keystone out of the arch, and it tumbles to pieces. Who is the keystone? Each of us is the keystone, and we cannot fail in faithfulness without severe loss to Winchester, State and America.

"Calling of the Sea"

The "calling of the sea" is an old English term for a ground-swell. When this occurs on a still night the sound is sometimes heard for miles inland. Inhabitants of seaside towns looked on it as a summons by death. Tennyson refers to this phenomenon again in "Crossing the Bar," and One Clear Call for Me.

How Much Is a Billion?

If a man had begun saving $100 a day 6,000 years ago and had never missed a day, he would not yet have amassed a billion dollars. It would take a man 55 years to count a billion if he could count at the impossible pace of 300 a minute, working 10 hours a day and seven days a week. —Capper's Weekly.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Meats are lower this week with the exception of smoked pork. Lamb offers most for your money but beef, veal and fresh pork are all lower, particularly forequarter cuts. Eggs and butter remain unchanged at their recent price levels. Seafood and fish continue to be a boon to the thrifty shopper.

There are several new crop arrivals, among the fruits sweet Bing cherries, sour red cherries, honeydew and honeyball melons, apricots and plums; in the vegetable field broccoli, cauliflower, kale, kohl-rabi and rutabaga turnips. Freestone peaches are promised for next week. Watermelons are said to be better than in years.

Here are three menus made up from seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner
Corned Beef — New Potatoes
Boiled Cabbage
Bread and Butter — Watermelon
Tea or Coffee — Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Roast Lamb — New Potatoes in Cream

HEART TO HEART TALKS

The Prevalence of Cussedness

No softening explanations, no confusing theories of God and man and nature, can avail to dislodge the fact of cussedness from society. Cussedness is today a dark and dismal reality—a stain on character, a hindrance to spiritual growth, a source and an evidence of guilt, and a mischievously pregnant force, working its bad will more or less in all humanity. Every mother's son of us feel and know the fact of cussedness through our own experiences. Many men wrestle fiercely with some temptation—pride, avarice, ambition, a degrading appetite, an envious disposition, an indignation which is in grave danger of passing over into hate, an impulse to take sharp revenge for some real or fancied wrong—and have been thrown.

Many theologians tell us that our delinquencies and over-reachings and wayward strayings, for which we reproach ourselves, are merely mistakes of the flesh—mistakes which the broad mantle of the Divine charity will cover and rectify, so that without apprehension we may go down into the valley of the shadow; but it is not enough—it fails to match the solemn witness of our own consciousness to say that in feeling as we have, and doing as we have, we have only blundered. Not that sin is not this. Cussedness which is only another name for sin is always very poor economy—the poorest sort of economy. Looked at from any standpoint, evildoing is a bad venture. In the long run, engaging in sin or cussedness will prove to be the worst policy which any individual can adopt. But if there be anything trustworthy in the innermost judgment of the human soul; if what is reported, when we lay our ear close in against the beatings of our own hearts, be not a lie but the truth, then any sort of cussedness we engage in is surely cussedness or sin. If the eye be turned outward, instead of inward, there will be added evidence—in quantity and quality alike appalling—to the face of wrong doing. Heart will answer to heart in testimony.

When a man is brought up before judge and jury to answer for some misdeed, what is the question put to him? Is it not to know whether he thinks he has made a mistake or not? whether he thinks he has been foolish or not? No! The question is: What say you, guilty, or not guilty? In these evil doings the State sees something beside mental aberration. It sees a quality of moral perversity, of wickedness, of cussedness; and it does not hesitate to bring home to the sinless the charge of guilty, and to assist the guilty, when guilt is proved, with punishment.

Let us ever keep in mind that we are here on earth to do "good to the bodies and souls of men." Engaging in any form of sin or cussedness makes us just so much more incompetent to fulfill our obligations to God. How earnestly should we, who have in our hands the Sermon on the Mount and other revelations of Christ's will, strive to weave these teachings into our daily words and deeds. The path of duty is the path of safety. It is the path that in the long run virtue makes toward worldly prosperity and wrong-doing toward downfall in this vale of tears.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

One fellow of our acquaintance sits and shirks and at the same time can't help hoping.

Certain Winchester chap hopes I will coin
An epigram about him,
Or write a clever, caustic verse
When I desire to flout him.
To his small egotistic mind
It seems the Star should immortalize him
I want him not. I go and find
A cheaper pen to advertise him.

It is said that the moon influences the tides and also those about to get wed.

The average newspaper editor says that the old expression that "boats are born instead of male" sounds very reasonable indeed.

This is a wonderful age. In fact, there is no age about it as far as the women are concerned.

Old Doc Sol is rather high, but he is one of Winchester's very best physicians. So let him beam upon you at every opportunity.

One Winchester fellow says his wife is perfectly satisfied with an allowance of two dollars a week. Maybe she tells him she is.

How many Winchesterites remember the good old days when lawn croquet used to be the popular sport, and when almost every lawn in Winchester had a croquet set?

One cynical Winchester chap says he can tell when it is time to get up for breakfast by his wife scraping the burnt part off the toast.

Which remark leads us to say that if he would get up just a few minutes before that, he might reach the kitchen in time to prevent the toast from being burned.

Onions are good for a cold, says a psysician. They ought to be a good preventive in keeping other people with colds at a distance.

Fashion decrees; women go on spending sprees.

Every level headed Winchesterite will agree that it is better to talk about the weather than the neighbors.

Let us praise the living. The dead have received all that is coming to them.

Give the average fellow here in fair Winchester health and wealth and he will spend both in search of happiness.

What we badly need today is more improvement in our fellows from the neck up.

GRANADA THEATRE, MALDEN

Mae West's latest picture will be the feature attraction at the Granada Theatre, Malden, starting Saturday, June 22. In "Goin' To Town," Mae West undergoes the strange and eventful transition from a bronco-busting cowgirl to the sweetheart of society in Southhampton, without losing her poise or her wise-cracking ability. Mae West's adventures in "Goin' To Town" start way back in the cattle country when she inherits the money of a cattle baron, and decides to go after a handsome young Englishman on whom she had an eye for some time. The pursuit leads her to Buenos Aires, where there are some exciting and humerous horse-racing sequences, then back to Southampton, the stronghold of society. Here, after marrying a "blue blood," she forces society to recognize her, but only after her rivals make things hot for her and the Englishman. Paul Cavanaugh, returns to her to give his aid. "Goin' To Town" is one of the best, if not the best, pictures that Mae West has produced and the dialogue and action are fast and furious, snappy and sparkling.

For more than a year movie fans have demanded that Edward Everett Horton be given the leading role in a comedy instead of popping in and out of scenes to breath life into pictures featuring less interesting personalities. "Ten Dollar Raise," the second attraction at the Granada Theatre, starting Saturday, is the answer. Horton is co-featured with Karen Morley in the romance of a Romeo whose pay was enought to live on but not enough to love on. Everytime he goes in like a lion, to the boss' office, he goes out like a light, and the marriage is postponed. The picture is a fast-moving, light comedy that is just suited to Horton's type of characterizations.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

"Baby Face Harrington," which starts Sunday for three days at the University Theatre, introduces a brand new comedy team. This is the first time Una Merkel and Charles Butterworth have played leading roles together. The story, an account of a meek little clerk who is mistaken for a notorious public enemy, is crammed with the kind of situations Butterworth has built his reputation on mastrving.

Drama in a theatre that takes place in front of the footlights, instead of behind, is the story told in "Four Hours to Kill," the companion picture starring Richard Barthelmess. Barthelmess plays an escaped convict, hiding in the theatre and waiting for his chance to get the man who squealed on him.

On Wednesday, Review Day, the program will include Leslie Howard and Heather Angel in "Berkeley Square" and Shirley Temple, Carole Lombard and Gary Cooper in "Now and Forever."

Produced by the same studio and staff that made film history with "The Lost Patrol," and presenting Victor McLaglen the same star, Lion O'Flaherty's widely read novel, "The Informer," comes to the screen on Thursday. Pronounced one of the greatest character studies and most absorbing stories known to literature, "The Informer" affords McLaglen what he considers the finest role of his entire career. While the drama centers closely about one character, roles of extraordinary power and human qualities are carried by Margot Grahame, Preston Foster, Heather Angel, Wallace Ford and Una O'Connor Having Dublin, Ireland, as its locale, and the troubled years following the World War as its period, the story centers around the dramatic theme of betrayal. Gypo Nolan, a giant in stature and a pigmy in intellect, "informs" on a pal for a price.

Edward Everett Horton and Karen Morley have the co-featured leads in "$10.00 Raise," the companion picture. Fate and happiness hung on the delicate scale of a raise in this comedy adapted from Peter B. Kyne's story.

OBSERVED GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Pope, residents of Winchester for nearly a quarter of a century, quietly observed their golden wedding anniversary Monday at their home on Winslow road. Because of the fact that Mrs. Pope was not in good health, no formal observance was attempted, but many neighbors and friends called during the day and evening to offer congratulations and best wishes. Mr. and Mrs. Pope, the former Alvira Hamlin of Malden, were married June 24, 1885, by the Rev. Mr. Lee of the Charlestown Universalist Church. The Star offers its heartiest congratulations upon their 50th anniversary.

Over 30 couples enjoyed the dance at the club last Saturday evening. This was the wind-up party of the spring season.

Fourth of July looks up large for the Boat Club paddlers. There is a full program of regular races at the American Canoe Association meet at Worcester. This starts at 10 a. m. and continues all day. The course will be over the Olympic straightaway with the finish at the Shrewsbury Bridge. Several new candidates are out for the crews this year and are pressing the old timers for positions.

The town's 4th of July celebration which will be held this year at Wedge Pond beach is to include some canoe events and it is expected that the Boat Club will take part in the program.

With some 10 sailing craft now connected with W. B. C., races before the wind are quite in order. Tomorrow, June 29, the first sailing race will be held. This is a free-for-all. May the best outfit win—in order to determine who is who and why. Step up, Sailors!

MISS GRACE BERTHA GUTIERREZ

Miss Grace Bertha Gutierrez, for many years a resident of Winchester and sister of the late John Gutierrez, died Wednesday afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mary E. Shattuck, 126 Mt. Vernon street, following a ten weeks' illness.

Miss Gutierrez was 63 years old and a native of Bangor, Me., the daughter of Raymond and Annie (Moore) Gutierrez. She came to Winchester as a child, attended the local schools, and spent the remainder of her life in this town, her high character and the cheerfulness with which she accepted the affliction of almost total deafness won her the admiration and esteem of all with whom she came in contact.

She was a great lover of Nature, and spent much of her life out-of-doors, finding inspiration and strength in the enjoyment of trees and flowers.

Aside from her home, which she made with her sister and only survivor, Mrs. Shattuck, her chief interest was in the First Congregational Church, of which she was a member.

"RIDE HIM, COWBOY"

He drove into the center last evening, at the wheel of an ancient Chevrolet, accompanied by two girl friends and the clash and clatter that go with machines of the vintage he was driving.

The red light was against him, but little things like red lights never phase leaders of great enterprises and it wasn't until he heard the strident blast of Traffic Officer John Hanlon's whistle that the charioteer realized he was "in the wrong."

He had entered the square from Church street and had passed the traffic beacon, when he got the signal to "back up." This he did—and how!

First the ancient car banged lustily into the beacon, then chattered almost into the Common street excavation and then came within the proverbial inch of a car waiting at the Church street stop line, the entire performance being punctuated with frantic shouts from timid bystanders and whoops of encouragement from the more hardy in the square.

Fearing the worst, in case the car came to grips with the traffic box, Officer Hanlon left his airy pompano and motioned the charioteer to "back it in over there" by the gate-tender's shanty, the occupants of which immediately withdrew in the general direction of Lyceum Building.

Officer Hanlon warily followed the leaping car across the square and motioned the chauffeur to get out, meanwhile reaching for his notebook.

The man at the wheel alighted, announcing that he was "not" drunk. No one had said that he was. Crazy seemed to be the word on the majority of lips around the square.

At all events, the car, minus its guiding hand, kept right on going, having been left in speed.

To the accompaniment of screams from the ladies it lurched ahead, making two broad jumps better than Jesse Owens at his best.

Finally the motor, doubtless feeling it had done all any reasonable manufacturer could expect of it, stalled. Officer Hanlon heaved a sigh of relief and went into conference with the driver. The lady passengers alighted with more speed than dignity and ran lightly up Main street. The crowd laughed!

CHARLES BENSON

Charles Benson, a retired leather worker, died Wednesday morning, June 26, at the home of his brother, John Benson, 312 Washington street, after several months' illness.

Mr. Benson was born May 12, 1867, in Sweden, the son of Bengt and Anna L. (Johnson) Christianson. The difference in names is explained by the Swedish custom in which young men add the suffix "son" to their father's Christian name, taking the name thus formed for their own. Upon coming to this country as a young man with his brother, Mr. Benson shortened his name from the Swedish Bengtson to Benson and had been known by the latter name during his 37 years in Winchester.

The deceased settled in Pennsylvania upon arriving in this country and there entered the leather business, coming to Winchester with his brother in 1898 and three years later, entering the employ of Beggs & Cobb, local leather firm, with which he remained until his retirement in June of 1932.

Mr. Benson was unmarried. Besides his brother, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. August Person of Meriden, Conn.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon, June 29, at the late residence, with Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, officiating. Interment will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

LEAVES TUESDAY FOR SWEDEN

Miss Gunhilde Nelson of Vine street, widely known, particularly to the town's young people, as secretary to the principal at the Winchester High School, leaves Tuesday for New York where she will sail at 11 o'clock Wednesday on the S.S. Gripsholm of the Swedish-American Line for Gothenberg, Sweden.

Miss Nelson is to meet her mother, Mrs. Elin J. Nelson, who preceded her abroad, and will spend the summer in Europe, returning in the fall.

Last Saturday evening a large group of friends gave Miss Nelson a "bon voyage" party at her home, presenting her with a purse of money; and on Tuesday evening the Vega Club, of which she is a member, gave a party in her honor in Medford, also presenting her with a going-away gift.

BADLY BITTEN BY DOG

Gerard Coughlin of 106 Alpine street, Arlington, while delivering laundry Wednesday at a house on Woodside road, was attacked and badly bitten by a good sized dog. He succeeded in getting to Police Headquarters but was suffering intense pain as he reported to Desk Officer John Hogan.

Officer Hogan put in an emergency call for a physician and Mr. Coughlin was taken in the Police Ambulance to the office of Dr. Harold Brown who was obliged to take several stitches to close his wounds. After treatment, Sergeant Harrold took him to his home where, it is reported, he will be confined for about three weeks.

The matter was reported to Dog Officer M. J. Foley and also to the Board of Health, the dog being examined by the town's veterinarian, Dr. William Buckley. The police learned that the dog, part Doberman pincer and part police was being kept at the house where the attack occurred and is owned by Marjorie Butts of 25 Edgerly road, Boston. The animal was taken to Boston Wednesday night and will be quarantined there, the matter having also been reported to the State Board of Health.

CELEBRATED FIRST MASS

Father Drohan Recently Ordained

The Rev. Athanasius T. Drohan, C.P., celebrated his first solemn high mass at St. Mary's Church last Sunday, June 23. The solemn services were attended by many parishioners who knew Father Athanasius as a boy and by many friends and relatives from New England and New York.

Assisting him in the celebration of the mass were: the Rev. Samuel Matthews, S.S.J., who was deacon; the Rev. Alexis Scott, C.P., sub-deacon; the Rev. Joseph E. McGoldrick, of St. Mary's Church, master of ceremonies. The Rev. Hilary McGowan, C.P., was arch-priest.

An eloquent sermon was preached by the Rev. Columba McCloskey, C.P. In the sanctuary were the Rev. A. F. Malone, pastor of St. Mary's Church, and the Rev. Victor McCaffrey, C.P.

Among those attending the services were relatives of Father Athanasius, including Sister Athanasia of the Order of St. Joseph, a member of the faculty at Regis College, Weston.

Father Malone paid a high tribute to the young priest. In his stirring sermon, Father Columba said in part:

"A word of commendation is due the self-sacrificing priests and sisters who have labored in this parish, and who are in no small way responsible for the noble ideals that encouraged this young man in his holy ambition. Assuredly their example was to him a constant source of inspiration throughout the years of his preparation.

"I would join my voice to the common gladness of this happy occasion and add to the chorus of praise you are today receiving, dear Father Athanasius, my own most sincere good wishes. Blessed as you have been with devout Catholic parents, it is to them, under God, that you owe this great day. It was their prayers and example that led you to this altar. For them, too, it is a day of great rejoicing, the like of which may never again come into their lives, since like Joseph and Mary they have been favored to sacrifice a son for the world's salvation. To them and to your devoted sister, do I extend my heart felt congratulations. With reason does each of them share in your profound joy, for God has been pleased to number among His elect one of their very own."

On Sunday afternoon Father Athanasius was tendered a reception at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Drohan at 85 Nelson street.

Father Athanasius left Boston Tuesday night for Dunkirk, N. Y., where he will enjoy a brief rest before going to St. Michael's Monastery at Union City, N. J., where he will take up his duties.

SOME HOPE IN SIGHT

There seems to be some hope that the bad sewage conditions in the Mystic Valley will be remedied. Two years ago a new syphon was constructed at Wedgemere under the river. This relieved the long standing situation of the backing up of sewage in the cellars of the stores in the center of the town. The new Woburn sewer went into service last fall. This increased the load on the already overtaxed Metropolitan trunk sewers, causing sewage to flow out of the manholes and into the river in Forest street, Cross street, and in the new park at North Winchester, polluting the river so that the new bathing beach at Leonard Field can not be used.

The Winchester Board of Health and the Water & Sewer Board, with numerous citizens, have written the Metropolitan District Commission, calling the conditions to their attention without apparent results. The trouble is not with the local sewers so that the town board have no jurisdiction in the matter and can not do anything.

Mr. Sanderson of the Water & Sewer Board took pictures of the overflowing sewers and personally presented the matter to the State Department of Health requesting them to investigate and advise what should be done. The sewer engineers of the Metropolitan District Commission, and engineers of the State Department of Health met Mr. Sanderson last week and made a trip through the valley visiting all the industries, and the Reading Sewer Pumping Station. Their visit revealed the fact that the industries were planning to increase the amount of wastage which would empty into already overloaded sewers by some 5,000,000 gallons per day. It was apparent that a new and much larger sewer must be constructed at once. Our representative, Mr. William E. Ramsdell was asked to arrange for a visit by the committee on Metropolitan affairs of the legislature to see the conditions, which they did. After the inspection all agreed that something must be done.

The Metropolitan Commission and the State Department of Health are now working out a plan for a new sewer from tide water at Winthrop to Wilmington, and will present a bill in the Legislature authorizing the building of this sewer. Representative Ramsdell and Senator Daly are working hard to push the matter forward, believing that this necessary and worth while kind of work will help to bring back prosperity and relieve unemployment, as well as to clean up the very bad situation in the Mystic Valley.

Winchester has spent a large sum of money in beautifying the shores of the Aberjona River, by grading and building parks and it has been discouraging to have such bad sewer conditions, but there now seems to be some hope that the situation will be cleaned up.

During the afternoon the Lord Tanning baseball team, one of the leading entrants in the Suburban Twilight League, is to play a baseball game on Manchester Field with some strong opponent, to be announced. This game is not a part of the town's official Independence Day program, but is being arranged by the Tanners' management, who secured the field through the co-operation of the Legion.

In the evening the Post's popular Military Band, under the direction of Charles E. Young, will play a concert program from the bandstand on the playground from 8 until 10 o'clock. The band has recently won wide recognition and as a consequence has been engaged to play concerts at Nantasket Beach on Saturday and Sunday, July 20 and 21, appearing twice on each day. This engagement is generally considered the plum of the summer season hereabouts and Manager "Bill" LaRue is naturally much pleased at the consideration shown his organization.

B. S. SCOUT NEWS

Camp Ellis for Younger Boys to Open Again

The Executive Board of Fellsland Council, Boy Scouts of America, have voted to continue the Cub Camp again for the 1935 season on the camp site of the regular Scout Camp. Camp Ellis is located on the Pow Wow River in Amesbury, and is supervised by a special group of trained men who in turn are responsible to the regular staff of Camp Fellsland, the Council Boy Scout Camp. It was first voted to discontinue this camp, but due to the number of inquiries and telephone calls concerning the younger boy camp, it was voted to accede to the wishes of these parents, and as a result the camp committee has made provision to handle up to 24 boys who are between 9 and 12 years of age. Two special cabins have been assigned and are now being renovated for the use of the cub camp.

The leadership of the cub camp this year will be under the general supervision of Mr. Sumner R. Thompson of Stoneham, who is to be the assistant camp director this year. In addition to Mr. Thompson, there will be two other senior officers whose full responsibilities will be to program for these younger boys exclusively. The cub camp will be under very strict discipline methods, and swimming activities will be especially watched so that no possible injury or accident can befall these young men who will be Scouts in the next few years. The waterfront will be in charge of Red Cross Examiner George L. Nelson of Woburn, assisted by Albert Gaum of Winchester. Every boy coming to camp will be requested to have a physical examination before leaving home, and will be checked periodically at camp by Dr. Otis P. Mudge of Amesbury.

Parents wishing to register their son, or inquire about camp activities, are asked to get in touch with one of the following men on the camp committee: George W. Pancyce and Hubert Shedd of Medford; Whitelaw Wright of Winchester; William C. Gibbons of Stoneham; and Dr. John Wilcox of Woburn, or the necessary information can be received at the Council Scout office at Winchester, by calling Winchester 1400.

Parents and friends are asked to abide by the camp ruling of having visitors on Saturday and Sunday only, between the hours of 3 and 9 p. m. A special invitation is extended to friends and parents to visit the camp on Thursday, July 4, as a special athletic and water meet will be held, and some form of evening celebration will take place. In addition, a special banquet will be held on Thursday evening and anyone planning to attend this banquet must send some form of reservation to the Council Camp so that ample provision can be provided for outside visitors.

Troop 7 Outing

Seventeen Scouts and six members of the Troop Committee from Troop 7 were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Wadsworth Hight at their summer home, Lone Pine Point, Meredith Neck, N. H. The trip was made in cars furnished by the Troop Committee, leaving Winchester Friday afternoon and returning Sunday evening.

On arriving in camp Friday night we were all greeted royally by Mrs. Hight and served hot soup along with a lunch that each person brought from home.

It was then time to get the bunch ready for the night. Most of the Scouts were in a large tent and the overflow was taken care of on the piazza. The Troop Committee was quartered in the "lean-to" a short way from the Scouts' tent.

Saturday morning we were all up at 7 and after the morning dip and breakfast, we started off with individual lunches that Mrs. Hight had prepared and after a trip across the lake and a short ride in the autos we were at the base of Belknap Mountain. We climbed this mountain by one trail, had our lunch on the mountain top, and after enjoying the view of the surrounding country for an hour, came down another trail on the other side, and then back to camp and a swim.

The Saturday night supper is one that we all will remember. Gathered around the camp fire we roasted hot dogs, toasted marshmallows and ate watermelon to our heart's content. From then until lights out, games were enjoyed. One feature in particular should have special mention, the relay race between the Scouts and the Troop Committee. We will let you be the judge as to how it came out, but when it comes to running, Mr. Hight can step.

Sunday morning after breakfast, we enjoyed rowing around in the two row boats and paddling the three canoes. Mr. Hight made three trips of an hour each, taking us for a ride around the lake in his speed boat, Kernah II.

After lunch a short service was held in which we all took part. The singing of Mr. Harry Moulton was enjoyed greatly.

We then proceeded to pack for the return journey and after thanking Mr. and Mrs. Hight for such a glorious time, we reluctantly said goodby and started on our journey home.

The trip was a reward to those Scouts who had tried to improve themselves in Scouting the past year and included the following:

Richard Abrahamson	Warren Guy
Carylton Bolster	Ray Harris
Walter Buckley	Brooks Jakeman
David Burnham	Harry Kirby
Paul Butterworth	Clifford Latham
Mott Clark	Walter Lynch
Jack Finger	Richard Swanson
William Fraser

Dexter Oliver, Senior Patrol Leader
Robert Wessford, Assistant Scoutmaster

Troop Committee

Charles Burnham	Harry Moulton
Ernest Butterworth	Martin Swanson

FORMER WINCHESTER YOUNG WOMAN WED

Miss Marie Ahern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Ahern of Hurd road, Belmont, formerly of this town, and James Bernard Kelley of Fall River were married Saturday morning, June 22, at the Church of Our Lady of Mercy in Belmont. Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Ahern of Belmont acted as bridal attendants, and after the nuptial mass, which followed the marriage, a reception was held in the Hotel Copley Plaza, Boston.

The bride was graduated from Trinity College in 1924 and had been a teacher in the Woburn schools. Mr. Kelley, a graduate of Holy Cross College in 1926, also received his degree from the Harvard Law School. They are to make their home in Fall River.

MacDONALD—CONNOLLY

Miss Marion R. Connolly, daughter of Mrs. Martin Connolly and the late Mr. Connolly of Charles street, Woburn, was attended only by her sister, Miss Esther C. Connolly, at her marriage, to Archibald J. MacDonald of this town, which took place in St. Charles Church, Woburn, Saturday morning, June 22, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

The altar of the church presented a most attractive appearance with decorations of summer flowers in tall vases, palms and ferns.

Rev. Fr. Harold F. McDermott performed the marriage ceremony and was also celebrant of the nuptial mass which followed. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Esther Duffy Doherty, organist, and the soloists during the mass were Miss Evelyn Cornett, soprano, and Mrs. Helen Studley, contralto. Miss Cornett sang, "O Lord I Am Not Worthy," and Mrs. Studley, the "Ave Maria" by Rosewig. In duet, as a concluding number, they sang, "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother."

Miss Connolly was given in marriage by her brother, Alfred F. Connolly of Woburn. She wore a gown of ivory satin with Queen Anne collar, long tight sleeves and a long circular train. Her veil of tulle extended beyond the train of the gown and was arranged with a diadem of rare old lace. Her shower bouquet was of bride's roses and valley lilies.

The bridesmaid wore a ruffled gown of blush pink taffeta with a turquoise blue girdle and a large horsehair hat, trimmed with turquoise blue. Her flowers were briarcliffe roses.

Mr. MacDonald had for his best man his brother, Augustine W. MacDonald, and another brother, John M. MacDonald, was an usher with George Reil of Woburn.

After the mass a reception for members of the immediate families was held at the residence of the bride's mother where the wedding breakfast was served. Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald motored to Nantucket for their honeymoon and upon their return will make their home on Russell road in this town.

The bride attended St. Charles High School in Woburn and was for several years secretary of St. Charles Notre Dame Alumnae Association. Mr. MacDonald, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan J. MacDonald of Main street, attended the Winchester schools and is established as a carpenter and builder in this town.

LOCKED MACHINE IN WAY OF SHOVEL

George Bryne's big steam shovel made short work of digging the trenches for the new surface drainage pipes to be installed in connection with rebuilding Church street. The job of digging along Common street from the Station to Church street was somewhat delayed Monday until the Chevrolet service wrecker hauled away a locked machine bearing a California registration, which was right in the line of the digging.

After a conference held by Town Engineer Parker Holbrook with the B. & M. Railroad engineers, it was decided to do the work of laying the drainage pipes under the tracks at Winchester station on Saturday night and Sunday when traffic is lightest.

The trenches were shored up Tuesday before the laying of the pipes as several cave-ins occurred after the shovel dug out the dirt. There were no men in the trenches when the cave-ins occurred.

PIANO RECITAL

The pianoforte pupils of Miss Constance Sylvester gave a recital at her home, 366 Main street, on Saturday afternoon, June 15; a pleasing program being well rendered.

Among those who participated were:

Mary Rees	Paul Fitzpatrick
Gail Murdock	Warren Jackson
Duane Gorman	William Dyson
Margaret Angelo	Robert Glinks
Mary Marchesi	Mildred Greene
Joseph Ciarcia	Lila Phillips
Georgia Papopeulous	Ruth Grey
Helen Lord	Alan Renzio
Howard Hall	Mary Cooley

JOHN KING

John King, for many years a resident of Winchester, died early Saturday morning, June 22, at his home, 54 Richardson street, after a short illness which followed a shock with which he was stricken the preceding Thursday.

Mr. King was in his 80th year and was retired. He was widely known, especially in the North End section of the town and was a member of St. Mary's Holy Name Society. Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. Robert Sullivan of Winchester, Mrs. Thomas Donnelly of Arlington, Mrs. Melvina Herman of Providence, R. I., Mrs. William Foley of Woburn, Mrs. Louise Gagne of Brookline; two sons, David King and Joseph King, both of Winchester; and seven grandchildren.

The funeral was held Monday morning from the late residence with high mass of requiem celebrated in St. Mary's Church. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

"AS YOU LIKE IT" AT GREY ROCKS

An audience of well over 200 persons gathered at Grey Rocks on Mysopia Hill last Friday evening to witness a presentation of Shakespeare's "As You Like It" given by the Lincoln House Junior Players of Boston under the able direction of Miss Ruth Elder. The enthusiasm of the audience was displayed in many ways and gave ample proof of the fact that even amateurs, when well directed, can make the time-worn characters of Shakespeare live again.

The characters in order of their appearance follow:

Orlando, son of Sir Roland de Bois ..... John De Matteo
Adam, servant to Oliver ..... William Canfield
Oliver, elder brother of Orlando ..... Paul Orlando
Charles, a wrestler ..... John Kingman
Celia, daughter of Frederick ..... Raphaela Plasmati
Rosalind, daughter of the exiled Duke ..... Hazel Woods
Touchstone, a clown ..... Fred Frankel
Le Beau, a courtier ..... Joseph Byrne
Frederick, usurper of his brother's dominions ..... Cyril O'Connell
Amiens and Jaques, Lords attending the exiled Duke ..... Philip Cuppo or Felix Vecchione, Charles Avakelian
Duke, living in exile ..... Irving Barlow
Fred Lord, also attending the Duke ..... Dominic Scalcione
Second Lord, also attending the Duke ..... Nicholas Plasmati
Corin, an old shepherd ..... Paul Orlando
Silvius, a young shepherd ..... James Mossy
Audrey, a country girl ..... Marie Monte
Phoebe, a shepherdess ..... Agatha De Lellis
A Goddess of Fruitfulness ..... Frances Lentini

The front porch of the Chidley home furnished the setting of the first act, which was laid "before Oliver's house." For the other acts the audience faced in the opposite direction and looked upon a most beautiful scene among the trees and rocks which gave a realistic picture of the Arden Forest of the play.

The climax of the beautiful scenic effects was reached when in the course of the play a wedding procession made its way down the slopes through the trees with some 20 torch bearers casting a weird light over the scene.

The severest test of an amateur group is to present their offering before an audience which is unacquainted with the actors. It is relatively easy for one's friends in an amateur production to make a hit. This talented group of players from Lincoln House, however, so lived their parts that it was not necessary to know any of them to be pleased with their work. No higher praise of amateurs and their director could be given.

The three outstanding characterizations were portrayed by John DiMatteo as Orlando, Hazel Woods who played Rosalind, and Fred Frankel as Touchstone, the clown. These three performers left nothing to be desired in the presentation of their roles.

In addition to the capable direction of Miss Elder much of the success of the performance can be attributed to the excellent work of the costumer, Mrs. Rachel Smith of Winchester. Due credit should also be given to those in charge of the lighting effects which added much to the success of the undertaking.

The general management of arrangements was under the direction of Mrs. Samuel Elder. Tickets were in charge of Mrs. Samuel M. Graves, Margery Smith and Rosamond Robb sold candy and cigarettes. The following boys and girls acted as ushers: Marguerite Thwing, Florence Farnham, Christine Craven, Dorothy Kleeb, Kirby Thwing, Fred Bates, John Lobingier and William Smith.

Music was furnished by the Lincoln House orchestra. Punch was served on the west piazza between Acts 2 and 3.

The proceeds from the evening's entertainment will go toward helping to defray the expenses of the very fine work being done by Lincoln House.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL AT CRAWFORD CHURCH

Gay Japanese lanterns, balloons and colorful gowns made a bright setting for the lawn party and strawberry festival, under the auspices of the Epworth League at the Crawford Memorial M. E. Church last Saturday evening.

Strawberries and ice cream were served, and a pastry wagon tempted everyone with its goodies. Balloons and roses were sold also, and a pleasing musical program was played by a group from the Boston Italian Methodist Church.

The committee in charge of arrangements included Marion Bancroft, Marion Hatch, Dorothy Fancie and Doris Mills, with Ray Bancroft and "Bill" Russell as "handy men."

WINCHESTER B. B. C. WON TWO

Winchester Baseball Club played winning ball over the past week-end, taking its game Friday evening on Leonard Field from the Waltham Arcadians, 6—2, and winning from the Star of the Sea nine of East Boston, 7—6, on Manchester Field Saturday afternoon.

"Chippie" Gaw, former Arlington High right hander, was on the mound for the locals Friday evening and held the Waltham boys to three hits, tightening up nicely when men were on the bases.

"Buz" Kendrick, high school right hander, worked the Saturday game, and while he gave eight hits, for the most part kept them well scattered. "Buz" eased up with a 7—1 lead amassed during the early innings, and nearly lost the ball game when some loose playing was coupled with a hitting flurry staged by the visitors late in the matinee.

WINCHESTER SCHOLASTICS WON

The Winchester Scholastics, a nine composed of members of the past year's baseball team at Winchester High School, won the opening game of their summer campaign Tuesday evening on Leonard Field, defeating the Winchester Eagles, 10—1.

For seven frames the teams battled on even terms, but in the stretch inning the Eagles blew badly and the schoolboys collected eight runs on seven hits and some wierd pitching by Donovan and Barry.

Kendrick allowed five hits and fanned 11. He got out of quite a hole when Donovan smacked out a homer to far right field with a mate on, but was called out for failing to touch first base, "Polock" McCormick noticing the omission.

"Slicker" Coss and "Albie" MacDonnell were the hitting stars for the Scholastics with Moran leading the Eagles with the stick.

Monday afternoon at 1:30 a Ford truck, owned and driven by Paul F. McCall of 5 Davis avenue, Arlington, was in collision on upper Main street at the Lincoln Gas Station with a Hupmobile sedan, owned by Florence T. Romano of 69 Kilby street, Woburn, and parked at the side of the road. McCall told the police he was about to pass a car, which suddenly made a left turn into the gas station, forcing his car against the Hupmobile which was damaged by the impact. There were no injuries.

SCHOLASTICS LIST TWO GAMES

The Winchester Scholastics, comprising the past season's high school baseball team, are scheduled to meet the Beggs & Cobb nine on Loring avenue playground Saturday afternoon at 3:15, and next Tuesday evening, play the Company E team of Medford at Leonard Field.

At a meeting held at the close of school it was voted to keep the high school nine together this summer as a means of securing added experience for next season when all but two of this year's team will be available for duty.

The boys have been fortunate to secure the "old Mnestro," "Bill" Gibbons, former manager of the Immaculate Conception team, to handle the club this summer. "Bill's" interest in baseball and boys is well known and he should prove very helpful to the youngsters. He is attempting to arrange games with teams in the Scholastics' class or better, not with a view to winning all contests, but to give his players a chance to pick up some real baseball experience.

ARLINGTON WON MASS. PISTOL LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

The Arlington team No. 1, of which two Winchester Postoffice employees, Edward S. Winn and Clarence Donaghey are members, won the championship of the Massachusetts Pistol League for the second successive year by virtue of wins in its last two matches.

"Ed" Winn was again high scorer of the league with an average of 174.6. The "Fire Chief" squeezes a mean trigger and won out this year despite prophecies that he was due for a trimming.

INTERPARK LEAGUE TEAMS IN ACTION

With schedule complications worked out at a league meeting held in Stoneham on Monday night, the Middlesex Interpark Baseball League has settled down to witness what promises to be a great race.

The newly organized baseball circuit which includes representatives from Reading, Woburn, Winchester, Melrose, Wakefield and Stoneham and with returns in from the first diamond precincts, critics were presented with several low score games.

The Winchester T. T. will entertain the fast Vernon A. C. of Wakefield in a league game tomorrow afternoon at Leonard Field. With co-operation assured, the Townies under "Joe" Tansey will be seen regularly on Saturday afternoons at Manchester Field, and on Leonard Field Wednesday evenings after this week.

The Winchester entry is playing good ball and expects to make a strong showing in the new loop. The local boys in their league games to date have staged a hustling brand of ball. "Lefty" Flaherty of the Woburn Cubs stopped them in the opener, 3—0, but when the two teams clash here on July 13, that reverse may be avenged.

The contract for the construction of the addition to the Winchester Savings Bank was let this week to Chester S. Patten, a Melrose contractor, one of several bidders. The complete job will cost approximately $12,000, and will add some much needed working space to the banking rooms as well as a new modern vault and room for the treasurer.

The President, so we read, is going to spend July 4 at his desk. Well, why not? July 4 commemorates nothing of importance to the country these days.

We read that a consumers' strike is looming on the horizon, the exceptionally high cost of meats and other commodities now beginning to be felt by the people. The idea may be reasonable and may take hold, but whether it's a case of cutting off one's nose to spite his face remains to be seen. The other night the little woman in one of her economical moods decided to simplify dinner by ordering pork chops, explaining her rash action by her memory of former similar curtailment in stringing out the weekly allowance. Her wrath at paying 25 cents a chop was evenly divided between the Administration and the pig raisers; and the fact that quahogs and clams are now practically extinct at the Cape, did not arouse any enthusiasm over the much heralded "turn to a fish diet" we are being fed from Washington. In fact the situation appeared fully as difficult as that confronting the average business man these days—that is, the fellow who simply tries to run his business and never gives a thought to the prohibition of blue neckties and derbies. It is a fact, that viewing this country from the year 1932 to the present, one marvels that people can maintain their poise and wave a flag in the face of the hundred and one problems and restrictions heaped upon them by Washington. That sudden program of soak the rich and its equally sudden postponement is a good example of the bewildering mixture we are called upon to digest. In the case of pork, the pig owners of course, found some solace, but we have not yet heard any great rejoicing over the raise in the cost of butter, even if goats' milk is coming into the market extensively. As a matter of fact this change in diet which the American people are heralded to undergo may apply to berries and goats' milk for all we know. Along with fish, it may be the reigning European delicacy and just suit our present population—New England omitted. But it is a fact, that with the present rise in the prices of food, leaving out dandelions, milk weed and some other common edibles, one is hard put to recognize the wonderful advantages which Washington is constantly giving the nation. One might venture to prophesy that if the simple-minded "buggy riders" could only get together they might muster force enough to put a stop to it, but with the present muddled stew this is but a wish that may be father to the thought. Anyone who can unscramble the dish we are eating from the Washington restaurant is a wizard.

AN AMERICAN CREED

I am a "Tory"—a "Bourbon"—and a "Rugged Individualist."

I am a "Reactionary"—a "Flag Waver" and a "Professional Patriot."

I am all those things that the rabble rousers and sedition spreaders call me and I am proud of it.

I am 100 per cent American with a Nordic ancestry. In my veins there is red blood, possibly a bit of blue blood, but—thank God—no yellow blood.

I believe in the preservation of the Capitalistic System and of the Profit Motive. I believe that every man that is worth his salt is a capitalist.

I believe that he has every right to, and should demand, a fair profit from the sale of his products or his services. I believe that the only kind of men that object to profits are the kind that cannot produce them; hence their envy of those that can.

I believe in the distribution of wealth according to ones ability to earn it and to save it; but not in the "redistribution of wealth" by those who have none and who want to enjoy the fruits of other mens' labors.

I hold, with Abraham Lincoln, that it is quite as essential to be just to the rich man as to the poor man; and to be as fair to the large corporation as to the small merchant.

I believe that the political philosophy of Washington and Lincoln is superior to that of Marx, Lenin or any other malcontent from the slums of Europe.

I have strong racial prejudice. It applies to all members of the white, black, yellow or brown races who accept the hospitality of our shores, the opportunity that our country offers to the industrious and frugal, the freedom guaranteed by our Constitution and the protection of the Stars and Stripes, and in return, abuse our institutions and evade our laws.

I believe in God and in the religion of my forefathers, but I object to having my religion polluted with false economic theories, socialism, communism, or any other "ism;" nor do I want my Church used to spread subversive doctrines. I do not want my newspapers, books, radio programs or my theatrical entertainment stuffed with propaganda craftily designed to advance foreign political theories, or to instil class hatred.

I shall fight vigorously every sneaking attempt to indoctrinate my children with socialistic or communistic theories in schools and colleges.

I believe in "Planned Economy" if the plans are based on economy, and not on extravagance and waste; but not the plans of professors, "experts" or bureaucrats to spend other peoples money.

I believe in "Social Security," but that kind of security that every citizen feels when he is assured that his savings will not be jeopardized by "legalized stealing" on the part of his government, either by excessive taxation or financial juggling of any kind. I believe that the eighth commandment applies to governments as well as individuals.

I am willing to be taxed for all reasonable and necessary governmental expenses but not for doles to support those who are too lazy to work, nor for funds to perpetuate the power of scheming politicians.

I want the opportunity to provide for my own old age, but I object to being taxed to support those who failed to provide for theirs.

I demand that my representatives, both state and federal, shall concern themselves more with economy in government, than in new ways to tax the people.

I believe that it would be the height of folly to entrust the operations of our Banks, Railroads and Public Utilities to politicians, because they have already demonstrated their inability to conduct the affairs of our government honestly, economically or efficiently.

I hold that it is absolutely impossible to end want by destroying wealth, or to restore prosperity by reckless spending and incurring greater debt.

In conclusion:

I believe that if our government is to be preserved, every citizen, irrespective of party affiliations, must spread the unpleasant truth that those responsible for the so-called New Deal are engaged in an effort to substitute an alien system which would destroy the Republic.

MORE ON GRADE CROSSING

Congress of the United States
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C.
June 19, 1935

Mr. E. Langworthy Burwell
16 Winslow road
Winchester, Mass.

My dear Mr. Burwell:

Your kind letters of recent date, with enclosures, have just been received concerning the elimination of the Winchester railroad grade crossing.

I am very glad to have your suggestions and the information contained in your letters. The Bureau of Public Roads informs me Massachusetts will receive $4,210,833 from the appropriation of $200,000,000 for the elimination of hazards at railroad grade crossings. The legislation provides that the funds allocated shall be apportioned to the various State highway departments and expended by them under the provisions of the Federal Highway Act. Programs of projects therefore will be instituted by the State Highway Departments. In Massachusetts the matter will be taken up by the Department of Public Works. Regulations concerning the work have not yet been issued by the Bureau of Public Roads, therefore the Massachusetts projects are probably still under consideration by the Massachusetts department. You may want to take up the matter with that department if you have not already done so. Please let me know if you have suggestions whereby I can help furth er. I am anxious to co-operate in every way I can.

With kind regards and all good wishes.

Very sincerely yours,
Edith Nourse Rogers

TO ENFORCE HEALTH REGULATIONS AT RESERVOIRS

To the Editor of the Star:

The following letter has been received from the Commissioner of Public Health:

Commonwealth of Massachusetts
Department of Public Health
State House, Boston, Mass.
April 9, 1935

To the Board of Water Commissioners,
Winchester, Mass.

Gentlemen:

In response to your request the Department of Public Health has caused samples of water to be collected for bacterial examination from the reservoirs used as sources of water supply by the Town of Winchester.

The results of the bacterial examination of these samples show that the water along the shores of the North, South and Middle Reservoirs was free from bacteria characteristic of pollution.

However, at the time of this examination it was observed that there were several persons on the roads within the watershed of these reservoirs. The Department wishes to call your attention to its communication of July 20, 1934, particularly the last paragraph wherein the Department recommended that additional inspectors be employed, if necessary, for policing the water works reservation with a view to preventing pollution and that consideration be given to chlorinating the water supplied during those periods when berry picking and other activities are taking place which may expose the water supply to pollution.

Respectfully,
(Signed)
Henry D. Chadwick, M.D.,
Commissioner of Public Health

The Water and Sewer Board intends to enforce the regulations adopted by the State for the protection of our reservoirs and there will be no lemiency shown to violators as the sanitary protection of our water supply is of more importance to the Town than the few blueberries that are gathered.

Our officers have been authorized to prosecute all offenders without fear or favor.

Thanking you for your assistance by publishing this letter, we remain,

Yours respectfully,
Water & Sewer Board
Edmund C. Sanderson,
Chairman

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Five members were absent from the meeting of June 27, two of whom have already made up attendance.

The May attendance records of the 31st District have been announced and the Winchester Club occupies sixth position among the Division D Clubs with a percentage of 94.17. Again Stoneham leads this division and indeed all clubs in the district with the remarkable figure of 100 per cent for the month with Woburn a close second at 99.41 per cent.

Among the eminent contributors to the July "Rotarian" we note the name of Sir Wilfred Grenfell, that heroic English surgeon who has devoted his active lifetime to service of the poor and distressed of the fisher-folk of Labrador. It would be difficult to find a fuller exemplification of that service which Rotary aims to foster than is to be disclosed by a study of Sir Wilfred's eventful career. This article merits the careful attention of readers. Also this issue of the "Rotarian" will present a comprehensive report of the Mexico City Convention of Rotary International. This convention, the climax of the Rotary year, has been distinguished by many unique incidents. Watch for this careful abstract of the proceedings at Mexico.

The present meeting is the last to be held during the Rotary year 1934-1935 and the occasion of the induction of club officers for the coming year. For the next twelvemonth "Billy" Beggs will swing the gavel at our head table and his efficient alternate will be Charlie Downer who, as is customary, will be in charge of our entertainment periods. Members united in a hearty demonstration of welcome as these two staunch Rotarians were presented, an augury of willing and effective support during their term of office.

But the retiring officers who have served so faithfully for the preceding year were by no means forgotten. Gratitude for their efforts was epitomized as Past President Allen McLatchy stepped forth and calling our retiring President Harry Winn to the foreground presented him with that token which represents the esteem of each of our members for the fidelity which invariably characterizes our presiding officer—a past president's jewel. Harry responded feelingly as he received this emblem of good will. We know that he is genuinely sincere in his statement that it will always be one of his most prized possessions.

Bear in mind that, due to the holiday next Thursday, our next meeting will be July 11 in continuance of our regular schedule.

Percentage of attendance June 20—96.67 per cent.

Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons' first annual garden party for his new parish, St. Jerome's at Lake street and the new Concord Boulevard, East Arlington, was a very extraordinary success and realized quite a sizeable amount toward the church building fund.

Father Fitzgibbons was actively assisted by Mr. Olof N. Olson as chairman; Mr. Daniel Mahoney as treasurer, and Mrs. J. C. Shea as secretary, and more than 100 others who served on the various committees.

The party proved so popular that it was extended over from Saturday to Monday evening.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon are the following from the Bible: "The entrance of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple. . . Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! . . . He sent his word, and healed them and delivered them from their destructions" (Psalms 119:130; 107:15, 20).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "In following these leadings of scientific revelation the Bible was my only textbook. The Scriptures were illumined; reason and revelation were reconciled, and afterwards the truth of Christian Science was demonstrated" (p. 110).

Mrs. J. A. Childs (Muriel Tappan) of St. Paul, Minn., is in town calling on old friends. She is accompanied by her daughter, Muriel, and her son, Tappan. Mrs. Childs is well known to many of Winchester's older residents, having made her home here for many years. She is the guest of Miss Helen Hall, and expects to be in this vicinity until September.

Many inquiries have been received regarding the condition of the water at the Wedge Pond bathing beach. The beach is not closed and the bathing is safe. This pond is not fed by the river but by springs, and although the river beach has been closed, Wedge Pond is all right and the bathing will be continued there.

THREE GOOD "STRATOSPHERE DAYS" IN JUNE

What is so rare as a stratosphere day in June?

About three days of good weather for stratosphere ballooning, or one good day in 10, can be expected in June for the National Geographic-Army Air Corps flight, according to the U. S. Weather Bureau.

This is the average number of good "stratosphere days" in June that have been recorded since official weather records have been kept in the great plains area over which the balloon will drift.

A good "stratosphere day" must provide a cloudless sky, as clouds might produce dangerous rain squalls, and would hinder photography and observations. There also must be a minimum of wind that might interfere with handling of the giant 3,700,000 cubic-foot balloon while it is being inflated.

Preparations for the flight are expected to be complete by June 1, however, allowing the flyers to take full advantage of the first good day that comes along after that date.

ARLINGTON TEXACO STATION NOW OFFERS MOTO-SWAY LUBRICATION

Ernest J. Doiron Texaco Service Station, corner Mystic and Summer streets, Arlington, has been a scene of unusual lubricating activities since the installation of the Moto-Sway method of lubrication. Motorists enthusiastically endorse this new method of lubrication. "It's just a question whether you prefer to hear the garage man growl or your motor purr," says Ernest J. Doiron in an interview in connection with the revolutionary lubrication service rendered at his service station located corner Mystic and Summer streets, Arlington.

"Do you know that 53 per cent of the automobiles in the past ten years have gone to the scrap heap nearly two years before actually necessary and all because of improper lubrication? That their owners have not received maximum service, pleasure, and minimum up-keep costs, because of neglect on their part, or careless or improper lubrication service rendered by others."

These are actual figures given out by the Society of Automobile Engineers.

"Now," says Mr. Doiron, "by lubrication I don't mean just putting different types of lubricants into open cavities. This only means that when they reach tight places they back out the path of least resistance. The lubricants go around the points where the weight of the car rests and not between them. Obviously, the points of greatest friction do not get lubricated under the stationary method. Moto-Sway action lifts the weight off these points and spreads the lubricants so that not a pin point fails to get a coat of protective lubricant.

"For instance take a stationary oil change. You remove the plug in the crankcase and the oil runs out. The sludge and residue still remain in the bottom of your crank case. But with Moto-Sway the action stirs up all the residue and sludge and throws it off with the old oil. This method assures nothing but 100 per cent clean, fresh oil in your crankcase and is positively the only way to have your oil changed.

"Squeaks may sound like a canary to you but they are a swan-song to some part of your car unless you silence them. Squeaks mean excessive friction—friction means wear—and wear means an early grave for that good car of yours. With Moto-Sway we can silence that squeak in short order.

"We guarantee your car to ride easier and handle with half the effort after Moto-Sway lubrication than previous.

"This fact has been proved by the hundreds of new accounts that we have made since the installation of our Moto-Sway."

"No," says Mr. Doiron, "there are no two ways about it. Religious and regular lubrication is the best insurance policy obtainable for the continued life and efficient operation of your automobile and with Moto-Sway lubrication now available the stationary method and the crow-bar have become obsolete."

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

The prices of meats and poultry have continued to lose altitude during the past week, lamb and fowl most spectacularly. Egg prices have not changed but lower prices are anticipated for butter.

Green beans are temporarily the brightest star in the vegetable firmament with peas, carrots, beets, cauliflower and lettuce almost equally so. They are all plentiful and consequently cheap. Onions, celery, broccoli and tomatoes are fairly high.

Melons and berries are the best fruit choices, particularly cantaloupes honeydews and watermelons, blackberries, raspberries and huckle or blueberries.

Here are three menus made up from seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner
Braised Lamb Shanks
Mashed Potatoes Creamed Carrots
Bread and Butter
Blueberry Cake Lemon Sauce
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Cold Chicken Vegetable Salad
Pickled Beets
Bread and Butter
Bread Custard Raspberry Sauce
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Jellied Consomme
Roast Lamb Browned Potatoes
Green Peas Tomato Salad
Bread and Butter
Melon Plate
Coffee Milk

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

We hear much about the right of the meek inheriting the earth. But the trouble is while the meek are waiting to do the inheriting the more brazen ones are doing their best to steal it.

According to one Winchester fellow who goes over to Woburn for his "t..let" a couple of drinks of the stuff they sell nowadays a man sees snakes and toads wearing horns.

A broken bottle on a Winchester highway is a mighty dangerous proposition.

And a bottle filled with the wrong kind of stuff on any highway is often even more dangerous.

We agree with that Winchester motorist who says that it is a toss up as to which is the worse, a reckless jay walker or a careless auto driver.

One Winchester horticulturist ought to make a good legislator. He knows how to use the pruning shears.

It takes the average Winchesterite a long time to realize that he has more trouble with himself than any man he knows.

Keep on the right side of the road when you meet a one-eyed car driven by a fellow with a one track mind. There are more of this species in and out of fair Winchester than we like to say.

It is mighty poor policy to enjoy today at the expense of tomorrow.

Fellow with a glass eye was arguing with a fellow citizen in Winchester Square recently when the fellow with the glass eye said "You give me a 'pane.'"

HEART TO HEART TALKS

The neutrality of the human heart is very often in these days assumed by our social reformers. Very often when men are writing of social evils that say something like this: "There must be something wrong with the system which makes the few rich and leaves the majority toilers or paupers." There is not necessarily anything wrong with the system at all. The political and social system may be as sound and perfect as the moral character of the population will permit—the idleness, the thriftlessness, the drunkenness of a certain strata of society is the true explanation of all our social miseries. "How weak is thine heart." Right here lies the great source of the massive misery of America—not in unfortunate situations, not in unscientific systems, not in erring political programs. But in the weakness of the individual who seems to prefer the lower life to that higher life which is open to all of us. Weak human hearts are the basic reason for all the poverty, the shame, the misery of the American people.

What we need is the renewal of the human heart. Many men have withered hearts, like a flower or tree that has lost sap and vitality, all its leaves fading, its blossoms shedding, its fruits drying up. "My moisture is turned into the drought of summer." Man needs regeneration before there can be any considerable reconstruction. The only New Deal we need is getting back to God. There should be a job for every man in America who needs work but no man-made New Deal will ever make it possible. Industry today seems to be godless—this is why 20,000,000 souls are on public relief of some kind. This is why good men have been thrown out of their jobs and are "walking the bricks" in despair and wondering what is going to happen to them when the few dollars they have saved are all gone.

The Good Book speaks much of a big heart—an enlarged heart, swelling with love and joy. It speaks of a wise heart, full of divine wisdom. It speaks of a tender heart, full of pity and sympathy and grace. It speaks of an upright heart, full of integrity. It speaks of a liberal heart, full of unselfishness and diffusiveness. It speaks of a pure heart, full of the spirit and vision and strength of goodness. It speaks of a sound, true, whole, perfect heart, one altogether loyal to God and to man."

What we need most today is—

"A heart in every thought renewed,
And full of love divine
Perfect and right and pure and good
A copy, Lord, of Thine."

AMENDMENT TO ZONING BY-LAW

TOWN OF WINCHESTER, MASS.

Adopted at Representative Town Meeting on March 18, 1935

VOTED, That Section 8A of the Zoning By-Law, inserted by amendment adopted at the annual town meeting held in 1934, be amended by striking out the last paragraph and inserting in place thereof the following:

The Board of Appeals may make special exceptions to the provisions of this section by authorizing, upon appeal, the granting of permits for the erection or placing of dwelling houses on lots of land containing less area than is hereby prescribed or, upon the written request of the owner of a parcel of land, by authorizing the Building Commissioner to grant permits from time to time for the erection or placing of dwelling houses upon subdivisions or any or all of the lots thereof, although containing less area than is hereby prescribed, subject to such limitations of time and other conditions as it may impose, whenever, after a public hearing, it shall find that—(1) adjoining areas have been previously developed by the construction of houses on lots generally smaller than is prescribed by this section and the standard of the neighborhood so established does not reasonably require a subdivision of the applicant's land into lots as large as is hereby prescribed; or (2) lots as large as is hereby prescribed would not be readily salable and could not be economically or advantageously used for building purposes because of the proximity of the land to through ways bearing heavy traffic or to a railroad or because of other physical conditions or characteristics affecting it but not affecting generally the zoning district.

The Planning Board on request of the Board of Appeals shall make a report to it, with recommendations, on the question of granting any application for special exceptions hereunder.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of an amendment to Section 8A of the Zoning By-Law adopted by the Town of Winchester, Mass. at an adjourned session of the Representative Town Meeting of March 14, 1935, held on March 18, 1935, and approved by the Attorney General on June 26, 1935.
